GOVERNOR REFUSES TO CALL ANTI-JAP SESSION

SAYS NATIONAL CRISIS WOULD MAKE SUCH LEGISLATION A PERIL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 1. — The statement by Gov. Stephens, given out at the close of the special session, follows:

"The Senate and Assembly have asked me to call a special session of the Legislature before January 5 to consider the Japanese problem. Although I have already recently given public expression to my position in this matter, it seems fitting and proper that I should again declare my position.

"I desire to state with all the emphasis of which I am capable that

WILSON'S STRUGGLE AT PARIS FOR A NEW COLONIAL POLICY FOR WORLD TOLD FIRST TIME.

BY RAY STANNARD BAKER.

ARTICLE II.

It was inevitable that President Wilson should be forced at Paris to bear the brunt of the heavy fighting—fighting that would have worn out a stronger, more robust man than he. For he had a double problem, a double task. He had not only to join the other delegates in making peace with Germany, but he had the far more difficult and delicate task, which grew more and more difficult as the conference progressed, of upholding the disinterested American position against the insistent desires and necessities of the other Allied nations.

Most people do not realize that most of the troubles at Paris, and every one of the really serious crises, arose not out of any differences of view regarding the terms to be imposed upon Germany, but out of deep-seated and often bitter disagreements among the Allies themselves. Throughout the six troubled months of the conference the center and focus of the struggle was the conflict between President Wilson, demanding a settlement upon broad principles (which everyone had accepted,) and the other Allied powers demanding various material reimbursements or advantages.

While the war was still in progress necessity united the Allies; everyone accepted Mr. Wilson's plan of settlement, and welcomed his strong leadership—for three reasons:

First—Because his principles appealed to the great masses of the world as good in themselves, as the true, reasonable and honest basis of settlement. This tended to disarm the opposition of the radicals in all European countries who were becoming more and more restless with the bloody continuation of the war.

Second — Because a hearty acceptance of the American idea and American leadership helped to bring America with her vast resources more wholeheartedly into the war.

Third—Because Wilson's diplomacy tended to divide and weaken German support of the war.

UNIFIED SPIRIT BREAKS.

The moment the war ended in an unexpectedly complete victory the high purpose and the unified spirit of the Allies began to fade away. They were not, after all, united nations. Each had its strong loyalties, its ambitions, its necessities, and these immediately began to assert themselves. In the high moments of inspiration and enthusiasm of the war, men had begun to believe in miracles; when it was over they found themselves back in the old world—and, more than that, in a state of exhaustion and demoralization which someone has characterized as national shell shock. It must never be forgotten that it was in this atmosphere of national shell shock, exaggerated appearance, exaggerated fears, that the treaty was made.

The President undoubtedly went to Europe filled with great hope and faith. His plan of settlement, his fourteen points, had been widely accepted and commended throughout the world. He believed that and has always believed in the power

LOST FLYERS NOT SLAIN?

Theory of Cantu is Death by Thirst.

Says Coyotes, not Mexicans, Mangled and Maimed the Aviators' Bodies.

Governor of Lower California Welcomes a Most Rigid Investigation.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

MEXICALI, Nov. 1.—Gov. Cantu of the northern district of lower California today stated it was his "honest belief" that Lieuts. Cecil H. Connolly, and Frederick Waterhouse, lost American aviators, whose bodies were found on the shores of Las Animas Bay, met their death from thirst and that coyotes later mutilated their bodies, instead of the lieutenants being murdered as Maj. Rufus Bratton, in charge of the American expedition, which returned to San Diego last Sunday, reported.

"The report was given out that they had been stabbed by Mexicans," the Governor said, "and I consider that a reflection on the Mexicans in that country. There are no Mexicans living in that immediate section and they are not wild savages to commit a deed like that. I received a report from Benjamin S. Arguello, former Mayor of Mexicali and now stationed at San Felipe, that there is no habitation within miles and miles of that spot and there is nothing but desert, desert, desert, the county is infested with coyotes that are just as bad as wolves, and it is my honest belief that when the aviators perished from thirst, the coytes came and chewed up the bodies. A report has come to me from the American side of the line that one head was found fifteen feet from the bodies and this bears out my statement that it was coyctes and not Mexicans who mutilated the bodies.

WELCOMES INQUIRY.

"I welcome a thorough investigation by the United States government and will aid the American officials in solving the mysterious deaths. Frequently there are small schooners which come to San Felipe and I will negotiate for the use of one of these to make the trip if the American government wishes to send investigators."

In welcoming an investigation by the American government, Gov. Cantu again expressed his belief that such an inquiry would bring out the fact that the Americans died from thirst and the bodies were mangled.

READY TO AID.

"I have always given the American authorities my assistance and I am always ready to do so at any time," said the Governor. "Three years ago army aviators, Robertson and Bishop, were reported lost in Lower California. I rendered every assistance I could and opened a landing place at Black Butte for American aviators. My hospitality was extended to the searchers and always will be. There are many shrewd men in the employ of the American government who are capable of conducting an investigation in that deserted country. They will see for themselves and can report to their government that what I have said is true."

SURPRISE IN SAN DIEGO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 1.—The statement by Gov. Cantu of Lower California that, in his opinion, Lieuts. Waterhouse and Connolly, American aviators, were not murdered, but had died of starvation, was received here with surprise. Maj. R. S. Bratton, commanding the party which brought back the bodies of the airmen to this port on the destroyer Aaron Ward last Sunday, was emphatic then in his assertion that the men had been killed by fishermen from a Mexican fishing vessel, and he added that this assertion would be repeated in his official report to Washington. He also said that the names of the culprits were known both to him and to representatives of Gov. Cantu, who, he said, was co-operating with the United States representatives. Maj. Bratton left for Nogales several days ago.

DENIED BY WATSON.

Col. Watson, commanding at Rockwell Field, where the two aviators were stationed, said tonight that Maj. Bratton had told him the two airmen had been murdered. He also said:

"We have all the proof we need from aviators who searched that part of the country that it is not dry. We know that there are several springs there."

Col. Watson expressed surprise that Gov. Cantu had made the statement that the men died of starvation. He also directed attention to the report that the skull of one of the aviators had been fractured.

Waterhouse and Connolly were carried over the Mexican boundary line by mistake on August 21, losing their way in a storm. They lived nineteen days, according to evidence gathered by the party that brought their bodies here.

IMPORTANT PRODUCING AREAS UNAFFECTED BY LEWIS'S EDICT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—While union mines are tied up in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Illinois, Indiana and Iowa, as well as other important coal-producing States, about half of Kentucky's 40,000 miners are still at work. This fact was largely accounted for by the fact that in the Western Kentucky field the miners and operators signed an agreement, about six weeks ago, specifically providing that those mines would not be affected by the strike.

The most unusual situation is in Utah, where the majority of the miners are reported still at work today. John H. McLennan, Utah representative of the union, called off the strike forty-eight hours ago, at the same time announcing he had received a telegram from John L. Lewis, head of the organization, that the strike was off. That was repudiated by Mr. Lewis. Then Mr. McLennan rescinded his order. Reports today said the miners in that State generally were at work, only about 1000 being on strike.

In Colorado the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company has five mines operating in one district, it is announced. The company made no attempt to operate in the Trinidad district.

North Dakota's 1500 lignite miners remain at work, with the exception of 120 who struck in the Burlington field. An effort is being made to have the State take control of the mines and reach an agreement with the miners.

Only 800 of the 4800 soft-coal miners of New Mexico are on strike, according to today's reports.

Coal operators in Oklahoma, admitting the tie-up complete in that State, say their mines are held in readiness for operation, as ordered by the government.

While a few of the larger mines in Alabama are in operation today, operators do not deny claims of union leaders that about 23,000 men, or 90 per cent. of their membership, are on strike.

West Virginia coal operators assert that operation in that State today is 40 per cent. of normal.

GET COAL IN BIG FIELDS.

West Virginia Open Shop Produces.

Organized Labor Fails to Tie up Free Workers in Pocahontas.

Pennsylvania has 110,000 Men Busy at Work Despite Walkout Order.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Reports to headquarters of the coal operators here today said that in the union mines the strike was generally effective, but that in the nonunion field many thousands of miners remained at work. The great Pocahontas field in West Virginia was reported working at practically full capacity, and in Pennsylvania 110,000 of 180,000 nonunion miners were reported at work.

Instructions were issued today by Atty.-Gen. Palmer to all United States attorneys to keep closely in touch with the situation in their districts and report promptly any concerted action "by any two or more persons to limit facilities for transporting, producing, supplying, storing or dealing in coal, or to exact excessive prices."

ASK FOR NATIONALIZATION.

President Wilson was urged in a resolution introduced today by Representative Baer, Republican, North Dakota, to take possession of bituminous coal mines and negotiate voluntary agreements with the workers so as to insure uninterrupted mining of coal and guarantee the interests of operators and miners during the period of emergency.

Enforcement of the coal-diversion order issued yesterday by Fuel Administrator Garfield will be in the hands of regional coal committees to be set up in eight cities by regional directors of the Railroad Administration. These committees will work under a central committee in Washington.

PREFERENTIAL POLICY.

Director-General Hines announced today that in allotting coal for commercial purposes, the committee would give preference to consumers without a reserve supply whose needs are urgent.

Each regional committee will include a representative of Dr. Garfield. The cities in which these committees will be set up are New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Pittsburgh, St. Louis, Chicago and Atlanta.

Some reports on coal stocks were encouraging, and with continued operation of nonunion mines, it was claimed the supply would meet current needs. A vast volume of coal, the last taken from the mines before the men quit work, was moving today with the Railroad Administration putting forth every effort to distribute it to sections where most needed, after looking after its own immediate requirements.

Steps contemplated by the government to deal with the coal-strike situation, in view of failure of injunction proceedings to prevent a nation-wide walk-out, were not disclosed today.

No reports reached the Department of Labor, although Secretary Wilson was in touch with the various mine districts. There were no statements from labor union headquarters here.

The last coal loaded at the mines late yesterday was being moved today and the Railroad Administration went forward with its plans to distribute stocks on hand to essential industries.

Record-breaking production of bituminous coal marked the last full-time week before the strike, according to estimates made today by the geological survey. Total production during the past week was placed at 13,118,000 net tons.

Production of anthracite during the week was estimated at 1,992,000 net tons.

"The record was achieved through

ANTI-JAP LAW URGED BY PHELAN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Senator Phelan tonight wired Gov. Stephens of California that there was no possible objection to considering Japanese land legislation at the special session of the Legislature. He relayed to the Governor the following telegram which Senator Phelan had received from Senator Lodge in Boston:

"Have heard nothing of conditions in California, but cannot now see how question can affect or act upon treaty.

"H. C. LODGE."

Earlier in the day Sen. Phelan had sent the following:

"Washington, D. C., Nov. 1.—To Gov. William D. Stephens, Governor of California: The Oriental Exclusion Association has informed me of your refusal, so far, to include confessedly needed land legislation in your call for an extra session on the ground that it would affect deliberations here on the treaty and prejudice international relations, etc. I can assure you from Washington that the assertion of California's rights by law will have no effect whatever on these matters. Senator Hitchcock, who is administration leader and ranking member of the Foreign Relations Committee of the Senate, has so advised me.

"We in Washington are competent to pass on this subject and I beg you to dismiss your fears. It is commonly stated that Japanese have the protection of the most favored nation clause by a treaty. Our only treaty with Japan is the 1911 treaty of commerce and navigation and affects only matters of commerce and navigation but does not bar land, marriage, educational and other subjects which are susceptible of legislative restriction.

"Japan restricts land ownership by foreigners and there is no question about our rights as well as our duty to act. I believe our duty is imperative and urgent and I also beg to advise you that it is the opinion here that peaceful relations will be better served by settling this question now, before the treaty is ratified. We have an anti-alien land law now which the Japanese are notoriously evading and defying by various subterfuges. I submit that the law should be vindicated by the Legislature and perfected so that it can be strictly enforced. For this purpose I urgently request you to recall the Legislature.

"Respectfully,

"JAMES D. PHELAN."

WILSON SOON AGAIN IN TREATY WAR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Assurances were given at the White House today that President Wilson will be able to take a hand once again in the treaty fight in the Senate. His recovery has been so satisfactory that he will be ready to confer with Senator Hitchcock, leader of the administration forces in the Senate, within a day or two.

The outcome of the conference which was asked by the administration leader ten days ago is being watched with the utmost interest by both sides in the Senate. It is generally admitted that the President's attitude will decide the fate of the treaty.

If the President informs Senator Hitchcock that he is determined to stand pat on his Salt Lake City speech in which he declared the proposed reservation on Article X would be a rejection of the treaty, it is generally conceded that the Democrats can rally sufficient votes to defeat the treaty.

The only alternative before the President, opposition leaders contended, is to back down and agree to accept the reservation programme which now commands not less than fifty-five votes in the Senate. There can be no compromise on this programme, it was declared. No "mild" interpretative reservations that the President may suggest will be acceptable, the treaty foes declared. The only way to defeat the reservations framed by the Foreign Relations Committee, it was declared, will be for the President to issue orders through Senator Hitchcock to the Democratic Senators to vote for rejection of the entire pact.

Speculation as to which course the President would advise took a wide range. In some quarters it was said that President Wilson, seeing the futility of getting the league "without the dotting of an 'i' or the crossing of a 't,'" would be willing in the end to accept a qualified ratification rather than none at all. Democratic leaders professed to be not very optimistic over the outlook. Some of them are not so bitterly opposed to the reservations, although they declare the committee programme would leave little of the league in so far as it affects the United States. But they are willing to follow the President's guidance in the matter and if he tells them to vote for rejection because of the Lodge programme they will vote that way. Knowing the President's deep fervor for the league in exactly the form in which he presented it to the Senate and remembering that he was the author of Article X, they doubt whether he will ever accept the Lodge reservations even if he has to order his followers in the Senate to vote for rejection.

BOOZERS IN BORDER BATTLE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO, Nov. 1.—More than fifty shots were fired across the international line in a battle between deputy sheriffs and alleged liquor smugglers in the east part of El Paso late today. Neither officer was injured. The suspected smugglers escaped and it is not known whether any casualties were inflicted upon them.

Deputy Sheriffs J. O. Stanzel and Juan Parra fired on two men with pistols when an automobile, which is said to have been filled with contraband liquor and driven by the suspects, stuck in the mud near the international line.

The men in the car answered the fire of the officers and escaped to Mexico on foot. Later four men returned and removed the automobile, holding the deputies off with fire from rifles. The officers were unable further to engage the suspected smugglers because of lack of ammunition.

The officers said their adversaries were aided by confederates who fired shots from the Mexican side with repeating rifles.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. — Establishment of an effective coast and land patrol within the immigration service so as to guard against the unlawful entry of aliens into the United States was approved today by the House Immigration Committee, which voted to include an appropriation of $250,000 for this purpose in the bill changing numerous naturalization laws.

Immigration Commissioner Caminetti recently urged the appropriation, pointing out that the Mexican border patrol force had been greatly reduced by the curtailment of funds available during the war period.

REBELS TAKE BORDER TOWN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BROWNSVILLE (Tex.) Nov. 1.—Gen. Andrew Almazan, Mexican rebel commander, with about seventy of his men, today occupied the town of Reynosa, Mex., opposite Hidalgo, Tex., according to reports here tonight. He met with no opposition, the Carranza soldiers in the Reynosa garrison having crossed to the Texas side.

The railroad between Matamoros and Reynosa is inundated by flood waters from the Rio Grande. No trains are being operated and it is believed Matamoros is safe from attack. Reynosa is sixty miles west of Matamoros.

MCALLEN (Tex.) Nov. 1.—Reports that Mexican rebels under Gen. Alamazan had occupied Reynosa, across the Rio Grande, from Hidalgo, Tex., and seven miles south of McAllen, were not confirmed here early tonight.

POINDEXTER SAYS SOVIET FIGURES IN MASSACHUSETTS POLITICAL FIGHT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Whether the government shall be in the hands of the public or controlled by private organizations is the real question involved in the Massachusetts political campaign, according to Senator Poindexter of Washington, who addressed a Republican rally here today.

"We now are confronted by an even more menacing revolutionary movement seeking the control of the government by what is called the 'proletariat,'" he said. "Hundreds of newspapers are freely circulated in this country in violation of law, advocating revolution. A great deal of money has been sent here from Russia for carrying out this movement. It is a part of the programme of internationalism."

Senator Poindexter said the coal strike was not a good faith movement for higher wages, but simply a part of a campaign fomented by radical communists for the purpose of breaking down authority and securing the control of the mines.

"We are approaching a state of civil war," he continued. "Previous political differences between the Democrats and Republicans on economic questions sink into insignificance in comparison. The great issues as we thought them which divided the Republican party in 1812 seem in the face of this attack upon the fundamental institutions of the land very superficial. It is time to reassert the doctrine of Americanism, and for every patriot to rally to its defense regardless of previous party affiliations."

The proclamation prohibits all meetings or parades except when authorized by the authorities.

Reports during the day showed union miners had obeyed the strike order, but non-union workers were still at work in large numbers.

RUSH FOR LAND IN TULE RESERVATION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FRESNO, Nov. 1.—More than 50 persons lined up at the gate of the Tule Indian Reservation, twenty-five miles east of Potterville and about 100 miles from here, today, to make the rush into the government tract following the noon hour, when the reservation was thrown open to the public.

The first man through the gate was W. S. Cairns of Lindsay. Records were not completed at the reservation tonight, but it is estimated that fully 100 claims were staked. Several had been recorded at the county seat late this afternoon.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ST. LOUIS (Mo.) Nov. 1.—A warning that agents of disorganization are infesting the country to cripple production at a time when America needs most of all maximum production, is contained in a call sent out tonight by the American Mining Congress for a national industrial conference to be held here "to work out a business programme for the nation."

FEDERAL TROOPS IN MINE ZONES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SHERIDAN (Wyo.) Nov. 1.—United States cavalry from Fort D. A. Russell is expected to arrive in the Northern Wyoming coal fields late tonight or early tomorrow to be prepared to deal with any disorders, it became known here this afternoon. It is understood the troops were requested by Gov. Carey of Wyoming. The troops will be quartered at Fort Mackenzie here. Maj. Warren Dean and staff reached here in advance of the troops this afternoon.

DENVER, Nov. 1.—Approximately 500 coal miners were on strike in Colorado today and State troops were pouring into Trinidad this morning to aid in preserving order in the Southern Colorado fields. Additional forces were expected to move into Frederick, in the Northern Colorado fields, during the morning.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the largest operator in the State, had closed its mines in the Trinidad district pending the arrival of sufficient troops to insure safety for miners desiring to go to work. In the Walsenburg district, however, the company planned to operate its properties if possible.

TRINIDAD (Colo.) Nov. 1.—Four hundred National Guardsmen who arrived in Trinidad this morning marched and counter-marched on the streets until noon, while idle miners and their families stood at the curb and watched. There was no jeering and little comment from the watchers.

Col. D. E. McCunniff, commanding the Trinidad mobilization camp, said unless an emergency arose, the soldiers would remain in camp awaiting instructions from Gov. Shoup.

The troops began to depart late today to patrol properties in the district. Troops were assigned Cokedale, Segundo, Ludlow and Aguilar.

To troopers will be sent to Walsenburg unless an emergency arises, it was announced. The Sheriff at Walsenburg maintained the presence of guardsmen in Walsenburg, the scene of a battle between miners and militiamen during the 1914 strike, would result in conflict.

HOURS OF MINER SHORT, PAY HIGH

Average Wage of Soft Coal Workers 78.4c an Hour.

(EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1. — The average soft coal hand miner in the United States, the man involved in the strike earns 78.4 cents an hour, according to figures issued today by the bureau of labor statistics.

If he worked full time with an eight hour day, his yearly earnings would be $1940. If he puts in six hours a day his yearly pay averages $1455.

As things go, however, his average working day for the craft as a whole runs closer to five hours. This would yield an annual pay of $1212.

The bureau has just finished a survey embracing actual pay roll records of 40,511 employees in 201 soft coal mines located in eighteen of the most important bituminous States. It also includes data on 16,209 anthracite workers in twenty-two Pennsylvania collieries. All the pay rolls were for a half month period.

THE SURVEY EXTENSIVE.

From the tables the following deductions are plucked:

During the half month, hand miners of soft coal worked on an average 4.7 hours a day. Their average pay for the half month was $47. This was earned in sixty hours' actual work. If full time time of 102 hours had been put in their average for the fortnight's pay would have been $80.

Machine miners averaged 94.7 cents an hour and worked 5.6 hours a day. Their two weeks' pay averaged $67.75, which was earned in 72 hours' actually worked.

BOYS GET BIG MONEY.

All inside workers, those who work underground, from cagers and loaders to pump men and trappers (boys) averaged in soft-coal mines, 74.4 cents an hour. Their average work day was 5.3 hours.

They averaged $40 for the fortnight and got in 67 hours' actually worked. Outside workers, such as blacksmiths and engineers, averaged 52.9 cents an hour and worked 7.2 hours a day.

All, 40,500 inside and outside, got 72.1 cents an hour average and worked 5.5 hours a day during the half month under study. Full time at eight hours would mean average annual pay of $1832. At 5.5 hours a day it is $1259 a year. Earnings of anthracite miners ranged higher, contract miners getting 84.2 cents an hour and they worked 6.6 hours a day.

A more extensive survey covering a full year, ending last June, showed the average earnings of bituminous mine employees to be 72.3 cents an hour. More than 20 per cent. of these, however, drew more than 90 cents an hour. The average worker during this period put in 5.5 hours a day.

INCREASE STARTED 1902.

The bureau likewise traces the increase in earnings of the miners beginning with the settlement of the anthracite strike in 1902. About 75 per cent. of the soft coal is mined on the tonnage basis. For the bituminous workers the bureau's figures are based on the rates of pick miners in the Hocking valley district in Ohio, established by the various agreements between the operators and the miners' associations. In 1914 the tonnage wage rates were 26 per cent. higher than 1902. At present they are 68.5 per cent. higher than in 1902.

In other words the bituminous hand (pick) miner in Ohio has had an increase in tonnage wage rate of 34.8 per cent. since the start of the European war.

The anthracite contract miner has had an increase of 49.8 per cent. in his tonnage rate since 1913.

COST OF LIVING ADVANCE.

Incidentally cost of living has advanced 86 per cent. since July, 1914, according to the bureau of labor statistics, and 71 per cent. according to the National Industrial Conference Board.

In one table the survey attempts to apportion as between employees and management the immediate responsibility for the short hours actually worked for the three occupations directly concerned in getting out coal, namely, hand miners, machine miners and loaders. In the case of these three occupations the hours of the employees in general are limited by the hours of operation of the mine. In the case of Illinois where only eight establishments were covered with 1669 employes, the average full-time operation for the half-month would be 104 hours but the mines were operated only 73 hours and the employees actually worked 62 hours. In other words the mines were in operation only 70 per cent. of the full-time capacity and the employees worked 85 per cent. of the time the mines were running.

Leader Shorn of His Power to Command.

John L. Lewis,

Acting president of the United Mine Workers of America, whose authority is rendered absolutely negative by the injunction which prohibits any direction of strikers in the mines. The Federal government regards the men as strikers, not against the operators, but against the peace and safety of the nation.

HOUSES LET TO RUM HOUNDS WITHIN LAW.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—A warning was issued here yesterday by the local office of the internal revenue department that property owners who knowingly allow their premises to be occupied or used by violators of the war-time prohibition law are liable to have their property seized and sold to pay the fines and costs assessed against the occupants if convicted.

STRIKE IGNORED BY FREE MINERS

the united efforts of miners, operators, railroads and the public," the statement said.

Miners must make the next move in the soft coal-strike was the opinion today of government officials.

LEADERS' HANDS TIED.

The strike was a reality today even though directing heads of the United Mine Workers of America were restrained from activity by Federal court injunction. Government officials awaited reports as to the extent of the walkout, for upon this information rested the future course of the government.

Should reports show that any considerable number of miners desire to continue work, the government was prepared to furnish them protection. Should disorders occur, the government was ready with all the police powers at its disposal to put them down.

But the government's activities were not alone in the coal fields. Maximum prices for bituminous coal, formulated to meet war's necessity, were again in effect. Priority of distribution, based in part on the war schedule, was in operation.

Nothing can be done by the government, officials intimated, until a way was shown by the strikers themselves. For that reason officials were not prepared to discuss the government's course other than has been outlined.

PRAISE FIRM STAND.

Telegrams were received at the Department of Justice from many States commending the stand of the government. Gov. Roberts of Tennessee telegraphed:

"Tennessee will stand solidly with you in all your efforts to maintain order and protect life, liberty and property."

From Denver Gov. Shoup telegraphed:

The legal department of the State of Texas, through Atty.-Gen. Cureton, offered to assist the Federal agencies "in any action permitted by law."

Commendation of Atty.-Gen. Palmer's stand against "anarchy and Bolshevism" was expressed in a resolution adopted by the Chamber of Commerce of Memphis.

WYOMING IS UNDER MILITARY CONTROL.

FIVE HUNDRED CAVALRYMEN ARE AVAILABLE—TROOP IS SENT TO ROCK SPRINGS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHEYENNE (Wyo.) Nov. 1.—Brig.-Gen. Benjamin A. Poore, commander of Fort D. A. Russell, near here, tonight issued a proclamation assuming "military control" of the State of Wyoming. He said he was acting at the request of Gov. Carey in the coal strike. Five hundred cavalrymen are available. One troop has been dispatched to Rock Springs.

The Governor's telegram was directed to Martin Cahill of Rock Springs, president of District 22, U. M.W.A. It read:

"Telegram from P. J. Quealey, representing mine operators of Wyoming, advises that he requests you to call your scale committee to meet in conference with operators. He further states if operators and miners are unable to come to an agreement, the former will, if miners will continue work, agree to any agreement reached in East. This offer, it seems to me is a fair one, that should be given careful consideration by officers your organization. It is practically all you could expect, as wage scale agreed upon in East would be binding."

DEFY POST COMMANDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Although the Quartermaster-General of the army ordered the management of the O'Gara mine, near Springfield, Ill., which supplies Camp Grant, a permanent army cantonment at Rockford, Ill., to continue operation, the miners remained away from the mine.

ILLINOIS STRIKING MINERS ARE QUIET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.) Nov. 1.—Saturday, the first day of the strike of soft coal miners, passed quietly in Illinois, where approximately 90,000 mine workers are idle, according to Frank Farrington, president of the Illinois district.

"The strike order has been universally obeyed in this State," Farrington said tonight after receiving additional reports from Southern Illinois fields, where the bulk of the State's coal is mined.

Preparations continued for a meeting here Monday of members of the executive board of the Illinois district, summoned by President Farrington before the restraining order of Judge Anderson was issued at Indianapolis. The meeting originally was for the purpose of perfecting State strike plans.

The call for the meeting, it was understood, has not been rescinded.

ORDER HOLDS COAL IN TRANSIT AT HANFORD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HANFORD, Nov. 1.—An order that all bituminous and lignite coal in cars be held subject to the orders of the Director-General of Railroads was received by the agent of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad here from the district headquarters of the railroad administration.

DETROIT, Nov. 2.—Seizure of coal in transit has begun at many points in Michigan, under orders of the Railroad Administration.

WYOMING GOVERNOR CALLS CONFERENCE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHEYENNE (Wyo.) Nov. 1.—Gov. Carey moved to end the strike in this State by telegraphing union officials asking an immediate conference between operators and miners. The operators already have agreed to a meeting.

Union miners in the State responded to the strike call practically 100 per cent., according to figures compiled tonight.

"AMERICA IS FACING ORGANIZED TREASON."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—America today is facing the grave menace of organized treason financed from abroad, and measures should be taken immediately if the country is to be saved, according to a statement by Senator Clayton R. Lusk, chairman of the New York legislative committee investigating Bolshevism.

"The published and unpublished investigations of the committee prove conclusively that there is at the present time in this country a movement to overthrow the established government by violence and revolution," said Senator Lusk. "Facts obtained by the committee also established that this movement to destroy our government is highly organized, heavily financed and largely inspired from abroad and that the converts to this treasonable movement are many more in number than we have dared to admit.

PUBLICITY FAR-REACHING.

"With plausible economic theories which appeal to the criminal ignorant and thriftless with a large and efficient bureau of publicity reaching all classes of our people with our own government and people meeting these assaults upon our institutions almost without protest and with no serious effort to expose them and apply the hand of law to these criminal agitators, no man can forsee what the immediate future in our country will bring forth.

"The men and women who are back of the movement do not seek to better the conditions of any class of people here. Their object as revealed is to break down industry, overthrow representative government and create a condition of disorder and disaster, which will accrue to their benefit in their ambitious scheme of industrial and political conquest.

ARE PRO-GERMANS.

"The history of these men and women, shows that they were pro-German before the war, pro-German during the war and pro-radical following the war. An examination recently conducted of the proprietors or managers of between forty and fifty extremely radical publications in New York City showed that all of these but two were being financed by these same, formerly pro-German, now pro-radical men and women who are persistently seeking through the circulation of over 3,000,000 copies of these papers among the discontented working people of this country to overthrow our government, break down industry, do away with all established churches, discredit the institution of marrage, destroy the civilization and morality, which has been built up through centuries.

"The time has come for the loyal American people to assert themselves. There was never a time in the history of the nation when it was so essential that our people think clearly on political questions as now."

no one recognizes more clearly than I the extreme importance of this whole question. Living as we do on the western edge of this continent with an overpopulated nation of unassimilable people fronting the same ocean which touches our shores, we of California have a problem which our countrymen in the East seem slow to recognize.

MUST SOLVE PROBLEM.

"It is without derogation of the Japanese nation to say that this problem exists, and that an economic situation had arisen which demands attention. If a similar situation should exist in Japan, it is fair to assume that the Japanese nation would take steps to meet it, and we of California feel justified in assuming that our own nation should be equally prompt to meet this situation within her borders.

"If she neglects to do this, however, there are certain phases of legislation which it is entirely competent for California to enact for its own economic protection; and under ordinary circumstances no one would be more concerned than I for prompt enactment of such legislation.

"However, in my opinion, we are not at the present time 'under ordinary circumstances.' The treaty of peace designed to bring an end to the great world war, is, so far as our nation is concerned, still in abeyance. The affairs of the world are still in a most delicate situation. Any precipitate action on the part of our State might easily cause grave embarrassment.

WANTS TO GET REPORT.

"I am further influenced by the fact that the State Board of Control is at present engaged in the collection of information which is essential for a proper presentation of California's attitude and for intelligent legislation. Not until this report is available would it be advisable to proceed toward a solution of this question.

"It is entirely within the province of the Legislature to request me to call an extraordinary session for this or for any other purpose. It is entirely within my own province to deny that request, for the responsibility for calling such session must be mine. For the reasons above given, I most respectfully, but no less emphatically, state that no extra session will be called at this time, nor will I take action in this direction until the present national emergency is passed and the specific information needed has been gathered by the State Board of Control."

NEW MEXICO MINES NOT BADLY AFFECTED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SANTA FE (N. M.) Nov. 1.—Of the 4800 men employed in coal mines in New Mexico, approximately 800 did not go to work today as a result of the soft-coal strike order, according to reports received from the five important coal mining camps.

SHERIDAN (Wyo.) Nov. 1.—Every union mine in Northern Wyoming is idle today, while 1200 miners are striking. Whistles were blown for work this morning, but no miners reported. Sufficient men to keep fans in operation are on duty.

CABIN CREEK MINERS DEFY LEADERS' ORDER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHARLESTON (W. Va.) Nov. 1.—A party of three or four hundred striking miners left the Cabin Creek country early today to march to Charleston, despite the rain and the orders of their district officers forbidding the march, according to official information received here.

By noon the streets of Charleston were filled with miners, including the "marchers" from Cabin Creek.

EXCESSIVE DEMAND

AND LIMITED CLOTHING PRODUCTION

THE man who buys a suit of clothes or an overcoat little realizes the unparalleled conditions in the clothing market today.

A constantly growing demand for clothing has naturally made the merchants of the country eager to obtain merchandise from the manufacturers. But the slow production of the mills and tailors' shorter hours have retarded the making of clothing.

Limited production means, of course, limited supply.

To get our supply of clothing we must meet the manufacturer by appointment. Even then we must be satisfied with his allotment to us. That allotment is limited.

Thus, EXCESSIVE DEMAND and LIMITED PRODUCTION make it difficult to supply the demand for clothing. These conditions also explain why prices are advancing.

However, good Suits and Overcoats can still be had here at $40 to $65.

"SIX-GUN" RUNS RUSSIAN TRAINS

Officers Order Dispatchers at Point of Pistol.

American Trainmen Loyal, Baffled and Disgusted.

Czechs Soon to Leave After Five Years' Service.

BY FREDERICK A. SMITH.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PEKING, Oct. 31.—There have been several explanations officially for the presence of American troops in Siberia. Each expansion has caused merry laughter to ripple 5000 miles west to Vladivostok and back.

The first explanation in the summer of 1918 was that the Americans were coming to help the Czechs, who had once thrown the Bolsheviks out of Siberia, and then were pounding away at them on the western front. The Czechs waited for the Americans until they got the joke, whereupon they withdrew their forces from their front and have not returned.

Then came the explanation that the Americans came to Siberia to help the Russians. The time came when the Russians needed a little help against the Bolshevik uprising, thousands of miles to the east of the Kolchak front. The Russians asked the Americans to get in, but the explanation was promptly offered that this was impossible, as the Americans were under strict orders from Washington not to interfere with Russian internal affairs. The Americans must confine their efforts to guarding the railroad. This double disappointment made the Bolshevists laugh, and gave them courage.

When the statements continued that a few regiments of American troops were guarding a 4000-mile railroad, the laugh was joined by the Japanese, Cossacks, Chinese, Kirghese, Buryats, Mongols, British, French, Italians, Poles and Gypsies, and German and Austrian prisoners.

Even the Americans laughed, but there is a touch of bitterness to the doughboy's mirth. He knows as well as the officers that American participation has only injured America's prestige and commercial future.

America hasn't helped the Czechs, and it has not helped the Russians in its guarding of the railroad and in the operating of the railroad. American railroad engineers, supposedly sharing the most important work of the operation of the Siberian railroad, don't know who is running the road, and they will tell you nobody in particular, except Semenoff and the Japanese. If anybody doubts the foregoing assertions they are referred to voluminous reports now on file in Washington, which are not being George Creeled to any sensational extent.

INSERT RUSSIAN JOKER.

When the inter-Allied board was organized, with the Russians as parties to the contract for maintaining and operating the road, the Russians inserted a joker in the agreement, providing that no order by the inter-Allied board could be executed if it conflicted with existing Russian laws. John F. Stevens and the distinguished engineering representatives of the other countries started work, but when they began to arrange for making the trans-Siberian act like a railroad, almost every step was blocked by a Russian announcement that the plan clashed with Russian laws.

Also the military and civilian authorities stepped in all along the line and brushed aside the experts. When several trains were at a station with a hospital train or an ammunition train due to pull out first on emergency errands, some Russian officer would step into the office of the station master, pull a gun and say his own train must leave first or he would shoot the station master. This was frequent. The Allied engineers then called a conference, telling the Russians they must revoke their laws interfering with their plans and stop the interference by civil and military officers.

The Kolchak government agreed, but either could not or would not reform the conditions. At any rate the laws were not revoked, and Russian officers still dispatch trains with six-shooters.

One American engineering expert told the Russian officers who were putting over a gunplay that the trains were not being run that way. The Russian replied that the Americans thereabouts should be taken out on the hills with a bunch of Bolsheviks and forced to shoot each other out of existence. The American engineer demanded that the Russian retract, and when the Russian refused, the American took his gun away and beat the Russky up. This American was transferred back home.

A carload of furs worth $100,000 sent from Irkutsk eastward for shipment to New York by the Wolfson company was confiscated en route, and Wolfson told me he learned that Semenoff seized the furs, and tried to sell them. The incident caused negotiations between the American and Kolchak governments, but it is still unsettled and the furs unfound.

The Russian engineers are admittedly skilled technically, but are so jealous of their own prestige that they frequently overrule the Allied experts, as they do not want to concede that their old methods were mistaken. Americans who have helped bridge empires with steel rails are here trying to keep the trans-Siberian railroad going, but their orders and suggestions are often ignored. One or two American railway service corps men are at each station, keeping watch on trains, making reports and instructing the Russians how to dispatch trains and keep train sheets, but the results are negligible.

CZECHS SOON TO LEAVE.

What about the American troops guarding the railway? The only way to make the answer clear is to take a map. From Vladivostok to Nikolsk and northward to the Shushun mines the road is under American guard. From Verkne to Udinsk, 154 versts west, the Americans guard. That lets us out. The Chinese and Japanese guard the road from Nikolsk to Kremskaya. The Amur line from Nikolsk to Kremskaya is guarded by the Japanese. The Kremskaya to Verkne-Udinsk road Semenoff's Cossacks guard. For a short distance east of Irkutsk there is a Russian guard. From Irkutsk to Omsk, 1500 miles, it is guarded by Czechs, who soon will be going back to Bohemia after five years of brilliant exploits.

Semenoff's recent bold movement with Cossack troops eastward beyond Harbin will strengthen the combined Cossack-Japanese sector. The Chinese have ordered the commander in Manchuria to disarm the Semenoff troops, but at the President's palace in Peking, I learn the order remains unobeyed as yet. It is suspected that Semenoff may precipitate a clash with the Chinese in Manchuria, which will give the Japanese an excuse to intervene, and assume additional control of the Manchurian railroads and other interests.

The foregoing facts intend no reflection on American soldiers and engineers, who are playing a forlorn game in Siberia. I talked to hundreds of them from Vladivostok to Omsk, and they are all on the job but are thoroughly disgusted.

As a matter of fact, the greatest good done in Siberia by Americans is the Red Cross work. Our girls are working in the hospitals like slaves for the wounded and typhoid-stricken Russians, and the organization generally has doubtless saved innumerable lives. But even the Red Cross is unappreciated.

All the reward thus far, for the efforts to keep Kolchak's line of communications open, is a general Siberian suspicion that America is trying to steal the railroad.

It seems like the time for a new explanation of "What we are doing in Russia."

S. P. SHOPS MAKE A NO-ACCIDENT RECORD.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—"Emerging from the fourteen days' national accident prevention drive with an absolutely clear record, the Los Angeles general shops of the Southern Pacific Railroad today lay claim to an achievement worthy of national notice. Telegraphic results of the drive show that not a man of the 8500 railroad shopmen employed by the Southern Pacific at Sacramento, Los Angeles and elsewhere suffered an injury during the two weeks of the drive. In view of the nature of the work this showing is considered remarkable.

"R. J. Clancy, assistant to the general manager, reports that the Southern Pacific, with over 7000 miles of road and about 50,000 employees, had two employees killed and twelve injured, compared with two employees and seventy-three injured during the corresponding period in 1918, a reduction of 81.3 per cent.

"The Coast, Tucson, Shasta and steamer divisions achieved clear records also. The unfortunate wreck near Los Angeles last Wednesday, accounting for the death of the two employees and the injury of another, prevented the Southern Pacific from establishing what railroad men say would have been an accomplishment unequaled in railroad operation. The road was leading all lines in the country at the time and went seven out of fourteen days without an injury to an employee."

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

LINCOLN (Neb.) Nov. 1.—A decision that it would pass opinion on the question as to whether Nebraska voters have the right to vote at the next general election to approve or reject the action of the State Legislature in ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment was reached by the Supreme Court here today.

This action was taken by the court on a motion to dismiss an appeal by the Secretary of State from a lower court decision, which held the Legislature's action was subject to a referendum. The court decided to withhold judgment on the motion, which was made by those seeking the referendum, until a final hearing of the case.

CARNEGIE MEDALS TO FIFTY-ONE HEROES.

RECOGNITION OF THRILLING RESCUES MADE BY CALIFORNIA CITIZENS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—Fifty-one acts of heroism were recognized and rewarded by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission at a meeting held today.

In five cases silver medals were awarded; in forty-six cases, bronze medals. Thirteen of the heroes lost their lives, and to the dependents of three of these pensions aggregating $2160 a year were granted; to the dependents of six of the others who lost their lives $3750 was granted.

In addition, in seven cases, $10,000 was appropriated for educational purposes, and in twenty-seven cases awards aggregating $23,500 were made for other purposes.

Among the awards are the following:

Bronze medals—Gladys G. Graeber (now Mrs. Valentine W. Bademacher,) San Francisco, saved John R. Chambers from drowning at Mosa Grande, Cal., May 26, 1915; Charles G. Mayer, Santa Barbara, Cal., saved I. May Cuthbert and Maud Williams from a fatal fall in Santa Anita Canyon at Sierra Madre, Cal., July 22, 1915.

Charles Mayer, at the time of his heroic act, was a motorman on the Pacific Electric and lived in Sierra Madre. While returning from an excursion down the mountain trail with his wife and children, he heard frantic cries for help in the canyon 1600 feet below him. Miss Maud Williams, an author, and her sister, I. May Cuthbert, had wandered up the canyon the day before and had become trapped on a ledge, with a drop of 160 feet below them. They spent all night on the ledge.

Mayer sent his son Dan for ropes while he descended the precipitous mountainside. As he reached the two girls after an hour's struggle, his son returned with long ropes. Mayer dragged and pulled the two girls about one-quarter of the way up the mountainside. His wife held one end of the rope, while the boy descended to his father. While Mrs. Mayer clung to a rock, holding the rope, Mayer succeeded in bringing the girls to safety by pulling himself up hand over hand.

CHARGE CARRANZA AS MILITARISTIC DESPOT.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL PASO (Tex.) Nov. 1.—Activities of the Mexican Congress, which recently voted to curtail the power of President Carranza in making laws by executive decree, has aroused the military party under Gen. Pablo Gonzales, according to confidential information reaching the border today.

The Congress is largely composed of friends of Gen. Alvaro Obregon, Presidential aspirant from Sonora, and their resolution to embarrass Carranza was passed by them. Gonzales, who was in Northern Coahuila with Carranza at the time the resolution was passed, hurried back to Mexico City at once.

He sent for several of the leading Obregon politicians and warned them that he would, if the tactics were followed up, send sufficient troops to Mexico City to "restore order," even if the restoring of order meant the closing up of the Chamber of Deputies.

Since that time there has not been a peep out of the Congress. Obregon, however, has left his home in Nogales, Sonora, and going by way of Guaymas and the west coast is on his way to the capital to take personal charge of his Presidential campaign.

Mining men from this district, with interests in Mexico, have taken at face value the declarations of Gen. Diegues, commanding the Chihuahua district, that he has absolute control of the outlying portions of his district, and a number of Americans have returned to work Mexican holdings that have been idle for three years. They have promised reports within a fortnight as to the condition in which their properties were found upon their return.

BUDGET BILL IN SENATE'S HANDS

Will Probably Materially Rewrite House Measure.

Claim Treasury Head Should Have More Power.

Plan Similar to One of Taft's Administration.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The so-called budget bill by the House will probably be largely rewritten by the special committee of the Senate which was recently appointed for the consideration of national budget legislation. According to members of the Senate committee, of which Senator McCormick of Illinois is chairman, there are two vital defects in the House measure.

The first of these defects is that it does not provide for a real budget, in that it does not empower any official to revise and reduce estimates of expenditure. The second is that it does not create a sound budget system now, but urges the President to recommend true reform a couple of years hence, if he sees fit to do so.

According to members of the Senate committee, all the House measure would accomplish, if enacted into law, is the transfer of certain existing powers with regard to the assembling of expenditure estimates and their transmittal to Congress from the Secretary of the Treasury to a director of the budget serving immediately under the President; and the creation of a new system of auditing of the President's, which in no way would control their volume.

Under existing law the Secretary of the Treasury receives the estimates from these departmental heads, and submits them to Congress.

Under the House plan, the estimates would be collected by a director of the budget, serving immediately under the President, and submitted by the President to Congress.

ASKS POWER TO REDUCE.

Senate advocates of budget reform insist that the basic feature of the new system should be the power of the Treasury Department to revise, co-ordinate and reduce estimates of expenditure offered by the bureau and departmental chiefs. The House bill does not confer this power upon the director of the budget.

Because of its failure to do so, Senators insist it cannot be rightly called a budget measure. Merely to transfer from the Secretary of the Treasury to a director serving under the President, the already existing power to collect estimates and submit them to Congress, will not, according to Senators, effect any economy in the business of government.

But to vest in the budget officer, whether it be the Secretary of the Treasury or a Presidential director, power to review, and if need be, reduce the estimates of the bureaus and departments would be the first step in the direction of bringing governmental expenditures within governmental income.

Just as soon as the peace treaty is disposed of, the Senate Budget Committee will meet to consider the House bill and other measures now pending before it.

Senator McCormick, the chairman of the committee, expects to have ready for his colleagues' consideration a draft of a measure placing in the hands of the Secretary of the Treasury the power not only to receive from departmental and bureau heads their estimates for expenditure for each fiscal year, but the power to review these estimates and revise them downward, if the Secretary sees fit, and also to eliminate duplication, or to decide between two departments or bureaus estimating for the same purpose.

Under the McCormick plan, the Secretary of the Treasury would be responsible for the financial administration of the government to the same extent as the Secretary of State is responsible for the administration of foreign affairs, the President, of course, would be the final authority, but the Secretary of the Treasury, as the chief fiscal officer of the government, would be his spokesman on all matters relating to income, expenditure, and fiscal policy.

Secretary of the Treasury Glass emphatically has urged Congress to change the present system, so as to give the Secretary of the Treasury power not only to receive, but to review and revise estimates.

Mr. Glass flatly opposes the provisions of the House measure which would transfer the power of collecting the estimates from the Secretary of the Treasury to a director serving under the President. Rather, he favors taking away from the Treasury Department its present extraneous functions, such as control of the bureau of war risk insurance, the secret service, the public health service, and the supervising architects' office, and limiting its work to that of supervision and control of the finances of the country. When asked concerning the transfer of budgetary powers from the Treasury Department to the President, Mr. Glass said:

IS TREASURER'S JOB.

"The bureau of the budget should be in the office of the Secretary of the Treasury, the office of the government charged with the heavy burden of finding the means to finance its requirements. The division of responsibility is the bane of our government. It is intolerable that the Secretary of the Treasury should have no voice in the expenditures of the government. It is intolerable to think that his function should be merely to go out and borrow money when some one else has spent it without consultation with him or consideration of the means to raise it.

"The preparation of the budget should be the principal duty of the finance minister. We all know the President cannot do this thing. We all know that a bureau chief in the office of the President would be helpless to assert his opinion in opposition to the members of the President's Cabinet. Projects of the government involving expenditures should be determined in conference between the members of the Cabinet concerned, and the President's decision should be final."

Secretary Glass's contention that the Secretary of the Treasury should be the chief financial minister of the administration is supported by Gov. Lowden of Illinois, whose State budget system is one of the most efficient in the country, former Chairman Fitzgerald of the House committee on appointments, and Senator McCormick, who is chairman of the Senate Budget Committee. The last also has indicated his support of Mr. Glass's position that the Secretary of the Treasury should be relieved from all of his present extraneous functions, and in fact introduced measures in the last Congress looking to that end.

Senator McCormick would have the Secretary of the Treasury devote his whole time to the question of financial administration, and make it imperative for him to become familiar in detail with the financial operations of the government. At the Cabinet meeting he would be the minister interested in cutting down expenditures, and as his department would not be a spending department he could not be accused of cutting down one department or another for the Treasury's benefit. The President of course would control the financial policy, but the Secretary of the Treasury, as finance minister, would have all information as to probable revenue and proposed expenditures to assist the President. The President in no way would escape responsibility for the financial programme presented to Congress, any more than he now escapes responsibility for the policies of the State Department.

TAFT ADVOCATED IT.

Another great difference between the Senate and the House on the budget system is in the date of establishment. The House plan does not contemplate an immediate budget, but rather an investigation by the director, who is to be appointed by the President, with a report two years hence or so on such changes as are needed to effect economy. Senators insist there should be economy now, and the only way to get it is to establish a budget system based on full Executive responsibility for estimates, together with a power to revise estimates downward.

They recall that under former President Taft virtually the same plan as the House proposes was carried out, but no action taken by Congress. They do not want a further delay of years before putting the government upon a sound business basis, where there is some relation between income and outgo, and where the chief financial officer of the administration shall have something to say about expenditures as well as receipts.

LEADS THE WHOLE WORLD.

"The Sunday Times" Beat All the World's Newspapers in Volume of Advertising and News Matter Printed Last Sunday, as It Has Done Without Exception for Many Months.

Not only did the gigantic and unparalleled volume of advertising published in the Los Angeles Times on Sunday, October 26, 1919, exceed that printed by any other newspaper on earth, but on that date The Times printed, as it does every Sunday in the year, a greater volume of news, illustrations and feature articles than any other newspaper in America. IT WAS AND IS FIRST.

The steady, consistent increase in The Times' advertising patronage is positive proof that every copy of this paper is a selling force, and that the great majority of business men and merchants recognize that there is no more certain way of reducing the cost of distribution than by persistently exploiting their goods in The Times' advertising columns.

The following tabulation, containing the figures of the number of lines of advertising in the newspaper making the best advertising record on Sunday, October 26, 1919, in each of the several cities named, demonstrates The Times' surpassing superiority more eloquently than words can portray it:

	Agate lines.
Los Angeles Times	225,344
Chicago Tribune	199,497
New York Times	185,965
Detroit Free Press	182,686
Pittsburgh Press	159,586
St. Louis Post-Dispatch	154,560
Philadelphia Inquirer	141,695
San Francisco Examiner	141,078
Boston Globe	130,662
Seattle Times	117,026
Portland Oregonian	112,126
Buffalo Courier	88,956

That The Times' advertising record of Sunday, October 26, 1919, is not exceptional is indicated by its record for the four previous Sundays, which is as follows:

1919—	Agate lines.
September 28	202,118
October 5	226,184
October 12	226,842
October 19	220,808

In its offerings of reading matter and its go-getting array of advertisements the Los Angeles Times is, by the official records, week in and week out, the GREATEST NEWSPAPER ON THIS PLANET.

TO CONTINUE SUGAR BOARD DURING 1920.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—By a vote of 9 to 2 the Senate Agriculture Committee today ordered a favorable report of the McNary bill to continue the United States Sugar Equalization Board during 1920 and to authorize it to buy sugar crops next year.

The bill contains no provisions for licensing a sugar trade, as requested by the board, and also does not require that Cuban sugar shall be purchased.

Chairman McNary plans to report the bill Monday.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed with Sulphur It Brings Back Its Beautiful Lustre at Once.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—[Advertisement.

Only One Thing Now Lacking—Money.

"I have doctored nine years for stomach and liver trouble and spent thousands of dollars, but instead of becoming cured of these ailments, my bloating and pains and attacks became worse. I was persuaded a year ago to take Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and have never suffered since taking the first dose. I wish I had the money back I spent for another medicine." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—[Advertisement.

GARY STRIKERS MUST VACATE THEIR HOUSES.

NOTICE TO MOVE BY NOVEMBER 30 FILED BY CITY LAND COMPANY.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Fifteen hundred steel strikers in Gary today received notice from the Gary Land Company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, that they must vacate their homes by November 30.

The letters, which were dated October 31 and signed by H. S. Norton, the land company's custodian, read:

"You are required to deliver up the property you occupy to the Gary Land Company by November 30."

The houses are needed to give living quarters to arrivals in the city who want to go to work, according to officials of the steel plants. Hundreds of workers from other districts are drifting into Gary, the plant managers say, and the question of housing has become serious.

Most of the men affected are said to be extreme radicals, whose presence is no longer desired in Gary because of their adherence to the political creed of Lenine and Trotzky, Russian Red leaders.

The letters of ousters were delivered to the homes by constables.

Attorney Paul Glaser, representing the unions, would make no comment on the move other than to declare he believed it was intended to force the men back to work.

"This is a move to force the men back into the steel mills," said Oscar Anderson, chairman of the Gary steel council.

"If these men pay enough attention to the letters to return to the mills they will find that the company will allow them to continue to occupy the houses."

LASKEY PICTURES TO FLOOD EUROPE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—A deluge of American-made motion pictures will be let loose on Central Europe under a deal just made by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation with the newly-organized Danish-American Film Company, Ltd., of Copenhagen.

The contract, which is said to be the biggest foreign order yet made by an American motion-picture company, becomes effective March 1, 1920, and calls for a minimum return to the Famous Players-Lasky concern of $1,000,000. Although the agreement is for only one year, the contract provides terms for its renewal.

The Danish-American Film Company will distribute Paramount-Artcraft pictures in Germany, Austria, Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, Serbia, Croatia, Rumania and Bulgaria. The larger part of this territory has been unable to see an American-made motion picture for the last five years, except in such districts where American pictures were carried to the front lines of the Allied armies for the entertainment of the soldiers. That this territory is ripe for high-grade American pictures is indicated by the fact that the Central European governments, especially Germany, carried on an active film propaganda during the war. Investigators sent out by the film trade report that motion pictures have become a great factor in the economic life of Germany and that the demand there is strong for American films.

PERSHING ASKS ARMY TRIMMING

Would Retire a Few Officers from Out All Grades.

Favors Volunteer Reserve of World-War Veterans.

Believes Plan Superior to the Selective Service.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Elimination of "dead timber" among army officers was suggested by Gen. Pershing before the Senate and House military committees today as one of the steps advisable in peacetime reorganization of the military establishment.

In nearly every grade, the general said, there were a few officers who had passed the stage of usefulness and should be replaced. In reducing the army from 500,000 to 300,000 men, the general said only a very small reduction could be made in the number of staff officers.

"We had 350 on our staff in France, for an army of 2,000,000 men," he said. "We should have needed the same number for half as many."

"Nearly every army officer goes around with a reorganization bill in his vest pocket," said Gen. Pershing, "and if you examine them, you'll find each has one arranging good promotions in his own service. In France we assigned officers to duty without regard to what their previous service had been.

Chairman Wadsworth said some recent promotions had created fifty-nine colonels for sixteen cavalry regiments. Gen. Pershing said his scheme would prevent that.

DEPLORES POLITICAL PULLS.

"Staff officers have been able to come to Congress," Gen. Pershing added, "and get promotions to the exclusion of promotions for officers of the actual fighting arms."

When the proposed consolidation of the chemical warfare service with the Engineer Corps was taken up a committeeman asked if use of poison gas should not be eliminated.

"I'd be glad to see that," Gen. Pershing returned, "but somebody else might use it and leave us in the lurch. I would continue preparation for chemical warfare."

"The National Guard performed excellent service in the war, considering its limited opportunity for training," said the general. "Its officers and men had the feeling, and quite properly so, that they had not had complete support from the Regular Army."

Men who have served in the present war should be allowed to enter volunteer reserve organizations, Gen. Pershing said. "I would classify and assign them to service," he said, "with divisional units complete by localities, ready for instant call."

National Guard divisions should be utilized in the same manner as far as possible, he added. "I don't know how far the forty-eight States are going in re-establishing their militia for local use," he continued. "But the governors might be allowed to call on these reserve organizations for help in case of emergency."

NATIONAL GUARD USEFUL.

Gen. Pershing was asked to explain exactly what his theory was for utilizing the National Guard in connection with the military establishment.

"I think it would be wise to take all troops that have seen war service in National Guard units and induct them into the Federal reserve units," he answered. "The National Guard could be kept as part of the training service. You will always have forty-eight different units to deal with in connection with the National Guard. The States have control over the guard, but the Federal government has some authority to enforce regulations over it.

"If no system of military training is adopted, we shall have to fall back upon the National Guard, but I should hate to see it."

Several committee members came to the defense of the guard system and its results. "This law provides that every man trained shall be automatically called into service in case of war," said Representative Miller, Republican, Washington. "What are your views as to that?"

Gen. Pershing said he would favor passing the trained men into reserve organizations and calling them into service automatically when their unit was needed. "You wouldn't have a selective draft, then?" Representative Miller pursued.

"I think the other would be the better plan."

Under authority given by Congress to retain 18,000 commissioned officers in the army until the end of the fiscal year, the War Department has decided to retain in their present emergency grades about 100 general officers, including Gen. March and Lieut.-Gens. Hunter Liggett and Robert L. Bullard. There will be fifty-five major-generals, headed by Leonard Wood, commander of the Central Department.

Gen. Wm. M. Black, chief of army engineers, was retired today at his own request, after more than forty-six years' service. He entered West Point from Pennsylvania in 1873.

SAN FRANCISCO UNION MEN BACK MINE STRIKE

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Unanimous support for the nation-wide coal strike was voted by the San Francisco Labor Council here last night.

In resolutions backing the strikers the council said that the injunction issued in Indianapolis yesterday to restrain the strike "was the most drastic and unwarranted in the whole history of judicial interference in disputes between capital and labor." Copies of the resolutions were ordered sent to President Wilson, the Departments of Labor, Justice and War and the press.

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.

SAN FRANCISCO UNION MEN BACK MINE STRIKE

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Unanimous support for the nation-wide coal strike was voted by the San Francisco Labor Council here last night.

In resolutions backing the strikers the council said that the injunction issued in Indianapolis yesterday to restrain the strike "was the most drastic and unwarranted in the whole history of judicial interference in disputes between capital and labor." Copies of the resolutions were ordered sent to President Wilson, the Departments of Labor, Justice and War and the press.

WEBB SLASHES SALARY BOOST.

Legislature's Extravagance is Curbed in Legal Opinion.

State Veterinarian is not Entitled to $400 Rise.

Activities of Auctioneers End at County Lines.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 31.—Confirmation of the loss of $8800 to the State Department of Agriculture, through an error in the printing of the bill title, restrictions of the activities of auctioneers to their own counties and the elimination of certain drivers of motor vehicles from the chauffeur class, form the substance of opinions recently given by Atty.-Gen. Webb.

Replying to a letter from G. H. Hecke, director of the State Department of Agriculture, Webb adheres to his former opinion that Hecke's department cannot use in any way the fund of $8000 in the general appropriation bill passed by the last Legislature, to pay two years' salary of a chief field deputy, for the reason such an office did not exist and the appropriation made no provision for it. Through an error in printing the appropriation read for a chief field deputy instead of two field deputies.

Webb holds the appropriation of $8000 for two years' salary of the State Veterinarian is not legal as the salary of that official is fixed at $3600 a year and an appropriation could not raise it to $4000. The veterinarian will get $7200 for two years' salary instead of $8000, the item in the appropriation, making a saving of $800 which, with the $8000 above, makes a saving to the State of $8800.

Dist.-Atty. Stanley Murray of Madera County, held an auctioneer could only hold sales in the county in which he resided. This contention was referred to Webb, who quoted sections of the Political Code limiting the activities of auctioneers to their own counties.

On the request of P. J. Tehaney, superintendent of the State motor vehicle department, Webb eliminates the following drivers of motor vehicles from the chauffeur class unless they receive special compensation for operating an automobile or motor vehicle of any kind: Tea, coffee and tobacco solicitors who deliver their orders; grocery clerks, driving a delivery motor vehicle in an emergency; farmers, delivering the products of their ranches to markets; furniture dealers, delivering their goods, and police officers and firemen in the discharge of their duties.

According to Webb, Tehaney must test an automobile lens even though it had been previously tested and approved when it is submitted under a new name by another firm. The Attorney-General points out the conflicts between applicants as to the rights of a certain lens were no concern of the motor vehicle department.

Instead of asking the counties to purchase bonds for prospective amounts to be spent in building units of the State highway within their limits, as was done under the former bond issue, the State Highway Commission announces the bonds will be marketed in the regular way.

Several requests from counties for blocks of the $40,000,000 issue have been refused by the commissioners, who are trying to discourage efforts in this direction.

The Highway Commission is confident the bonds can be sold through bond brokers, although they bear only 4½ per cent. interest, and is endeavoring to arrange for their sale in this way as soon as they are ready. Only as a last resort will the counties be asked to buy bonds as the commission intimates it does not desire to obtain money for road construction in this way.

No bonds will be offered for sale before January 1, 1920, as they will not be ready and all the legal formalities complied with before that date. The bonds are now being numbered and signed and State Treasurer Richardson is rushing work on them.

George R. Curtis of Los Angeles was the low bidder for the contract for building the State highway unit boundary of Ventura county to the Conejo grade. His bid was $114,250, while the estimate of the engineer was $112,150. G. S. Benson and Sons, also of Los Angeles, bid $118,500 for this piece of road work.

In accordance with bills passed by the last Legislature, Surveyor-General Kingsbury has sold 59,029.20 acres of school lands in San Bernardino, San Diego and Riverside counties for $91,833.58.

In San Bernardino county on October 14, 18,294.14 acres of land were sold for $25,065.27, an average of $1.37 per acre. Riverside school lands totaling 23,412.75 acres were sold, October 17, for $39,889.28 or $1.70 an acre. In San Diego county, the amount of $26,879.03 was received for 16,322.31 acres or at the rate of $1.64 an acre.

Kingsbury says in view of the fact that most of the land sold was desert land and the balance only suitable for grazing, the prices received were good. The money received was deposited to the credit of the school land fund and the interest goes into the general school fund.

San Francisco and Santa Barbara will make a determined fight to obtain the 1920 convention of the American Public Health Association which meets this year in New Orleans in November. The Mayors of both cities have wired Dr. Lee K. Frankel, president of the association, inviting the organization through him to come to the Pacific Coast next year.

Assistant Secretary of the State Board of Health Jones, says he understands that the members of the association favor holding the convention in California next year. The 1918 convention was held in Chicago. About 1000 delegates from all parts of the United States generally attend these conventions.

Gov. Stephens has granted papers for the extradition to Nebraska of Lon L. Guy, now under arrest in Los Angeles on a charge of stealing a herd of forty-six Hereford cattle owned by Curtis E. Wineteer of Scottsbluff, Neb.

Guy is alleged to have stolen fifteen Hereford cows, seventeen young Herefords and fourteen Hereford calves.

In an opinion given State Labor Commissioner J. P. McLaughlin Atty.-Gen. Webb upholds the law forbidding children between 12 and 14 years of age from working in mercantile or industrial pursuits after school hours.

Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wood, has prepared a chart showing the laws governing school ages, compulsory education, working permits for pupils and Americanization classes. The chart is regarded as a great aid to employers.

This chart is arranged by ages and illustrates the following laws:

Four or four and one-half years to six—Kindergarten age. Regulated by districts and attendance optional.

Six to eight years—School entrance age, but attendance is optional.

Eight to sixteen years—Compulsory education period, with the following labor permit subdivisions: (a) Twelve to sixteen years—Can get permits to work during vacation periods; (b) Fourteen to sixteen years—When graduates of grammar schools, may get permits to work after school hours. If shown by affidavits that it is absolutely necessary for pupil to make his or her own living, county superintendent of schools may issue a full time permit later; (c) After sixteen years—Age and schooling certificates may be granted to grammar school graduates, if proved work is absolutely necessary.

Sixteen to eighteen years—New part time law, effective July 1, 1920, provides that all persons of these ages who are working and are not graduates of high schools, to devote at least four day hours a week to study in subjects best designed to further their progress in their particular line of work. Schools may be required to establish Saturday classes for these.

Eighteen to twenty-one years—All illiterate persons required to attend Americanization classes and schools in cities required to hold night classes for this purpose.

WALKING DELEGATE IS MENACE, SAYS SENATOR

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

LOWELL (Mass.) Nov. 1.—In his first public utterance since his recently-announced candidacy for the Presidency, Senator Poindexter of Washington, at a political meeting last night, declared the strikes which are "plunging the nation into industrial chaos" are part of a plan by "anarchistic agitators" to bring about a distatorship of the proletariat.

He said in part:

"A species of government within government, the tyranny of radical walking delegates in the labor organizations, has coerced and intimidated many laborers to quit work when they really wanted to work. No man is more interested in the preservation of law and order than the laboring man.

"The suffering that will be caused by the miners' strike will fall not upon the rich, who have prepared themselves against its consequence, but upon the millions of poor. This and other strikes, which are plunging the nation into industrial chaos, are not really controversies about wages and hours of labor, but are fomented by anarchistic agitators as a part of the programme to 'abolish the wage system' and to establish the 'dictatorship of the proletariat.'"

COUNCIL AWARDS GERMAN VESSELS

France and Japan to Receive Warships Now Afloat.

Italy to Take Over Sea Fighters from Austria.

American Conference Members Coming Home.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Nov. 1.—France and Japan are the only Allied powers which are to receive any German warships, according to an agreement by the Supreme Council.

Since Great Britain and the United States had previously agreed to sink such vessels as the Peace Conference allotted them, it is now decided to give France a few serviceable ships which remain afloat here or in German ports. Japan will keep a few German cruisers seized at Kiao-Chow and in the Far East. Italy will receive her warships from the Austrian navy.

Immediately after the armistice, the British Admiralty launched a propaganda campaign favoring the sinking of all German warships. This was construed in some circles as an effort to prevent the United States Navy from being reinforced by the powerful German units, but the then Admiral Benson came out supporting the plan of sinking the German ships. The French and Japanese objected strenuously, after which the British apparently changed their attitude, and were not so anxious to sink the surrendered warships.

Admiral Benson remained insistent, however, and is reported to have intimated that if it retained the units allotted to it, the American naval building programme would be augmented. As the result, a gentlemen's agreement was reached between England and America that they would sink whatever German warships were allotted to them by the Peace Conference.

GERMANS WILL PAY.

Afterward, a tentative distribution of the German warships was made, when suddenly the Germans scuttled the whole fleet at Scapa Flow, leaving only a few ships afloat. Since then a couple of big ships, and a few destroyers have been floated. If the remaining German ships were redistributed among France, Great Britain and America, each would receive only a few, and because of determined French demands the inter-Allied naval commission decided to give France the original number of ships agreed upon before the Scapa Flow incident, which will comprise nearly all of the German warships afloat, either at Scapa Flow or in German harbors.

Commander Fuller, representing the British Admiralty, reported to the Supreme Council that the Admiralty would accept the responsibility for negligence in letting the German crews sink the German fleet, especially since information has been obtained about the great efficiency of the newest German models, their improved fire-control system, and the accuracy of their weapons.

The Supreme Council has decided to make Germany pay for the German warships sunk at Scapa Flow last July. Payment will be made as part of the reparations, and will be added to the total bill which must be paid by the Germans. The value of the wrecks of sunken ships will be deducted from the amount to be assessed against Germany. No amount was mentioned in the Supreme Council decision. The latter was referred to a committee and the decisions may not be reached for some time.

NEARING ITS END.

Frank Polk expects to spend Christmas in Washington. Both Henry White and Gen. Bliss expect to return to the United States when Mr. Polk goes, so there is a strong belief around the Crillon that whether the Peace Conference finishes its work or not, the American commission will cease to function by the end of November.

Confirming this, Mr. Polk announces that if no satisfactory government was established at Budapest by the time the Bulgarian treaty was signed, the Hungarian treaty will be closed up and left to the French Foreign Office, until suitable government is established in Hungary to sign the treaty, and new boundaries will be settled by a series of protocols among the surrounding states.

The Peace Conference reply to Bulgaria, it is expected, will be ready Monday, and the Bulgarian treaty may be signed by the end of next week. The Supreme Council will then wind up its affairs and will not sit indefinitely waiting for the Hungarians to establish a really representative government.

The Hotel Crillon is gradually emptying as the experts and attaches and advisers are packing up and leaving, and huge boxes of documents, books and papers are being loaded up and sent to America by every boat.

REDS CLAIM VICTORY IN NAVAL SKIRMISH.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Oct. 31.—A Bolshevik communication issued Friday and received here this afternoon says: "An artillery duel between our batteries and enemy ships in the Gulf of Finland resulted in the enemy being driven off."

The Lettish press bureau reports that up to October 28 the number of victims taken to hospitals as a result of the German bombardment of Riga was seventy-eight men, women and children, of whom twenty-six had died. These figures do not include many persons killed or wounded by poisonous shells.

Jellicoe Leaves Honolulu.

Elderly People Have A Daily Health Problem

Stomach muscles and digestive organs slow to act as age advances

MOST people find the years slipping by without realizing it, until suddenly confronted with the fact that they can no longer digest everything they would like to eat. It then becomes their daily task to avoid what they know to be chronic constipation.

When exercise and light diet fail it will be necessary to resort to artificial means. Strong physics and cathartics, however, are not advisable for elderly people. They act too powerfully and a feeling of weakness results.

What is needed is a laxative containing effective but mild properties. This is best found in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts gently and without griping, and used a few days will train the digestive organs to do their work naturally again without other aid.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been on the market since 1892 and was the private formula of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who is himself past 80 years of age and still active in his profession. It can be bought at any drug store for 50c and $1 a bottle, the latter containing enough to last even a large family many months. It is a trustworthy preparation.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

ARIZONA UNIONS IN BITTER FIGHT

I.W.W. Faction in Full Control of Union Organ.

Split is Only Advance Guard of Big Scrap to Come.

Radicals Hope to Win Office Through Newspaper.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 1.—The State labor convention adjourned late this afternoon, after a batch of forgiving speeches, and in apparent harmony, though to fight out the battle with radicalism once more at the polls. There was apparent unanimity in a verbal attack on an afternoon newspaper for suggesting that another Bisbee deportation might not be out of order, in consideration of speeches that had been made at the convention. Tucson unanimously was made the site of the next convention, in October, next.

The line-up of nominations on the part of the conservatives is: For president, Leroy Kennedy of Miami; for secretary, Thomas A. French of Oatman, former secretary of the State prison. The radicals nominated: For president, P. H. Brouillette of Globe, and Alfred Madden, a former United States Department of Labor employee, as secretary. A salary of $200 was given the secretary-treasurer.

No further action was taken against President Croaff and Secretary Smith, who were ineligible to election after two terms.

RAGE OVER JOURNAL.

There is to be no meek turning over of the Arizona Labor Journal, as demanded by the conservative majority of the federation convention which has appointed a special committee to manage the publication.

According to Editor Tom Schultz, the Journal has just the same status as the federation officials, who have refused the majority's demand for their resignation, so an attempt is to be made to continue the weekly the last of the year, in the hope in its present radical channel till that its supporters may be successful in the State-wide election that is to be held for officers.

There has come a reply from President John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers. He has expressed pleasure over the action of the convention in its stand against radicalism.

On the other hand, former Gov. Hunt, not only was an honored guest and speaker, on the first day, but was made a fraternal delegate.

The Plumb bill has had indorsement in convention. Very practical sort of sympathy, in the shape of an appropriation for a year of $15 a month, was expressed for the family of former Federation President John L. Donnelly, lately killed at the fair grounds by a horseman who was adjuged to have acted in self-defense.

AERIAL RACERS COMING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PHOENIX (Ariz.) Nov. 1.—Burt Barr, superintendent of the first Los Angeles-to-Phoenix aerial race, arrived today from the Coast with full details.

Four contestants start from the Ince Feld, near Venice, Sunday afternoon at 2:30, traveling by way of San Diego and El Centro to Yuma, where the night is to be spent. Leaving Yuma at 7:30 Monday they will follow the Southern Pacific to Gila Bend, from which point they will strike up the Gila direct for the fair grounds, where they are expected about 10 in the morning. The contestants are Lieut. Goldsworthy in a Canadian Curtiss, Swede Myerhoffer, in a Canadian Curtiss entered by Barr; B. H. Delay and Howard Patterson in an American Curtiss; Frank Clark in a Canadian Curtiss. Gov. Campbell will welcome the flyers and will accept a ride in the winning machine.

Judge Stanford today heard, on its merits, the case affecting the legal occupancy of the office of the Adjutant-General, and promises early decision. Campbell's adjutant-General, Walter Ingalls, has the effects and records of the office, under an order from Judge Lyman. But the Democratic claimant, C. W. Harris, is the only person who knows the combination to the safe.

George H. Smalley, for several years secretary for the Food Administration in Arizona, has been appointed Federal fair price commissioner for the State. He succeeds to all duties of former Food Administrator T. A. Riordan, who suggested Smalley for the work made necessary by new Congressional action.

OHIO MINERS KILLED BY SMOKE AND GAS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

AMSTERDAM (O.) Nov. 1.—Rescue parties tonight found the body of James Gray and four other bodies of the twenty entombed miners in the Youghiogheny and Ohio Coal Company's mine No. 2 as they reached the entrance to entry No. 15.

Gray's body was the first to be found. The party then came upon six more, those of foreign miners, in a group. All had been suffocated by smoke or gas and had not been touched by the fire, which has been burning since Wednesday morning.

It is supposed the other fourteen men had wandered far into the mine. Rescuers have little hopes of finding them alive.

No effort will be made to remove the bodies from the mine tonight. Attempts are being made tonight to have the crowd about the mine disperse so the bodies may be brought out tomorrow.

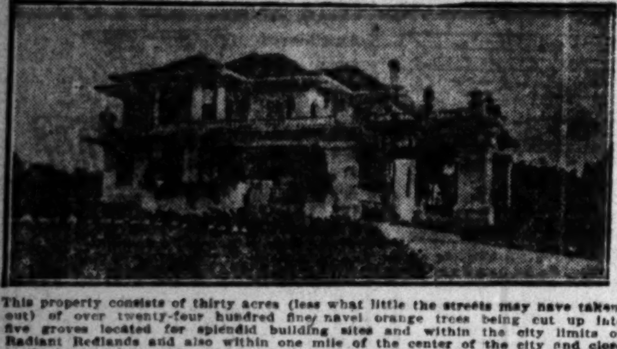
Consider this going proposition, with splendid home of ten rooms, three baths, furnace, sun room, solar heater, and many other advantages. Where church and school facilities are excellent.



This property consists of thirty acres (less what little the streets may have taken out) of over twenty-four hundred fine navel orange trees being cut up into five groves located for splendid building sites and within the city limits of Radiant Redlands and also within one mile of the center of the city and close to the best schools. Also within a radius of one mile so that one good team and set of implements farm the groves and go with this proposition.

There is one other house of seven rooms, two baths and furnace having been rented for four years at $35 per month and located on said groves. There are paved streets, city water, gas and electricity in front of all of these properties which at some future time will make them worth twice as much for building sites as for orange growing.

My bedrock price on this proposition with no commission to be paid agents, is Seventy-Five Thousand Dollars. No trade will be considered unless it was a home in the Wilshire District of Los Angeles in the pink of condition and showing good value at not to exceed Fifteen Thousand Dollars. I consider the crop on these groves to be worth from Fifteen to Twenty Thousand Dollars. If the purchaser desires it I will keep the crop at Fifteen Thousand Dollars with the understanding that I shall have the right to harvest it any time up to and including the fifteenth day of May, 1920. To be shown this property make arrangements by phone. Main 748.

The Choice of Governments

The "Caterpillar" Tractor was the only tractor used by the Allies for their heaviest war work—a choice made after severe and prolonged tests.

How the "Caterpillar" Tractor made good in war service is a matter of history—a marvel to the officers and men serving where "Caterpillar" Tractors were used.

This record merely verified what thousands of farmers who had been using the "Caterpillar" already knew—that Holt design, Holt choice of materials and Holt workmanship give the "Caterpillar" Tractor drawbar pull, stamina and dependability almost beyond belief.

SOCIETY FLOCKS TO BARN DANCE.

Country Home Near Oxnard Scene of Gaiety.

Brilliant Social Function is Charming Event.

Affair Nets Several Thousand Dollars for Hospital.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

OXNARD, Nov. 1.—Two thousand persons passed through the gates at Berylwood, the beautiful country residence of the Thomas R. Bard family near Hueneme, last night, when Ventura society turned out en masse for the Halloween barn dance given by Mrs. Bard. While the exact amount of money raised has not been announced, it is a certainty that the affair was a success financially as well as being a grand social event.

The proceeds, including some very generous checks received, will approximate the $5000 mark, and go toward the establishment of a bed in the Edith Cavell Hospital at Brussels in memory of the boys from Ventura county who lost their lives in the world war.

The new barn where the dance was given is the most wonderful barn in Ventura county, and probably there is none other like it in all of Southern California. It cost in the neighborhood of $12,000. In the middle portion, where the garage will be, was the entrance. It was here the members of the reception committee of which Mrs. Charles C. Perkins of Camarillo was chairman, and composed of seventy-five of the most prominent residents of Ventura county, greeted the guests on their arrival. It was here also that the cafeteria was located, where sandwiches, doughnuts, coffee, apples and cider were served cafeteria style. In the wing on the west, intended for the dairy, the card tables were located.

The dairy is all white enamel, and the pens are fitted with the most modern equipment, sanitary drinking fountains and running hot water being included.

The ballroom was on the second floor, in the hay loft. Diffused lights, grinning pumpkins, Japanese lanterns and all the weird symbolism of Halloween apperaed in the great spaces of the barn. A Los Angeles orchestra furnished the music. Bales of hay were used for seats for the spectators. The candy booth did the biggest business, the receipts from the sale of the home-made candy donated being in the neighborhood of $500.

This booth was in charge of Miss Isabel Camarillo of Camarillo and Miss Renee Canet of Ventura. The punch booth was in charge of Mrs. Charles H. Spurgin. Mrs. Myron Gabbert of Ventura was chairman of the decorations committee and Mrs. L. K. Hope and Mrs. B. F. Korts was in charge of the card playing. Charles Donlon was chairman of the finance committee, heading the list of nineteen prominent county men.

EXONERATES VETERAN.

Pomona Court Upholds Conduct of P. E. Conductor.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Nov. 1.—Lee Bashore, Pacific Electric conductor and world-war veteran, who resented being called a "scab" by Clyde Thomas, local orchard fumigator, and who leaped from his car and administered a thrashing to his calumniator, was today exonerated when he appeared before Judge Harry Mason. Both men were in court to answer to a disturbance of the peace charge. The judge delivered a scathing rebuke to Thomas, together with a fine of $25.

Conductor Bashore told the court that he had been in the employ of the Pacific Electric before he entered the service, that he was glad to get his position back when he came from France, and that he did not propose to let any man or set of men dictate to him whether he should or should not work, nor would he stand for insults.

The basic reproducing principle which has made the AMPICO the sensation of the music world, is essentially the same in each of the three pianos above described. Through the AMPICO in the KNABE, HAINES or FRANKLIN pianos you may hear the exact art of any virtuoso reproduced the same as if the artist himself personally performed on that particular make of piano.

Regardless of any other claims made for any other makes of instruments, it is a clearly demonstrable fact, attested by various public comparisons and the testimonials of many famous musicians and critics that the AMPICO is the ONLY instrument in the world actually capable of reproducing the minutiae of hand-playing such as tone color, subtleties of expression, nuances and seemingly the very spirit and essence of the pianist's art.

The Ampico May Be Played Three Ways—
—for REPRODUCING the hand playing of artists.

FIERCE BATTLE GOES TO U.S.C.

Trojan Football Team Rolls up Pleasant Score.

Oxy Tigers Fight Every Minute of the Way.

Bruce Kirkpatrick Stars on Defensive Work.

BY PAUL LOWRY.

"Gloomy Gus" Henderson's U.S.C. football team tied a knot in the Occidental Tiger's tail yesterday in their skirmish on Bovard Field. The Trojans beat the Orange and Black men, 27 to 0, mainly by taking advantage of their opponents' mistakes.

U.S.C.'s grand total of points resulted from a touchdown by Smith in the first quarter, two by Dean in the second period, and one by Packer in the final spasm, from all of which, excepting one, big "Swede" Evans kicked goal.

One of U.S.C.'s touchdowns was distinctly earned, one was doubtful, and the other two were the outcome of bobbles on the part of the Tiger backs.

RAH FOR HIM!

Little Norton, plucky Occidental quarterback playing his first varsity football game of the season, was unable to handle Leadingham's punts in the backfield, and his mistakes were costly.

The Wesleyans' first touchdown, scored in the initial four minutes of play, came from a thirty-yard dash by Smith after he had picked up a punt fumbled by Norton.

The game was full of the expected fight. It was a fierce contest, and one in which the teams played the brand of football that wears and takes off weight. And yet with all its fierceness both elevens played clean football. Not a penalty was inflicted for holding or unnecessary roughness.

Occidental's pennyweight combination lost as had been expected, but they fought stubbornly over every inch of territory. Once those pigmy forwards held U.S.C. on the 1-yard line, and took the ball on downs, after pushing the Trojan offense back several yards from the goal line.

Bruce Kirkpatrick, the doughty Tiger captain and full-back, was easily the best defensive player on either team. He seemed to be everywhere—plugging up the holes on first one side of the line and then the other.

The heralded coup of the U.S.C. cohorts in hiring an airplane flyer to circle the gridiron and dangle Occidental's stolen mascot at the end of a rope was pretty much of a frost. No one was able to tell at the height at which the flyer soared whether he had a tiger or a piece of Swiss cheese aboard. At any rate the event only served to goad the Tiger team on to more furious effort. They held the Trojans for downs on the 12-yard line and thus robbed U.S.C. of a possible touchdown.

CLEAN VICTORY.

Yesterday's victory was a victory for the team that deserved to win on the merits of its play, its co-operative genius, its ability to follow the ball and to profit by the mistakes that the other fellow made.

As a kicker-off big "Swede" Evans yesterday demonstrated that he has few peers. Five times the big, blond-haired giant kicked off, and four times the oval sailed over the distant goal line. A U.S.C. man was offside on one of those four occasions, and the ball was brought back, and the Trojans penalized for offside play. "Swede" then swatted it for sixty-five yards. The only try at goal he missed was not his fault, but Walter McMillan's. The latter rested the pigskin on the ground before Evans was ready, and Kirkpatrick blocked it.

Evans opened the afternoon's pastiming by kicking over the goal line, and Oxy scrimmaged the ball on the 20-yard line. "Kirk" made ten yards, Smith two and then the burly Tiger full booted a sudden one over the U.S.C. back-field man. U.S.C. made first down once and then kicked to Norton on the Occidental 30-yard line. The Tiger quarter-back fumbled. Right End Smith scooped up the ball on the run and booted it for the first touchdown.

The rest of the first quarter went scoreless, and ran largely to kicking. With the ball on the Occidental 40-yard line at the beginning of the second period the Trojans got down to business. The clever use of the forward pass, Leadingham to Fox, and strong line plunging on Dean's part took the ball over for U.S.C.'s first earned score.

A short punt by Curtis for twenty yards that went out of bounds gave the spheroid to U.S.C. on the 30-yard line and resulted in the second unearned increment. Straight line plunging, mixed in with a few tackle ground plays, took it across, Dean getting the credit.

There were several hundred plays of one kind and another in the third quarter, but no scoring. U.S.C. worked the ball to the Occidental 1-yard line, but lacked the punch to put it across. At this juncture of the game, Henderson waved the majority of the first team to the cool recesses of the showers, and inserted the second-string players.

The second-string men did nothing in the remainder of the third quarter, but took a new lease on life in the last period.

Woodward, Packer and Lockett took turns at racing around the Tiger ends and intercepting Tiger forward passes. Lockett snared a pass on the Oxy 30-yard line that an Occidental man should have had if he hadn't been running with his back to the ball, and from this point the Trojans hammered it across. The line-up:

U.S.C.		Occidental.
Toolen	L.E.R.	Grube
Beale	L.T.R.	Walker
Fox	L.G.R.	Root
Simpson	C.	Powers
Townsend	R.G.L.	Pitman

McMillan	Q.B.	Norton

SANTA MONICA, Nov. 1.—Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Dudley of this city have received word from England that their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, famous tennis player, has won the singles and doubles at Scarborough and Eastbourne. PLAY BY PLAY IN OXY-U.S.C. GAME.

Evans kicked off for U.S.C. at 2:35 o'clock, Kirkpatrick receiving on the 20-yard line and running the oval back to the 40-yard mark. Smith made four yards through right tackle, and Curtis pulled an onside kick, which Leadingham received on the U.S.C. 30-yard line. Bucks by Stuart and Dean netted first down, but the same backs failed to gain on the next two plays and Leadingham punted to Norton, who fumbled, the ball rolling over the Occidental goal line, and Smith fell on it for a U.S.C. touchdown. Evans kicked goal.

Evans kicked off over the Tiger goal line, and it was Oxy's ball first down on her 20-yard line. Norton bucked ten yards through center. Kirkpatrick failed to gain and U.S.C. was penalized five yards for offside play. Fuller failed to gain on a tackle around. A forward pass by Kirkpatrick failed, and Curtis punted out of bounds. It was U.S.C.'s ball on her own 15-yard line. Stuart circled right end for twenty-five yards. Dean failed to gain and Leadingham punted to Norton, and it was Oxy's ball first down on her 25-yard line.

Norton of Oxy made twelve yards around left end. Kirkpatrick attempted a forward pass, which was intercepted by Dean, who ran twenty-five yards, making it first down for U.S.C. on Oxy's 20-yard mark. McMillan and Beale failed to gain. Leadingham fumbled on the next play and Norton recovered on the Tiger 25-yard mark. Curtis and Smith failed to gain and Curtis punted to Leadingham, who was downed on the Trojan 32-yard mark.

From punt formation, Stuart made thirty yards around right end. Leadingham attempted a forward pass, but was nailed with the ball for a five-yard loss, as the quarter ended. Score: U.S.C., 7; Occidental, 0.

SECOND QUARTER.

Beale fumbled on a tackle around, but Leadingham recovered. A forward pass by Leadingham made it first down on Oxy's 28 mark. Gains by Beale, Evans and Dean resulted in a U.S.C. touchdown by Dean, but Evans failed to kick goal.

Evans kicked off and Norton returned to the Tiger 20-yard mark. The Tigers failed to gain and a punt by Curtis was blocked, Fox recovering on the Oxy 20-yard mark. The Trojans were held for downs and Curtis punted out of bounds on Oxy's 30-yard mark. Bucks by Leadingham and Dean resulted in another touchdown. Evans kicked goal.

Score: U.S.C., 20; Occidental, 0.

SECOND HALF.

Packer took Dean's place at right half for U.S.C. Evans kicked off over the Tiger goal line, and it was Oxy's ball first down on her 20-yard mark. The Tigers could not gain, and Curtis punted to Leadingham at the Trojan 48-yard mark. Leadingham punted to Norton, who fumbled and Stuart recovered for a U.S.C. first down on the Oxy 15-yard mark. U.S.C. was held on the 10-yard line. Berr replaced Root at right guard for Oxy, and Woodward took McMillan's place at quarter for U.S.C.

Curtis punted to Woodward, who returned to the Oxy 38-yard mark as the third quarter ended. Score: U.S.C., 20; Occidental, 0.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Pearson replaced Pitman at left guard for the Tigers. Two Trojan forward passes failed and Kirkpatrick intercepted a third one for Oxy, giving the Tigers the oval on their 28-yard mark. A Rugby pass, Kirkpatrick to Smith, netted one yard. A forward pass, Curtis to Kirkpatrick, put the ball on the U.S.C. 48-yard line. Smith and Curtis failed to gain and the latter punted out of bounds on the Trojan 15-yard mark.

Hitch replaced Long at right end for Oxy. U.S.C. made six substitutions at this juncture—Cox for Simpson, Wilcox for Smith, Lindley for Fox, Lockett for Leadingham, Hester for Townsend and Isenhouer for Toolen.

U.S.C. failed to gain and Stuart punted to Norton on the Oxy 41-yard line. A Rugby pass by Oxy lost four yards, and Curtis punted to Woodward, who ran the ball back to midfield. Betts replaced Curtis at right half for Oxy, and Chestnut replaced Stuart for U.S.C. The Trojans ran the ball to the Oxy 20-yard line, but Grube intercepted a forward pass, and the Trojans duplicated this stunt on the next play. Oxy held for downs on its 15-yard mark. Betts punted and U.S.C. regained the oval on her 48-yard mark.

Axe replaced Beale for U.S.C. An exchange of punts ended with Oxy holding the oval on her 28-yard line. Lockett intercepted a forward pass by Kirkpatrick on the Oxy 30-yard mark. A forward pass, Packer to Lockett, netted 15 yards. On the next play, Packer bucked through right guard for a touchdown, and Evans kicked goal.

Evans kicked off over the goal line, and it was Oxy's ball first down, on her 20-yard mark. Dunlap replaced Fuller for Oxy, and Smith failed to gain through center as the game ended.

Score: U.S.C., 27; Occidental, 0.

ARMY ELEVEN DOWNS TUFTS IN HARD SCRAP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WEST POINT (N. Y.) Nov. 1.—The army eleven defeated Tufts, 24 to 13 in a hard-fought game here today.

The army line-up with a substitute team and the visitors put over two touchdowns in the first period, before the soldiers got their bearings. The first score was made by Macchia, who, picking up a fumbled ball on his own 35-yard line dashed through the entire army team. The second score was made by Smith after Commell escaped with a run which rivaled Macchia's. Thornton kicked only one goal.

PRINCETON LOSES TO WEST VIRGINIANS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PRINCETON (N. J.) Nov. 1.—West Virginia University defeated Princeton here today 25 to 0 in a game largely featured by the brilliant individual work of Capt. Rodgers, of the Mountaineers. The Tigers were helpless against the fierce attacks of the big full-back and were unable to cope in any way with the many clever forward passes he started.

MICHIGAN SCORES A VICTORY IN FINAL HALF.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

ANN ARBOR (Mich.) Nov. 1.—In one of the greatest last-period rallies ever seen on Ferry Field, Michigan snatched victory from Northwestern's football eleven this afternoon, 16 to 13.

Held scoreless in the first two periods and allowed only a safety in the third, Michigan opened up in the final session and put over two touchdowns. The first came when Capt. Goetz blocked a punt from behind the Northwestern goal line and Gordon Dunn fell on it back of the line. Sparks scored the other by bluffing around left end and suddenly switching to the right extremity. Sparks kicked both goals.

ST. MARY'S BOWS TO STANFORD.

Cardinals Show Improvement in Their Play.

Templeton's Kicking Big Feature of the Game.

Holt Comes Across with Two Touchdowns.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Cal.) Oct. 1.—The Stanford varsity showed notable improvement today over its playing against Oregon Agricultural College last Saturday, and scored a victory over St. Mary's College of Oakland, 34 to 0. The second varsity beat the College of the Pacific eleven, 38 ot 0, and the Cardinal freshmen defeated the University of California Farm School team, 19 to 6.

HARD TO STOP.

Almost perfect interference made Stanford hard to stop on the offensive, while its defense was so strong that St. Mary's was forced to kick continually in order to make yards. "Dink" Templeton's kicking and the speed of Pelouze were the most notable individual features of Stanford's playing.

Stanford scored in the first half-minute of play, Templeton returning the kick-off with a seventy-yard outside kick, Palouze falling on the ball behind St. Mary's goal. Palouze scored again in the first quarter by picking up the ball on Correa's fumble. In the third period, plunges through the line and around the ends sent Holt across for two touchdowns, while Patrick plunged through the line twenty yards in the last period for the final score.

FULLERTON VANQUISHES ORANGE HIGH ELEVEN.

Three touchdowns and as many kicked goals furnished Fullerton's margin of victory over Orange High School in their football game at Fullerton yesterday. The score was 21 to 0. The game was slow for the most part due to the fact that Orange players were laid out on almost every down. Fullerton scored two touchdowns in the second quarter on line bucks by Meiser and Smith. A third touchdown came in the last quarter—a short pass over the Orange goal line from Arch Hawkins to Lang Hawking, completed eleven out of fourteen forward passes.

YALE WINS EASILY FROM MARYLANDERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW HAVEN (Ct.) Nov. 1.—Yale won from Maryland State in the Yale bowl today, 31 to 0. The game was slowed considerably by a wet field and rain in the last period. In the third period Coach Sharpe sent a number of second and third-string men into the fray. The Blue goal line was not endangered, while Yale scored a touchdown in each period. Features of the contest were the tackling of Riggs, right end of Maryland, and the ground gaining of Neville, Braden and Kempton of Yale's back field.

IOWA STATE COLLEGE HUMBLES NEBRASKA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

LINCOLN (Neb.) Nov. 1.—Iowa State College football team of Ames humbled the University of Nebraska squad here today by a score of 3 to 0. A drop kick from Nebraska's 25-yard line by Davis in the second period, a few minutes after he had replaced Currie as the visitors' right half-back, spelled defeat for the Nebraska team. Day, Nebraska's center, suffered a fractured ankle bone.

WISCONSIN IS OUT OF RUNNING.

ILLINOIS OUTPLAYS CHICAGO ALL THE WAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

URBANA (Ill.) Nov. 1.—Displaying a startling reversal of form and using typical Zuppke strategy, Illinois capsized Chicago's championship hopes on Illinois field this afternoon, winning 10 to 0, before 18,000 persons, the largest crowd that ever attended an athletic contest here. Illinois outplayed the Maroons from beginning to end.

Ralph Fletcher, who replaced Sternaman in the Illinois line-up when the Springfield star was injured, proved a Nemesis for the Stagg men. He made all of the Illinois points, working a place kick in the second period and going over for a touchdown in the third.

The whistle announcing the end of the game probably saved the Maroons another touchdown for Illinois had carried the ball to their 3-yard line, where the game ended.

The line-up:

Illinois (10.)		Chicago (0.)
Carney	L.E.	Hinkle

SEATTLE MEN PUT AWAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) Nov. 1.—Oregon's twelve lean years of fighting for a football victory over Washington came to an end when the heavy and tried eleven from the south defeated the Seattle men 24-13 on their own field here today.

But before the Oregon players won they had to wear down Washington's stubborn defense and dashing offensive. Washington's backs surprised even their strongest supporters when they plunged time and time again, one time for a touchdown, through Oregon's line, rated one of the strongest in the Pacific Coast conference.

Oregon started the scoring by putting two touchdowns across within a few minutes of each other in the first period. Washington, before the period closed, also scored. In the third Washington's back field went through Oregon's line and around the visitors' end for a goal, running the score up to 14 to 13.

With a lead of only one point, the Oregon backs stiffened and drove Washington back to the Seattle 10-yard line, where "Skeets" Manerude, a substitute Oregon quarter, threw a forward pass to V. Jacobberger, who dropped the ball. But Brandeburg, Oregon captain, caught the fumbled ball on the bounce and carried it over.

Manerude, who replaced Bill Steers, Oregon's veteran quarter, ran the score up to 24 in the fourth period when he planted a dropkick between the goalposts.

DARTMOUTH-COLGATE TIE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HANOVER (N. H.) Nov. 1.—Dartmouth and Colgate played to a tie, 7 to 7, today, in what was regarded as the most crucial test of gridiron strength in the East so far this season. Tonight finds both teams undefeated and contenders for football supremacy in the East.

Dartmouth snatched from their opponents what appeared to be certain victory for Colgate when, with three minutes to play, Youngstrom blocked a punt on the 15-yard line and carried the ball across Colgate's goal for the touchdown that paved the way to a tie. Robertson kicked the goal and the team's record was spared the mark of defeat.

Colgate's score in the first period came as a result of Robertson's punt out of bounds on his own 20-yard line. Gilo scored on a short pass from Anderson and West kicked the goal. Score by periods:

Dartmouth	0	0	0	7—7

RED KILLEFER'S TEAM WINS OUT.

Snatches Opening Battle from Weaver's All-Stars.

Babe Ruth Makes Baseball History in Park.

Slams Ball Into Fourteenth Row of Bleachers.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Babe Ruth made baseball history on the local grounds, but even his puissant poling was not potent to prevent the defeat of Weaver's all-stars, an aggregation of which the home-run kink was a part.

Red Killefer's all-stars, an assemblage of luminaries, reinforced by Cactus Cravath, home-run boss of the National League, annexed the day's honors, 4 to 3.

SPRINKLED AROUND.

Big leaguers were sprinkled through both line-ups along with the cream of the Coast League, and the result was two spiffy teams exuding class from every pore.

Ruth did everything that the average batter does, and also something that most of them seldom do. In the first inning he struck out with two on bases. Almost any batter can do that, and all of them do now and then. Bill Piercy was the modest, blushing David who slew the Boston Goliath with strikes.

Then fearing that he couldn't do it again, Piercy walked Ruth with two on bases in the third. In the sixth Ruth drove the ball into the fourteenth tier of seats in the right-field bleachers on a line, thereby living up to his reputation. Nobody happened to be on at the time, so Babe trotted around the bags alone in his glory.

HIGHEST FLY.

Then in the eighth Ruth popped up the highest fly ever seen in these parts. It dropped in Killefer's mitt back of second just as Ruth stepped on that base.

So everything considered, Babe gave the fans a run for their money.

But he didn't monopolize the batting honors. Cravath sent the ball on the fly to within a couple of feet of the left field fence. It was a legitimate triple, but Cactus was content to call it a double and stopped at second. In the sixth Buck Weaver got such a tremendous foul tip that the ball ripped through the mesh wire and zipped into the stand. It was probably the hardest foul tip ever made, and except that it went in the wrong direction would deserve to be classed with Babe's home runs. The trouble is that no record is ever kept of foul tips, and the guy getting them is out of luck. Buck played a whale of a game around third, and performed in a manner long to be remembered.

However, this story necessarily has mainly to do with Ruth. Babe was imported here specifically to produce home runs. That was some contract. Even the champion circuit clouter might go for days without carving one for four sacks, because there is a large element of luck even in the lives of the most expert batters. But he came through and qualified on the first day, which was almost too much to expect.

WHIFFS HIM.

But Babe didn't look well his first time up, and when he whiffed it was feared that the warm little Ruth home had grown cold and that Mrs. Ruth's salad had lost its strength. For be it known that Babe lives in a hot little domicile and is a salad-fed athlete. These facts were discovered by a sob sister the other day when she was sleuthing about the Ruth apartments seeking something about which to write. According to the able sobberino, Babe's success at batting home runs was due to two things: the fact that she always had a warm home waiting for him at night, and fed him on salad of exceptional power before putting him to bed early. This caused Babe to rise up early in the morning feeling his oats, whereupon he would sally forth to slam the pill into the middle of next week. This little food and fuel idyl plucked from the home life of Mr. and Mrs. Babe seemed to explain it all.

Therefore when Babe struck out in a pinch it was taken for granted the temperature of the Ruth residence had fallen several degrees, and the salad has lost its sting. Several theories were advanced. One was that the delivery man had made a mistake, placing the coal in the refrigerator and the ice in the furnace. This would cause any happy home to cool off. At first the ladies present were stumped by what could have happened to Mrs. Ruth's salad that would cause Babe to whiff in a pinch. But after talking it over they decided that she must have left out the horse radish.

But after a while Babe got strong enough to walk, and it became apparent that the properly prepared salad eaten earlier in the week was beginning to take effect.

BUNCHED HITS.

Hits by McMullin and Griggs and a balk by Ross gave the Killeferites a run in the second. Singles by Killefer and Johnson surrounding a triple by Jimmy Austin produced two more in the third. Cravath's double in the sixth blossomed into a run when McMullin followed with a drive to the left.

PENNSYLVANIA HITS THE SLIDE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—After playing a whirlwind game all season and piling up more points than any other team in the East, the University of Pennsylvania went down to defeat today before the eleven of Pennsylvania State College by the score of 10 to 0. Rain fell throughout the game. The playing field was soggy and the ball slippery.

Pennsylvania started out as though her steam roller would crush the State College boys, but, after outplaying the visitors and failing to score after at least two excellent opportunities in the first period, had a reversal of form.

QUAKERS DIE FIGHTING.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CLAREMONT, Nov. 1.—The Pomona football warriors defeated Whittier yesterday afternoon, 45 to 14. The game was a thriller from start to finish and long end runs through broken fields to touchdowns featured the play.

Pomona's line smashing and end runs were stacked up against Joe Siemon's forward passing. Both were effective, but the former proved of more scoring value.

Joe Siemon played a wonderful game for Whittier. His passing, punting and defensive work stood head and shoulders above his teammates. Bronson of the Quakers snagged a forward pass out of the air and ran seventy yards to a touchdown. Cooley of Pomona did the same stunt, but the ball was called back on a foul.

For the Sage Hens Covington, McClain and Stover were the features. Covington's kicking and broken field running put a punch in the game that was lacking in the struggle a week previous.

Numerous offside penalties were called and the playing was ragged at certain points.

Pomona made five touchdowns in the first half. In the second many substitutes entered the game and the scoring slackened.

The line-up:

THROOP ON THE LONG END.

Two safeties furnished the only scores in the Throop-Sherman Indian game at Tournament Park yesterday. Throop finished on the long end of the 4 to 0 count. Two bad passes from the Indian center, once in the third quarter and again in the fourth period, forced the punter behind his goal line, where the Throop forwards downed him.

Throop had several opportunities to score touchdowns, but the Pasadena eleven failed to follow up its advantages, and lacked the drive to put the oval across. Big "Babe" Hollinger was the star on defense for Throop. The Indians, badly outweighed by the husky Throop line, were never really dangerous as a scoring power.

SANTA ANA HIGH WINS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, Nov. 1.—Outweighed, but fighting gamely till the last whistle, Whittier High went down to defeat before Santa Ana High this afternoon, the score being 27 to 7. A single down with successful goal by Harris of Whittier in the early part of the first quarter represented Whittier's share of the score. This was made by a fumble on the part of the visitors, Harris getting the ball and making the prettiest race of the day, a sixty-five-yard run.

In the second quarter Santa Ana made a touchdown by a series of smashes, but failed to convert. In the third quarter Wilcox made a spectacular run of sixty yards, scoring a touchdown. Spangler converted. Two more goals in the fourth period with successful kicks gave Santa Ana their fine score. The visitors showed fine interference. The line-up:

PASADENA, Nov. 1.—Chairman A. L. Hamilton of the Pasadena City Commission and John H. Pearman, secretary of the Board of Trade, are among those in Pasadena who are to receive decorations from the King of the Belgians, according to word received today.

The decorations are to be bestowed upon a number of Pasadena people, among them the two men named, by way of consoling Pasadena in its wrath over the fact that Special Agent Nye of the State Department, who had the King's tour in charge, took the royal party through the city without stopping at the luncheon arranged for them by the community at one of the city's hotels; also by way of conveying King Albert's regret over the incident and his appreciation of what Pasadena did for Belgium during the war.

Both Commissioner Hamilton and Mr. Pearman are now out of the city. Mr. Hamilton is in Sacramento and Mr. Pearman in Washington protesting to the State Department against Special Agent Nye.

HEARD MUCH LEAGUE TALK.

There was much discussion of the League of Nations in the East while he was there and he heard many views opposed to ratification without amendment as well as much sentiment in favor of ratification as the covenant stands, said Dr. Leslie F. Learned, rector of All Saint's Episcopal Church upon his return this afternoon from an extended eastern trip Dr. Learned found much sentiment in favor of the league in the conservative State of Rhode Island.

The minister saw Cardinal Mercier in Boston, King Albert and Queen Elizabeth in New York and was in the Senate chamber the day the Hiram Johnson amendment was voted down.

MISS DIETRICHSON DIES.

Pasadena citizens were saddened today to learn of the death at Norwalk of Miss Martha M. Dietrichson of Pasadena, a well known musician, lecturer and writer. Miss Dietrichson had hosts of friends here and many in Los Angeles and Santa Monica. Her death followed a general breakdown a few weeks ago, although her health had been failing for the last year.

Miss Dietrichson was one of the best known vocal instructors in Southern California. She was a member of the faculty of the Huntington School for Girls, South Pasadena, at the time of her death. Before that connection she was for a number of years connected with the Orton School here.

She was born in Norway and much of her girlhood was spent in travel. She resided in Italy for a number of years with her sister, whose husband was in the Norwegian diplomatic service, stationed at Rome. She studied music there. For a great many years, however, she resided in Pasadena. Her mother died here two years ago. Other relatives still reside in Norway. Miss Dietrichson was a charter member of the Fine Arts Club of Pasadena; also a member of the Drama League of America and the Women's Press Club of Southern California. The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Turner & Stevens's chapel, Pasadena, conducted by Rev. Rufus S. Chase of All Saints' Church. A quartette from the Fine Arts Club will sing. Burial, which will be private, will be at Hollywood Cemetery.

ONE TRIP ENOUGH.

Redlands Maid Encounters Series of Wrecks on Trip North.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Nov. 1.—Miss Clara Sager of the University of Redlands was in three railroad wrecks on one trip to San Francisco. She now announces that the rest of her life will be spent at home.

On the way north the train on which she was riding was wrecked in a tunnel near San Francisco. In Oakland she was on an electric train which left the rails. At that time she was injured about the hips so that she had to be taken to the Receiving Hospital. Returning from San Francisco she was on a train just behind the one wrecked at Acton and was held up there several hours. She reached home half a day late and determined not to risk her life abroad again.

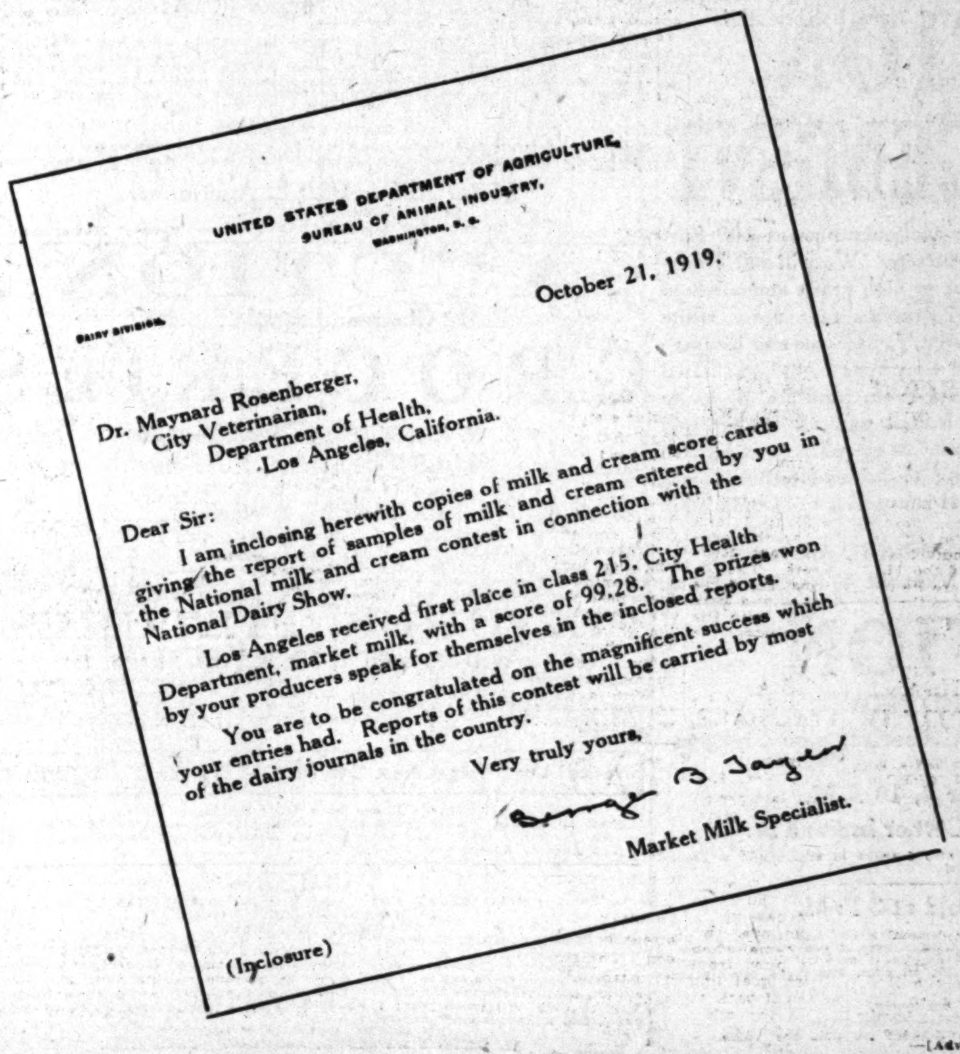
Los Angeles Acquires Fame for Good Milk Supply

Emphasizing the repeated claim that Los Angeles has the purest milk in the United States, the following is a copy of the announcement received yesterday in Los Angeles telling of Los Angeles' latest victory. This city won first prize against the United States as a field, scoring 99.28% at the recent National Dairy Show held in Chicago:



UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,

Los Angeles, California.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

TELLS SAFE, SIMPLE WAY TO TREAT AND RELIEVE AT HOME

If you have catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises caused by catarrh, or if phlegm drops in your throat and has caused catarrh of the stomach or bowels, you will be glad to know that these distressing symptoms may be entirely overcome in many instances by the following treatment which you can easily prepare in your own home at little cost. Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double Strength.) Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. An improvement is sometimes noted after the first day's treatment. Breathing should become easy, while the distressing head noises, headaches, dullness, cloudy thinking, etc., should gradually disappear under the tonic action of the treatment. Loss of smell, taste, defective hearing and mucus dropping in the back of the throat are other symptoms which suggest the presence of catarrh and which may often be overcome by this efficacious treatment. It is said that nearly ninety per cent. of all ear troubles are caused by catarrh and there must, therefore, be many people whose hearing may be restored by this simple, harmless, home treatment.—[Advertisement.

JAP EXCLUSION URGED IN SENATE

Resolution Asks Governor for Extra Session.

Kehoe Says Stephens will not be Goaded to Act.

vened not later than January 5, 1920, to consider Japanese exclusion measures.

A few minutes after the Legislature adjourned Gov. Stephens issued a statement in which he said no extraordinary session would be called until "the present national emergency is passed and the specific information needed has been gathered."

During debate on a resolution presented by Senator Crowley, similar in sense to the Inman resolution, Senator Kehoe said that no matter how many resolutions were adopted the stand of Gov. Stephens not to call an extra session until full information on the Japanese question was at hand could not be changed.

During debate in the assembly on the Inman resolution Assemblyman Gebbart, Sacramento, outlined legislation sought by the faction seeking limitation of Asiatics' activities. Requirement that both parties to a marriage be present at the ceremony and extension to corporations of anti-alien land laws now in effect were desired, he said. This would eliminate "picture brides" and prevent Asiatics from holding lands through corporations, he contended.

Assemblyman Carter, Los Angeles, precipitated a test of strength by proposing to amend the resolution so it would request the Governor to call another session immediately. Assemblyman Morris, San Francisco, asked Mr. Carter to withdraw the amendment, "so something definite can go out to the people," but Mr. Carter, criticising the Governor for failure to act already along the line indicated, said:

"The people of California want action."

Without a record vote, his amendment was defeated. Then the assembly unanimously passed the resolution.

A resolution asking the Attorney-General to investigate alleged violations of the anti-alien land law, was passed.

The Senate also adopted resolutions approving a plan for an annual forest play from the Big Basin Redwoods of Santa Cruz county and asking the Governor to appoint a committee to confer with proper authorities in an effort to end a strike of shipyard workers, which Senator Anderson of Oakland said had caused a serious economic loss to the people of California.

A resolution in memory of the late Al Murphy, San Francisco news writer, was adopted by rising, and eulogy to Murphy paid by members of the San Francisco delegation.

OTHER ISSUES.

When the time arrived for convening the Legislature in extraordinary session, the object of the call—ratification of the national woman suffrage amendmet—had been partly obscured by other issues.

A test of strength of the forces favoring Japanese exclusion legislation was regarded as assured and debate on the issue of legislation to curb high living costs was anticipated. A persistent effort to induce Gov. Stephens to call another special session to act upon these issues was not retarded by his statement yesterday that he did not believe the present time propitious for their consideration.

While factions favoring another extra session were marshaling their forces for a test of strength, Gov. Stephens was guest of honor at a luncheon under auspices of the National Woman's Suffrage Association. Many women active in the suffrage cause came from Los Angeles and San Francisco to attend the luncheon and went later to the Senate galleries to witness the proceedings attending ratification of the suffrage amendment.

NO SPECIAL MESSAGE.

No special message was prepared by Gov. Stephens in transmitting the suffrage amendment to the Legislature.

The Governor's communication read:

"To the Assembly and Senate of the State of California:

"I have received from the Hon. Frank L. Polk, acting Secretary of State, a certified copy of a resolution of Congress, entitled 'Joint Resolution Proposing an Amendment to the Constitution Extending the Right of Suffrage to Women.'

"I hereby transmit the same to you for ratification or rejection."

The formalities of opening in the Assembly were delayed until 3 o'clock and were executed functorily. The Assembly re the resignation of Leon B. G Assemblyman from Alameda c ty, which recently was hand the Governor.

The Rev. Arthur MacArt Assembly chaplain, in offering opening prayer, asked for di guidance in "our social economic duties," and asked blessing "on womanhood," wh continued, "we believe are in keeping."

TIME SAVING URGED.

Speaker Wright congratulated Assemblymen on their having called to pass upon the questi woman suffrage. He then out the procedure of introducing resolution ratifying the Federal frage amendment in the upper h instead of the lower to save t and urged prompt action o when it came from that body.

Senators were all present ex Herbert Slater of Sonoma, wh ill in a hospital, and a resoluti condolence to Senator Slater adopted.

Immediately after organi had been completed, with o and committees the same as a last regular session, a resoluti Senator Scott of San Francisco adopted, giving the Senate app of a project for an annual f play in the redwood forests o Cruz county.

Then the Assembly recessed meet after the Senate had acte the suffrage resolution.

IN THE SENATE.

The Senate, without a disse vote, adopted a concurrent re tion, ratifying the Federal w suffrage amendment.

The Senate then adopted, 35 a resolution offered by Senator J Inman, asking Gov. Stephens t a special session of the Legis not later than January 5, t with a Japanese exclusion act.

After the Assembly had vo suspend the rules to give imme consideration to the suffrage cation resolution passed by the ate, the Inman resolution rega exclusion was sent over from th per house, and the Assembly into a wrangle over limitati debate on the latter.

STATE GUARD NEEDS MEN.

California's National Guard, with a quota of 3500 men provided for in the Congressional appropriation for the current fiscal year, has only about 450 men enlisted according to an official statement issued yesterday. Its total present strength is six companies of infantry, not fully recruited. The Federal government is pressing a movement to increase the National Guard throughout the nation to a total strength of 500,000 by 1923, and the War Department is ready to assist the Adjutant-Generals of the States with money and advice.

The appropriation by Congress for the current year provides for 126,000 National Guardsmen for all States. Of this number, California's authorized quota is: Twelve companies of coast artillery, one regiment of infantry, two troops of cavalry, one battalion of field artillery (motor-driven six-inch guns,) one battalion of field engineers, one signal company (radio,) one field hospital (headquarters and motorized section only) and one ambulance company (headquarters and motorized section only.)

In the reorganization of the National Guard, some other Western States have outstripped California. Washington has an infantry regiment of 1150 men, Oregon an infantry regiment of 1050, and Utah two troops of cavalry.

It is declared that the importance of having an efficient National Guard of considerable strength is even more pressing now than it was before the war. Legislation in California and some other Pacific States, to stimulate interest, is advocated and all citizens are urged to help build up this second line of national defense. In some Eastern States the matter is being taken up through chambers of commerce, with good results.

Woman Gets no Damages for Fall Down Steps that Giant Finds Safe.

Mrs. May E. Cross, who sued H. Tostman for $5000 damages for injuries she received when she fell down the steps at 1221 West Tenth street, was confronted at the trial of the case before Judge Myers yesterday by H. L. Fechtler, a letter carrier, who weighs 240 pounds and has been using the steps a long time. He told the court that if the steps had been defective, he would have observed it. The court gave judgment in favor of Mr. Tostman.

FIRES GAS HEATERS CAUSE INJURE FOUR.

TWO WOMEN SET CLOTHING ON FIRE IN HOMES; OTHERS HURT AIDING THEM.

Three women were seriously burned and a youth painfully injured as the result of two gas-heater fires yesterday morning. All the injured were treated at the Receiving Hospital.

Mrs. Maria Navaratte, 34 years of age, of 1047 Santee street, the first to arrive at the hospital was the most seriously burned. The woman's clothing caught fire from a small gas heater in her rooms while she was dressing. Her screams attracted Mrs. Marie Smith, who extinguished the blaze with her hands. Mrs. Navaratte was treated for burns about the head, face and body, while Mrs. Smith was burned about the arms, hands and body.

Mrs. Loretta Down, 46 years of age, of 1917 Estrella avenue was painfully burned when she drew the sleeve of her house dress through a gas heater while cooking breakfast. Bernard Down, her son, rolled her in blankets and extinguished the fire. Mrs. Down was burned about the body and face while her son was burned on the hands and arms.

Joining the First Division as a casual twenty-two months ago, Kun fought through the battles of Cantigny, Soissons, St. Mihiel and the Argonne. At Soissons he was gassed and was in a hospital three weeks. For assisting in the capture of a machine-gun nest in the Argonne sector he received a citation. He also wears the fourragere on his left shoulder, a regimental decoration.

Upon his return to America, Kun stopped at New York long enough to marry Miss Sadie Hopfenberg, a childhood chum. His marriage was unannounced to his family and friends, who greeted him at the station yesterday.

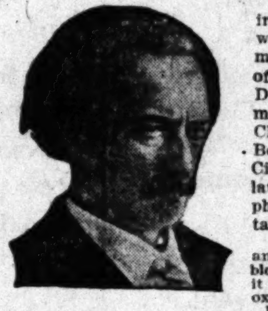
How Success in Life May Depend On Amount Of Iron In Your Blood

Physician Explains Secret of Strong Nerves, Keen Active Brains, and Great Physical Energy—Tells How Nuxated Iron Helps Make Red Blood, Strength and Endurance



I. J. Paderewski

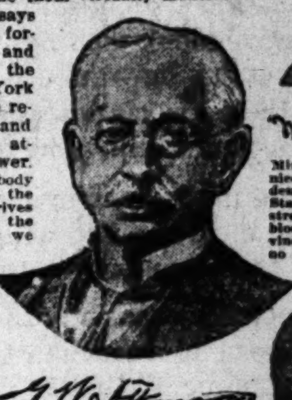
Paderewski, Premier of Poland, and world-famed musical genius, had recourse to Nuxated Iron to help rebuild his wasted forces whe he was weakened and rundown by overwork.

Mabel McKinley

Miss Mabel McKinley, niece of the late President of the United States, says, "As a strength, health and blood builder, I am convinced Nuxated Iron has no equal."

"Strong, healthy men and women with plenty of iron in their blood are the ones who go through life with a smile, self-reliant and fearless, and their dynamic power and energy make them virtually masters of their own destinies," says Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City, in commenting on the relation of strong nerves and physical endurance to the attainment of success and power.

"Strength and vitality of body and mind are derived from the blood and the blood in turn derives it from the food we eat and the oxygen contained in the air we breathe. But unless the blood is rich in iron to increase its oxygen carrying power it cannot develop living tissue, muscle and brain or keep active the vital forces. Many a bright, intelligent man or woman works hard for years to make a success of life only to find that when the crucial test comes they may lack the power and energy to combat the obstacles and withstand the strains demanded of them in order to win. Not until bitter disappointment stares them in the face do they realize that the real and true cause of their failure may be nothing more than depleted nerve force—physical and mental depression—and a general run-down condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. It is surprising how many people who do not get along in life are in reality suffering from iron deficiency and do not know it. To supply this lack of iron and help build stronger, healthier men and women, better able physically to meet the problems of everyday life, I believe that physicians should, at every opportunity, prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—for in my experience it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."



G. W. Atkinson

United States Judge Atkinson, former Governor of West Virginia, says the results he obtained taking Nuxated Iron have been simply marvelous.

Chas. A. Towne

Former United States Senator Towne, "The Silver-tongued Orator of Minnesota," takes Nuxated Iron and recommends it to all who feel the need of renewed energy.

Mrs. James Longstreet

Mrs. James Longstreet, widow of the famous Civil War general, and one of America's foremost editorial writers, says Nuxated Iron brought her back to health and strength when every other tonic had failed her.

Nuxated Iron has been used and highly endorsed by widely-known men and women of the highest calibre. When people like these come out frankly and publicly endorse a product which they have personally found valuable for building health, strength and endurance there can certainly no longer be any doubt as to its efficacy. It is now being used by over three million people annually.

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended by physicians, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Dickinson Drug Co., Chambers Drug Co., Boswell & Noyes Drug Co., B. & B. Drug Co., Sun Drug Co. and all other druggists.—[Advertisement.

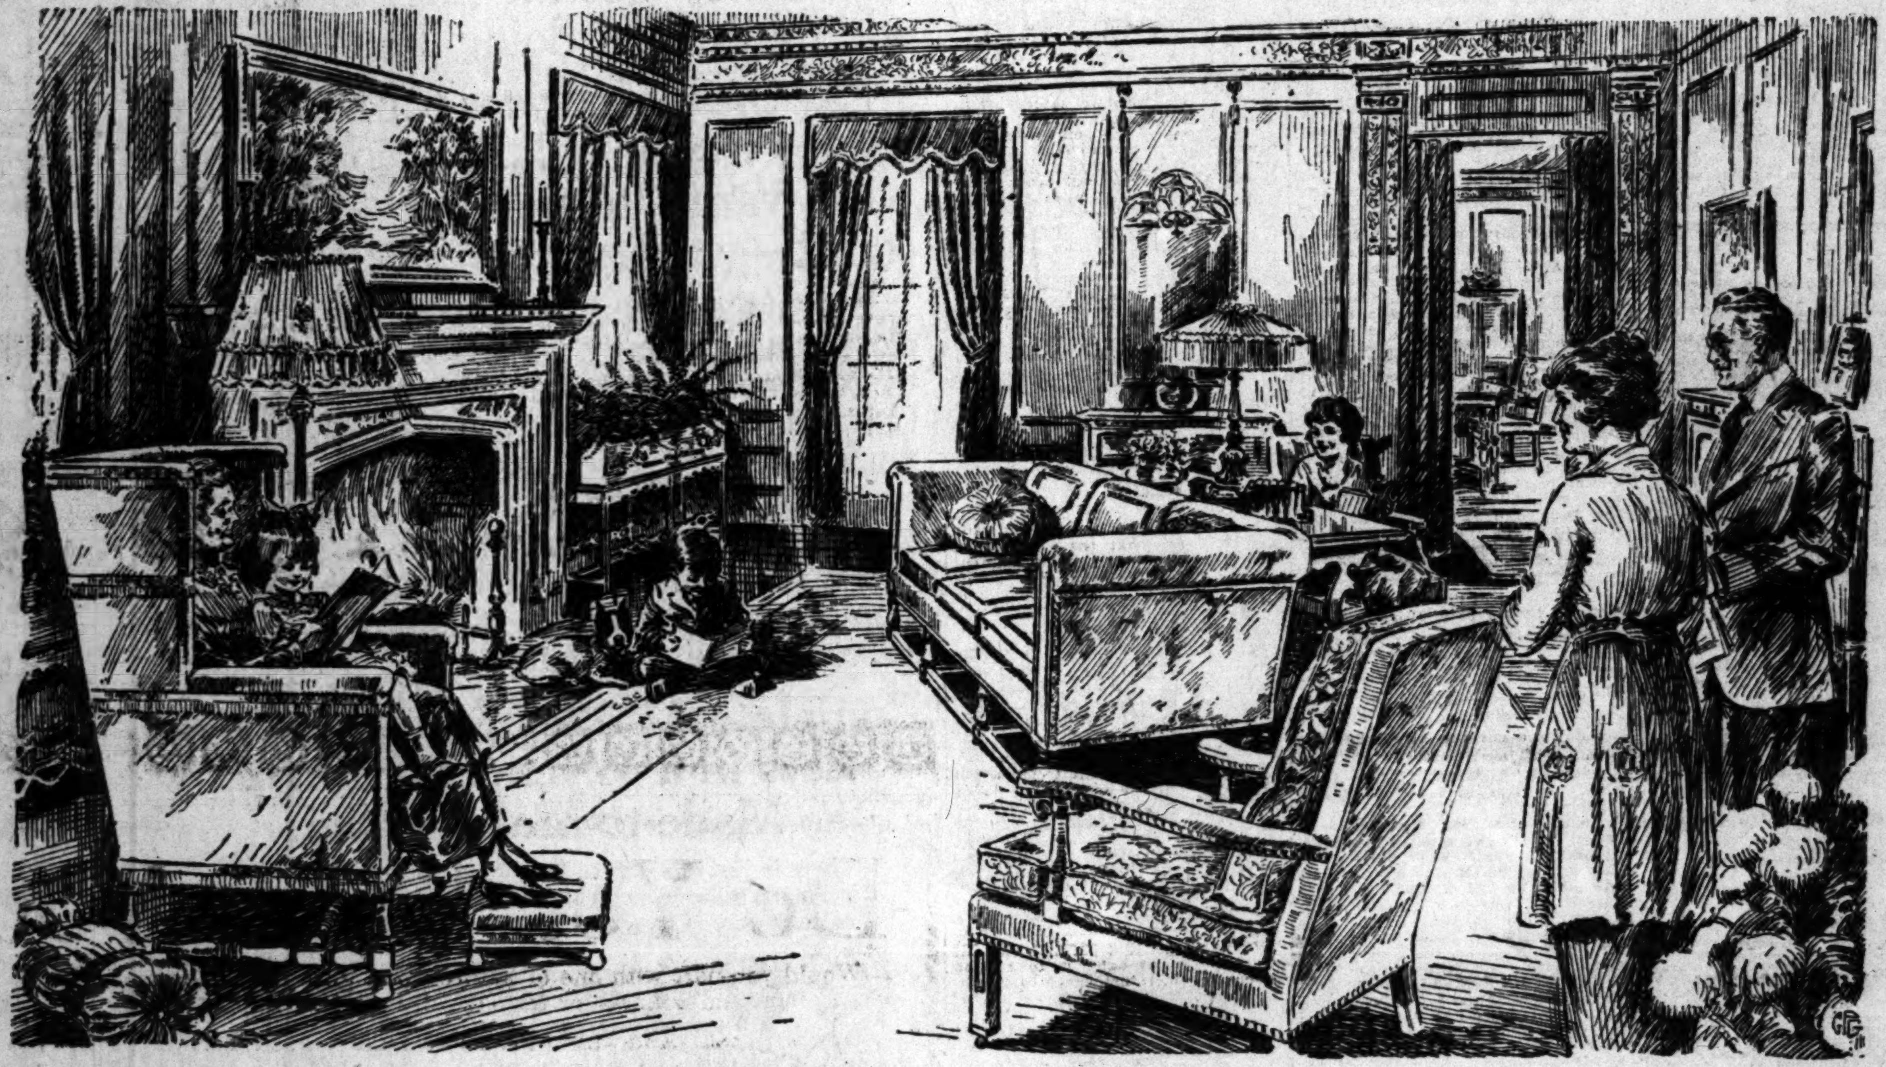
—a page introductory to the story of

HOW TO MAKE THIS THE BEST CHRISTMAS YOU'VE EVER KNOWN



THE Festival of Christmastide is much more than just a "holiday!"

It is the expression of a beautiful Ideal. It is the manifestation of the generous desires and impulses that live in our hearts the whole year through but sometimes seem hidden behind a mask of reserve or smothered in a mass of pressing, prosaic duties.

Christmas gives people the best "excuse" in all the world for being just as kind and big and wonderful as they always love to be—without danger of seeming "sentimental" or fear of having the truth of their sincerity doubted.

Christmas gives you an opportunity to accomplish something constructive along the lines where your happiness and your ambitions lie—an opportunity to give that precious gift the appreciation and enjoyment of home to your friends, your family and your own self.

It's all a simple matter of buying Christmas gifts that have a place in the home and will mean something real in the lives of those receiving them.

It's looking upon the occasion of Christmas as a chance to give some one you love a chair that he'll want to sit in every "resting moment" that he spends at home

—a chance to give some one else a tea wagon that will make it possible for her to serve dinner smoothly and with smiles.

—a chance to make gifts for home and happiness to every one you know!

GIVERS are happy people.

They taste the sweetness of making other hearts rejoice.

The quality of Christmas-giving should not be strained. It should be a spontaneous desire, an impulse of love purely.

THOUGHT is what makes giving count. And without thought, a gift is nothing.

Sincere GIFTS OF THOUGHT for the bringing of complete harmony to the troubled peoples of the earth are gifts worthy of the spirit of the Christmas season.

If we can, in any measure, bestow the blessing of friendly, unselfish fellowship and the benediction of loving-kindness upon those with whom we are privileged to associate, we shall be making the finest, richest and most repaying of Christmas gifts.

From November 2nd to November 11th is RED CROSS ROLL CALL WEEK. It costs just a Dollar—and a Heart—to enroll or re-enroll.

It takes a store peopled with folks who see beyond the surface of the "Christmas spirit" and into its heart

—a store that has no interest in doing a tremendous amount of Christmas business unless the business means a correspondingly tremendous amount of Christmas happiness

—a store that brims with thoughtfully chosen, fascinating varieties of home-making, home-enriching gifts

—it takes such a store to deserve the unlimited confidence of sincere Christmas givers!

And such a store Barker Bros.' strives to be—and is, so we honestly and truly believe.

There will be seven more Sundays before the dawn of Christmas Day, 1919. Each Sunday we shall tell, upon this page, a part of the enchanting story "How to make this the best Christmas you have ever known"—and this page today is just the introduction to the tale.

It will be a wonderful story of Christmas, told by and for folks who love Christmas and want everyone else to love it, too.

Remarkable Theory Advanced to Coroner's Jury at Scene of Acton Wreck, Declared Due to High Speed.

The first detailed explanation of the probable cause of the derailment of the San Joaquin Valley Flyer at Acton was offered by officials of the Southern Pacific yesterday when technical experts of the road told members of the Coroner's jury visiting the scene that the wreck was brought about by the train striking the curve at too high speed.

W. H. Watkins, master car builder and general superintendent of the Southern Pacific shops, told the jurors he believes that Engineer Frank W. Fielder may have been dead or unconscious at his post and failed to check the train in time to prevent its plunge into the ditch.

Taking the members of the jury to a point where the original rails show the first signs of the train leaving the tracks, and from there leading them step by step to where the huge locomotive partly buried itself in three feet of dirt more than 200 feet away, Mr. Watkins and the other railway experts elaborated their theory and showed the members of the jury the evidence on which they based their conclusion that excessive speed caused the wreck.

No testimony was taken by the jury yesterday. In charge of Deputy Coroner Fred J. Williams, the eight men who will place the blame for the death of the five victims of the wreck were taken over the ground in order that they may be familiar with the location and conditions existing there. Wednesday morning they will meet again and will inspect the giant locomotive when it is swung from derricks at the Southern Pacific shops here. In the afternoon they will begin taking testimony in the parlors of Bresee Brothers. That the Coroner will make every attempt to learn all the facts and circumstances surrounding the wreck was indicated by the questions asked by Mr. Williams and the jurymen, and by the request for records pertaining to the equipment and personnel of the train crew.

Deputy District Attorney Dennison was detailed by Dist.-Atty. Woolwine to accompany the jury and gather data which may be used by the county authorities.

FLANGES ALL RIGHT.

That everything so far examined shows the roadbed and train equipment were in good condition, and that a defective flange on the locomotive would have left unmistakable evidence on the rail and ties, was the gist of the points made by Mr. Watkins and his brother-officials; C. W. Jones, traveling engineer, and W. R. Menkling, road master of the San Joaquin division.

The tracks at the point of derailment, Mr. Watkins explained, form a curve slightly in excess of eight degrees. There is an elevation of four and one-eighth inches on the outer rail, with the rails averaging four feet nine inches in gauge. These measurments, Mr. Watkins told the Coroner's jury, are standardized so as to assure absolute safety up to thirty-five miles per hour.

Starting from the point where the flanges on the right-hand side of the locomotive's wheels made an impression on the rail when they mounted it, the mark runs for a distance of about six feet, Mr. Watkins told the jury. Eight inches outside the rail the first marks appear on the ties, running for about thirty feet, and showing the course taken by the engine and the cars that followed. No marks of any sort were left at these points by the inside wheels, proving, Mr. Watkins argued, that the train was traveling at such speed that the entire load was carried on the outside wheels only when the train entered the curve.

"The engineer should have checked his train after leaving the curve just ahead of this one. A speed of even forty-five miles would not have put this train in the condition we see here," Mr. Watkins said, referring to the twisted rails and the fact that the entire road bed near the point of derailment appears to have shifted from a few inches to more than a foot in one place. The weight of the train, according to Mr. Watkins's calculations, was approximately 1,542,000 pounds, and the grade downward more than 2 per cent. Taken with the speed of the train, the force exerted was so tremendous that the results did not surprise him, Mr. Watkins said.

TWO HUNDRED FEET.

The train jumped the tracks about the center of the curve, the engine and few of the cars that followed it on a direct line hurtled through the air and the engine began turning over, but when at about 45 deg. and just ready to tip over, it struck a mound, gouged half of it and turned it into sand and fine dirt. The blow from earth turned the engine back into an upright position, changed its direction back to a parallel with the tracks, and brought it to a stop about ten feet further on, altogether afout 200 feet from the point of derailment.

As the engine buried its nose in the ground and came to a rest, Mr. Watkins declared, the baggage and express car back of it were splintered into bits. Several other coaches followed the engine and slid over it, knocking the dome scores of feet away, and probably killing the engineer and fireman by crushing the cab ard superstructure. One of the heavy trucks of a steel coach that slid over the locomotive was found fifteen feet in front of the engine. The other cars were even further ahead, and more of the derailed cars plunged forward and zigzagged and telescoped on both sides of the right of way.

The jury listened to the explanations of Mr. Watkins and the other officials, and asked many questions. When Mr. Watkins expressed his belief in the possibility that the engineer was dead when he entered the curve, Foreman Herdman of the jury asked that the records bearing on the engineer's physical condition be brought to the hearing Wednesday. The jury also expressed the desire to see the train inspection sheets, and records touching on the various points brought out in the explanation. Deputy District Attorney Dennison asked if the data relative to the weight of the train and restrictions of speed could be available and was told that all documents will be produced in time.

THE JURY.

The jury left the Hall of Records under the direction of Deputy Coroner Williams at 9 o'clock in the morning, arriving at the scene of the wreck at noon. Members of the jury are:

W. A. Herdman, manager of Jevne's, foreman; N. J. Whitney, owner of the Limit Cafe; F. D. Jones, formerly of Jones's Bookstore; B. H. Lincoln of Mullen and Bluett; W. R. Jackson of Silverwood's; C. E. Ingham, auditor's department, Security Trust and Savings Bank; E. C. Stickel, assistant manager Fifth Street Store; George M. Flass, insurance manager of the Hollingsworth Company.

Others in the party were L. Vaillancoure, official reporter of the Cornorer's office, Constable Hayes, representing the constable's office, Deputy District Attorney Dennison, representing the District Attorney, officials representing the special agent's office of the Southern Pacific and newspaper men.

The only thing the jury was not able to examine thoroughly were the flanges on the pilot and drive wheels of the locomotive. More than nine-tenths of the flanges were open to inspection, but the portions of the wheels embedded in the earth could not be seen. These will be shown to the jury Wednesday when the remains of the locomotive are hoisted up in the Southern Pacific shops. Superintendent Watkins and the other technical experts expressed their belief that the flanges will be found in good condition.

The Sun Drug Co. for RUBBER

If people only knew the great benefits to be derived from the proper application of localized HEAT and COLD for various ailments, they would surely take greaer advantage of this easy means of relieving bodily discomfort. Disease in most cases can be allayed, if treatment is begun when the first symptoms are noticed.

Hot Water Bottles (2 or 3 of them,) an Ice Bag, a Fountain Syringe, a Bulb Syringe, Atomizer and Invalid Air Cushion should be kept in every home in case of emergency.

The Hot Water Bottle is by far the most convenient and inexpensive way of applying heat, and is a great improvement over the old-fashioned poultices and fomentations.

COLD, applied locally, drives blood away from a congested part and assists in preventing formation of pus.

Do You Value Your Hair?

—Would you part with one of nature's best gifts for a thousand or two thousand dollars—or for any set sum of money?

—Of course not. And why? Because a healthy, luxuriant growth of beautiful hair is a personal asset of every man or woman—a priceless endowment of nature.

Prof. John H. Austin

Bacteriologist, Hair and Scalp Specialist of Chicago
—Who is now at Hamburger's, ASKS THIS QUESTION—

What are You Doing to Save Your Hair?

—Are you paying heed to the warning signs of nature—or are you passing them by unnoticed?

Nature Warns You in Time

—And constantly reminds you of approaching baldness by—

Dandruff
Falling Hair
Itching Scalp
Oily Hair
Split Hair
Brittle Hair

—Watch for these warning signals! Their very first appearance points to the time for action. Save your hair NOW!

A Free Microscopic Examination

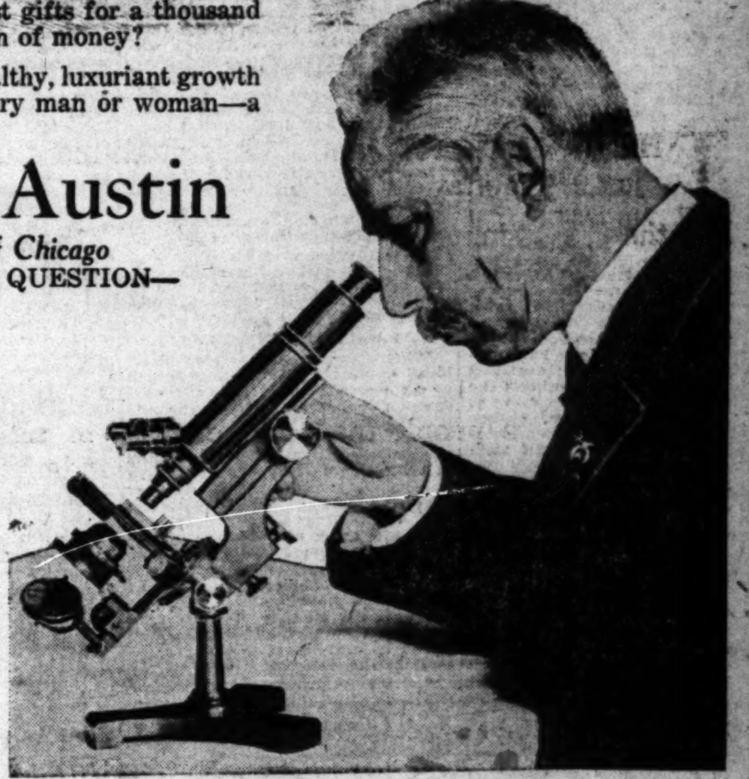
—Will determine the exact cause of your hair and scalp troubles.

Prof. Austin's Private Office
Second Floor—Hamburger's
Hours 10 to 12 and 2 to 4

—Both men and women invited to take advantage of a FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION of the hair and scalp.

Women need not take down their hair.

Prof. Austin has spent forty years in active practice and research work in conditions of the hair and scalp and during the past four years at Hamburger's has taught thousands of people how to save their hair. His advice in your case will be well worth while.



Prof. Austin Says:

"I do not use an ordinary microscope. I use one of the most powerful optical machines known to science. There is no microbe, so small that its presence cannot be detected. Once the cause is known, the relief is a matter of course.

"But you must be fair with me, with Nature and with yourself. You must not wait until you are entirely bald. That means that the parasites have done their work. There is nothing left for me or for Nature to work on. The hair roots are dead. It is when the hair begins to fall that you should seek help.

"The use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

"Let me find, classify and destroy the bacteria before they destroy the hair roots. Nature will fight long and well, and if given help at the right time will replace the lost hair with new, stronger, thicker and more beautiful hair. I have been successful in many cases of patchy baldness where the papillae, or hair roots, were still alive. I can help you."

WILSON WINNER IN HARD FIGHT.

Forces Skilled Diplomat to Abandon Selfish Aims.

Makes Peace Conference Bow to American Idealism.

of moral ideas, the very statement of them and their approval by masses of men. He had a triumphant progress throughout Europe—there was nothing ever before like it in the world. Never was there such a demonstration in Paris as on that day we saw him driving down through the Arc de Triomphe. I was in Italy in the fall of 1918 before he came. His picture was in every shop window; it was even said that the peasants burned candles before it; quotations from his speeches were in every newspaper and on every dead wall; he was worshiped with an abandon which was truly Italian. His prestige everywhere was enormous—and it was the prestige not of a great soldier, not even of a great political figure, but of a moral leader. He came to Europe conscious of his own high aims and of the real disinterestedness of America.

OMENS OF COMING EVIL.

Even before the Peace Conference met, however, certain ominous things happened.

At the same time that Wilson was making sanguine speeches in England regarding the League of Nations, Clemenceau was telling the Chamber of Commerce in Paris that he still believed in the old-fashioned system of alliances as the only way of safety for the world and notable French leaders were advancing claims which would, if granted, defeat the very principles to which the Allies had agreed at the armistice. A little later the British elections returned a heavily conservative Parliament indorsing a hard peace with Germany, and defeating some of Mr. Wilson's strongest supporters in the House of Commons. In Italy there began to be talk of the wide expansion of Italy in the Adriatic and elsewhere. And finally, the November elections in America, which returned a Congress in opposition to the President, and the attacks made upon him by various Republican leaders in the Senate, tended to weaken his influence at Paris. To anyone who had been in Europe during the last year of the war, before the Peace Conference began, as I had been, this change of attitude toward Wilson among the leaders (not among the people) was most evident.

STRUGGLE BEGINS.

No sooner had the Peace Conference got down to business, sitting within the double-doored soundproof room in the French Foreign Office, than the struggle began—and it centered at once upon an issue between President Wilson, demanding the acceptance of a broad principle of policy, and the other Allies demanding that their interests be served. President Wilson had wished to have the hardest problems, those relating to European conditions, taken up first, because he believed that the danger to the world arose from the unsettled conditions there. But the irresistible temptation, as in all such conferences, was to put off hard questions, assign them to committees, and take up what seemed to be the easy problem first.

The easy problem here seemed to be the disposition of the German colonies. Everyone was agreed from the beginning that they should not be returned to Germany. They appeared therefore to be the easy spoil of war; the jack-pot of the great game. And one morning, without any introduction, without a word of warning, they prepared to carve them up and distribute them around. Apparently everything had somehow, somewhere been worked out. Japan was to have certain islands in the Pacific; Australia and New Zealand certain others; the South African Federation was to have a big slice in Africa, France was to have such and such colonies and Great Britain itself such others.

UP AGAINST CLEVER MEN.

One of the most extraordinary things about the Peace Conference throughout was the efficiency of the British and French foreign offices, or diplomatic machines. They always had a plan ready; always had it minutely worked out. Even in the minor committees, upon one or two of which I sat, no sooner was a question broached than the French or British had an elaborate plan, beautifully typewritten, to put down. There is an enormous advantage in this, as these experienced negotiators well knew, for a plan tends to shape the views of everyone present and place all other conferees in the position of critics. I could give numbers of instances in the high councils in which, although the Americans were the suggesters of an idea, the actual resolutions were presented by Lloyd George or some other member. A man or a nation, also, that desires a specific material thing, an island, for example, or a sum of money, is always in a very much stronger and more definite position than a man or a nation that seeks to apply difficult general principles to a complicated situation. It is so easy to play the old familiar game; so difficult to play the new. It was the new game that Mr. Wilson had to play throughout; and everyone knows how wearing it is, mentally and physically, to be constantly in opposition, constantly forced to play a lone hand.

PLAYS A LONE HAND.

That the plan for the division of the German colonies had all been worked out—and without any reference to the establishment of a new or a general principle—was clear enough when the prime ministers of several of the British colonies came into the conference on January 24, quite unexpectedly, and made prepared statements of their claims to the annexation of certain former German territory. Canada made no such demands, although she had had great losses and made great sacrifices in the war—far greater in proportion than those of the United States—she made no selfish claim whatever for herself. It developed, also, at once, that Japan expected to annex certain colonies, and France certain others; and that possibly Italy and Belgium would have to be permitted more extensive territorial concessions.

It was January 27 before Mr. Wilson got an opportunity to present his idea of a new principle of world colonial policy. He was against annexation; he declared for the development of each colony, not for the advantage of the nation that controlled it, but for that of the people who lived there. He thought the emphasis should be placed upon the welfare of the people, not upon the ownership of the land. The world should act as a trustee for these weak and backward people until the day when the true wishes of the inhabitants could be ascertained. Colonies should be assigned to certain mandatories or trustees who should be under the supervision of the League of Nations. And he wanted the principle to apply not only to German colonies, but to all those parts of Turkey which were not to be returned to the Turks.

BATTLE ON MANDATES.

This at once precipitated a red-hot controversy. Mr. Hughes of Australia, especially, attacked the whole mandatory principle, and was supported less vigorously by the other British colonial premiers. M. Simon, the French Colonial Minister, appeared and made a long statement in support of the idea of frank annexation and set forth the French colonial demands to the Cameroons and Togoland. In this it was clear that he had the support of Clemenceau, who called attention to the various secret treaties or "conversations" under which some of the colonies had already been disposed of. Lloyd George said that he was in favor of the principle of the mandatory, but he was also in favor of having the British colonies get what they wanted. They were all in favor of dividing up the colonies first and adopting the principle afterwards!

It was clear enough, throughout the discussion, that no one of the three except Mr. Wilson had any real faith in the League of Nations. Clemenceau treated both the mandatory system and the League of Nations with finely turned irony which mirrored his entire opposition more clearly than any direct attack could have done. Mr. Wilson was placed in the position of having to defend a new principle the working of which in minute detail no one could prophesy.

It was plain at the outset that by these tactics they thought they could ride rough-shod over Mr. Wilson. It was the first test of his quality. He had talked his principles; would he now be able, with such forces against him, to secure their application?

CAMPAIGN IN PRESS.

When it was seen that the President would not give in, there began to appear at once—the very next day—bitter comments upon him and his "impractical ideals" in certain French newspapers. Although the proceedings behind the muffled doors at the Quay d'Orsay were supposed to be absolutely secret—so that American correspondents could get next to nothing at all concerning what was going on—the French papers were evidently fully informed. Certain British papers also published quite completely an account of the controversy between Mr. Wilson and Mr. Hughes of Australia, which lost nothing in emphasis and dramatic importance, nor, it may be said, in the essential truth of the facts stated, because the proceedings had been secret.

Mr. Wilson had to protest to the conference against these outside attacks, and he did so diplomatically but positively by declaring that if they continued he would publish exactly what happened. At once the attacks in the French press ceased, for the French press is largely controlled by government influences—but from that time onward, in a certain number of the papers, there was an underlying, subtle criticism of the President. This constant, clever, witty opposition, so evasive as not to be easily met—the kind of criticism of innuendo of which the French are past-masters—read every day by all those connected with the Peace Conference, had an undoubted influence in making the President's task more difficult. There were even those in the American commission who suggested the removal of the conference to some neutral capital, like Geneva, to escape this atmosphere.

STICKS TO HIS GUNS.

But the President stuck obstinately to his position that the private interests of the nations were not alone to be served, but that the conference must consider first the interest of the people of the colonies in question and second, the desire of the common people of the world. He argued that annexation was contrary to the principles accepted by the nations at the armistice, and that the publics of the world would at once turn against the conference and it would lose all its influence if its very first action was to divide up the spoils of war. He insisted upon the application of the principle laid down in the fifth of the fourteen points of peace, which all the nations had adopted—the one relating to colonial claims—which says that "the interests of the populations concerned must have equal weight with the equitable claims of the government whose title is to be determined."

And there he stood and would not budge. Lloyd George, as quoted in one of the London papers, said that the situation filled him with despair and Clemenceau argued that such discussion only made for delay. Hughes of Australia gave out interviews with scarcely veiled attacks upon Mr. Wilson. They were trying days—those in late January. Many other difficult questions were before the conference—Poland, Russia, the revision of the armistice terms and the ever-irritating problem of publicity, which would never stay settled—but the colonial question occupied for many days the center of the stage. To understand why the President today lies ill at Washington one must visualize some of these things.

WILSON WINS.

Finally, Lloyd George called a separate meeting with the delegates from the British dominions, persuaded them to accept the mandatory principle and came in with a set of resolutions providing for its application. This caused further heated discussions, but finally, with certain changes, and after reservations by both France and Japan—for France was determined to have the privilege of raising troops in the colonies for her own defense—it was adopted by the conference, and the essence of it was later incorporated as Article XXII in the League of Nations covenant. Please read it in your own copy of the covenant: it is a very interesting statement of policy. This is the longest article, but one in the covenant and it establishes firmly the contentions of the President. It places the control of colonies upon a broad basis of principles. In short, the machinery for a new and liberal policy in world colonial administration is established: it will work or fail to work exactly in proportion to the good will and determination of the governments of the world to make it work—a generalization which is true also regarding the whole League of Nations covenant.

This was the first great crisis, the first decisive battle, of the conference, and the President came out of it a winner. An account of the next crisis will be given in a following article.

[This is the second in a series of six articles dealing with the President's tremendous struggle at the Peace Conference. Others will be published at intervals exclusively in The Times.]

A Famous Medicine

A visit to the laboratory at Lynn, Mass., where this successful remedy is made, impresses even the casual looker-on with the reliability, accuracy, skill and cleanliness which attends the making of this great medicine for woman's ills.

Over 350,000 pounds of various herbs are used annually, and all have to be gathered at the season of the year when their natural juices and medicinal substances are at their best.

It is the wonderful combination of roots and herbs, together with the skill and care used in its preparation, which has made this famous medicine so successful in the treatment of female ills.

DRY NEW YORK A MODERN WONDER

Revenue Men Relentless on Trail of Bootleggers.

Only One-fourth of Six Thousand Saloons Open.

But Barkeeps at Times Hand Out Cup that Cheers.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—It was announced today at the customhouse, headquarters for war-time prohibition enforcement, that hereafter any internal revenue agent who displayed a gun while making a raid, except in self-defense, will be discharged. The announcement was made by H. W. Mager, chief of all the internal revenue agents in the United States, who came here to relieve Col. D. L. Porter, supervising agent in the New York division, who had been recalled to Washington.

Mr. Mager said he expected to remain in charge of the New York division until next Tuesday. He said that also, as far as he knew, Col. Porter would return to New York then. He denied positively that Col. Porter had been removed from New York because of the spectacular raid that had been made on New York saloons, with Blue Ridge Mountain moonshine thrills.

Mr. Mager said, however, he was making a personal investigation of every raid that had been made in the New York division in which it was reported that firearms had been displayed by the men of his department. In each instance that he had investigated he said he found his men had been justified in displaying their weapons. He also made it clear that his men would be officially backed up in the performance of their duty.

Seventy-five per cent. of the 5508 saloons in Greater New York have closed their doors, according to reports made to Mr. Mager today. He referred to the action of 800 Brooklyn saloon-keepers, who decided at a meeting to close up and stay closed, until war-time prohibition on alcohol is removed, and also to 250 Bronx saloon-keepers who decided to close up. Other saloon-keepers are closing one by one. The 25 per cent. who are keeping open, Mr. Mager said, were for the most part conducting a legitimate trade in one-half of one per cent. beer and the sale of food. He expressed the belief there were surprisingly few violators in New York.

TRAILING BOOTLEGGERS.

"We are looking for bootleg places," Mr. Mager said, "we shall keep looking for them too. We realize that the revenue agents alone can't enforce this law. It will take public sentiment to do it. Police Commissioner Enright is co-operating with us and has placed his men at our disposal. We are very appreciative for they are valuable aids.

"Thus far there have been about thirty raids in New York, and including witnesses, about forty persons have been arrested. There are several important points that I want the United States Attorney to clear up for us on the question of what constitutes a violator of this law." Mr. Mager indicated that guilt in a violator might extend from proprietor to bartender to customer. Concerning the number of men in New York to enforce the law he said:

"There are about ten supervisory officers, and about forty deputies here. These men are making practically all the arrests and in every raid I believe one of the ten supervisory officers have been present. Each of the three collectors of internal revenue in this division have been requested from Washington to turn over to this work all the men available. This will include many who have been engaged in tax work. The Department of Justice men and other government employees are to work with us. Their chief work will be to gather information about violations. The experienced staff of revenue agents will make practically all the arrests."

BARKEEPS AS EXPLAINERS.

Beer could be bought without much difficulty in many of those saloons which remained open today. If the bartender was asked about it in a friendly fashion he must volunteer the information that the beer had been diluted until it was of legal weakness. If the customer appeared doubtful the bartender in at least one cafe would offer to let them do their own diluting. There were no takers.

Whisky and other hard liquors were available in certain back rooms. As a rule the waiters in such places carried flat bottles in their coat pockets and poured the customer's drink. In case of surprise the purveyors were prepared to destroy the evidence by dropping it on the floor.

Two hundred saloon-keepers in the second ward of Queens, which includes a part of Middle Village, Glendale, Evergreen and Ridgewood, closed their places at midnight.

Before the war in Hoboken there were 332 saloons. Then the army fixed a dry zone, and all but 107 saloons were closed. Early today it was grapevined from bar to bar that the revenue agents were on their way to Hoboken. At 9 o'clock in the morning there were only four saloons open and those four were scrupulously careful to sell only near beer, milk and similar beverages.

More than half of Jersey City's saloons had closed by dark last night and it was said then that many of the survivors would be closed for good at midnight.

Some of the crepe-hangers added an empty whisky bottle to the funeral decorations.

FOR HOMELESS TOTS.

Los Angeles Parlor, No. 45, Native Sons of the Golden West, entertained last night with a '49 bazaar and dance at Native Sons' Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street, to raise funds for the lodge's work of finding homes for orphan children. PRESIDENT NAMES MEN FOR MINING CONGRESS.

CONGRESS EXEMPTS ASSESSMENT WORK FOR 1919 ON ALASKAN MINING CLAIMS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Ten delegates at large to the American Mining Congress at St. Louis, November 17 to 21, were appointed today by President Wilson.

Officials of the congress announced that an industrial conference would be held in connection with the meeting, in an effort to work out solutions of the labor problems confronting the country.

The delegates named by the President were:

Emmet D. Boyle, Reno, Nev.; Albert E. Carlton, Cripple Creek, Colo.; Jerome J. Day, Wallace, Idaho; Alva C. Dinkey and Daniel B. Wentz, Philadelphia; Van H. Manning, director of the bureau of mines, and George Otis Smith, Washington; W. A. McCutcheon, Pittsburgh; Francis S. Peabody, Chicago, and F. B. Richards, Cleveland.

All mining claims in the United States and Alaska are exempted from annual assessment work for 1919 under a resolution adopted today by the House and sent to the Senate. Previous legislation had resulted in confusion and the new measure was passed to make plain that it was not necessary for a claimant to work his claim this year in order to retain his rights.

DIVISION AMONG DOCK MEN.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The action of a meeting of longshoremen employed in the Chelsea piers district in voting to end the "unofficial" strike by returning to work gave rise to hopes among marine interests here today that an end of the trouble which has tied up New York shipping since October 6 was in sight. However, another meeting of men employed on the same piers and members of the same locals voted to "stay out."

CHAIN-STORE OWNER WED TO WIDOW HERE.

SALT LAKE CITY MERCHANT AND CLEVELAND WOMAN END A LONG ROMANCE.

F. A. Druehl, wealthy owner of a chain of drug stores in Salt Lake City, and Mrs. Tillie Franck, a wealthy widow of Cleveland, who has spent several winters in Hollywood, were married quietly by Dean MacCormack of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral at his residence, 732 South Burlington street, yesterday. No one except the principals was present. After the ceremony the couple left to spend a two-weeks' honeymoon at Coronado. The bridegroom's age is 67 and his bride's 49.

Friends of the couple in Salt Lake City say that the marriage is the culmination of a long romance. Mr. Druehl founded the Druehl-Franklin Drug Co., owners of six drug stores, in Salt Lake City and is now president of the Druehl Drug Co. in that city.

Following the honeymoon, the couple will spend the winter at the Hollywood Hotel in Hollywood.

SEEK IDENTITY OF ACCIDENT VICTIM.

UNKNOWN WOMAN KILLED BY STREET CAR IN LONG BEACH.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONG BEACH, Nov. 1.—Falling in front of an outbound Pine-avenue local street car as she was hurrying through the traffic at Fifth street, a well-dressed, unidentified woman was fatally injured tonight. The accident occurred at 6 o'clock, the victim dying from a fractured skull and other injuries two hours later at a local hospital without regaining consciousness.

R. T. Connors, motorman in charge of the street car, says he was about eight feet away when he saw the woman slip and fall across the tracks. The fender of the car picked up the prostrate form, but proved ineffective except to save the body from mutilation.

The woman carried a small coin purse, but nothing could be found on her person to indicate her identity, except the name "Lizzie" engraved on the inside of her plain gold band wedding ring. She was about 50 years old, of medium height and weighed about 150 pounds. She had gray hair and wore glasses.

She was clad in a blue serge tailored suit and black turban hat and wore a brown fur.

The body was removed to the Grote Comer undertaking parlors and the Coroner notified by Police Sergeant Clyde Allen.

INSPECT OUR SCHOOLS.

Berkeley Superintendent Seeks Building Plans Here.

Ideas for the reconstruction of the Berkeley city schools are being sought in Los Angeles by W. B. Wilson, Superintendent of the Schools there and William C. Shea, professor of architecture of the University of California, who arrived at the Alexandria yesterday.

The city of Berkeley proposes to spend $2,500,000 in improving its schools and has sent the two educators here to study the Los Angeles system. Throughout the day they were inspecting local school buildings, including the new Los Angeles High School, which Mr. Wilson proclaimed the finest public institution of its kind he had seen. The Hollywood High School will be visited today.

-better biscuits

Lighter, tastier, finer-grained, more wholesome biscuits than you ever made, ever saw or ever tasted.

No biscuits, in any way, can compare with those made with Calumet Baking Powder.

The same is true of all bakings, doughnuts, cakes, muffins—everything that is leavened with Calumet.

Calumet is so perfectly made, you are always absolutely sure of the best results

There is never a minute of uncertainty or doubt. Its strength never changes. It never weakens.

Every spoonful of every can is of the highest quality and purity.

It raises the quality of your bakings—and this is of vital importance in these days of high costs—it greatly lowers baking expense.

CALUMET BAKING POWDER

The most economical of all Baking Powders. You save when you buy it—moderate in price. You save when you use it—has more than the ordinary leavening strength—therefore you use less. You save materials it is used with because there are no spoiled bakings

Calumet is the world's biggest selling baking powder, simply because it has demonstrated to millions of housewives that it's the most dependable and economical. It is pure in the can—pure in the baking.

CALUMET BISCUITS

3 level cups of flour.
3 level teaspoonfuls of Calumet Baking Powder.
1 level teaspoonful salt.
3 level tablespoonfuls shortening.
1⅓ cups milk or water.

HOW TO MAKE THEM—Sift all dry ingredients together. Then work in shortening thoroughly. Next add cold milk or water, mixing to a soft dough. Turn dough on floured board and roll out lightly till ½ inch thick. Cut into biscuits and lay in baking pan. Let stand for five minutes; then bake in hot oven.

This is positively one of the best biscuit recipes ever formulated. Cut out and paste in your recipe book for future reference.

Sold under a positive guarantee of "Money Back"—if it doesn't give better results at less expense than any other baking powder you ever used—regardless of price.

Try it! Have greater baking success—more wholesome and delicious foods. Save money, time, worry—and lots of it.

DON'T OVERLOOK THIS!

When you buy a pound can of Calumet you get a full pound—16 ounces—no short weights. Some baking powders are now being put on the market in 12-ounce cans instead of pound cans. Be sure you get a pound when you want it. Remember—Calumet is not made by the Trust—not sold at Trust prices.

Valuable 72-Page Cook Book

Handsomely illustrated in colors. Most complete and dependable recipe book ever published. Hundreds of helps in reducing household expense. Scores of selected recipes—new and better ways of making better foods.

Send slip found in can of Calumet and three 2-cent stamps to help cover cost of packing and mailing. Calumet Baking Powder Company, 4100-4124 Fillmore St., Chicago.

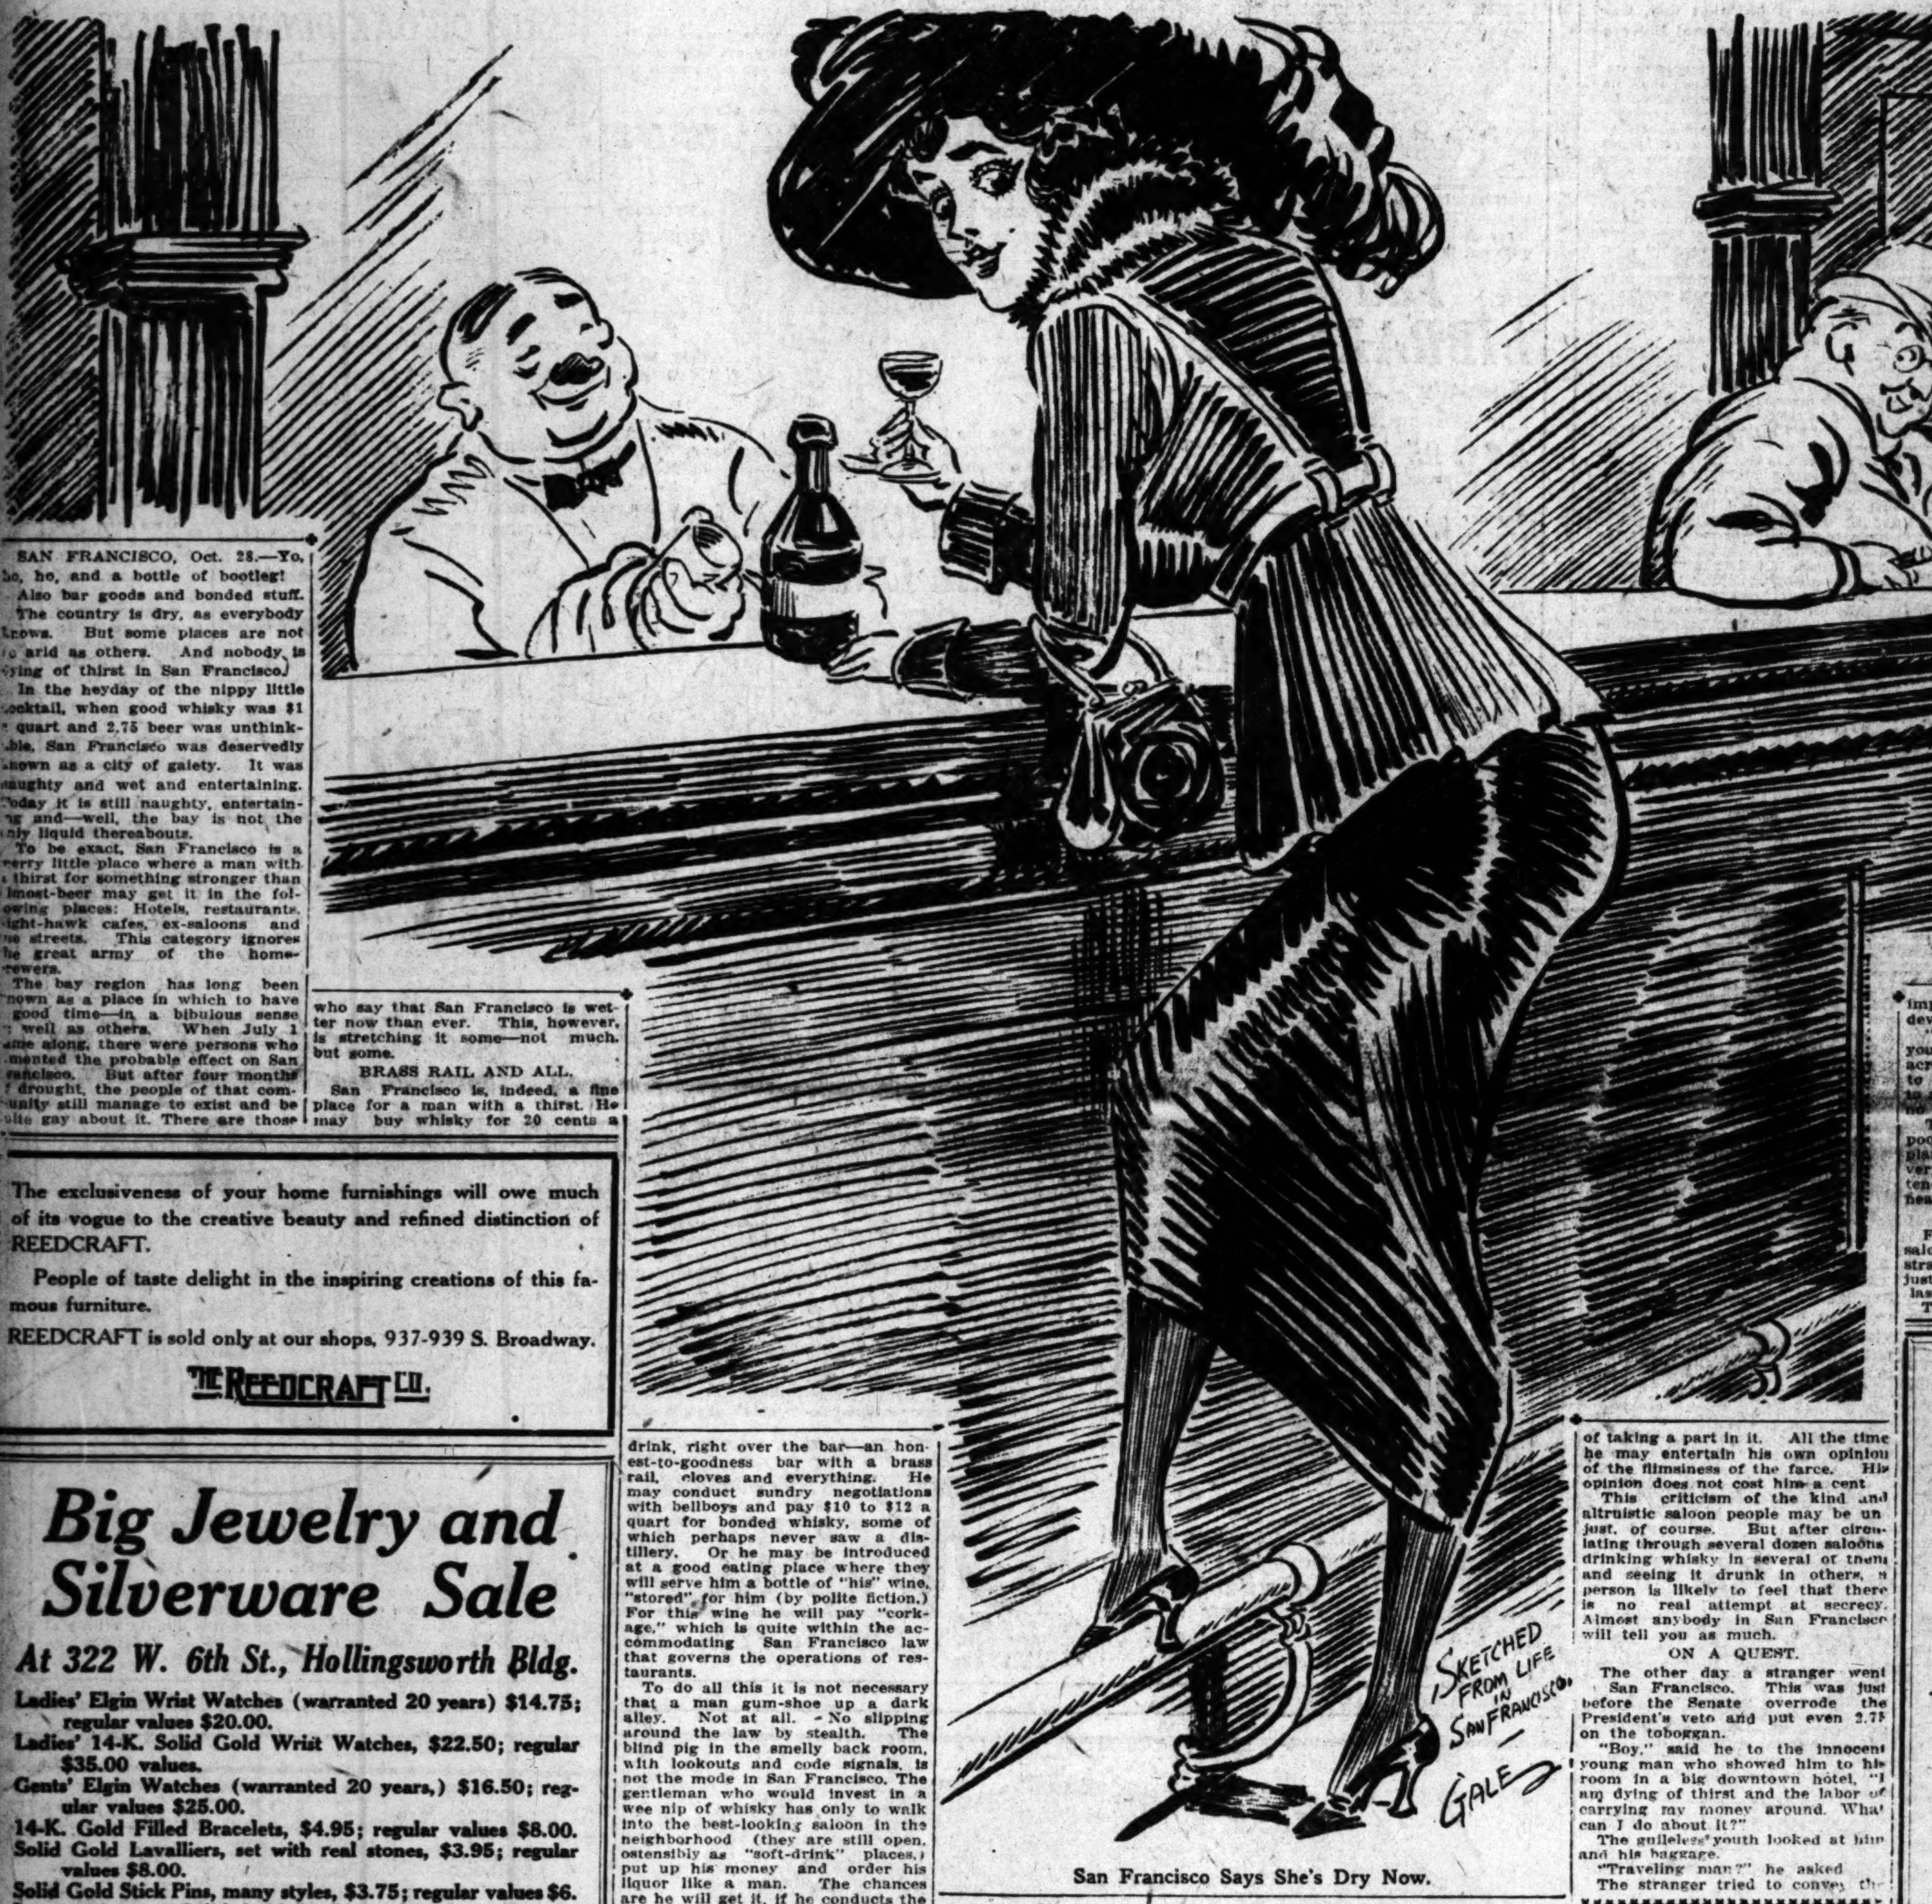
NATION DRY? MOURNFULLY ASKED, GAILY ANSWERED BY SAN FRANCISCO.

Whisky Sold over a Regular Bar at Twenty Cents a Throw, Served in Your Favorite Restaurant with a Really-Humorous "Corkage" Joke Thrown in, Brought to Your Room in the Best Hotels, Bootlegged on the Streets and the Night-Hawk Cafes of the Old Barbary Coast—What Need to Be Arid and Dreary?

BY FREDERICK B. MOORE.



SKETCHED FROM LIFE IN SAN FRANCISCO
GALE

San Francisco Says She's Dry Now.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 28.—Yo, ho, ho, and a bottle of bootleg!

Also bar goods and bonded stuff.

The country is dry, as everybody knows. But some places are not so arid as others. And nobody is dying of thirst in San Francisco.

In the heyday of the nippy little cocktail, when good whisky was $1 a quart and 2.75 beer was unthinkable, San Francisco was deservedly known as a city of gaiety. It was naughty and wet and entertaining. Today it is still naughty, entertaining and—well, the bay is not the only liquid thereabouts.

To be exact, San Francisco is a merry little place where a man with a thirst for something stronger than almost-beer may get it in the following places: Hotels, restaurants, night-hawk cafes, ex-saloons and the streets. This category ignores the great army of the home-brewers.

The bay region has long been known as a place in which to have a good time—in a bibulous sense as well as others. When July 1 came along, there were persons who lamented the probable effect on San Francisco. But after four months of drought, the people of that community still manage to exist and be quite gay about it. There are those who say that San Francisco is wetter now than ever. This, however, is stretching it some—not much, but some.

BRASS RAIL AND ALL.

San Francisco is, indeed, a fine place for a man with a thirst. He may buy whisky for 20 cents a drink, right over the bar—an honest-to-goodness bar with a brass rail, cloves and everything. He may conduct sundry negotiations with bellboys and pay $10 to $12 a quart for bonded whisky, some of which perhaps never saw a distillery. Or he may be introduced at a good eating place where they will serve him a bottle of "his" wine, "stored" for him (by polite fiction.) For this wine he will pay "corkage," which is quite within the accommodating San Francisco law that governs the operations of restaurants.

To do all this it is not necessary that a man gum-shoe up a dark alley. Not at all. No slipping around the law by stealth. The blind pig in the smelly back room, with lookouts and code signals, is not the mode in San Francisco. The gentleman who would invest in a wee nip of whisky has only to walk into the best-looking saloon in the neighborhood (they are still open, ostensibly as "soft-drink" places,) put up his money and order his liquor like a man. The chances are he will get it, if he conducts the negotiation frankly and does not look like a policeman of some sort. But even if he fails he need not despair. Some other saloon will certainly accommodate him, or he may get a friend to introduce him or teach him the high-sign. The rest is easy. It is so easy, in fact, that the man who has the entree is far less likely to die of thirst than of whisky liver.

Above all, San Francisco is making no secret of her whisky trade. There are cute little tricks, it is true. But they merely lend a bit of zest to the drinking of forbidden stuff. These little tricks are played presumably for the purpose of fooling all the wily hounds of the law. Do they? It is difficult to believe. It is far more likely that the little tricks serve the same purpose as refilling bottles of "bonded" liquor—they make the customer pay more. When a man exchanges 25 cents for whisky over the bar in San Francisco, he may figure he is spending at least 10 cents for the privilege of seeing a presumably clever thing done. He is paying cash to watch somebody evade the law. Of course, he is served right out in the open, without more than a feeble show of secrecy. But he is supposed to be impressed by that feeble show and to be willing to pay for the privilege of taking a part in it. All the time he may entertain his own opinion of the flimsiness of the farce. His opinion does not cost him a cent.

This criticism of the kind and altruistic saloon people may be unjust, of course. But after circulating through several dozen saloons, drinking whisky in several of them and seeing it drunk in others, a person is likely to feel that there is no real attempt at secrecy. Almost anybody in San Francisco will tell you as much.

ON A QUEST.

The other day a stranger went to San Francisco. This was just before the Senate overrode the President's veto and put even 2.75 on the toboggan.

"Boy," said he to the innocent young man who showed him to his room in a big downtown hotel, "I am dying of thirst and the labor of carrying my money around. What can I do about it?"

The guileless youth looked at him and his baggage.

"Traveling man?" he asked.

The stranger tried to convey the impression that he was just as devilish as any salesman extant.

"Easy," the boy replied. "When you come downstairs, I'll take you across the street and introduce you to the bartender. Or just speak to any of the other bellboys. There's no secret about it."

This, it seemed, was decidedly poor sport. So the man tried the plan of introducing himself to this very careful and circumspect bartender, in a long-established saloon near by.

HOW IT'S DONE.

First, the bellboy pointed out the saloon in question and advised the stranger to "go in and ask for it just like you'd had twenty there last night."

The man went in by a side entrance and stood at the rear end of the bar, looking forlorn and blue, and ordering nothing, while two gentlemen consumed a near-beverage a few feet away. He affected to be sizing these gentlemen up. When they departed he said "whisky" in a business-like way. The bartender poured something from a cocktail mixer into a whisky glass, in exchange for 25 cents. The stuff looked like whisky, smelled like whisky and tasted like whisky. Presumably, a man looking for whisky would be satisfied with the bargain.

A San Francisco newspaper man told me that probably 75 per cent of the bars still open in San Francisco sell this sort of wet goods.

The system, however, is not always the same. The cocktail mixer is not very impressive. Let's stroll down to one of the most conspicuous bars in the city, on one of the most conspicuous corners in the white-light section.

FROM A FLASK.

We go inside with a resident of San Francisco. There are several drinkers in the place, perhaps a dozen, some of them with soft stuff in front of them, and some merely standing around and looking expectant. These last are the lads to observe. Their drinks do not linger long on the bar.

The bartender looks at you. The air is thick with the aroma of alcohol in its beverage forms. You detest ginger ale. So you risk breaking one of the unwritten laws of the imbibers' freemasonry and decide to take your whisky neat.

Two small glasses appear on the bar. They are flanked by ginger ale and a "chaser" of water. A benevolent-looking gentleman who has

Good old bonded whisky at $82 a case, by the single quart, $10 a throw, California wine at $1 a quart, or all you can drink through a rubber tube right from the old barrel at 25 cents a drag. Who says Los Angeles is bone dry? Put your order in now. Bring forth your cash and the booze is yours.

Sit down in any one of a dozen cafes in the city, look thirsty and lick your lips, slip a bill out of your pocket and make a face at the waiter, walk to the coat room and get your package, it will only cost you $5 a full pint and a dollar tip to the waiter.

Walk into the Police Station and ask the first policeman you see what bonded goods are selling for in wholesale lots, and the best place to make a quick buy. "Brookhill, Pebbleford, Old Crow and tea kettle whisky at $82 a case" is what you will be told. Then, if you know who to ask, just a whisper of where to go, and who to see, and the whisky is yours. That is, if you have the price.

Stroll up North Broadway and then turn off on Ord or New High or Alpine streets. Keep on walking until you see a crowd of Mexicans and Austrians in front of a house and then pull out your two bits and join the happy throng. You have found a two-bit house, or all you can drink in one breath through a rubber tube right from the barrel. It's California wine, and good wine, too. Work your way through the crowd and you will find yourself in a cellar. There are barrels piled against the wall, and from the open bung of one of the barrels you will see a rubber tube. Take a long breath, grab the tube in your teeth and drink all you can. It will only cost you 25 cents, but don't try to take another breath before you let go of the tube, because if you do your bill will be just double.

If you don't care for bonded whisky and are just looking for the kick wander down to the Mexican plaza and seat yourself on a bench. Look thirsty. Clink a couple of silver dollars together in your pocket. Whisper whisky to the first Mexican that seats himself near you, and then just wait. Grab the first package that is slipped on the bench beside you, lay down your $2 and beat it. When you get home, open your package, and if the first drink doesn't kill you, try a second. Of course, when you open up your purchase you may find just a couple of bottles of water tinged with tobacco juice, but then beggars can't be choosers, and that's the chance you are taking when you buy "unsight and unseen."

WOMEN SERVED OVER THE BAR.

Dainty Boots Decorate Well-Worn Old Foot Rails of "Soft Drink" Stands.

Now that beer is a "soft" drink and buttermilk flows where the "steam" schooners once crossed the San Francisco bars, every saloon is a soda water stand, technically speaking, and the "women welcome" sign is out at many places. French heels are draped on various well-worn footrails inside the swinging doors.

In some places, it is true, the patronage of women is not sought, and some places are what they purport to be—soft-drink emporiums. But there are many bars in San Francisco where whisky lurks in the sink, and in some of them women drink. There have always been saloons in San Francisco where ladies imbibed in the back room, but petticoats at the bar give the merry old town a decidedly Bohemian touch these arid days.

CITY NOW SOUTH'S BANK CENTER.

Government Takes Possession of Offices for the Federal Reserve Branch in Los Angeles, Marking New Era of Financial Development in Southland.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

Los Angeles yesterday came into technical possession of a branch of the Federal reserve banking system—technical because though November 1 is the official date of the bank's beginning, it will not be in visible operation for some time yet.

Back of this statement of fact is a very important and far-reaching development in the financial history of Southern California, for it embodies recognition by the United States government of the fact that the Southland can no longer be expected to trail behind the San Francisco pay car.

What really was happening, although the financiers and officials would not state it just that way, was that the tail was beginning to wag the dog. In other words the southern end of the Twelfth Federal Reserve District was losing the sense of proportion which the northern end thought should be maintained.

The new banking law that went into effect a few months ago proved the last straw. Under this State banks were enabled to participate in the benefits and privileges of the Federal reserve system. The three largest State banking institutions in Los Angeles, the Security Trust and Savings, the Guaranty Trust and Savings and the Los Angeles Trust and Savings, took advantage of the law at once and this made such a preponderance of financial weight in favor of the southland that there was nothing to do but hasten the establishment of a branch of the reserve bank in this city through which the business of California south of Tehachapi, and of that part of Arizona, which is now attached to the Twelfth Reserve District, will flow.

WILL BE OPEN SOON.

The United States government began paying rent for the quarters to be occupied by the branch bank yesterday, although the branch will not be in operation for several weeks. It will be open about the first of the year, it is expected.

The bank will occupy the entire second floor of the Washington Building at Third and Spring streets, where 12,000 square feet of floor space will be available. The delay in opening the bank is occasioned by a complete remodeling necessary to meet the requirements of the bank; the installing of furniture and equipment and the construction of large burglar, earthquake, fire, and explosive resisting vaults, for the branch will carry a reserve of $10,000,000 in cash and often as much more in negotiable securities. About 200 employees will be required to handle the business of the bank.

While the institution will be known as a branch, it will, as a matter of fact, be a branch in name only, and its only point of contact with the parent organization, at San Francisco, will be in the report of daily balances. The Los Angeles bank will operate with its own officers and its own board of directors. It will serve its own territory as completely as the San Francisco bank now serves the entire district.

The bank will be opened by Deputy Manager Day, of the Twelfth Reserve Bank, but it is probable that after it is in running order Mr. Day will return to his San Francisco headquarters, to be succeeded by a local appointee. This, however, is problematical. As a matter of fact his abilities are appreciated in this city and his permanent retention here would meet with the approval of the local bankers.

HOW SYSTEM WORKS.

The public at large is not very well informed as to the scope and duties of a Federal Reserve Bank. Some think it is a mere depository; others that it does a regular banking business after the fashion of any national bank. In reality the establishment of the Federal reserve banks marked the most important financial and economic advanceve this country ever made and through the elastic play of the system the war financing very largely attained its great success. Many noted financiers assert even that the Federal reserve banks will forever do away with the possibility, or even the fear, of another panic and money shortage such as this country has suffered periodically.

The purpose of the Federal bank act, which was approvel December 13, 1913, is clearly set out in its preamble, which explains that it is "to provide for the establishment of Federal reserve banks, to furnish an elastic currency, to afford means of rediscounting commercial paper, to establish a more effective supervision of banking in the United States, and for other purposes."

The Federal reserve banks are banks for banks. They have nothing to do with the individual depositor, and hence may be established in strictly utilitarian quarters off the ground floors and away from the turmoil of busy corners, although they should be in close touch geographically to the financial centers of the cities in which they are located.

They are buffers against which the banks which are a part of the system may lean. They take up the slack. They rediscount paper. They are a medium of exchange for government financing. They are bulwarks of safety not only for the banks, but for the public, because they stand for the power of the government, and behind them are all the resources of a great nation.

TWELVE RESERVE BANKS.

There are twelve of these parent Federal reserve banks located in twelve centers of population for a considerable district and serving the member banks within the district. For instance, for the Southwest there are reserve banks in San Francisco, Dallas, and New Orleans.

The capital stock and surplus of the reserve banks is provided by a required subscription from every national bank, and by every State bank and trust company, which elects to avail itself of the reserve bank protection, of a sum equal to 6 per cent. of the paid-up capital stock and surplus of such bank, and the shareholders of every Federal reserve bank are held individually responsible equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts and engagements of such bank to the extent of the amount of their subscriptions to such stock at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount subscribed.

Federal reserve banks may issue and circulate notes received in blank from the Comptroller of the Currency under the same conditions and provision as relate to national banks, except the very important one that the issue of such notes shall not be limited to the capital stock of the reserve bank. It is this feature and the ability of the bank to meet local conditions arising within its district without recourse to long and complicated dealings with Washington that comprise one of the greatest benefits of the system. It is possible to obtain direct and reasonably rapid action in the cure of immediate financial indispositions. The Federal reserve bank is Uncle Sam's doctor just around the corner, and always ready with advice or relief.

WILL NAME DIRECTORS.

Federal reserve banks are conducted by a board of nine directors, but the branch banks, such as the one to be established in Los Angeles, will have not more than seven nor less than three directors, of whom a majority of one shall be appointed by the parent bank, and the remaining directors by the Federal Reserve Board. There has as yet been no intimation as to the identity of the local members to be named for these important places, but they will probably be divided between bankers and laymen of large commercial interests.

Here is one way in which the Federal reserve bank operates to protect its member banks in addition, of course, to the usual close supervision maintained at all times: If a member bank is declared insolvent and a receiver appointed, the stock held by such insolvent bank in the reserve bank, shall be canceled without impairment of its liability, and all cash paid subscriptions, with ½ of 1 per cent. per month, from the period of the last dividend shall be first applied to all debts of the insolvent member bank, and the balance, if any, paid to the receiver.

The average net earnings for the twelve Federal reserve banks for 1918 were at the rate of 68.7 per cent. of their paid-in capital as it stood at the end of the year. This compares with 15.3 per cent. in 1917. The stock cannot be bought in the open market, but is held by the member banks in proportion to their capital and surplus, and cannot be transferred.

There is no reason why the Federal reserve banks should not make money, for they lend money to banks, who are the safest borrowers, and the banks give them commercial paper or acceptances of merchants, for which the Federal Reserve Bank gets interest, and the money that the reserve bank lends is largely of its own creating. This is not so different from the business of other banks, but the Federal Reserve Bank does not have to pay interest to its depositors.

PROFITS TO TREASURY.

The member banks do not get all the money that the reserve banks make. They can have 6 per cent. cumulative dividends, and of the remainder, one-half can go to surplus up to 40 per cent. of paid-in capital. After that the United States government takes it all, and can use it either as a gold reserve or to retire outstanding United States bonds.

Any Federal Reserve Bank may receive from any of its member banks, and from the United States, deposits of current funds in lawful money, and as a matter of fact, member banks do keep on deposit with the reserve bank sufficient funds to meet all balance requirements varying from not less than 7 per cent., in the case of country banks, of the aggregate amount of its demand deposits and 3 per cent. of its time deposits, to 13 per cent. of demand deposits and 3 per cent. of time deposits in the case of banks located in central reserve cities. Examinations of member banks are provided so that the reserve bank may be informed of the exact condition of its member banks and of the lines of credit which are being extended to them.

Federal reserve banks may discount the notes of member banks arising out of actual commercial transactions on a ninety-day basis, but for agricultural purposes the limit is six months. Rediscounts may not exceed 10 per cent. of the unimpaired capital and surplus of the member bank. Acceptances, endorsed by at least one member bank, may be discounted providing they have a maturity of not more than three months sight. The reader will understand that in all of these transactions the member bank really stands in the place of the individual when the individual is doing business with his bank, except that the reserve system throws about the transactions precautions and safety devices which do not enter into the more personal relation between bank official and customer.

MAY ACCEPT DRAFTS.

Member banks may accept drafts and bills of exchange growing out of importation and exportation transactions, or domestic shipments, properly secured. Advances may be made on promissory notes given by member banks properly secured. Member banks may accept drafts or bills of exchange having not more than three months sight to run when drawn under prescribed regulations. Federal reserve banks may purchase in the open market at home or abroad maturities made eligible for rediscount by the terms of the act; may deal in gold coin and bullion; government or municipal bonds; bills of exchange; may establish rates of discount; open accounts with each other and in foreign countries, and be depositories for government funds.

The act creating the Federal reserve banking system covers many pages and scores of details. Many of its provisions would prove intricate and trying to the lay mind to follow, but as a general proposition it may set down that the Federal Reserve Bank is the Gibraltar of our financial system. Member banks, and by that is meant, the institutions with which you and the rest of us deposit our little $9.86 and against which we draw our proud checks, are surrounded by a chaperonage which makes them all but invulnerable. They are a power behind the throne which may relieve a corner by making an outlet for paper which is becoming stagnant; by expanding circulation where such expansion is necessary, and restricting it where it is too liberal. They have a constant finger upon the financial pulse of the patient and are in direct and constant consultation with the base hospital at the capital.

Through the new Los Angeles branch dozens of member banks will clear. Millions of dollars will flow through the vaults, and credits running into fabulous sums will find their way, every document as good as a government bank note when stamped by the seal of the reserve bank. The opening of the branch bank means the centering here of the financial life of a business empire. It is a recognition of the growing importance of Los Angeles as a financial center. It is a fine thing for the city, and it is a fine thing for the member banks who are thus brought hundreds of miles closer to their fiduciary "big brother," and are just so much the more united in an affiliation of interests which will not be without its effect upon the life and development of the community.

DARK OUTRAGES BY SINN FEIN.

Los Angeles Girl Tells of its War-time Treason.

And Present Terrorization, Brutality, Robbery.

Brings Facts from Ireland, Scores De Valera Here.

Basing her statements on first-hand information secured during the two years and four months she spent in active war service work in Ireland and England, Miss Julie Mortimer, daughter of C. White Mortimer, British Consul here, declared yesterday the Sinn Feiners are the I.W.W. and Bolsheviki of Ireland, and that if the patriotic people of this city know the true character of Edward (Eamonn) de Valera, the Sinn Fein leader, who is to come here November 19, he will be given a cold reception.

Miss Mortimer was a member of the committee which at the request of the representatives of the associated British societies of Southern California last Wednesday evening, drew up resolutions denouncing De Valera as a traitor to the cause of the Allies. These resolutions were unanimously adopted and copies forwarded to Mayor Snyder, the Board of Education, the City Council and the Board of Supervisors so that they can be acquainted with the facts regarding De Valera before being stampeded by local Sinn Feiners into arranging a hero's welcome to a man who is a fugitive from British justice.

QUALIFIED TO SPEAK.

Miss Mortimer left Los Angeles in August, 1916, for England, where she was active in war work until she returned to this city last Christmas Eve. During the time she was abroad she was on duty at least half the time in Ireland, and she traveled from one end of that country to the other, now engaged in munitions work, now in arousing interest among the women for the cause of the Allies and then working among the wounded in hospitals.

"When I first went to Ireland," said Miss Mortimer yesterday, "the Sinn Fein movement was just getting started, but by methods of intimidation, by threatening the lives of any who disputed them, the Sinn Feiners drew unto themselves numbers of the lawless element until finally they are represented generally throughout the south of Ireland, where they now terrorize the peaceful mass of the population. Thus is given an appearance of strength which is not real. For a time, the Sinn Fein was strong in Dublin, but during the last months I was there, the orderly and law-abiding portion of the people had begun to show their strength, and the power of the Sinn Fein was on the wane.

CHEERED FOR KAISER.

"In June, 1918, I was in the little town of Tramore, near Waterford, and attended a Sinn Fein mass meeting in the town square. I heard speakers tell how the Germans were soon to give a 'knockout blow' to the English, and the speakers declared the Germans were fighting the battle of Ireland. Cheers were given later that night for the Kaiser and for the German army.

"I have stood on the streets of Dublin and heard Sinn Feiners, of which De Valera is the leader, hiss American sailors."

In August, 1918, Miss Mortimer saw on Kildare street, Dublin, members of the Sinn Fein assaulting and otherwise intimidating loyal Irishmen who were trying to volunteer for the army. A few weeks later in Belfast, in the north of Ireland, she saw great crowds cheering the Irish recruits as they marched away to join the army.

"I know of many cases in the south of Ireland," said Miss Mortimer, "where well-to-do farmers who were at heart anti-Sinn Feiners and who were loyal to their government, concealed their real views, through fear of their lives and of having their houses and fields burned.

"When the soldiers and police began to raid the Sinn Fein headquarters they found, in addition to arms and ammunition, great stores of loot which the Sinn Feiners had stolen from houses and people during the excitement—silverware, jewelry, etc., showing that those who were leaders in the Sinn Fein were just plain, everyday thieves as well as the murderers which Lord French has termed them to be.

COWARDLY ACTS.

"I was in Ireland when the armistice was signed, and it was followed by the most cowardly and brutal acts on the part of the disappointed Sinn Feiners. A favorite cowardly trick was to waylay a wounded British or Irish soldier and beat him almost to death, and then flee before help could come in answer to the wounded man's cries. Many of these isolated cases were reported, always from some out-of-the-way part of the city or village.

"During all this time I was in Ireland, the hero of the Sinn Feiners was De Valera, and though his nominal headquarters were at Cork he was usually in hiding, being secretly passed along from one part of the country to another until finally he was captured by the authorities and sent to Lincoln prison.

"After he escaped in February, Sinn Feiners kept candles burning in their windows, so that in case De Valera were in the neighborhood he could find refuge. Many anti-Sinn Feiners burned candles during those nights because not to burn them meant the Sinn Fein would show it's disapproval by acts of terrorism.

"The official statement made by Admiral Sims that the Sinn Feiners supplied the German submarines off the Irish coast was common knowledge when I was in Ireland and openly boasted of by the Sinn Feiners, who said they were doing all in their power to help the Germans.

"As was stated in the resolutions adopted by the associated British societies of Los Angeles, I cannot believe that the patriotic people of Los Angeles, when they know the true character of this man De Valera, will welcome him to this city."

ON STATUTORY CHARGE.

Accused of a statutory offense on October 22, Lee Bashman was arrested yesterday by Detective George [illegible] of the District Attorney's office. Alice Day, 16, will appear as a witness against the defendant, who was arraigned before Justice [illegible]. His hearing was set for November 6. He was released on bail of $500 cash.

Tells Truth About the Sinn Fein.

Miss Julie Mortimer.

WHO DE VALERA IS AND WHAT HE STANDS FOR.

Fugitive Head of Sinn Fein, Denounced by Admiral Sims as Traitor Who Helped Huns, Fought Yanks.

Edward De Valera, world leader of the Sinn Fein, whose present tour of the United States has been widely heralded by the Hearst newspapers, was sent to Lincoln prison last year by the English government for disloyal acts and escaped February 3. He was kept in hiding until finally he was smuggled on board a ship bound for America. It was declared that he came as a stoker. While in prison De Valera was "elected" by a number of Sinn Feiners to be "President of the Irish republic." The Sinn Feiners called a meeting of an "Irish Parliament," but as most of the delegates or leaders were in prison, it was only after many delays that the Sinn Feiners announced the Parliament had been held.

De Valera, who calls himself by the Gaelic name of Eamonn instead of Edward, landed in New York in June and after being in hiding ten days, made a public appearance at Madison Square Garden, where the chairman of the meeting and the sponsor for De Valera was Hearst's personal friend, Judge Daniel F. Cohalan, who gained unenviable notoriety when President Wilson refused to greet an Irish delegation until Judge Cohalan departed. Though a firm friend of Irish freedom, President Wilson thus expressed his contempt for the disloyal acts of Judge Cohalan, who, according to evidence made public by the Department of Justice, conspired with Ambassador Von Bernstorff to aid Germany.

FAILS TO GET LOAN.

Valera has since been speaking in various parts of the country against Great Britain, though the main purpose of his coming to America—that of raising a $5,000,000 loan for the Sinn Fein "Irish republic"—has been a complete failure. For although the American people have every sympathy for the honest strivings toward ultimate home rule, which is being worked out with the English Parliamentary leaders in an orderly manner, they have no sympathy with the lawlessness of the Sinn Fein.

The Sinn Feiners, of which De Valera is the leader, are trying to frighten the English government by dynamite and murder into surrendering the reins of government to the handful of members of their lawless organization.

DISLOYAL "FRIENDS."

The work of the Sinn Fein is carried on in this country by the so-called "friends of Irish freedom." During the war the activities of this organization, which has a branch in Los Angeles, were so perniciously disloyal, that it was driven under cover by agents of the United States Department of Justice, who were enabled to work under the provisions of the then existing Espionage Act. Since the armistice was signed, the friends of Irish freedom have come from hiding and are now behind the present tour of De Valera.

Prime Minister Lloyd George and other members of the British government, have repeatedly expressed their intention of giving home rule to Ireland. But they are determined to put down the lawless Sinn Feiners, and in this they have the backing of all true friends of Irish freedom.

How the Sinn Fein interfered in this country with recruiting and in general with the progress of the war is well known. There were riots in New York City, where loyal Americans protested at the speeches made by the Sinn Feiners against the Allies. Of the hostility of the Sinn Fein in Ireland to the work of the American sailors, Vice-Admiral Sims writes in the current World's Work magazine, stating that he feels it his duty to do so on account of the present visit to America of the representatives of the Sinn Fein "Irish republic," of which De Valera is the leader. Admiral Sims says:

HOSTILE TO AMERICANS.

"During the nearly two years which the American naval forces spent in Europe, only one element in the population showed them any hostility or even unfriendliness. At the moment when these lines are being written a delegation claiming to represent the 'Irish republic' is touring the United States, asking Americans to extend their sympathy and contribute money toward the realization of their project.

"I have great admiration for the mass of the Irish people, and from the best elements of these people the American sailors received only kindness. I have therefore hesitated about telling just how some members of the Sinn Fein party treated our men. But it seems that now, when this same brotherhood is attempting to stir up hatred in this country against our Allies in the war, there is a certain pertinence in informing Americans just what kind of treatment their brave sailors met with at Sinn Fein hands in Ireland."

After telling of the various annoyances which the United States sailors received from the Sinn Feiners at Cork, Admiral Sims says:

"But the Sinn Feiners interfered with us in much more serious ways than this. They were doing everything in their power to help Germany. With their assistance, German agents and German spies were landed in Ireland. At one time the situation became so dangerous that I had to take experienced officers, whose services could ill be spared, from our destroyers and assign them to our outlying air stations in Ireland. This, of course, proportionately weakened our fleet and did its part in prolonging the war."

"INSANE" SAYS FRENCH.

Lord French, former commander-in-chief of the British forces in France and now commanding in Ireland, told in a recent speech of startling discoveries he had made concerning the activities of the Sinn Fein. Speaking of the so-called "Irish republic," of which De Valera is the "president," Lord French said:

"This so-called self-constituted, illegal, insane government possesses a secret army which they call the Irish volunteers. Attached to that army are bodies of nothing more or less than assassins, whose business it is to commit outrage and murder on the police and soldiers and on all in the community who question their decrees or in any way oppose them.

"The result is a complete system of intimidation throughout the whole population, who are frightened and bullied into screening these men and refusing to give information against them. The consequence is that the courageous and devoted efforts made by the police throughout the country to bring these men to justice are rendered absolutely abortive.

"Those are the difficulties. We are anxious to give all classes and denominations of Irishmen full justice and in doing so be just to all."

BONUS AND MORE PAY BY WESTERN UNION.

Employees of the Western Union Telegraph Company were paid another bonus yesterday, representing 30 per cent. of the October salary rating to all who have been in the service over six months. Announcement is also made by J. M. Green, manager, of an additional bonus December 21 of 20 per cent of the December salary rating, and of a flat increase of 15 per cent. in wages, effective January 1, next, to all who have been in the employ of the company over one year, and smaller increases for those who have served a shorter period.

EX-AMBASSADOR GIVEN DIVORCE.

David E. Thompson Freed on Ground of Cruelty.

Letters of Wife Kept from the Court Records.

Only Two Filed with Clerk to Show Her Attitude.

When Florence Cook Thompson, a beautiful southern woman, put into practice the philosophy that it is no harm for a married woman to love another man, she brought sorrow to her husband, David E. Thompson, formerly a bank president in Nebraska and former Ambassador in South America and Mexico under Presidents Roosevelt and Taft.

After once forgiving his wife and taking her back, Mr. Thompson discovered another man had entered her life, and all hope of happiness faded. This other man resides in New York and is said to have been a schoolmate of Mrs. Thompson.

Mr. Thompson sued for divorce and was granted a decree by Judge Crail yesterday on the ground of extreme cruelty.

Several letters from the wife were read by the court, and at the express wish of the attorneys in the case, they were not spread upon the records. One or two letters were filed with the clerk, as indicating Mrs. Thompson's attitude.

WON'T COME BACK.

Mrs. Thompson wrote her husband while on a visit that she did not want to come back.

"I telegraphed her it was all a mistake," testified Mr. Thompson. "I said if what she stated in the letter was true, I would forgive her. I asked her to come home, and she telegraphed me she would not."

The incident, Mr. Thompson said, caused a hurt that nothing else could have done. Before that her letters to him had been affectionate, he said. After she renewed her friendship for the New Yorker there seemed to be an attraction that disrupted her love for her husband.

"Dear David," began one letter. "It seems that I cannot do anything more that does not hurt you. But again I must give you pain, and I truly hope this will be the last time. I haven't written because my heart was not right, and I am through with all pretenses. It seems beyond my control, and oh, it is killing me to go on. I am writing you this letter to let you see my innermost heart and see if I can get help from you.

"For years I have been so very unhappy. That awful thing that has come between us is ever before me. I know you said it could never be there, but it can't be there forever and ever. It has taught me deceit until I hardly dare know the truth any more."

SILLY INDISCRETION.

She speaks of the "Florida affair," and says she was innocent of meaning any great wrong, but the silly little indiscretion "has changed my whole life. You know I was young and did not realize how little things could be misunderstood by the world. David, be fair with me, and remember how little of life I really knew, much less than I should have for my years."

She says she has fought it out with herself and realizes that "with today rests the future. If you will compel me to come back, neither of us will know a moment's joy for I shall each day be wishing I was free and you, knowing that, can't be happy.

"I want to be really free for once in my life—just be master of my soul and so, daddy, I ask you again to help me. I do not blame you, but was started out with everything against us.

"I realize I won't have servants and cars, but I'll be so happy. But now men seem all like some awful monsters ready to hurt me. I feel I can never like them again."

Mr. Thompson, who was represented by Attorneys McKelby and Kemp, was awarded the custody of his son, David. It is said a property settlement has been made with Mrs. Thompson. Attorney Burke represented her interests in court.

TYPEWRITER DEVICE MAKES LINES EVEN.

NEW INVENTION IMPROVEMENT OF METHOD TO ELIMINATE SETTING OF TYPE.

With the invention of an attachment to make typewriter lines of an even length, or "justify" them as the printer says, the art of printing, as far as newspapers and magazines are concerned, will be revolutionized, according to those who have seen the new device.

It is controlled by Elmer E. Beard of Vancouver, president of the Washington Republican State Press Association. The makers say that the device can be used on any typewriter, that its cost is small and that it does not interfere with the regular working of the machine.

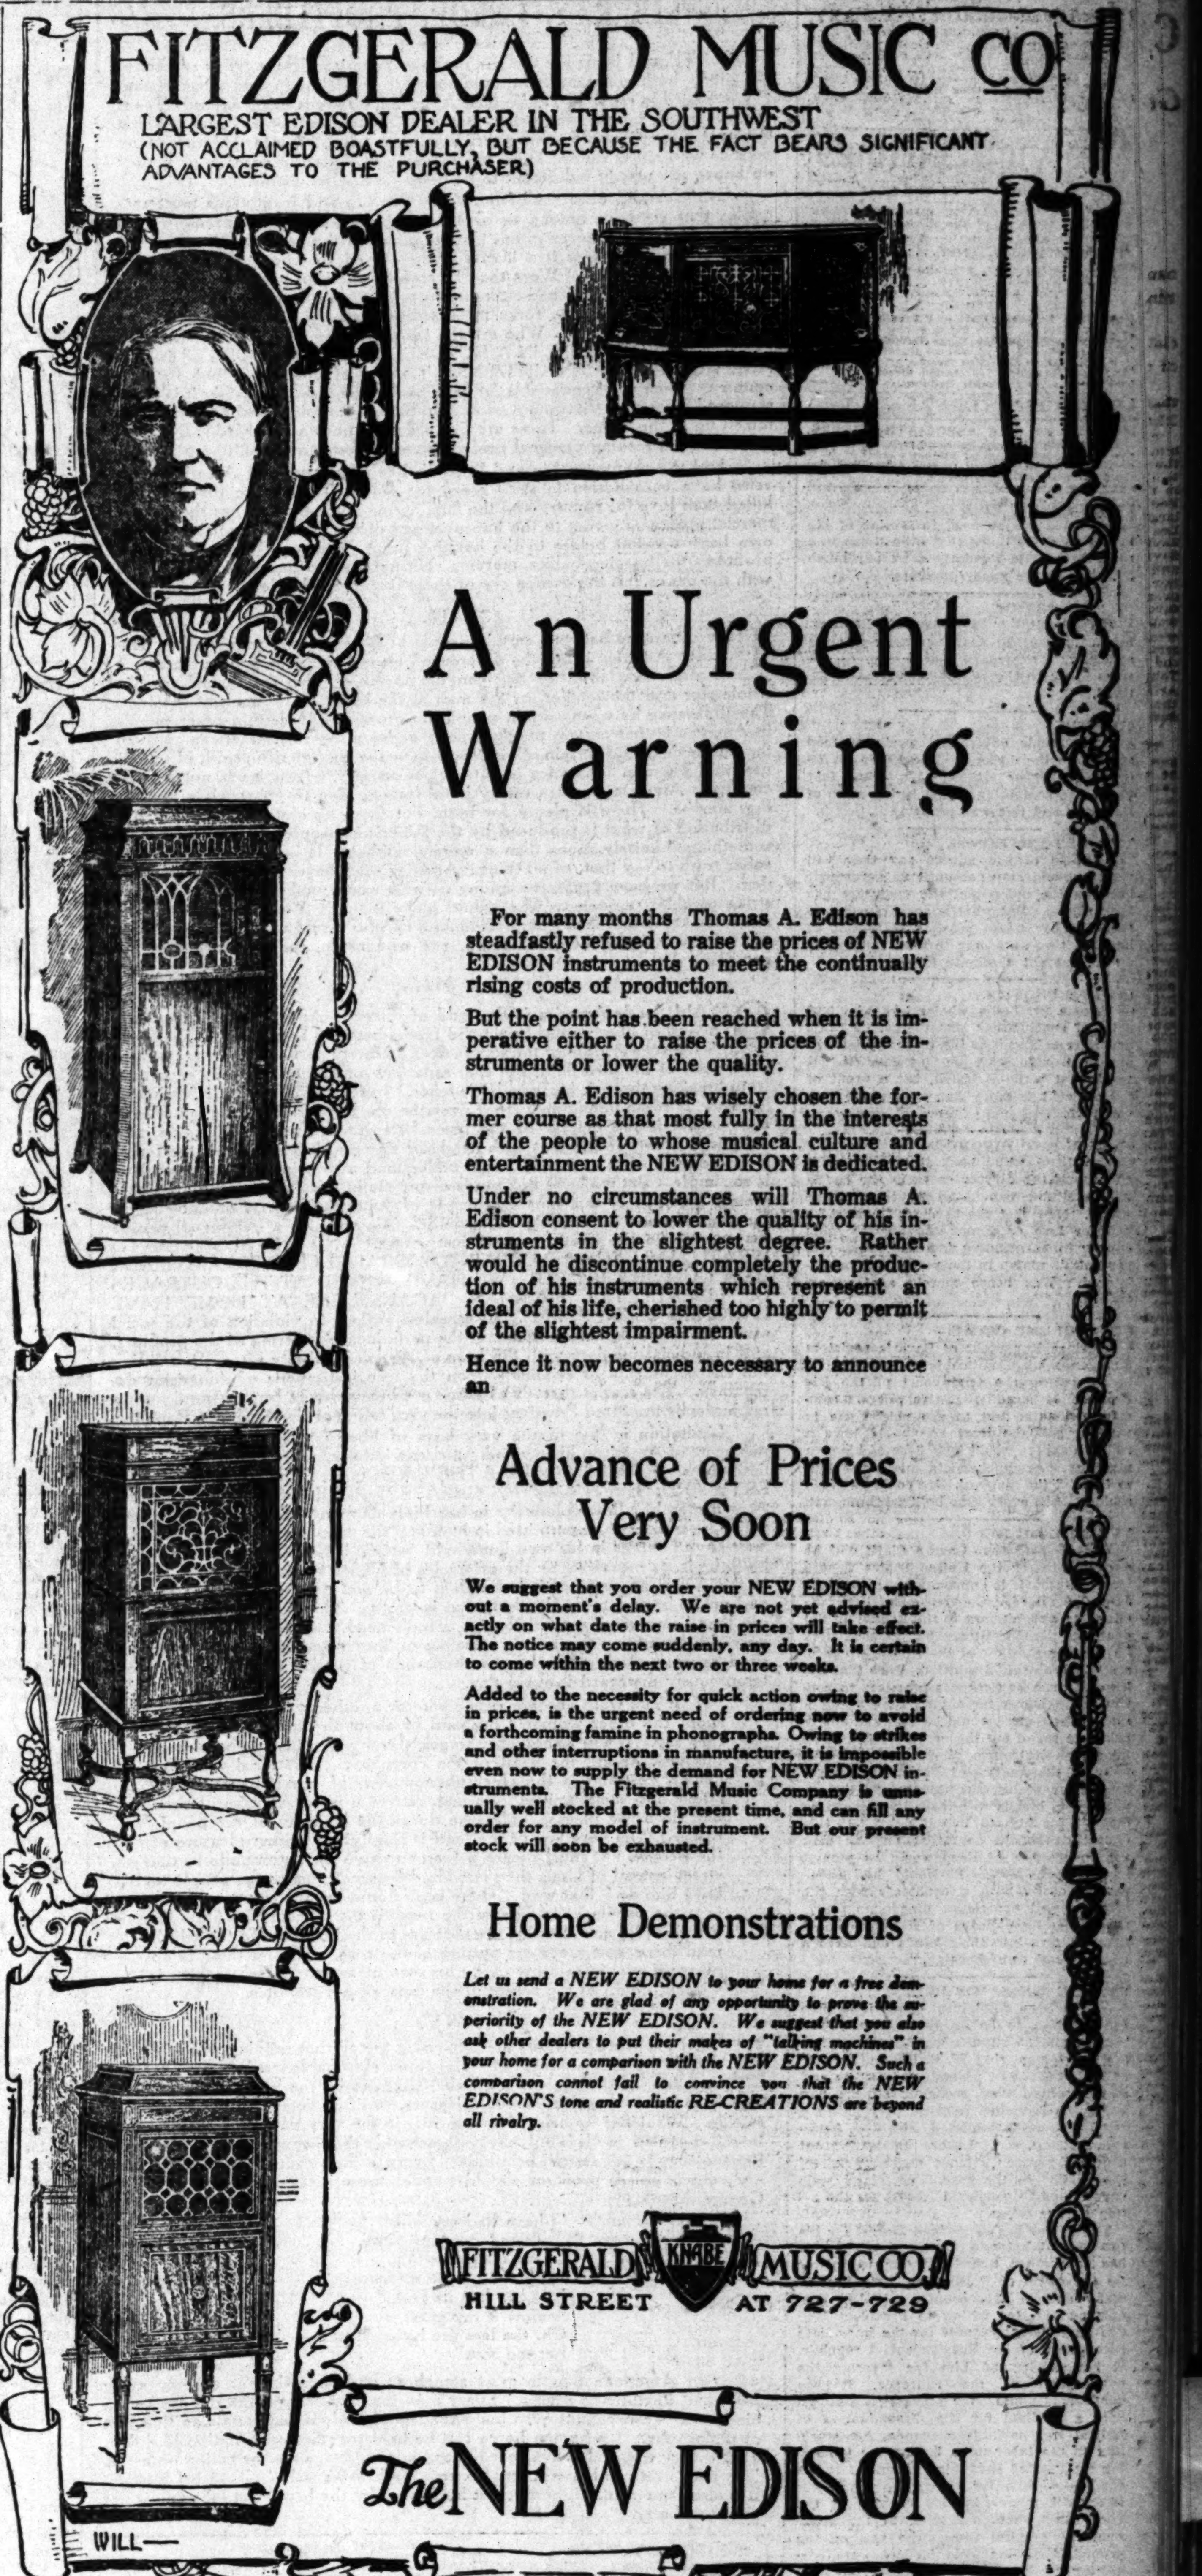
In a recent issue of The Times an entire page was printed from typewritten copy. The Literary Digest and other periodicals have shown that magazines can be issued by the same process and that typesetting, the most expensive part of printing, can be eliminated.

But in all these issues the lines were uneven. The new attachment will take care of that. Samples of work done with this attachment show the lines spaced properly and even.

When typesetting machines were first invented, spacing was the one difficult task; and in several of the earlier machines, hand spacing was resorted to. When the linotype was put on the market, and it was stated that the machine was a self-spacer, printers declared this an impossibility. A favorite expression was that it took brains to set type and no machine with brains had yet been thought of.

But the Mergenthaler machine did set type, and did space the words, better and more accurately than they could be spaced by hand. With the new attachment anyone who can use a typewriter can space properly. Any word or letter at any place in the written article may be corrected without disturbing any other word or line. Nothing has to be written over except the word that is incorrect.

Manufacturers of typewriters are interested in this new device and some of them are making arrangements to have it placed on their machines for sale to newspapers and magazines.



FITZGERALD MUSIC CO
LARGEST EDISON DEALER IN THE SOUTHWEST
(NOT ACCLAIMED BOASTFULLY, BUT BECAUSE THE FACT BEARS SIGNIFICANT ADVANTAGES TO THE PURCHASER)

An Urgent Warning

For many months Thomas A. Edison has steadfastly refused to raise the prices of NEW EDISON instruments to meet the continually rising costs of production.

But the point has been reached when it is imperative either to raise the prices of the instruments or lower the quality.

Thomas A. Edison has wisely chosen the former course as that most fully in the interests of the people to whose musical culture and entertainment the NEW EDISON is dedicated.

Under no circumstances will Thomas A. Edison consent to lower the quality of his instruments in the slightest degree. Rather would he discontinue completely the production of his instruments which represent an ideal of his life, cherished too highly to permit of the slightest impairment.

Hence it now becomes necessary to announce an Advance of Prices Very Soon

We suggest that you order your NEW EDISON without a moment's delay. We are not yet advised exactly on what date the raise in prices will take effect. The notice may come suddenly, any day. It is certain to come within the next two or three weeks.

Added to the necessity for quick action owing to raise in prices, is the urgent need of ordering now to avoid a forthcoming famine in phonographs. Owing to strikes and other interruptions in manufacture, it is impossible even now to supply the demand for NEW EDISON instruments. The Fitzgerald Music Company is unusually well stocked at the present time, and can fill any order for any model of instrument. But our present stock will soon be exhausted.

Home Demonstrations

Let us send a NEW EDISON to your home for a free demonstration. We are glad of any opportunity to prove the superiority of the NEW EDISON. We suggest that you also ask other dealers to put their makes of "talking machines" in your home for a comparison with the NEW EDISON. Such a comparison cannot fail to convince you that the NEW EDISON'S tone and realistic RE-CREATIONS are beyond all rivalry.

DAYS OF BIG PROFITS.
People are so used to talking of big money in these times that even those who read their Bible regularly don't pay much attention to the minor prophets.

IN SILK ATTIRE.
In Detroit the Workingmen's Laundry has a sign in the window: "Silk shirts a specialty." Nowadays that is one of the ways in which the workingman can be identified.

ROTTEN!
Thousands of dollars' worth of food spoiled on the docks at Copenhagen on account of harbor strikes. We heard that there was something rotten in the state of Denmark and this was probably it.

WORDS AND BONDS.
Some of the miners say they will walk out and stay out until an agreement between the union and the operators has been signed. But what is an agreement to them? They might possibly respect it as long as it was strongly to their interest to do so, but not a minute longer.

SWEET PROFITS.
Some St. Louis wholesalers who had a lot of sugar which cost them nine cents and were selling it to the trade at eighteen are in trouble with the government. It was sweet while it lasted, but a profit of 100 per cent. is more than even Uncle Sam can permit.

DRINK AND DIVORCE.
A little while back it seemed as if about half the divorce cases in the courts had a drunken husband in them somewhere. Now that the hard stuff cannot be had for love or money the divorce mills appear to be grinding just the same. No perceptible slump in the percentage is registered. Was booze merely another excuse?

FITTING THE CRIME.
Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria registers annoyance when notice is served that he is wanted in the trial court of the Big League. It is said that this prince's command was the first to use poison gas in warfare and the least he should have a right to expect would be a dose of his own medicine. Army chemists might use him to test out the mustard. He could be given a blue ribbon every time he lived through it.

WEARY OF REED.
It is said that Champ Clark will be a candidate for the United States Senate from Missouri in opposition to Senator James A. Reed. Congressman Clark declined an appointment to the Senate on the death of Senator Stone, but at that time he was the Speaker of the House, which is a still more exalted position. Now that the lower branch of Congress promises to continue Republican for a long time ahead a seat in the Senate would be neat and appropriate to round out the career of the Bowling Green statesman. Senator Reed's hostility to the League of Nations has alienated many of his constituents and the opposition to him is so intense that it will be difficult for him to live it down. If this opposition should centralize on one man the suppression of Reed would be prompt and overwhelming. It would be accomplished easily with a candidate with the standing and experience of Champ Clark, unless the Republicans of Missouri should take matters into their hands and have a man of their own choosing.

PRAISE WHEN 'TIS DUE.
When the devil turns pious it is time for devotees to be on their guard. The Times notes with a mingling of surprise and amusement that W. R. Hearst, servitor of the soviets and promoter of strikes and strikers, fired nine reporters on his San Francisco Examiner because they joined a reporters' union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. In dealing out abstract justice, without consideration of the parties to the case, The Times feels constrained to commend Hearst for the action he has taken.

The Times has denounced Hearst for his pro-German attitude during the war. It has condemned him for trying to bolster up the cause of Bolshevism, both in Germany and in this country. It has condemned him for wiring to President Wilson an insistent request for the immediate recognition of the Russian soviet republic. It has condemned him for favoring the confiscation of the railroads. It has condemned him for making his papers a medium for the dissemination of radical and soviet propaganda, for truckling to the labor-union bosses, for promoting strikes and condoning violence. It has condemned him for aiding the Sinn Fein to collect money in this country at the very time when, according to the statement of Admiral Sims, who was on the ground, the Sinn Fein leaders were conspiring to land German agents on Irish soil and to furnish German submarine commanders information as to the movement of United States transports. But the hour has come, after, lo, these many years, when The Times can praise Mr. Hearst for one good action, firing the men in his editorial rooms who joined a reporters' union. And we shall henceforth look upon him as, like Byron's "Corsair," "Linked with one virtue and a thousand crimes."

LIBERTY, LABOR, PROFITEERS.

LIBERTY and labor are the wings of the American Eagle. For successful flight both wings must be unimpaired. But labor in America is being crippled in many places because American liberty is being abused. There can no longer be any doubt but that our "Unguarded Gates" about which the poet Aldrich wrote some years ago have admitted into America many persons who either do not know the meaning of American liberty, or if they do know, are utterly indifferent to its meaning and its claims.

Every candid observer of our American life and institutions must recognize that we have among us persons claiming American citizenship who show no interest whatever in our institutions or in the general welfare of the American people. Was it a liberty-loving American who led the race riot in Chicago or Omaha? Were they lovers of American principles who instigated the policeman's wicked strike in Boston? Were they law-loving Americans who lately sought to force the despotic methods of labor-unionism on the city of Los Angeles? Who are the leaders in the steel strikes? THESE FOMENTERS OF STRIFE IN A HUNDRED PLACES OF OUR COUNTRY ARE NOT AMERICAN CITIZENS. Their chief concern is not for this country. Their chief concern is for cash, and more cash. Certainly it is to be supposed, however, that many good men have been misguided and have got mixed up in the melee. These are like sheep without a shepherd. But their exploiters are seeking personal preferment and pecuniary profit.

And the profiteers, big and little, if they ever were real American citizens, have backslidden in their greed for gold. Their craze for cash has killed their love for country and the flag. How much thought are these commercial profiteers giving to the improvement of our public schools? If their own bank account bulges to the bursting point, what care these plundering profiteers for freezing babies, starving children, and suffering widows? "On with the dance," is the demon cry of these looters of the dead.

II.

THE difference between certain people in America and certain other people in America is not the difference between rich and poor, or between capital and labor, or between the merchant and the farmer, or the wholesaler and the retailer, or the man at the head, or the man at the foot. The difference between certain people in America and certain other people in America is that certain people among us have the real American spirit of the square deal, and certain other people have the un-American spirit of selfishness and plunder. America is not a class country. America is not a color country. America is not a meaty bone for one dog to gnaw while another dog starves. There is plenty for both, but there absolutely must be a just distribution of what is produced by the American people. America must be something infinitely more than a money market. It is not pessimism, but sober truth to say that, of all things, America must never become a gambler's den. But we have profiteers among us who would make it that. We have strike gamblers among us who would make it that. We have railroad and mine and stock and land gamblers among us who would make this country of the Pilgrim Fathers, of Washington, and of Lincoln, the rendezvous of the gambler's den.

III.

OF ALL lands America is the land of liberty. And because America is a land of liberty neighbors build fences between their fields. The fence is liberty's symbol of the square deal. Liberty permits each man to farm every inch of his own field, but that same law of liberty prohibits each man from breaking through his neighbor's fence. Instead of liberty permitting lawlessness, as some immigrants from over the sea have foolishly imagined, liberty herself is the builder of the fence between the neighbors' fields, and American liberty insists that each neighbor stay on his own side of the fence. It would seem that any child could understand a principle of fairness which is so simple. But we have thousands of people in this country who are either grossly ignorant of this simple principle of American liberty, or knowing it, they wilfully and maliciously disregard it. We are such a free-for-all people that we are slow to wrath, even against wrong. AND THIS SLOWNESS TO WRATH HAS DEGENERATED INTO MORAL FLABBINESS AND MADE US A GULLIBLE PEOPLE. WE HAVE WINKED AT THE OUTRAGES OF LIBERTY TILL PRUSSIAN PAGANS HERE AT HOME HAVE LAUGHED US TO SCORN. In senseless strikes, in violation of the social sanctities of the American home, in the perfidious plundering of the profiteer, and in judicial jugglery with the laws of American liberty we are permitting the encroachments of criminals upon the free institutions of American democracy. The scarlet threads of crime are being woven by un-American immigrants, by imported Prussians into the very fabric of the American Republic.

Limitation is one of the very laws of liberty itself. And yet these menacers of American liberty and American industry rebel against any and all limitations. REBELS AGAINST THE RATIONAL RESTRAINTS OF LIBERTY ARE THIS HOUR THE GREATEST PERIL OF THE REPUBLIC. A man may be allowed liberties in handling his own justly acquired property which he could not be permitted in handling the property of another. A man may have liberties in his own household which, if he take in another household, he is, as measured by the principles of liberty itself, an outlay. Liberty in the American sense of it is freedom to be and do the thing that is right, and not to be and to do the thing that is wrong. This is all so childishly simple that "a wayfaring man, though a fool, need not err therein." Yet the necessity for stating this simple principle of liberty and for restating it a hundred times is made plain by the thousands of people among us who contemptuously disregard it every day.

> If you want another man's wife or another woman's husband, shoot the other woman's husband or shoot the other man's wife, they say. If you want higher wages, throw a slug into the wheels of business, or kill the head of the company. Irrational rebellion against restraint is the chief phenomenon of our industrial, economic and social unrest. No man can be a good American citizen and do as he pleases, unless he do as the majority of the people please. The very law of the land is simply the written pleasure of the people. It must please a man to drive his automobile in the street instead of along the sidewalk, because it pleases the people to have him do it that way. There is no doubt but the citizen who enjoys the privileges of liberty the most is the citizen who finds his greatest pleasure in doing the pleasure of the people. To the selfish man this seems a strange putting of the case. To him there is no pleasure save in selfishly doing his own pleasure. Selfish seeking is without doubt at the center of the most of our troubles.

IV.

EVEN unchristian writers are beginning to say that nothing will settle the world's present unrest but "The sweet reasonableness" of the Christian religion. Selfishness is suicidal. That is why the home-wrecker, seeking his or her own selfish, sensual pleasure, so often cuts the tragedy short in suicide. Whatever its field of action, it is in the very nature of selfishness to be self-destructive. It is only unselfish activities that bring perennial pleasures. Benevolence is the eternal beatitude. Every striker, every home-breaker, every conscienceless profiteer should ponder these sadly significant words of George Arnold:

"I have had my will,
  Tasted every pleasure,
I have drunk my fill
  Of the purple measure;
Life has lost its zest,
Sorrow is my guest,
Oh, the lees are bitter, bitter—
Let me rest."

Our American people must somehow and speedily get entirely away from that devil-made saying, "Every man for himself, and the devil take the hindmost." We cannot even build roads and bridges and canals on that sort of philosophy. No human home can be held together on a notion like that. That theory would dissolve speedily any community, state, or nation on earth. "No man liveth to himself, and no man dieth to himself." That is Christian. It is also American. Liberty must lead labor by the hand, but labor must not outrage liberty.

LOOKING BOTH WAYS.
Oh, well, there's nothing new. There were riots in Rome 2200 years ago because of high prices. People had to pay what is now equivalent to five cents a pound for beef, and eggs were also five cents a dozen. Wheat was bringing almost 25 cents a bushel and skilled labor was demanding more than 30 cents a day. A thousand years from now men will be threatening to strike for either a nickel or $10 an hour. We don't know which and we won't care.

SPEED TRAGEDIES.
There were 325 deaths from automobile accidents in Chicago in the first 325 days of the present year. It takes no mathematician to compute that this is one killing a day and a large proportion of them are to be blamed to the itch for speed. The death roll of the nation due to the same cause is stupendous. The man who thinks he is in a hurry to get somewhere is more deadly than the unloaded gun.

MR. HOOVER'S ANALYSIS.
"Demoralized productivity," in the opinion of Herbert Hoover, the world's greatest food expert, is the economic malady from which Europe is now suffering. In an article written for the World's Work on the situation in Europe he says that productive activity among the European peoples is at a lower ebb than at any time while the war was in progress.

Mr. Hoover believes that the solution of the problem does not lie in a stream of commodities on credit from the Western Hemisphere. That is but a temporary palliative and must not be considered as a remedy. After citing varied causes for the shortage of production, alike in enemy and Allied countries, he reaches the fixed conclusion that:

> Unless productivity can be rapidly increased there can be nothing but political, moral and economic chaos, finally interpreting itself in loss of life on a scale hitherto undreamed of.

Among the detriments to production Mr. Hoover notes that European labor has unfortunately become impregnated with the belief that there will be more jobs for the workers if those employed will work slackly. The radicals among the trade organizations are urging the necessity of two men doing now what one man did before the war. By pursuing that policy they figure that there will be assuredly jobs for all; but the only result has been an increased cost of production which is, in itself, a serious menace.

Mr. Hoover's advice to the governments and statesmen of Europe is to supply the tools for labor as rapidly as possible and bend their entire energies to inculcating in the laboring classes a desire to return to work. In this connection he says:

> The first cardinal policy of European statesmanship must be to secure the materials and tools to labor and to secure its return to work. They must also secure a recognition of the fact that, whatever the economic theory or political cry, it must embrace the maximum of individual effort; for there is no margin of surplus productivity in Europe to risk revolutionary experimentation.
> No economic policy will bring food to those stomachs or fuel to those hearths that does not secure the maximum production. There is no use of tears over rising prices; they are in a great degree a visualization of insufficient production.

Mr. Hoover's war experience in feeding the Allied peoples and the neutral nations gave him exceptional opportunity to study the political and economic life of many peoples. He probably made a more striking success of his department than any other of the President's aides. With some of the European peoples he ranks even above his chief. For, while the President was at times idealistic and theoretical, Mr. Hoover was always eminently practical.

A part of the advice which he gives will not be applauded by the theorists and Socialists. He is absolutely opposed to price limitation and profit-fixing. The Times naturally applauds his conclusions, for The Times has repeatedly pointed out that the surest way to stint production is for the government to seek to interfere in any manner with the operation of the law of supply and demand. Mr. Hoover says:

> The stimulation of production lies in the path of avoidance of all limitations of the reward of the actual producer. In other words, attempts to control prices (otherwise than in the sense of control of vicious speculation) are the negation of stimulation to production and can only result in the further curtailment of the total of commodities available for the total number of human beings to be fed, clothed and housed.
> All attempts at international control of price, with a view to benefit the population in Europe at the cost of the producer elsewhere, will inevitably produce retrogression in production abroad, the impact of which will be felt in Europe more than elsewhere. A decrease of 20 per cent. of Western Hemisphere wheat would not starve the West; it would starve Europe.

After reading Mr. Hoover's ideas of national and international price-fixing one comes to understand why he declined last summer to accept a position as Food Dictator for the Allies. He makes plain that all dictatorship interferes with industry and lessens production. He knows that there are natural laws which no man-made decree can abrogate; and he is too much a statesman and too little a politician to care to inject politics into industry.

There is an indication of his disgust for cheap politics in his assertion that "It must be evident that production cannot increase if political incompetence continues." Mr. Hoover dwells but briefly on the Bolshevist menace. He says that: "The outcome of social ferment and class consciousness is the most difficult of the problems to solve. . . . In this ferment socialism or communism has claimed to speak for all the downtrodden, alone to bespeak human sympathy and alone to present remedies—to be the lone voice of radicalism. Europe is full of a noisy denunciation of private property as necessarily being exploitation. . . . Too often they are embracing criminal support and criminal methods to enforce their ideas of human betterment." Warning where political and economic fallacies lead, he points to "the political phenomena of Russia, where the greatest food-exporting country is today starving."

Mr. Hoover is now in Washington, where he is using his influence to hasten an early ratification of the peace treaty. He marks the day when the League of Nations is formally constituted and begins to function as the real starting point of reconstruction. There is a highly-gratifying absence of demagogic utterance in all that Mr. Hoover speaks or writes. He avoids appeals to either passion or prejudice. The country will probably hear more of him; for he is still a comparatively young man—although old enough to be President.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

THE STRIKE FEVER.

My job is all I could desire, it yields me handsome pay; I wrestle with my blooming lyre for eight brief hours a day. I ought to think myself in luck to have a job I like; but all the other boys have struck and so I think I'll strike. No stern oppressor grinds my face with cruel iron heel; to tyrants in the higher place I make no vain appeal. No rank injustice I lament, my spirit isn't sore; I have no grievance worth a cent that makes me walk the floor. But I see all the striking lads parade along the pike; they've quit their work in all the grads and so I think I'll strike. I am the only man at work in all this lovely land who does not find his labors irk, who makes no stern demand. I'm satisfied with what I do and with the pay I get; each day I earn three bones or two in damp but honest sweat. I'm treated better than a king, and life seems pretty slick, and as I sit around and sing I can't think up a kick. But I am lonesome all the day, the one contented guy; the rest have thrown their tools away and they go marching by. I see them waving bright red flags as up the street they hike; and so my lilting labor drags—I rather think I'll strike. WALT MASON.

Dangerous Knowledge.

Vomitory, as we have learned from our architectural studies, means an opening or passage providing direct ingress to an amphitheater and egress therefrom, and since we acquired this useful little piece of information our wife doesn't dare to have anybody in to dinner, even in the most informal way, for fear we'll begin to discuss architecture.—[Ohio State Journal.

THE LANCER.

That attitude of whining reproach has so little to recommend it. Yet it seems to be peculiarly popular with all sorts of promoters and uplifters. Whether it's music, art, the Roosevelt memorial or the stock show, they all seem to get a whining reproach in on the public somewhere. The poor old public never can seem to do its whole duty by everybody.

One rather supposed, for instance, that they had attended the stock show with marked appreciation. It was a good show and the support and praise appeared to be pretty general. But on the closing day a gentleman hurled a tirade at the grand stand through a megaphone to the effect that the public had been very remiss and concluded with this gem: "And the promoters have not been gave the support which they should have got." That is a verbatim quotation. Now, dash it all, if we must have the reproach, they might at least give it to us in good English-American.

The annual Blue Book has just made its palpitating appearance. Superior thrills for the "ins," anguish for the "outs." Ostentatious indifference either way.

It is a useful publication, replete with information of a more or less complete nature, but just oozing social snubs on every page. Start it as a topic of conversation at any ordinary dinner party and the air becomes tense. The "outs" take a malicious delight in drawing attention to distinguished omissions—which is consoling—and to doubtful inclusions that are even more consoling.

That list of recent marriages is rich in heartaches. So many quite expensive ones are not there.

However, we must not mind. Even the famous English "Debrett's Peerage" is now being referred to by facetious British writers as "Debrett's Peerage, Beerage and Profiteerage."

So the California Bar Association is actually advocating a certificate of good moral character for the admission of new members. This is a drastic innovation. "General integrity alone can insure respect," says Section F.

Better late than never. But if the lawyers enforce the bylaws it is going to reduce the crop of lawyers by nearly a third at least. How wonderful, how sublime, when a man can safely go to any lawyer in the pleasant knowledge that the Bar Association vouches for his integrity.

The Rev. Charles Edward Locke has indorsed the unwritten law from the pulpit—that is to say, he finds that husbands are justified in resorting to the "unwritten law" in certain cases. He says it discourages lawlessness.

Ahem. And what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander? Yes? A dangerous creed. One can't imagine a more alarming state of affairs than to have every wife whose husband has stepped aside taking the law into her own hands and dispensing amateur justice.

Have a care, Dr. Locke! The ladies are getting so disconcertingly assertive in these little matters. Masculinity will be safer abiding by the written laws and leaving it at that.

The philosopher who remarked that women will never do much in politics and office-holding until they have abandoned French heels and hobble skirts is too sanguine. Men managed to hold down quite an efficient little monopoly when they wore wigs, stove-pipe hats, whiskers and peg-top trousers. Even silk stockings and ruffles proved no particular handicap.

When one considers the variety of specious lures, all the way from spurious baby-kissing to villainous cigars, which the male politician has found helpful, one cannot prophesy with any accuracy anent French heels and hobble skirts.

The ladies always seem to know a thing or two about masculine tastes—and just how much they can get away with.

Which reminds us. Wives are discussing strikes for higher dress allowances to meet the high cost of dressing; judging from the meager styles affected, the allowances must be a bit inadequate at present.

After all, are men so courageous? Which of us would dare expose his entire back to the public view with complete equanimity? No, we must hand it to the ladies. They will expose any back, quite irrespective of its contour or texture, with the utmost sang-froid. Nothing feazes them.

The valor of ignorance? Oh, well, valor is valor. THE LANCER.

WOMEN'S CLUBS IN MUSIC WAR.

Federation may Aid in Fight Musicians Started Here.

Professional Equality with the Men to be Decided.

Say Mixed Orchestra Ban is Imported Eastern Edict.

The Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs, representing [illegible] women, may call a special board meeting to back the equality war launched yesterday by women musicians of the city, according to information given at a meeting of the Woman Musicians' Equality League yesterday.

The meeting was called by Mrs. [illegible] Halberg, president, to consider what women musicians assert is a critical situation in their professional ranks.

Mrs. Sidney Thomas Exley, president of the Los Angeles District Federation of Women's Clubs, sent Mrs. L. A. Beebe, Miss Paula Dunnigan and Mrs. A. R. Gates, the latter being the District Federation music chairman, to represent her at the meeting. According to Mrs. Beebe, Mrs. Exley has requested report on the charges that women musicians are not allowed to play in orchestras.

It was announced by both Mrs. Beebe and Mrs. Gates that Mrs. Exley undoubtedly will not wait for the next regular board meeting, scheduled for two weeks hence, but will call a special session next week, in order to aid the fight, which the women musicians intend to wage to establish themselves on a professional equality with men.

REPORT DISMISSALS.

Letters were read at the meeting which, it was stated, had emanated from managers of places where orchestras are engaged, in which orchestra managers were instructed to dismiss at once some women playing in the organization, because a mixed orchestra was not satisfactory.

It was also charged that several managers and directors came to Los Angeles recently from New York had brought the "no woman" ban with them.

"This is not the East, but the West, where women vote," said Miss [illegible] Grosser, one of the young musicians who says that she was dismissed because she wore petticoats. "We have won suffrage here for the sake of professional and business equality as well as political equality, and we will appeal to the organized club women of the entire State, if necessary, to enforce our demand for equality."

ASK CLUBS TO AID.

A letter to all the women's clubs and associations in the county was ordered written and sent, asking the clubs to take an active part on behalf of the women musicians. Miss Grosser, Mrs. Lucy Fuhrer Genter and Miss Rhoda Miller were named a committee to write this letter. Other committees appointed were: Committee to compile facts for campaign speakers, Mrs. Newton, Mrs. [illegible] Benter, Miss Daisy Walters; [illegible] committee, Miss Irene [illegible], Miss Lalla Fagge, Miss [illegible] Anson. Mrs. M. Clement, of [illegible], was appointed to carry the [illegible] to that city.

Definite plans for a campaign to get employers of musicians to permit competent women as well as men in orchestras was mapped out, and another meeting called for [illegible] morning at 10 o'clock at [illegible] Germain Building.

GREATER INDUSTRIAL DEMOCRACY IS URGED.

CITY CLUB SPEAKER DECLARES EMPLOYERS AND EMPLOYEES MUST CO-OPERATE.

"Democracy in Industry" was the subject of Prof. Ira B. Cross's address before the City Club yesterday. Prof. Cross is the head of the economics department of the University of California. He urged employers and employees must get together if the ideal situation in industry is to be created; that profit-sharing must be accompanied by employment management, and the employees must feel that they are a part and parcel of the [illegible].

"The future of society rests in the hands of the employed," declared the speaker. "Progressive employers are giving as much consideration to their labor as they give to the purchase of materials and the details of their business." The speaker referred to the Good[illegible] Tire and Rubber Company's plan of industrial democracy, where the employees are directly connected with the management of the plant, and he commends this form of organization and effort.

AMENDS COMPLAINT.

[illegible] Changes Allegations in Suit Against Livingstons.

[illegible] W. Schultz of Pasadena, who recently won a suit for money due for services against his wife's relatives, Mathilda Livingston and her [illegible], filed an amended complaint in his $40,000 alienation suit yesterday. The amended complaint makes the allegation that the defendants attempted to persuade Mrs. [illegible] to accompany them to San [illegible].

Schultz was awarded $1807 in a suit for services recently tried before Judge Avery. Robert and Ben [illegible], named among the defendants, were involved in the alleged draft evasion.

[illegible] BRIDGE CONTRACT.

Specifications for the Anaheim bridge across the Pacific Electric tracks, near Gaffey street, [illegible], will be sent by the Board of Public Works to the City Council tomorrow, with the request for authorization to advertise for bids and award the contract. The bridge is provided for in plans for a public improvement on which the improvement district at [illegible] election authorized a bond issue.

INCORPORATION.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

Locally, the outstanding incident of the week was the resignation of the radical union-labor members of the municipal government—Francis Drake from the Fire Commission and Mrs. Frances Noel and Seth R. Brown from the board of mediation—and the declaration of the Central Council of Labor of its antagonism to Mayor Snyder's administration.

So far this administration is concerned, union labor proposes to let it get along as best it can, all by itself, so there! The Mayor should worry. My guess is that secretly Snyder is gleeful to be free from the incubus he hung about his neck when he tied up with union organizations—particularly when he appointed Francis Drake, ultra-radical unionist, as a member of the Fire Commission. The Boston incidents are altogether too near at hand for Los Angeles' citizens to relish having a Fire Commissioner who urges the firemen to maintain their union affiliations, and who says: "Damn them, they deserve to lose whatever they've gained if they surrender their charter."

Let us gladly forget that Drake ever was a member of the municipal commission.

Now comes the usual threat of a recall. Mayor Snyder is undergoing the fate that has befallen practically every city official of prominence since the iniquitous recall fad was adopted. The rumor is current that elements not affiliated with union labor, but opposed to Mayor Snyder, are willing to aid the recall movement with financial support, but this has not been substantiated. The recall movement will probably die a-bornin'.

Another Recall Experience.

Kern county has just been through the throes of a recall election, and the result is that H. C. Rambo is retained as County Supervisor by a vote of almost three to one.

The situation is summed up by the San Bernardino Sun:

"Really, we should think the original proponents of the recall—Doc Haynes, Senator Johnson and all the rest of them—would almost be ashamed of themselves. To have devised a political contraption that is rarely if ever used properly and is constantly used improperly is certainly an instance of a revolution that goes backward. Kern county furnishes the latest instance. A Supervisor voted to put liquor places out of existence in the country districts and unincorporated towns of his county. Result—the wets resorted to the recall, compelled the Supervisor to defend himself and fight for his office in a more or less expensive election which also tore up all of Kern county in general and one district in particular, and by an almost three-to-one vote the recall is defeated. The recall ought to be designated as a reactionary scheme by which sore politicians seek to get even. It has been used that way in California five times for every legitimate recall election that has ever been held."

Purcell's Ambitions.

Frank E Purcell, who was a candidate for the City Council at the last municipal election, and who polled 21,945 votes for this office, is to be a candidate for the State Assembly nomination in the Seventy-fifth Assembly District. Edward W. Baker is the present Assemblyman in this district, and he has aspirations for a seat in the State Senate from the Thirty-eighth Senatorial District.

Club Woman Candidate.

Miss Paula Dunnigan, prominent in women's club circles in Southern California, may shy her bonnet into the ring as a candidate for nomination for the Assembly from the Sixty-third District. Appearances indicate that Miss Dunnigan will be the candidate of the women's organizations, and that they will urge her to make the race.

Miss Dunnigan at present is the chairman of the history and landmarks section of the Federation of Women's Clubs and last year was chairman of legislation for the Los Angeles district. She is a clear thinker and has the faculty of expressing her thoughts in an incisive manner.

The League of Women Voters and other women's organizations are generally advocating a larger representation of women in the State Legislature, and it is said that the women who are now members will be supported for renomination.

Another Johnsonite.

Friends of Col. Ed Fletcher of San Diego are touting him as a prospective candidate for delegate to the National Republican Convention. Fletcher is a Johnsonite, and would undoubtedly be lined up for the nomination of Hiram for the Presidency.

It is proposed that the Republican County Central committees of Riverside, Imperial, San Diego and Orange counties each select three members to form a joint committee to represent their interests pertaining to the Republican campaign for 1920. It is understood the indorsement of this committee will be sought for the Fletcher candidacy.

Humphreys, Private Citizen.

William M. Humphreys, formerly a member of the Board of Public Works, and recently an appointee of Mayor Woodman on the City Civil Service Commission, is now a private citizen. A few days ago Humphreys undertook to resume his seat on the Civil Service Commission, which he had resigned—but which resignation he claims was never accepted. The commission and Mayor Snyder asked the City Attorney for a ruling as to whether Mr. Humphreys has a legal right to resume his place on the commission; but he has forestalled it by announcing that he will not undertake to resume his seat and will send a statement to this effect to the commission itself. The incident is closed.

Up-State Politics.

Whether Mayor Rolph shall be displaced by Eugene Schmitz, of unsavory memory, and Dist.-Atty. Fickert, who has made a fight for decency and order, shall be retired are the leading features in the San Francisco campaign now in progress. While Rolph is far from the ideal as Mayoralty material, there can be no hope of bettering conditions by accepting a Schmitz. Regarding the candidacy of Charles M. Fickert for re-election as District Attorney, the San Francisco Chronicle makes this terse statement:

"That Mr. Fickert may be relied on to do all in his power to maintain peace in this city is most conclusively proved by the intense hatred of him felt and furiously expressed by the red element, the near reds, and their sympathizers. Anything to beat Fickert is the motto of all who prefer the rule of the minority by intimidation and violence to the rule of the majority by law. And that opposition should elect him. It is not too much to say, since this issue is most directly raised in connection with this particular office, that upon the election or defeat of Mr. Fickert will depend the verdict of the country on the question of whether the people of this city prefer to live under statute law or mob law. And upon this verdict of the country on that particular subject depends in a very large measure the prosperity of San Francisco."

More from Arizona.

As the time draws near for the "love feast" of Arizona Democrats to take place during the State Fair week this month, further news drifts in as to folk who are in the "Barkis is willin'" class so far as State offices are concerned.

Harry Ross, State Treasurer, will not be a candidate again, it is said, but wants a place on the Corporation Commission, and Samuel F. Webb, Country Treasurer of Maricopa, is slated to be the successor of Ross. A. C. Peterson of Graham, who is Speaker of the House of Representatives and also president of the Latter Day Saints' Academy at Thatcher, is to be a candidate for State superintendent of schools, in opposition to C. O. Case, incumbent.

Prospective candidates for a new Federal judgeship are said to be Supreme Justice Henry D. Ross, former Supreme Justice Alfred Franklin, Superior Judge Frank Lyman of Maricopa county, and United States District Attorney Thomas Flynn.

THIRD RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Official Poster for the Red Cross Roll Call.

THIS IS RED CROSS ROLL SUNDAY.

Great Enrollment Movement Starts Today with Churches Selling Memberships; Prominent Business Men and Club Women Head Working Committees.

Today is Red Cross Roll Call Sunday and almost every church in the city is to set aside a part of its time for the selling of the $1 memberships to its congregation. Many of the prominent ministers have planned Red Cross services and have pledged their churches for a [illegible] per cent. enrollment in this American organization.

Beginning today a vigorous and enthusiastic campaign is announced for ten days ending with the celebration of armistice day, November 11. The call is for $1 enrollments, each one constituting a membership in the Red Cross for 1920, and it is announced that no other campaign for funds will be held by this organization for 1920. Headquarters for the campaign are at 942 South Main street.

Twenty million Americans enrolled in the Red Cross last year, and President Wilson, in a proclamation a few days ago, urged that Americans enroll [illegible]00,000 strong for 1920, and pro[illegible]at Americans be as strong [illegible] of peace as under the stress of war. The President called attention to the immense amount of work still remaining before the Red Cross, and pointed out that during the four months after the signing of the armistice the demands upon the Red Cross workers were greater than at any period during the actual war activities. The Red Cross workers are active in twenty-two foreign countries. Much of this work is being closed up as quickly as possible, but in many districts famine and the shortage of food and other supplies will demand the attention of the American Red Cross for a portion, at least of next year.

ACTIVE WORKERS.

No receipts will be given by the volunteer workers except a Red Cross 1920 button and a Red Cross window emblem. Your name when you enroll is turned in by the Red Cross workers to the headquarters and becomes a part of the records of the Los Angeles chapter.

Every citizen in Los Angeles is asked by Sylvester L. Weaver, chairman of the Red Cross roll call, to make it a personal matter during the next ten days to see that his or her membership enrollment is made and that of each one in the family.

Chairman Weaver has divided the roll call campaign into three divisions—the industrial division, under the chairmanship of James H. Hill; the neighborhood chapter division, under the chairmanship of Mrs. J. T. Anderson, and the business district division, under Chairman F. R. Feitshans.

In the industrial division well-known business men will act as vice-chairmen, each assuming the responsibility for the enrollment of 100 firms through ten supervisors, who will act as their committees. These vice-chairmen are: Paul Dietrich, Max Goldman, Will W. Knighten, J. L. Van Norman, Frank E. Walsh, Robert F. Bostwick, R. T. Burge, Ira W. Byrnes, J. C. Specht, John Blooser, O. W. Leonard, George C. Morris, C. C. C. Tatum, Roy C. Johnson, B. S. Young, Alfred J. Bayer, Frank C. Ayers, A. C. Denman, W. C. Lanigan, Alexander MacKeigan, E. E. Nott, L. S. Rounsaville, W. H. Daum, D. M. Mills, Harry C. Barnard, Harry Hill, Warren C. Kennedy, Arthur Leo, William Henry, Charles C. Garrison, F. W. Johnson, Samuel Kreider, C. E. Listenwalter, Harry Minor, Grove Ketcham, Carlos S. Hardy, Fred E. Subith, W. H. Holnholz, J. R. Coffman, M. B. Silberberg, A. J. Goldwater, J. A. H. Kerr, Alfred Wright, John P. Burke, Fred Ed Golding, Russell M. Lockwood and G. A. Axelson, who has charge of Founders' and Employers' Association.

Each employer has been designated a Red Cross worker by Chairman Weaver, and will be held personally responsible for the enrollment of each employee and executive in his establishment. He announced yesterday that 1260 firms had already pledged 200 enrollments in the Hall of Records.

PRECINCT WORKERS.

The precinct workers will be handled by the Neighborhood Chapter division, through Mrs. J. T. Anderson, chairman. The field secretaries who will have charge of the precinct work, appointed by Mrs. Anderson, are: Mrs. C. J. Golden, Mrs. E. J. Crawford, Mrs. Ellen French Aldrich, Mrs. J. M. Garrison, Mrs. Harriet Williams Myers, Mrs. Frank Shaw, Mrs. Margaret H. Smith, Mrs. M. E. Jenkins, Miss Nellie M. White, Mrs. Selina Dewey, Mrs. H. A. Barre, Miss Jessie Harper, Mrs. C. E. Brown, Miss Rose Mulholland, Mrs. Laura Garfield, Mrs. Ella Lee Piper, Mrs. Fannie B. Collins, Miss M. J. Labory, Mrs. R. J. Schmitz, Miss M. E. Elliott, Mrs. H. W. Sykes, Mrs. R. W. Wiley, Mrs. Carlos Hardy, E. E. Nott, A. Brandstatter, C. W. Sirch, R. H. Guire, J. H. Morrow, Albert H. Rowell, Mrs. Anna E. Young, Mrs. Arthur Kelsy, Evelyn R. Magnin, Miss Leslie Merrick, Mrs. William Farries, Mrs. Nathan Newby, Mrs. Ida Pigg, Mrs. Baker, Miss Wrekert, Mrs. John Mason, Mrs. W. W. Decker, Mrs. W. A. Brown, Mrs. Harry Pierce, Mrs. E. B. WOMEN'S CLUBS HELP.

Mrs. Anderson has enlisted the co-operation of the women's clubs and other organizations, who will take charge of active enrollment work in prominent districts downtown, as well as in the residence sections.

The Ebell Club announces that after opening its campaign at its Monday afternoon meeting at headquarters, it will take charge of booths at Brock & Co., the Ville de Paris, the Angelus Hotel, the Sun Drug Company, the Owl Drug Company, Van Nuys Hotel, the All Day and Night Bank, Hibernian Savings Bank, Los Angeles Trust and Savings Bank, Merchants' National Bank, Silverman's, Stillwater's Cafe, the B. and M. cafeteria, and other points.

The University Club will make its headquarters in the Brack-Shops, under the chairmanship of Mrs. A. M. Marsh. This club has planned a reception on the opening day.

The motion-picture stars will have headquarters at the Alexandria Hotel and promise daily attractions under the direction of Miss Gertrude Gifford, a motion-picture actress, appearing recently in Charles Ray's picture, "Back on the Farm." Prominent stars will sell enrollment blanks on different days, among them being Breezy Reeves Eason, producing the "Man Hunter," who will be at the Alexandria on the 3rd inst. Ely Stanton, Doris May and Enid Bennett, also Kathleen Kirkham, and Lillian Sylvester, who appeared in Charles Ray's last picture.

At the Bank of Italy in the Federal Building, the Cliff Dwellers' Club will take charge, under the chairmanship of Miss Elliott. The Council of Jewish Women has arranged a committee to be present at every performance at the Orpheum Theater and also at Seventh street and Broadway.

The Catholic Women's Club will hold open house during the entire campaign in the Higgins Building. The Wednesday Morning Club committee will be found every day at First and Broadway, while the Friday Morning Club has taken the First National Bank location.

The roll call booth at the Chamber of Commerce will be in charge of the Parent-Teachers' Association and Mrs. Charles F. Gray, who will preside, urges every member to assist.

WEAVER ASKS QUICK GIFTS.

Urging quick giving, Sylvester L. Weaver, chairman of the third Red Cross Roll Call, yesterday issued the following appeal for $1 memberships in the great mercy organization:

"Hundreds of volunteer men and women have worked for weeks making the plans for the Red Cross Roll Call, which opens today in all the churches as Red Cross Sunday, and lasts until Armistice Day, November 11

"It is the earnest hope of the American Red Cross that every resident of Los Angeles city and county become a member for 1920 in the American Red Cross, and this membership costs $1.

"Beginning tomorrow these $1 memberships will be on sale practically everywhere in the county. It is my hope that all citizens will make it easy for the volunteer workers by enrolling promptly and cheerfully. The sum is small and the need is great. Do not wait to be solicited. To give quickly is to give twice. Hunt up your precinct chairman or worker, or your city district or industrial committeeman, and encourage them by enrolling voluntarily. Energetic action on the part of every volunteer worker, man or woman, is needed to insure success. 'You have a heart—all you need is a dollar. Join the Red Cross Roll Call.'"

"C. G." writes: "If you know of anything that will cure dandruff, itching scalp and premature baldness please let me know what it is."

Answer: For several years I have prescribed plain yellow Minyol as superior to anything known for the treatment of diseased scalp. Get it in four-ounce jars with full directions. It quickly overcomes all diseases of hair and scalp and gives new vigor and intense natural color to the hair.

• • •

"Mildred" writes: "I am constantly embarrassed because of the fact of my extreme thinness. I have absolutely no color in my face and lips and I an dull and lifeless most of the time. Please advise me what to do."

Answer: If you are so thin and pale and your lips and cheeks are colorless it is because your blood is so deficient in red corpuscles. This can be easily overcome by the use or three-grain Hypo-Nuclane Tablets, which can be had from any druggist in sealed cartons with full directions for taking. When the blood is enriched by the use of these tablets your weight will increase.

• • •

"Edna" writes: "I suffer with rheumatism all the time and I shall be very glad if you can tell me something to relieve me."

Answer: This is my favorite remedy and from the number of letters received from people who have used it proves its value in rheumatism. The following is made by mixing well, taking a teaspoonful at meal times and again before retiring: Comp. essence Cardiol, 1 oz.; comp. fluid Balmwort, 1 oz.; syrup sarsaparilla comp., 5 ozs.; iodide of potassium, 2 drams; wine of colchicum, one-half ounce; sodium salicylate, 4 drams.

• • •

"Morris" asks: "I have suffered with a chronic cough for almost a year, and catch a fresh cold every few weeks. Nothing the doctor gives me helps, so I write to you."

Answer: You need a thorough laxative cough syrup, one that not only relieves, but surely drives it from the system. The following regularly used will oust any curable cough or cold promptly: Obtain a 2½ oz. bottle of essence Mentho-Laxene, mix it with a home-made sugar syrup or honey as per directions on bottle.

• • •

"Free Advice" writes: "I want your free advice. I seem to have gone all to pieces. I am irritated and annoyed by dizzy moments, fickle appetite, no strength and life has not pleasures for me any more."

Answer: There are thousands who live too fast, and then find themselves in your plight. The nervous vigor has been deranged. A tonic invigorating medicine called three-grain Cadomene Tablets will afford aid to Nature by supplying more food-energy and give your system a chance to recuperate, when calm nerves should take the place of shattered nerves.

• • •

"Sara C." writes: "I am constipated and have a greasy skin. Suffer from headache, indigestion and some kidney trouble. I wish you to recommend a remedy."

Answer: The best remedy to relieve and master chronic constipation is called three-grain Sulpherb Tablets made from sulphur, cream of tartar and herb medicines. Taken regularly the blood is purified, the bowels and liver stimulated into healthy action and health established. They are packed in sealed tubes with full directions. These tablets are splendid for children, as they do not gripe or sicken.—[Advertisement.]

THANK PASTOR FOR WAR WORK.

Testimonials are Received by Dr. Julius Lincoln.

Lutheran Lecturer Tells of Visit to Europe.

Went on Special Mission for Food Administration.

Dr. Julius Lincoln, pastor of the Swedish Angelican Lutheran Church, Seventeenth and Hope streets, has received testimonials from the United States Government Committee on Public Information, for his patriotic services during the war, which he prizes very highly. The testimonials, which are handsomely engrossed, read: "The United States Foood Administration to Dr. Julius Lincoln, in appreciation of efficient and patriotic service during the great war, 1917-1918. [Signed] Herbert Hoover, United States Food Administrator."

"Presented to Dr. Julius Lincoln in recognition of patriotic services for the United States during the period of its participation in the great war for universal democracy. The splendid morale of the people, upon which rested the success of the army and navy, was in no small measure due to the co-operation of American citizens of foreign birth.

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC INFORMATION

George Creel, chairman.

Robert Lansing, Secretary of State.

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War.

Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy.

Edgar Sisson, foreign section general director.

Carl Byoir, associate general director."

Dr. Lincoln, who is the vice-president of the California Lutheran Conference, and president of the Lutheran Hospital Society of Southern California, was selected by the United States Food Administration as one of six men to serve on a special overseas commission. These men were equipped with diplomatic passports and letters of introduction by the Secretary of State and Food Administrator Herbert Hoover, and started on their mission.

ANXIOUS VOYAGE.

This mission was to visit England, France and Belgium, and to acquire first-hand knowledge of actual conditions, with particular reference to food supplies.

After an anxious voyage, they landed in Liverpool, and immediately proceeded about their business. They were in conference with Lord Rhondda, Sir Arthur Lapp and others who were intrusted with food conservation in England.

In speaking of his experiences on this mission, Dr. Lincoln relates that on his second night in London an air raid took place. The commission of which he was a member was housed in rooms on the upper floors of the Savoy Hotel, and at 4 a.m. they were awakened by the furious ringing of the telephone bell and informed that an air raid was on and that the lobby on the ground floor was the safest place. The visitors obeyed the suggestion with alacrity and appeared in the lobby in all manner of dishabille. In about an hour the raid ceased and the signal of "All clear" was given.

Through the courtesy of the London police, the American delegation was given the unusual opportunity of viewing the damage wrought, and Dr. Lincoln declares the havoc was simply amazing.

The British government facilitated the journey across to France, and at Boulogne they were met by Maj. Norie of the British army and escorted to quarters in an old French chateau. The visitors' book contained the autographs of many men who are well known on both sides of the Atlantic.

VISIT BATTLEFIELDS.

From the chateau trips were made to various sections of the British front and to several battlefields, including Vimy Ridge, Ypres and the surrounding country. Of Ypres, Dr. Lincoln says he cannot imagine a more realistic picture of absolute destruction and desolation.

After visiting Peronne, in the heart of the devastated district, and Amiens, the commissioners went to Paris and established headquarters at the Hotel Crillon, where the American peace delegates afterward resided. They had interviews with Prime Minister Clemenceau, Joffre and others, and were entertained at luncheon by Ambassador Sharpe.

The French front and American headquarters were next visited. At Chaumont the commissioners lunched with Gen. Pershing and Gen. Harbord and studied the working of the different departments of the army. A taste of military life was given the civilians by assigning them to quarters and mess with the doughboys, an experience greatly enjoyed. A visit was made to the little cemetery at Bathelemont-les-Bauzemont, where the first Americans who fell in action were buried. While shells whistled overhead Dr. Lincoln offered a prayer.

The return to the United States was made via Boulogne and Liverpool and immediately after landing the six men were sent to different parts of the country to lecture. Dr. Lincoln covered the States of Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri and Ohio. At the conclusion of his work he returned to Los Angeles. At the time of the armistice he was with the Committee on Public Information.

To Have Curly, Wavy Hair Like "Nature's Own."

Women who have trouble keeping their hair in curl, or of securing the desired wavy effect—and especially those who realize the harm that the hot iron does to the hair—will do well to try plain liquid silmerine. In no other way can they acquire such pretty waves and curls, having all the appearance of "Nature's own." And the hair, instead of being singed, [illegible] or dead looking, has such a lively [illegible] and wholesome beauty.

This product is [illegible] perfectly harmless and there is nothing sticky, greasy or unpleasant about [illegible] will be quite manageable, [illegible] is done up.

VERMONT FOLKS FAVOR THE LEAGUE PACT.

By an unanimous vote, the Vermont Society of Los Angeles has adopted a resolution, addressed to Senator William P. Dillingham, of the Green Mountain State, asking him to use his influence in behalf of the League of Nations, without any unnecessary dilatory tactics.

This action was taken by local Vermont people after Senator Johnson had visited Burlington, to make an address against the covenant.

According to B. F. Bowman, the papers of Vermont are supporting men who favor the league covenant.

The resolution adopted by the Vermont Society follows:

Resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting, as we believe it is of an overwhelming majority of the voters of the State of California, that the League of Nations, as presented by President Wilson be accepted and ratified by the United States Senate, without dilatory tactics, and we most earnestly hope you will exert your great influence in its behalf and vote for the measure, which we believe vouchsafes the peace of this war-weary world for ages to come.

PLAN NEW LODGES.

Local Man Is Named to Extend Work of Sons of St. George.

In order to take care of the rapidly-increasing membership of the Sons of St. George, in this section of the State, J. D. Greene of the local lodge has been appointed Deputy District Grand President of the organization for the territory south of the Tehachepi. Mr. Green is one of the leading members of the order in the State, and his appointment by Grand President W. J. Stillwell of Sacramento was anticipated by local members.

Besides the Los Angeles chapter, Royal Oak Lodge No. 220, there are five other chapters in Southern California. At the convention held here recently it was decided to charter new chapters in other cities, and Mr. Greene has been chosen for this work.

PRAISE SYRIAN WORK.

Relief Organization is Indorsed by M. E. Church Conference.

At the Southern California annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, held recently in Santa Barbara, the following resolution was adopted unanimously:

"Be it resolved, that the Southern California annual conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church heartily indorses the work of the Armenian and Syrian Relief Committee in California, and pledges its support to that work, calling upon the respective churches of this conference to lend the work of the Armenian-Syrian Relief Committee every possible assistance, and to cooperate with the committee in every way."

BOOTH TACKLES CHINESE PRESS.

Article by Angeleno Run in Daily Tientsin Paper.

Quaint Sheet is Printed in English by Japanese.

News About Us Deals Mainly with American Army.

Willis H. Booth, Los Angeles banker, now traveling in the Orient, contributed the most important article to an issue of the China Advertiser, a daily newspaper published at Tientsin, China, copies of which were received here yesterday. The Advertiser of October 4 carries more than three columns written by Mr. Booth on "Credit—the World's Need."

This strange newspaper is printed in English, published and edited by Japanese, turned out by a Chinese printing and lithographing house, partly supported by advertisements in the French language and issued in a Chinese city not 100 miles from Peking.

Practically all the news of the United States and one feature article are devoted to our army, navy and diplomatic affairs. Under the heading, "Post-bellum American Army (translated from Osaka Asabi,") is carried a column of detailed information about the component parts of our military establishment as now reorganized. This article is "continued from yesterday," and evidently to be contingued tomorrow, since it ends in the middle of a sentence and even in the middle of a word. Of news items about American affairs, one is about the landing of our marines at Trogir, one about a naval appointment, one about the strength of our army, four about American diplomats' appointments and movements, and one about our trade relations with Europe.

MOSTLY JAPANESE.

Of the forty-five advertisers thirty-eight are Japanese, three are Chinese firms that are agents for Japanese business houses, two are of doubtful nationality and two frankly European. This is one of the most important foreign-concession cities in Northern China, located in the province of Chih-li, bordering on Shantung.

In many respects the paper is quaint. Articles run on from day to day, often breaking off and beginning again in the middle of a sentence or even of a word, as in the example cited above. The first page is devoted to advertisements, British style, while the make-up of the news columns is quite like that of French provincial papers. The single editorial is devoted to Chinese internal politics. There is no local news. The text in spots is freely strewn with the ideographs of Chinese writing. Four columns of a page for contributors (likes The Times' Trouble page) are devoted to an essay on wealthy men, by a Japanese, and a geographical account of the market cities of Shantung by a Chinese.

The latter item is accompanied by this naive note:

"The article below produced is contributed by Mr. Yeh, instructor on commercial course at the Commercial School of Tsinanfu. Although the piece lacks lucidity and thoroughness in the treatment of the subject, we give it a space in these columns, as it will give come idea of the various trade centers in Shantung.—Ed. C. A."

BY CALIFORNIAN.

Mr. Booth's article, fortunately, is preceded by no editor's note.

He discusses at some length the redistribution of wealth brought about by the war, showing how the United States has been greatly enriched and some other nations impoverished. After summarizing the assets of the chief nations of the Entente alliance, he declares: "It has been the good fortune, as well as the duty, of the United States in recent months to participate largely in the extension of credit to our allies, and we stand today as one of the two premier creditor nations. When peace has been definitely established, we will be called upon to continue that service by the extension of additional credits through private channels, with government co-operation and moral support. In the immediate future this is going to be our paramount duty, and afford us, as well, as great opportunities to help as did the war itself." This he follows with a review of the great resources of the United States.

OVERSEAS CLUB WILL HAVE HOUSEWARMING.

The opening of the new clubrooms of the Overseas Club, at 211 South Broadway, will be observed Tuesday evening, with a carnival and dance. Invitations have been extended to members of all British societies in the city to attend. Marshall Stimson will speak. Other features will be a chalk talk by Charles R. Macauley, cartoonist; recitations, Miss Doris Patterson; songs by Robert Meikle and Mrs. W. T. Webb, and selections by Tom Richards, Mrs. Herbert Wolskill, Ben Scovell and the Overseas Orchestra.

EVER WATCHED 'EM?

The Observer, with fascinated gaze, watched the fussy lady on the street car. She opened a handbag and took out a pocketbook, opened the pocketbook and took out a powder box, opened the powder box and took out a powder puff, reopened the hand bag, displaying a mirror, looked in the mirror and powdered her nose. Then she put back the powder puff, closing the powder box, put back the pocketbook, closing the hand bag. Then she felt the back of her head to see if her hair was intact.—[Columbus Dispatch.

"Very Nice Presents."

A Kansas City man received three very nice presents on his birthday early this week, a silk shirt, a pair of gloves and half a dozen pairs of silk hose. The shirt, given him by his wife, was size 15½—he wears 14½; the gloves, selected by his mother, were size 6—he wears 7¾; the socks, from his brother, were size 12—he wears 10. His employer, however, who has known him more intimately for several years, sent out a box of soft collars which fit him exactly.—[Kansas City Star.

COUNTY FARM BUREAU TO MEET WEDNESDAY.

ANNUAL SESSION ON BALDWIN RANCH EXPECTED TO DRAW AND INTEREST CROWD.

The board of directors of the Los Angeles County Farm Bureau announced yesterday that the annual farm bureau meeting, at which officers will be elected for the ensuing year, will be held next Wednesday at the Anita Baldwin Rancho, Arcadia, through the courtesy of Mrs. Baldwin and Supt. Taylor.

This in itself should prove a big drawing card, as this ranch is not open to the general public. Its beautiful setting and splendid live stock will be appreciated by farm bureau members all over the county.

The business session will be held in the forenoon, and followed by a basket luncheon, with coffee and doughnuts served by the home department. A splendid speaking programme has been provided for the afternoon. Supervisor Cogswell, first president of the organization, will appear on the programme. Prof. B. H. Crocheron, State leader of farm advisers, has been invited, and it is hoped that G. Harold Powell, general manager of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, and Carlyle Thorpe, manager of the Walnut Growers' Association, will talk.

Live-stock judging demonstrations, using the famous Baldwin stock, will be held later in the afternoon.

GIRLS HANDLE SAILS LIKE OLD SALTS.

The Starboard Watch Club of the Sailor's Haven, Charlestown, is a club of one hundred women from all parts of Boston. They dance with the seamen at the Saturday night dances, and help to entertain at the Thursday night concerts, and the Sunday evening socials.

For many years sail drill has formed a part of the Thursday night concert programmes, a lower yard and a topsail yard being rigged on the stage of the hall, and in the past the seamen have been called upon to "go aloft."

Recently Superintendent Stanton King of the Sailors' Haven, a sailor of the deepwater sailing ship days, has drilled six of the girls in the Starboard Watch Club in the handling of the sails. Every Thursday night these girls lay aloft, lay out on the topsail yard, loose the sail and lay into the top while the men masthead the yard with a rousing chanty led by Superintendent King. When the sail is clewed up and smothered in the bunt and leach lines, the girls leave the top and lay out on the yard and furl the sails.

The girls wear gymnasium suits, and are nimble as seasoned old salts while aloft. This sail drill will form part of the programme every Thursday night. The girls who "go aloft" are the Misses Josephine Tuttle, Flora Horne, Mary Salvi, Elorna Salvi, Edith Fraser and Kathline Maloney.—[Boston Transcript.

Power of Woman.

A New Jersey shipyard company pays a fine compliment to a woman by saying that it would cost the company ten thousand dollars if she were permitted to go through the plant while the men were at work. Her visit to the ship-yard would distract the attention of the men from their work to that amount. It is a perfectly plausible theory and one that every man can clearly understand.—[Washington Star.

"Gets-It" Peels Off Corns Painlessly

Off They Come Like Banana Skin, 2 or 3 Drops, That's All.

There's a murderous, painful way to get rid of corns, and then there is the peaceful, glorious "peel-it-off" "Gets-It" way. After you have tried "Gets-It" you will say "never again" to all other methods. This is because "Gets-It" is the only corn-remover on earth that makes corns peel off just like a banana skin. Two or three drops will do the work, without fussing or trouble. You apply it in 2 or 3 seconds. It dries immediately. "Gets-It" does the rest, without bandages, plasters, blood-bringing knives or razors. Get rid of that corn-pain at once, so that you can work and play without corn torture. Be sure to use "Gets-It." It never fails.

Thirsty Find Consolation Despite the Senate.

IT MAY BE DRY HERE, BUT KEEP YOUR RUBBERS ON.

Bootleggers and Barrel Houses Don't Seem to Have Heard that Senate Overrode President's Veto.

But, if you don't know where to look for the wholesale dealer or the barrel house, and you don't care to walk as far as the Plaza, and still you want a drink, and want it bad, just look up some friend who is a member of a downtown club. The more prominent the club the better your chance for a drink. With your friend clutched by the coat sleeve, walk up to the bar, where a gentleman in a white coat is shaking up ice cream soda and ginger ale. Slip a big hard dollar on the boards and whisper. The white-coated gentleman won't blink an eye, but he will grab the money and in a little while you will get a glass of "ginger ale." Don't say a word, just fall into a clinch with that glass and throw it into you, because what you have is whisky.

And now comes the walking barroom in the downtown office district. He's got a big red nose and everybody knows him as "Blinky Ben." In his hip pockets are two quarts of good bonded whisky. In his trouser pockets is a quantity of small change. In his side coat pockets can be found four little whisky glasses and a small silver ash tray. In Blinky's inside coat pocket is a nice clean napkin. He works only in the office buildings. His price is two bits a drink and he only serves his regular trade. If you know a friend with offices in a downtown building drop in during the morning and take a seat and stay there. Unannounced Blinky walks in. He shuts the door and locks it and with a flourish pulls out his tray, the glasses and the booze. He pours the drink, collects his money, washes up the glasses and goes his way. Everybody is in on it, and nobody can squeal.

And now comes Venice-by-the-sea. If Los Angeles is wet, Venice is dripping. You will have to take a rubber coat and wear your high boots to wade through. Drug stores, soda-water stands, cafes, lunch counters and even the hot-dog men know where you can get a drink. And, if you don't want to walk out of the street car station, why just stand around there and look thirsty, and half a dozen well-dressed young men will step up to you and ask you if a drink will help any. But in Venice it costs money, a straight $5 a pint; no less, no more.

Walk into a cafe and check your hat and coat and choose a table. Order several bottles of ginger ale and a sandwich to show your good faith. When the waiter brings your order, pluck him by the sleeve and pull his head down to your mouth. Whisper to him that you want a little whisky and want it bad. Show him a roll of bills and slip him four bits. Then sit back and eat your rubber sandwich and drink your ginger ale as if you liked it, and don't take your eye off of that waiter.

And right at this point comes the heavy work, and if you don't keep a weather eye open you will miss the play. Your waiter is very busy. He circulates around from table to table and ends up at the cloakroom. He whispers to the hat boy and moves away. A second boy rushes from the cafe, and you see no more until the waiter standing near the checkroom gives you a high sign. With your money in hand, you then wander across to the hat room and grab a package that is thrust in your face. You hand out your money and the booze is yours.

So if you want a drink of whisky, beer or wine, don't worry, but start right out with your money in one hand and your nerve in the other. Try to look thirsty and ask a few questions. The booze is with us, and from what we learn it's going to be sold.

SAN FRANCISCO VS. PROHIBITION

been loafing about in the offing now draws nigh, takes a flat flask from a side pocket of his coat and pours something reddish into the whisky glasses. Then he is on his way. The whisky is in front of you on the bar. You drink (without lingering too long over the job, it is true,) and pay 20 cents a glass. The bartender puts the money in the till, with a merry tinkle of the well-known cash-register bell, and the thing is done.

BOOTLEG "IN BOND."

If you yearn for adventure, you may go out and pursue the bootleger to his lair. It is not difficult. But be prepared, before you start, to get the worst end of a bad bargain.

The San Francisco bootlegger specializes in "bonded" goods—presumably the real old stuff that put the "tuck" in Kentucky. But some of the liquids they sell will certainly put several unexpected tucks in the unwary customer—tucks in his pocketbook, his stomach and his opinion of his own shrewdness.

At various of the downtown hotels the bellboys will sell bonded goods to guests with liberal natures. The bottle will bear a well-known brand and a government seal, proclaiming the contents to be six or seven years old, perhaps. The seal has not been broken. There is also the customary warning notice, that a heavy fine and imprisonment are the penalty for reusing the bottle "for the purpose of containing distilled spirits, without removing and destroying the stamp affixed to this bottle."

The whisky guarded thus by government stamp and notice is presumably genuine. It costs enough—$12 a quart. Unless the customer is a connoisseur, however, he is likely to harbor doubts he cannot dispel without calling on expert opinion—doubts that the whisky is six years old, that it ever saw a bonded warehouse, and even that it is whisky at all. These doubts are heightened by various stories in circulation, that bootleggers are monkeying with government labels.

There is a belief, so general that some foundation of fact must exist, that the true San Francisco rum hound has his regular "run," and buys liquor as easily as milady shops for gloves or a paper of pins. But how is a stranger in town, who feels that his enjoyment of San Francisco would be greatly enhanced by a pint of something—how is such a stranger to find the pint unless he submits to robbery by a bellboy?

It is only a matter of patience. Let's go out and hunt around a little. You see a garish cabaret sign. Let's go in. The "shimmy" as danced here in "The Midnight Follies," is worth the price of what you have to drink while you negotiate for something more joyous. You are told that gents who quaff highballs bring in their own bottled goods. You may think what you please about the variety of the assertion, but you see plainly that it is small beer for you. So you timidly inquire how an honest fellow can meet a first-class bootlegger. You learn that "you just run into them."

So you go out and run into a lot of likely looking places and finally collide with the whisky, right on the outskirts of the once hectic and now cheerless Barbary Coast. You drop into a cafe. A frayed-looking young woman asks you to dance. You say you have two cork legs and intimate that you are expiring because of the alcohol-starved condition of your system. The young woman holds converse with a waiter, who examines you out of the corner of his eye. A few minutes later the young woman passes your table.

"It'll cost you a heap," she says.

Quick as a flash she produces a flask from a portion of her clothing rather remote from where her bootleg would be, if she only wore boots. You crowd the flask into your pocket. From there you transfer it directly to the table in front of you. For you have technically "brought along your own," and you may drink highballs so all the world may see.

"CORKAGE."

The San Francisco law concerning drinkables in restaurants contains a very accommodating clause. Proprietors of eating places may store the private stock of patrons. Friend patron comes in to dine and orders a bottle of his own goods. He is charged "corkage." All well and good. It is legal.

But it is an open secret that in some restaurants in San Francisco a patron may be astonished by an odd discovery. He may suddenly learn that he has wine, or cocktails, or what not stored in the cellars of that very restaurant. That is pleasant, to say the least. And it is quite within the law for him to drink his own. Nobody can raise any objection.

So, at least some of those restaurants that have made San Francisco famous as the city of high living are still emporiums of cheer. There are still attractions for the late crowds at some places along the beach. San Francisco does not yet go to bed at 9 p.m. and the most advanced legislator in that city has not bethought himself of a curfew law.

Statistics show that the average number of arrests for drunkenness has greatly decreased in San Francisco since war-time prohibition went into effect. But the reasons are complex. Some men who drank mildly during "wet" days now drink nothing at all, for the sole reason that the cost of hard liquor is too great. Other men do not care for the air of stealth with which the traffic is surrounded. Polite drinking is certainly passe. The very poor man can no longer afford public drinking; if he is an addict he falls back on home brew, with fancy variations to give his product "the kick."

But, for all that, it would seem that the San Francisco saloon men who sell whisky find it profitable. One proprietor, who got too bold and was arrested, is quoted as saying he made more money selling illicitly at 25 cents a drink to a hand-picked coterie of customers than he had made in the old days of lawful selling at 15 cents a drink. He sells less by volume. But it is cheaper stuff, with more water in it, and vended for a fancy price.

They believe the country is dry to stay dry. There is an admitted shortage of real whisky. It will never be any cheaper; the price is scheduled to advanced by from $2 to $3 a quart November 1. So it is a case of getting all that can be got, while the getting is good.

And in San Francisco they are getting it.

SAN FRANCISCO DRINK PRICES.

What Things with a Kick Cost in the Gay City by the Golden Gate.

Prices charged for alcoholic drinks in San Francisco these prohibition days are not remarkably higher than the charges to which Americans in all "wet" territory became accustomed during war days. Here is what some cheering beverages cost:

Nippy beer (legally non-intoxicating,) 10 to 15 cents a glass in saloons; 25 cents or more per pint in restaurants; 40 cents or more a pint in cabarets.

Whisky, 20 to 25 cents a short drink in saloons; $10 to $12 a quart from the bellboy; same price from a Barbary Coast bootlegger.

Wines, cocktails, liqueurs, substantially the same prices as at the end of the wet era of American history.

BRINGING NEW PRESSURE TO RETAIN ARMY DEPOT.

Despite the Quartermaster's Refusal to Cancel Closing Order, Leaders Here Hope to Gain Point.

Secretary Wiggins of the Chamber of Commerce has received the following telegram from Congressman Osborne in regard to the progress being made by the Washington representatives of California to obtain nullification of the order closing the local quartermaster depot:

"Your wire received regarding the quartermaster branch at Los Angeles. Will take the quartermaster depot matter up, but with the handicap of a flat refusal already made to Senator Phelan and myself by the Quartermaster-General. Will request them to reopen the subject. What new arguments can you suggest."

The Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association has also wired Representatives Randall and Osborne as follows:

"The business interests of Los Angeles will appreciate your effort with the War Department to secure revocation of the order abandoning the quartermaster's depot here. Eleven camps are now served from this depot, six of which are permanent camps. One-half million dollars monthly should be volume enough for sufficient depot as against 500 miles haul if transferred."

STILL HOPE.

Although Quartermaster-General Rogers has flatly refused to reconsider his decision to close the local depot, both Secretary Wiggins and I. H. Rice, president of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, feel assured that the matter can be brought to his attention again for favorable reconsideration, if the business men of Los Angeles will continue to give their support to these organizations, as they have in the past.

The importance to the business interests of Southern California of keeping this office open is illustrated daily by the offers of large contracts at the local depot. Bids have been requested by the Los Angeles office for four more large contracts, all of which are being offered exclusively to merchants and manufacturers in this zone. These requests call for 4248 cans of raisins, 500,000 pounds of granulated sugar, 100,000 pounds of flour and a variety of articles of subsistence, such as evaporated apricots, shredded cocoanut, assorted crackers, jam and rolled oats. Since San Francisco merchants are also offered the opportunity to bid for these contracts, it is hoped that merchants and manufacturers of Southern California will enter into active competition with the northern merchants to obtain the awards, for the money involved amounts to many thousands of dollars.

LARGE CONTRACT.

The Riverside-Portland Cement Company at Colton is filling a large contract for the government. This contract calls for 53,000 barrels of bin-tested Portland cement, at $2.60 per barrel. Of this contract, there has been shipped to date something more than 41,000 barrels and payments for this cement have been made through the local office of the quartermaster. Approximately $105,000 has been paid to the company and shipment is being made through the port of Los Angeles. This contract was made by the construction division at Washington, D. C., and a copy of the contract was sent to the local depot, which was instructed to attend to the inspection and shipment of the cement. Shipments will be made at the rate of about 10,000 barrels per month until the contract is completed.

It was also pointed out yesterday that the business of the local quartermaster's depot and its value to Los Angeles will be greatly increased if the present proposal to establish a direct steamship service between the Philippine Islands and Los Angeles is carried into effect, for if this service is established, the military supplies for the camps and posts of the Philippine Islands will pass through the port of Los Angeles.

SERVICE ASKED.

The Philippine government has requested the establishment of a seventeen-day service between the Pacific Coast and the Philippine Islands. Both San Francisco and Seattle have made tentative proposals to give this service, but the steamship companies which operate from those ports state they cannot change their routes and that Manila must remain their last port of call. The Los Angeles Pacific Navigation Company, however, has announced it is prepared to give this service, provided the government will allocate to the company two Shipping Board vessels which are fast enough to make the trip in seventeen days.

If the request of the company is granted, as seems probable, direct service will be established between Los Angeles and the Philippine Islands, and the supplies for American troops in the Philippines will pass through the port of Los Angeles, increasing the necessity for a branch of the quartermaster's department in this city.

A plea for cast-off clothing, shoes and underwear for suffering families in Czecho-Slovakia was made yesterday by local Czecho-Slovak societies. In the years of war there has been great suffering. Now winter is coming and the people need many things.

RECORD OF PROGRESS.

Sun Drug Company Issues Bright Anniversary Magazine.

The eighteenth anniversary of the Sun Drug Company, owned and managed by Los Angeles men, is signalized in the October issue of the house-paper, the Sun Dial, just off the press. It is a handsome magazine of thirty-two pages, containing an inspiring record of the progress the company has achieved since it was founded in 1901.

There is a "birthday message" from President I. Eisner, besides a brief history of the company and personal sketches of the men who built it up and of those now at the helm in the central organization and at the fourteen stores.

Great growth in the company's affairs at a rate not hitherto achieved, is predicted under the caption, "What of the Future?"

March of Progress.

"Does it make any difference how the holes in these porus plasters are arranged?"

"Guess not," replied the druggist. "Why?"

MORE RECRUITS, NAVY OFFICER'S LAST CALL.

Head of Local Bureau Tells What the Service Offers for Travel and Educational Advantages.

More recruits for the navy!

Los Angeles already has given more than any other district in the Western Division, but Lieutenant-Commander Harris, head of the local recruiting bureau, does not want this city to rest on its laurels. Lieutenant-Commander Harris goes on the retired list on November 10, but before he leaves his post here he has resolved to boost the local station a couple of notches higher on the recruiting ladder.

But why join the navy?

A penniless youth sits on a bench in the park, his hands thrust deep in his empty pockets. He has no home; he has no family, yet he wants to see the world. Why should he join the navy?

Another young man walks up and down the streets all day long, peering into the faces of strangers who glance at his threadbare clothes and pass on. He wants to learn a trade, but he has not the means. Why should he join the navy?

In a comfortable home the parents are trying to decide what to do for their son. They want him to have a good education, yet they do not care to send him to college. They want him to travel and learn the ways of the world. But, above all, they want him to become a real man, a muscular man with a good education. Why should he join the navy?

TO SEE THE WORLD.

Lieutenant-Commander Harris could tell them that the navy offers the best chance to see the world. Things are happening affecting governments and peoples and now is the time to travel and see these history-making changes. The business future of the country is dependent on trade with foreign nations. The navy equips men to fill an important place in this development. Travel is the greatest force for education in the world. The navy offers this free to young men, and adds to it a course of study, with competent instructors and free text-books.

Last September 168 navy ships were in foreign ports.

At Beirut, in Asia Minor, American sailors were sunning themselves in a tropical sun, smoking water pipes and striving for bargains in the bazaars.

To the crew of the armored cruiser Pittsburgh the canals of Venice and the Doge's Palace were the high spots of their daily life.

SOME AT ARCHANGEL.

Way up north at Archangel, twenty American mine sweepers and thirty-four submarine chasers were keeping an eye on the Bolshevists.

In the Baltic three American destroyers were stationed.

Before the cliffs of Gibraltar floats the Wachusett. In the mix-up at Constantinople, where everything is unsettled, the Galveston has the American flag hoisted.

Three torpedo craft remain at anchor at Spalato, where their presence is backing up American diplomacy in that turbulent quarter.

Standing by at Vladivostok is the New Orleans, and the Woosung River, off Shanghai, the Wilmington remains at anchor, and at Hongkong the junks of the river pass in endless procession before the Helena.

In the West Indies are American ships. Submarine chasers are at Haiti and San Domingo. Away up in Alaska the men of the Vicksburg and Saturn are keeping cool with the glaciers and fishing over the side.

Six submarines and a tender loaf about the Hawaiian Islands, watching the hula hula.

Down in Mexico, before the oil wells on the Panuca River, the Topeka and Cheyenne are enforcing respect for the American flag.

SEEING CENTRAL AMERICA.

The ports of Central America are full of American ships; in Salvador is the Chicago, and in the Honduras are the Denver and Brutus.

The Brooklyn is on its way from the Philippines to Hong-kong, and the South Dakota is headed toward the Far East.

Nor is travel the only pleasure in the navy. Navy men have good food. The admiral gets his beef from the same quarter served to the men. All food is rigidly inspected and only the best allowed aboard a ship. The cooking is done by experts. The navy has training schools for cooks, and only men well qualified are allowed to help in preparing the food. Meals are served hot, and in big plates with old-fashioned home helpings. And you can ask for more.

On many of the larger ships the unpleasant kitchen tasks are now done by electricity. There are electric potato pealers, dough mixers, cake mixers, butter cutters and meat grinders. Dishwashing is done by electricity. All baking is done by electric heat. The ice machine is run by motors. The ship's tailor uses electric irons. As a doughboy, visiting one of the battleships, remarked recently, "All the ship's K. P. does is to sit in a chair and push buttons."

Quarters in the navy are dry, well heated and well ventilated. Reading-rooms and libraries are provided aboard ship. Motion pictures, athletics and music are a part of the daily programme. Plenty of warm blankets are provided and no sailor is ever without a comfortable place to sleep. In the ship's canteen smokes and candy can be bought at cost price.

ALL LEARN TRADES.

Training schools are operated by the navy, where men are taught good trades. A man is always placed where his talent can be perfected. Sea fighting does not alone mean pointing and shooting guns. Sea service demands the employment of many trades, and in a way every ship is a place where trade, industry and business ability are developed. On board ship men are always learning. They are given every variety of work in each trade.

Sailors are promoted according to their ability if they take advantage of the opportunities freely offered to them. There is no place in the world where a man is so quickly sized up as in the navy. There is always room at the top and the ambitious fellow keeps climbing. Every year there are 100 vacancies in the Naval Academy for enlisted men who have served one year and who are under 20 years of age.

A recruit may join for two, three or four years, as he chooses. He must be from 17 to 35 years old, not under sixty-two inches in height and not under 110 pounds in weight.

The recruit starts in at $32.60 a month. Some men, not officers, draw $120 or better. Board, lodging and medical attendance are provided free by the government.

A complete outfit of clothing such as uniforms, socks, shoes and underwear, is given free to the recruit.

LOTS OF SHORE LEAVE.

It is the policy of the navy to not send ships to port where liberties ashore cannot be granted. Men are permitted to go ashore after the day's work is done. Two-thirds of the time after working hours is given to shore liberty if the ship is in port. Thirty days furlough, on pay, are granted to men every year.

Work and play in the navy is on a fifty-fifty basis. In leisure hours the men find amusement in music, motion pictures, boxing, wrestling, baseball, football, swimming and fishing.

The navy retirement laws provide that after thirty years' service a man can retire with three-fourths pay and allowances for life. This means $100 a month or more per month for a man 50 years old who enters the navy at 20 years of age.

A man also can transfer to the fleet reserve with one-third of his highest pay after twenty years of service.

The opening of the new LOWER MAIN FLOOR will enable us to greatly improve the service and to provide additional facilities for the comfort and convenience of our patrons. This department will be a complete Footwear Shop in itself featuring Women's Shoes and Hosiery, and the entire Men's Department is moved to a separate club-like section on this floor.

NEED MERCHANTMEN, TOO.

This is the best port on the Pacific Coast for recruits for the merchant marine, according to W. A. Doyle, paymaster on the Shipping Board training ship Iris now in port here.

Yesterday twenty-four recruits were signed up here after the Iris arrived from San Diego. It is expected that about fifty will be taken aboard here on the present cruise. A permanent recruiting station has been established in the Title Insurance and Trust Building in charge of Miss Helen Walker, the only girl recruiting officer on the Pacific Coast. An office has also been established at the store of the Beacon Drug Company, at San Pedro.

Yesterday's record here was better than that made in any one day at San Francisco. Men taken from this port on previous visits have made fine records, according to Mr. Doyle, and graduated from the apprenticeship courses to positions of responsibility on Shipping Board steamers now plying all over the world.

Enlistments are for one year and after six weeks to two months training on the Iris recruits are transferred to a land station at San Francisco until assigned to merchant ships in the deck and engineer's departments graduates from the Iris receive $90 per month and board and lodging. In the steward's department they received from $70 up.

The Iris is in command of Capt. James McAvoy. Those in the engineer's department are given instruction under Chief Engineer E. F. Reilly, while G. E. Dorn, the executive officer, instructs those in the deck department. The stewards are trained under Chief Steward A. E. Olives.

It is proposed to arrange a regular sailing schedule for the Iris the triangular route including San Francisco, Honolulu and San Pedro. This schedule is only tentative, but in any event the Iris will make regular calls for recruits here.

ROW OVER FLIVVER.

Wife Says Husband Struck Her for Objecting to Purchase.

Seven months after the marriage of John R. Moore and Lonita Moore, they had a dispute over whether Mr. Moore should buy an automobile with a three months' allotment he had received for army service.

"I did not think he could afford a flivver," Mrs. Moore told him, she testified in her divorce suit before Judge Taft yesterday.

Mr. Moore struck her, she said, and they separated. Before deciding the case, Judge Taft will call the husband.

Attorney-General not Thinking of Los Angeles When He Reported Lower Living Costs; We're Still Below Average, but Climbing Without Pause.

Atty-Gen. Palmer made a mistake the other day. He said in a speech in Philadelphia that the cost of living had dropped 25 per cent. He was mistaken in the fact that the cost had dropped but his biggest mistake was the fact that he made such a statement. It has created a bit of excitement. Everybody has jumped up to deny it. Chicago, Pittsburgh, Denver, San Francisco, all say that there is something wrong somewhere. The cost of living may have dropped but not with enough noise to be heard in any of these cities.

No matter what the conditions are in other parts of the country, nearly everyone is satisfied that Mr. Palmer was not thinking of Los Angeles when he made his statement. There has been no downward trend here, dealers say. Prices on foodstuffs are going higher all the time and seem reluctant to even hesitate, much less pause and begin to descend.

Following are new retail prices made yesterday and as given out by the Sam Seelig Grocery Company:

Milk, 16 cents per quart. Rise of 2 cents.

Sugar, 12½ cents per pound. Rise of 1 cent.

Whipping cream, 40 cents per half pint. Rise of 10 cents.

Buttermilk, 10 cents per quart. Rise of 1 cent.

WHAT CHECK SHOWS.

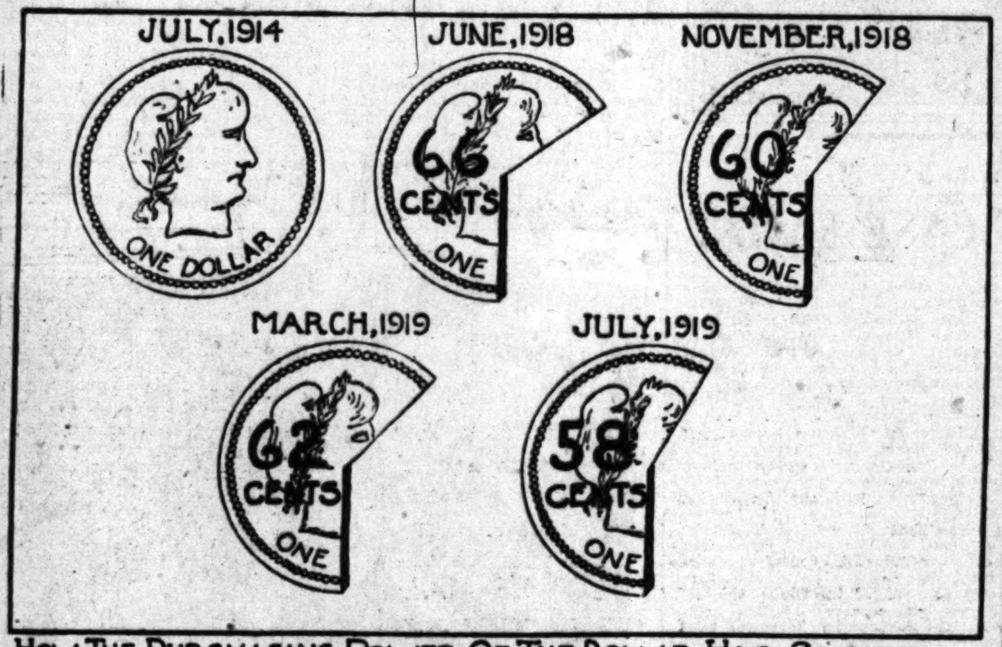
SHIPYARDS TO RESUME WORK AS OPEN SHOP.

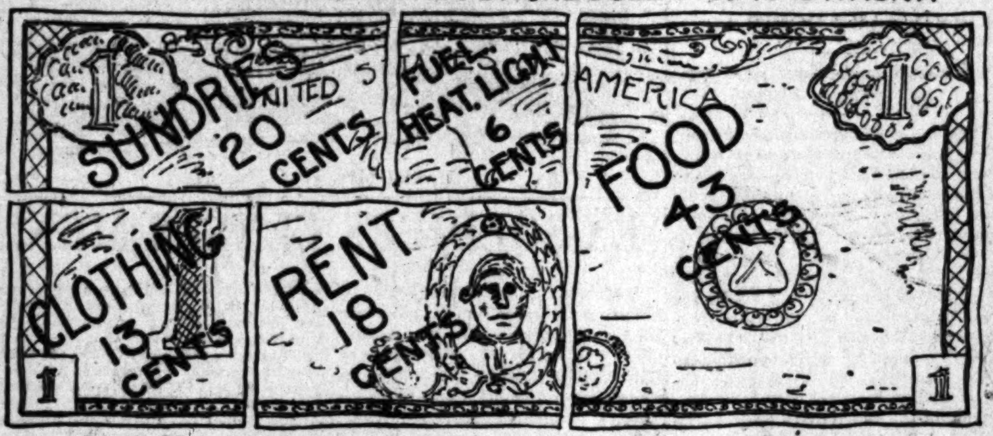
The plant of the Southwestern Shipbuilding Company at East San Pedro will resume operations a week from tomorrow morning and, according to a statement yesterday by an official of the company, it will be conducted on strictly open-shop principles.

The company closed its plant October 1, last, following an effort on the part of labor unions to force the company to sign an agreement recognizing the unions and yielding to closed-shop dictation.

When work was stopped about 4000 men were employed. The decision to resume work was largely influenced by the large number of requests from employees and from other men seeking employment. Applications for work will be received at the company's employment office at East San Pedro beginning tomorrow morning. Officials of the company expect to start work with a good-sized force of men and to reach normal capacity in a short time.



HOW THE PURCHASING POWER OF THE DOLLAR HAS SHRUNK—



HOW THE AVERAGE AMERICAN SPENDS HIS DOLLAR

Diagrams by National Industries Conference Board.

No one knows where the Attorney-General got his information but it is certain that he did not get it here. The cost of living is lower in Los Angeles than in any other section of the country, but it is not low enough yet for the average family.

THESE ARE OUTSIDERS.

There are a few articles that have gone down. One of them interests very few families in America. Beans, the mainstay of the army, have dropped from the aristocratic class to the plebeian. They have come down from 16 cents to the contemptuous level of one dime per pound. And nobody wants them. They had 'em in the army and they had 'em in the navy and they had 'em in the Marine Corps, and as nearly every fighter was in one of these branches, there is a goodly share of our population that does not say "beans," when mother asks them what they want for supper.

The other articles that have fallen from the heights are meat products. Lard, which once cost the consumer 45 cents, is now 35 cents. Compound is down from 37 cents in its better days to 30 cents now. Some remember when it sold "two pounds for 25 cents." Cheese is down 10 cents. It once cost 50 cents, but large quantities can now be obtained at 40 cents, which is about 15 cents more than it brought back in "the good old days."

Boiled ham, which was once 40 cents and from there went up to 70 cents, can now be cut and wrapped for 60 cents. Smoked ham has come down to 50 cents from the reasonable price of 60. But that is all. Other commodities may have come down but the public has not yet heard.

Grocers received a shock recently when it was announced that shortening was coming down. It did. It came down for a short time only. This is the variety made with vegetable oils and not beef fats. When the smoke from the descending grease had cleared away it was found the manufacturers had issued bulletins that the price had fallen. It was sold cheap and every one thought that conditions were actually better. And then the price began to go up again.

Inquiry was made and it was found that it was time for the manufacturers to buy the raw oil for the season. They had sent the price of the finished product down, and in this way lowered the price of the raw material. Then, after everything was quiet again and the winter's supply was in, the price once more began to ascend.

SUGAR A MEMORY.

Sugar has been talked to death. It is not mentioned any more because it is useless. Remember when you would order twenty pounds for $1 with your Saturday order. At the same time you would order a pound of that good 32-cent butter and a dozen 28-cent eggs, and if your bill exceeded $4 for everything, including flour, you began to figure how to run the house on a little less.

A great many articles have not increased in price, but have decreased in size. Macaroni that used to feel proud of the fact that it was in the class that cost 10 cents for sixteen ounces, now boasts that you can get only eight ounces for the same money. And the merry whirl goes on. If they don't raise the price they cut the quantity. They get you going or coming, and sometimes both ways.

No one is disputing Mr. Palmer's word. He may be right. Food may have dropped 25 per cent. The only thing the people ask is: "Where?" Should this Utopia be made known, there is no doubt but what there would be a general exodus to that place.

TOOK LYSOL, BUT HIS RECOVERY WAS QUICK.

WIFE SEEKING DIVORCE SAYS HUSBAND'S FAKE SUICIDE FOLLOWED QUARREL.

Mrs. Berry was denied a decree of divorce from Kenneth D. Berry in Judge Taft's court yesterday after the trial developed the story of a fake suicide, a disturbed dinner party and a mother-in-law siding against her daughter.

Mrs. Berry said she gave a dinner party and that Mr. Berry dozed in a chair in a corner, pretending he was asleep. Later he told the guests they had better go home, as he had to get up early.

She said she apologized to her guests and Mr. Berry created a disturbance.

Mr. Berry, Mrs. Berry testified, then took a bottle of lysol into the bathroom.

"I heard the bottle drop in the bathtub. He came out and kissed me and said 'Good-by.' I smelled the lysol on his breath. Then he laid down on the bed and, unable to stand it longer, I called in neighbors. Then my husband got up and walked into another room," she said.

As to the mother-in-law incident, Mrs. Berry said her husband complained to her mother, and the latter said:

"You two have fought long enough; you had better go," directing her remark to Mrs. Berry. Mrs. Berry went.

FOR HARBOR WORK.

Agreement With City for Funds for Dredging Reached.

A request that the City Council lend $25,000 for construction of the bulkhead in the West Basin district, required to catch and hold the dredgings from channel work, was authorized by the Board of Harbor Commissioners at yesterday's meeting. Some days ago an agreement was reached with the Finance Committee of the Council for this loan.

The dredging of the channels will permit the big tankers of the Standard Oil Company to reach their wharves and will largely increase the volume of oil shipments. It is said that revenues from this source will be doubled as soon as the dredging is completed.

It is hoped that, through co-operation with the hotels and apartment-houses, no unusual difficulty will be experienced this winter in finding lodgings for all visitors in the city. Indications all point to heavy travel to Los Angeles.

Truck Transport Men Ask for Guidance by California.

California's motor-truck transportation is used as a guide for many States of the Union, according to a telegram received yesterday by F. D. Howell of the California Highway Transportation Association, 412 Chamber of Commerce Building, from C. W. Reid, manager of the transportation bureau, Federal Highway Council, Washington, D. C. The message announces that representative highway transport authorities will meet in the national capital for a conference the 11th inst., and asks for a letter, giving California's experience and methods of handling truck transport.

"Anxious to discuss this question in detail," says the wire, "as many States are following California's example. Any information based on the experience of California operation will be greatly appreciated."

SAYS HUBBY IS THIEF.

Wife Charges Household Furniture Was Stolen by Husband.

Whether George W. Young or Mary J. Young, his wife, owns the furniture said to have been stolen from her residence at 771 East Thirty-ninth street was the point raised yesterday at the husband's hearing before Justice Hanby on a charge of stealing the furniture.

Mrs. Young, the complaining witness, testified that some person called her on the telephone and made an appointment at a local hotel. While she was there, she alleges, someone removed furniture valued at $275. She claims her husband removed the articles through a window and had them hauled away in a dray. The case will be concluded tomorrow.

TO STRAIGHTEN RIVER CHANNEL.

Santa Ynez Ranchers to Get Back Rich Floor Land.

To Eliminate Stream Bends by Cutting New Bed.

Thousands of Fertile Acres may Thus be Redeemed.

How Lompoc Valley Plans to Harness Its Floods.

Ditch and Piling to Control the Santa Ynez River.

Plans to redeem rich bottom lands in the Lompoc Valley and along the full length of the Santa Ynez River and to curb the river's winter floods are being made by big ranching interests of Santa Barbara county.

The Santa Ynez River represents as fine a sample of a California water drainage system run wild as the country affords. Many attempts have been made to check the floods along the course of the river, and these have in many instances proved successful. The plans now suggested, however, involve extensive engineering.

The Santa Ynez traverses rich alluvial lands, and the floods have described a serpentine course in their progress to the sea for many years. A slight sand bar forming in the channel is sufficient to start the river pouring its flood through a new course, where it often cuts through rich soils, proceeding onward until rocks or other hard substances turn it back to its original channel, to get to which it sometimes eats away a large acreage.

After an investigation by engineers it was decided that by dredging out a broad channel straight across the loops taken by the runaway river, driving piling on the upper side of the ditch and then stringing barbed wire along the piling, the stream could be kept to the ditch, and free the acres in its loop districts.

USE DYKE SYSTEM.

This method of controlling the floods has been found to be highly successful, and now it is proposed to carry out a system of these dykes the full length of the river, eventually imprisoning the floods in a straight channel, and redeeming thousands of acres of the most fertile lands in the State.

To make the campaign a success every acre along the stream and on either side must be included, and it is this scheme that is now being worked out. County Surveyor O'Neill states that though the enterprise involves a gigantic task, it can be made a success only by the co-operation of the land owners. Maj. H. H. McGregor, a United States army engineer, is interested, and regards the plan as feasible. The plan is being successfully applied in some sections of the river already. These sections where the lands have been redeemed are now some of the most valuable sugar-beet sections in the county. The dykes are said to protect the redeemed lands from further change by floods.

SEE LAND DISAPPEAR.

In storm seasons of the past ranchers have seen many acres of valuable soil suddenly disappear downstream. In the years to come, when the plan to control the runaway river has been successful, the rancher will see these floods roll harmlessly between dykes and empty into the sea at Surf, without having scoured against any of the lands along the course of the river. Interest is being aroused in the venture, and it is said that the works already completed through the efforts of the Union Sugar Company have been visited by many engineers, all eager to see what has been accomplished.

So successful has the scheme been already, it is said, that along many other runaway river channels in Arizona, California and Nevada, the same methods are to be adopted.

SPECIAL OFFICERS TO ENFORCE PROHIBITION.

INTERNAL REVENUE DEPARTMENT WILL CREATE BUREAU TO PREVENT VIOLATIONS.

Special deputies will be appointed in each State to enforce the national prohibition law, by Internal Revenue Commissioner Roper, and a special officer to be known as enforcement officer will be placed at the head of each State's deputies. This provision is made to prevent a wrecking of the local internal revenue forces.

The details of the appointment of the special deputies have not been completed and there have been no appointments made, but Collector Carter desires it to be known that all applications for positions in the enforcement bureau must be made to the enforcement officer when named, and that the collector has nothing to do with the matter of making appointments.

Whether civil service rules will prevail, is as yet undetermined, but it is presumed that the usual rules as between friends in a Democratic national administration will be carried out. But with this the collector has nothing to do.

BACK TO OULD SOD.

ARMY THEFT CASE FAILS.

Robert F. Caudill, who was a sergeant in the utility company at Camp Kearny during the summer of 1918; Walter Yerkes, a cook at what was known as "Charlie's Concession" at the camp, and Thomas W. Curran, a cook at military headquarters, charged with stealing army foodstuffs in August and September, 1918, were acquitted by a jury in Judge Trippet's court yesterday.

The charge of the court was that if the defendants secured or "borrowed" government stores that were later on returned, they were guilty under the indictment. The jury, which on the first ballot stood eight to four for acquittal, returned a verdict on the ground that if the men were guilty they should have been tried and punished by a court-martial at the time.

Until December, 1918, when Lieut. E. P. Wheelock took charge of the company, there were many charges involving the disappearance of stores, the property of the government, but he instituted a system that made stealing impossible.

Charles H. Howe, a barber, with Caudill as a silent partner, opened the "Concession," where soldiers could purchase a lunch, and it was in connection with the operation of this enterprise that the criminal charge arose.

It was not denied by the defendants that they borrowed foodstuffs from time to time, but they declared they returned all the goods they took. It was also asserted in their behalf that the government borrowed goods from them when the supply was short.

WILL INVESTIGATE CAUSE OF TROUBLE.

United States District Attorney O'Connor and his assistant, Gordon Lawson, under the care of Admiral Dan Miller, started yesterday morning on a trip to the islands of San Clemente, and Santa Rosa, the last named in the Santa Barbara Channel, to investigate troubles in regard to the leasing of these islands from the government.

While away, after discussing the legal points involved in the situation, the party will do a bit of deep-sea fishing, returning to Los Angeles tomorrow.

NEW MILLINERY BUYER.

Mme. Carolyne, the new manager and buyer for Harry Fink and Company, returned a few days ago bringing many interesting new hats and millinery sets. Especially noticed were the new dance hats of gold tulle, a present fad in Paris. There were also a number of unusually good trimming features and some excellent picture shapes.

POOLS ARE POPULAR.

Playground Department Issues Data on Swimming Places.

The city playground department yesterday issued a statement showing that 51,312 persons used the Exposition Park swimming pools last summer. Moreover, the pools proved self-supporting, yielding a cash balance of $400 for the season.

The pool at North Broadway junction is complete and ready for the construction of the dressing-rooms, which will be built soon. The City Council by special ordinance has permitted the playground department to proceed with the construction of the Arroyo Seco swimming pool. The bath-house at Vignes and Ducommon streets, adds the report, was well patronized the past season.

The playground department will appoint a swimming pool director next season, it is announced, and life guards will be in charge at the various municipal bathing places.

OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

The celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Dreher took place at the Masonic Temple in Pomona last evening.

Mr. Dreher has been vice-president of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange since 1905. He has been a director since 1896 and has served as vice-president of the Fruit Growers' Supply Company, a subsidiary, since it was organized.

Probably no one in the State has taken a more active part in the citrus industry than has Mr. Dreher. He was one of the founders of the exchange and it was through his influence that the co-operative marketing of citrus fruits was so developed in the Pomona Valley.

Mr. Dreher spent his boyhood in Summerfield, Ill. He became a shoemaker in 1861, but four years later engaged in buying and selling shoes.

On coming to California in 1887 he engaged in the real estate business in Pomona, but soon became interested in the citrus industry and was elected president of the Claremont Fruit Growers' Association, organized in 1892. This was the first co-operative organization for direct marketing. It was organized as the Claremont California Fruit Growers' Association and handled the crop of its eleven members, which consisted of twenty-one cars that season.

The organization of the associations which later formed the exchange began in 1893, when sixty growers met in Los Angeles and named a committee of five to draft a plan for the organization of all growers in Southern California. Mr. Dreher was one of the leading growers in this movement and on his invitation the committee met in Pomona in 1893 and arranged the districts and laid the basis for the present California Fruit Growers' Exchange, which today is the greatest co-operative marketing organization in the world.

In attendance at the reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Dreher were many of the leaders in the citrus industry. The reception was in charge of the members of the Dreher family, which held a reunion at the home of Mrs. F. E. Dudderar, a daughter, at Covina. The family includes: Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Dreher, now of Long Beach; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Dreher of Biggs, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Dreher, Dorothy and Donald Dreher of Claremont; Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Dreher of San Francisco, G. P. Dreher of Biggs, Mr. and Mrs. I. W. Brink of Wailuku Maui, T. H., and daughter, Elsie, of Berkeley; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Dudderar of Covina.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Dreher.

EX-SOLDIERS CENSUS MEN.

Honorably discharged soldiers, sailors or marines will be employed as far as possible by the government in taking the 1920 census. The United States Civil Service Commission issued the following call to the War Department today:

"Nearly 90,000 persons will be engaged in the work of collecting the facts and figures about Uncle Sam's gigantic family after January 2, 1920, as that is the date set for beginning the enumeration of the population of the United States. In this project nearly 80,000 workers will be engaged in field work, while the balance will comprise the Washington office force, where the tabulation, classification and statistical work will be done from the information secured from representatives of the Census Bureau in the field.

"In this, as in every other government activity, soldiers, sailors and marines will be given preference in appointments. This is accomplished by giving all service men preference on the eligible list of the civil service register. The majority of the appointments of the Census Bureau are governed by the civil service rules and regulations and the Civil Service Commissioner announces an examination for Census Bureau clerks on October 18 and November 15.

"This is made possible as a result of the veteran preference bill, recently passed by Congress, which gives precedence in original appointments in clerical and other positions in the executive branch of the government in the District of Columbia and elsewhere to honorably discharged service men, or their widows, and to the wives of injured soldiers, sailors or marines who themselves are not qualified, but whose wives are.

The office of the Assistant to the Secretary of War has issued this bulletin:

"Ex-service men who desire such appointments should make inquiry at the local board of examiners of the civil service in their city, where full information will be obtained. There are 3000 of these boards, one in nearly every city of the United States. Men living in communities where there are no boards should write the nearest one or to the United States Civil Service Commission, Washington, D. C. These boards have a complete list of all civil service positions, and are posted up to date on all changes."

MOUNTING BIG GAME FOR LOCAL MUSEUM.

WILL REQUIRE MONTHS TO PUT ALASKAN COLLECTION ON VIEW PROPERLY.

A view of the skins and horns of big game brought down from Alaska by the expedition headed by Supervisor McClellan was given recently at the Museum of History, Science and Arts. The skeletons of the animals, the finest ever brought out of Alaska, are being mounted as rapidly as possible. It will be months before the entire collection is placed on view in the museum with a background of the wild country where they were shot.

Two of the wild goats were shot by Mr. McClellan and son, Neil, near the top of a rugged mountain. They were carried eight miles by them down the steep mountain side, up which they toiled for hours. These two specimens, the skins of which are in the group photographed, were necessary to make the collection complete.

APPELLATE COURT TO CONVENE TOMORROW.

Department No. 1 of the District Court of Appeal will begin the November session tomorrow and continue over three days.

There is not a single criminal appeal on the calendar from Los Angeles county, only such appeals coming from Tulare, Kern and San Diego counties, one each.

The matter of the disbarment of D. G. Kling, attorney-at-law, will be presented on appeal from the local Superior Court.

There are forty-one cases on the civil calendar to be argued or submitted on briefs to the Appellate Court, consisting of pre.......... Court, consisting of Presiding Justice Conrey and Judges James and Shaw.

RESTRICT SKYLIGHTS.

An ordinance providing for the use of quarter-inch wire glass of a size not to exceed 16x48 inches in skylights has been prepared by the Fire Commission and will be sent to the City Council tomorrow. It was stated that larger sizes of glass were permitted as a war measure to conserve steel and that as the necessity no longer exists the restrictions should be enforced.

OBJECTS TO HEARING IOWA TROUBLES HERE.

Judge Taft declared yesterday, in the divorce suit of Mrs. Elma Wintersteen against Thomas Wintersteen, that he was not inclined to approve of an Iowa disagreement being manufactured into a California divorce. He took the matter under advisement.

Mrs. Wintersteen testified that her husband sent her to this State in 1915 with only enough money to live on for six months. Since then he has contributed nothing to her support, and she asked for a decree.

SHIRT-WAIST THIEF GRANTED PROBATION.

After pleading guilty to stealing eighty-four silk shirts, valued at $7 each, from the Elite Waist Manufacturing Company, Gorie Jacobs, who said he committed the act while partly intoxicated, was released yesterday by Judge Willis on probation of three years.

The court made it a condition of probation that the young man should keep away from blind pigs and report to Probation Officer Dodds. Elvert Jacobs, the defendant's brother, left for San Quentin on Monday for the same offense.

CANCER DOCTOR MAY GET SECOND TRIAL.

Motion for a new trial was filed yesterday on behalf of M. M. Winchell, convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the death of Mrs. Nettie E. Daniels after the giving of a so-called "cancer cure," when the defendant appeared before Judge Willis for pronouncement of sentence.

The case was continued until November 5 for argument, on the motion, by Deputy District Attorney McCartney and Frank R. Baker, attorney for the defendant.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

At a meeting of the Women's Federation of Christian Missionary Workers held last Thursday in the First Baptist Church, women of various denominations enjoyed a good programme. Dr. James A. Francis and Dr. Edgar F. Daugherty spoke on "The Inter-church World Movement" and "The New Day's Call to Women." Other speakers were Mrs. S. G. Wilson of Pasadena, for many years in Persia, Miss Ruby Baughman, supervisor of immigrant education in the city evening schools, and Miss Mabel Hall of Boston.

ASK UNITYAGAINST JAPS.

An effort to enlist the support of the fifty-two State societies in Los Angeles in the fight to exclude Asiatics is being made by the Anti-Asiatic Committee of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West. The committee has issued a call for representatives of all the societies to discuss the question at Ramona Hall, 349 South Hill street, Saturday evening, November 15. In calling the meeting the committee announced that a plan for united action by the societies with the native sons and daughters would be outlined.

A letter sent to each society by the committee reads as follows:

"Knowing that the members of your society are as deeply concerned about the welfare of California as are the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, we are calling upon you to join with us in an endeavor to protect your adopted State and our native State from the grave danger that today confronts.

"We have reference to what has been correctly termed the 'peaceful invasion' of Asiatics, particularly the Japanese, of whose activities you have no doubt become aware through newspaper and other publicity.

"There is absolutely no doubt in the mind of anyone who has investigated the movement of the Japanese California-ward, in direct violation of the 'gentlemen's agreement' made between this government and Japan that California's welfare is seriously threatened by the systematic carrying out by the Japanese of a plan countenanced, and very likely suggested, by their government to acquire possession of this State by peaceful mea When the Japanese have wreck California, they will 'carry on' other States until eventually, th will have become possessed of th whole United States.

BETTER LIBRARY LOCATION ASKED

Present Quarters Unsuitable, Board's Report Says.

Calls Rental System a Stigma on City's Good Name.

Urges a Definite Policy Now to Enlarge Facilities.

A plea for the adoption of a definite policy regarding proper equipment and facilities for the Los Angeles Public Library is contained in the thirty-first annual report just issued. The board of directors of the library assert that the present location is not suitable and that the work of the library is greatly handicapped through lack of space.

"As commented upon in times past the location of the main library in the Metropolitan Building is not wholly suitable and the quarters have become much too cramped for the best presentation of library facilities to the public. The lease upon these quarters is of short duration and the time is drawing dangerously near when definite and positive action must be taken for a change.

"While the equipment has been augmented in some particulars and more space has been gained by rearrangement of departments, still the work is being carried on at a very great handicap. Besides being a handicap, it is a stigma on the good name of Los Angeles to be obliged to rent rooms in which to house our central library, one of the institutions to which our citizenship should be able to point with special pride."

POETRY BOOKS READ.

The report shows that the people of Los Angeles like to read poetry and plays. In one month, it is stated, 1090 books of poetry, 122 volumes of Shakespeare and 500 books on modern plays were circulated. In all, the library circulated 2,581,214 books last year.

During September, the report shows, 700 collections of essays and 300 volumes of French literature were read. American history and books of travel were much sought after. The number of books read on these two subjects was far ahead of books on the same subject dealing with any other country.

The report is a complete account of the workings of the seventh largest public library in the United States with its thirty-four branch libraries and 139 deposit stations. It shows that books are provided for the City Jail, firemen, schools, department stores and business houses. The library covers territory from the Los Angeles Harbor to the city power plant at the far end of San Fernando Valley.

There are 16,000 pictures, 4002 maps, 4937 music scores and books in twenty-seven different languages in the library, according to the report.

NEW INDUSTRIES ARE IN BLUE BOOK LIST.

WILL SHOW TWO HUNDRED FIRMS LOCATED IN CITY SINCE ARMISTICE.

All industrial enterprises in the city which have not yet reported to the industrial department of the Chamber of Commerce must do so at once or be left out of the forthcoming Manufacturers' Blue Book that is now ready for the press.

This announcement was made yesterday by A. G. Arnoll, manager of the industrial department, under whose direction the work has been going on for months. Some firms have been slow to respond to requests for information and to these a last appeal has been made. They will lose the advertising value of the forthcoming publication if they do not respond at once as the volume will be sent to the printers this week.

Industrial information of interest will be revealed in the new publication. It is the first of the kind since the United States entered the war, and it will show the various changes in the industrial complexion of the city brought about by the restrictions made by the government and the need to increase production in certain lines. More than 200 new industries will be shown as having been established since the armistice was signed.

Not only are there many new industries but new lines of production are recorded. A large percentage of these are using raw products of this section so that their entire output will add to the prosperity of Southern California. Among the important innovations shown will be the coming manufacture of cotton, rubber and steel products. When the last manufacturers' survey was made only one of these commodities was being developed here and that was new at the time. It was steel. There will be recorded also new industries manufacturing clay products and chemicals. Shipbuilding will show enormous strides. Summed up, it is believed that the forthcoming publication will show Los Angeles during the past few years has climbed up several notches on the industrial ladder from its position as twenty-sixth city in the United States.

POLES TO CELEBRATE.

Will Observe Armistice Day With Exercises and Ball.

The liberation of Poland will be celebrated by the United Polish Societies of Los Angeles on the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice, November 11, at Blanchard Hall. The programme will consist of speeches, chorus singing, a flag ceremony, folk dances, a banquet and ball.

Polish music will be provided by the chorus of the Chopin Polish Singing Society, under the direction of Edward Sherman. Other musical features will be given by Madame Wisnewska, Stefan Nowakowski, tenor; Martha Welendowska, pianist. Speeches will be delivered by Theodore B. Modra, Madame F. Jankiewicz. The Children's Chorus will sing and give a Polish national dance, in native costumes. The banquet will follow the patriotic exercises.

URGE STUDY OF FAITH HEALING.

Pastors Say Churches Should Follow Bible Teachings.

Christian League of Healing for City is Approved.

[illegible] Classes Organized for Encouraging Work Here.

At a conference of clergymen and laymen, representing the principal churches of Los Angeles, held yesterday at the Y.M.C.A. resolutions were adopted urging the formation of a Christian League of Healing. More than 200 prominent pastors and members of churches attended the meeting, at which the Rev. W. S. Dysinger, president of the Los Angeles Church Federation, presided. The speakers were Rev. Herbert Booth Smith, of Immanuel Presbyterian Church; the Rev. George Davidson, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church; Rev. George A. [illegible], of Plymouth Congregational Church; Rev. Edward Daugherty of Central Christian Church; Rev. Charles Selecman, of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church; Rev. [illegible] A. Francis, of the First Baptist Church, and Rev. O. P. Gifford.

All of the speakers expressed the belief that the time had come for the church to undertake the study and application of biblical healing. Following the address, the conference adopted resolutions which read:

"Whereas, we, as a conference of pastors and laymen, assembled do feel that healing is taught in God's Word and that it is possible to utilize these teachings in a very [illegible] and helpful way, now,

"Resolved, that we encourage a study of the subject of healing in all [illegible] and helpful ways and urge those who are interested to make as much a study of the subject as possible from a biblical, physiological, scientific and common-sense viewpoint and thus learn how to [illegible] and to heal themselves and to help others; and,

"Resolved, that we encourage the formation of a Christian League of Healing with duly elected officers, which shall arrange for a meeting in which healing in the churches shall be presented by different speakers and studies on the subject of healing will be encouraged; and,

"Resolved, that we recommend that classes for the study of healing be organized to help and to heal the sick and also to train persons to disseminate biblical, scientific, and common sense methods which may be practiced to establish health, or to recover it, when lost."

Nevada Belle Says She Got Contract, That's All.

Got Clothes 'Neverything to be Russian Princess.

Didn't Get a Chance, so Asks Film Company to Pay.

Miss Erma Johnson, 19 years old, the daughter of well-to-do Nevada parents, came to Los Angeles last spring. Miss Johnson, one day last April, read in a Los Angeles newspaper an advertisement for a moving picture actress.

Mrs. Erma McAllister.

The address in the advertisement led her to the offices of the Oakley Super-Quality Productions, Inc., where, she says, she met J. W. Early, vice-president and general director of the company. The result of this interview was, she says in a suit filed through Attorney Turnbull yesterday for $4100 for alleged breach of contract, that she should star in a play, taking the part of a Russian princess, under the stage name of Olga Orloff. A condition was that she would buy a wardrobe and photographs of herself in various poses.

According to Mr. Turnbull, Mr. Early accompanied Miss Johnson on her shopping tours, during which she spent out of her own money $1730 for costumes and paid $500 for photographs. Later a contract was drawn up, under the terms of which Miss Johnson was to be paid a salary of $100 a week during the production of the Russian play, and thereafter $250 a week for a year.

It is stated that she reported at the studio for work regularly, but never engaged in the production of the picture and never became a moving picture actress.

While she was waiting William F. McAllister, a Nevada cattleman, came to Los Angeles. He had known Miss Johnson in Nevada, and he won her promise to marry him. The wedding ceremony was performed a few months ago. Mr. McAllister was joined as plaintiff in the suit merely as the husband of Miss Johnson.

HELD ON STORY OF GROSS GIRL.

Insurance Man Caught with Child in Calexico.

Father Ends Long Chase and Brings Janie Home.

She Tells Horrible Tale Her Condition Bears Out.

Charged with having kidnaped a daughter of Henry Gross, a tailor of 700 East Forty-first street, J. T. Christian, 40 years old, an insurance agent, was brought to the County Jail last night by Constable Hayes from Calexico. He was arrested there in a hotel in company with the Gross girl and his own daughter, Ethel, also 13 years of age. He was held in $5000 bail.

When little Janie Gross was found by her father and the officers and her condition told her mother a terrible story. It prostrated Mrs. Gross, and last night she was in a critical condition, Mr. Gross said.

"I fear Mrs. Gross may die from the shock," he added.

GIRL TELLS STORY.

Serious charges will be made against Christian in addition to the kidnaping, Mr. Gross stated. His daughter has made a statement covering her alleged relations with the insurance agent.

In spite of his anger toward Christian, Mr. Gross refused to see the Christian girl placed in a detention home. He brought her to his own home, where she was received among his seven children as one of the family.

According to Mr. Gross, Christian formerly lived in his neighborhood. The insurance agent frequently called at the Gross residence with his daughter and asked that he might "take the little Gross girl to the moving picture theater" with his own daughter. The parents assented and Janie went out in company with Christian and his daughter many times, Mr. Gross said.

TAKES CHILD AWAY.

Nothing was suspected until the night of November 24, when Janie went with Christian and his daughter to the residence of a neighbor on Thirty-seventh street. At a late hour Mr. Gross became alarmed at the prolonged absence of his daughter and telephoned the neighbor's house. He was informed that Christian and the two girls had left.

"I am going to San Diego with Ethel and Janie," Christian said, according to the neighbors. Mr. Gross immediately notified the police to be on the watch for the trio

Then the father took up the chase, determined to find his daughter. First he went to San Diego. Through the postoffice there, he learned that Christian had ordered his mail forwarded to El Centro. The anxious father sped to El Centro in a high-powered automobile, only to learn from the postoffice there that the alleged kidnaper had ordered his mail to be sent on to Calexico To the border city sped the father in not pursuit. He spent several days in Calexico. Several times he crossed the border to Mexicali, seeking a trace of Janie.

FOUND AT HOTEL.

Coming back from the Mexican side of the line on this third trip, Mr. Gross saw a hotel that appeared to be half in the United States and half in Mexico. Suspecting that such a hotel might be resorted to by the fugitive, he went to the hotel. He learned that Christian and the girls were there. Then he went outside to watch for them.

Soon he saw the girls, who, when they saw him, ran toward him, crying, "Daddy, oh, daddy take us home."

From the girls he learned that Christian was absent during the day but returned to the hotel about 5 o'clock every afternoon. With a deputy Sheriff of Imperial county he watched at the hotel until that hour, when the alleged kidnaper appeared, when he was arrested. He was held in the jail there until Constable Hayes arrived from this city with a warrant.

STOPS SCREAM WITH GUN

Negro Bandit Smites Woman on Jaw When She Screams.

Held up by a negro armed with a heavy revolver while near her home, 1701 East Fifteenth street, yesterday, Mrs. O. V. Jacobs was painfully injured when the bandit struck her across the mouth with his weapon when she screamed. According to Mrs. Jacobs, he first demanded her money. Mrs. Jacobs was treated at the Receiving Hospital.

DESPONDENT, RETIRED MERCHANT ENDS LIFE.

Despondent because of injuries received in an accident a number of months ago, Richard G. Beebe, a retired business man, yesterday shot himself through the head in the bathroom of his home at 500 North Serrano street. The body was found by Mrs. Beebe and removed to the undertaking parlors of Peck and Chase.

Beebe was 62 years old. He was a retired woolen manufacturer of Stanford, Ct., and a representative in the Legislature from that State. He was connected with several large business enterprises in this city, including the Brentwood Film Company. Funeral services will be held at the Peck & Chase funeral parlors this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

FOR BOND ELECTION.

School Board Prepares for Balloting in Few Weeks.

On recommendation of County Counsel Hill, the Board of Education will appoint two men to select polling places where the school bonds will be voted upon. The board will also make arrangements to secure judges for the election, which will be held within a few weeks.

Chairman McCormick of the Finance Committee of the school board, stated last night that the proposal for the issue is now ready to be submitted to the voters. He said a survey of the bonds, required by law, has been completed.

The bond issue is for approximately $7,000,000, to be used for erecting new school houses and repairing the present structures. The bonds cover the estimated needs of the schools for a three-year period.

PROMISES FAST HIGHWAY WORK

Construction Being Rushed, State Commission Says.

New Imperial Section Ready for Start Next Month.

Delegation Told Funds will be Used as Outlined.

Construction work on the highways of Southern California for which bonds were voted last July will be rushed, Newell D. Darlington, speaking for the State Highway Commission, yesterday told a delegation from Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and Imperial counties and a committee from the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. The county delegations, headed by Supervisor Dodge, called on the commission and urged that the work be completed as rapidly as possible.

The committee also asked the Highway Commission for an assurance that all of the money allotted to the several highways of this section, in a tentative programme adopted at the time the bonds were submitted to the voters, be spent on the roads as far as it would go. The commission was asked, also, if the counties would be reimbursed for the money spent in the co-operative plan of road improvement.

NO REIMBURSMENT.

A law passed at the recent session of the Legislature prohibits the Highway Commission from reimbursing any of the counties, Mr. Darlington said, and for that reason the counties would not be reimbursed for the money they spent on the co-operative road work.

He assured the delegation that all of the money received from the bonds would be spent on the roads as outlined in the tentative programme. Mr. Darlington said, also, that work was being rushed as rapidly as possible on the road to Imperial. He said the resolutions adopted recently by the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce resulted from a misunderstanding.

THIRTY MILES MORE.

The work on the road to Imperial Valley has been pushed as rapidly as possible, he stated, and though the bonds have not yet been printed, the commission will, within the next thirty days, advertise for bids for the construction of thirty miles of road south of Indio to Imperial.

According to members of the Highway Commission, the meeting yesterday was very satisfactory and the representatives from the counties had expressed themselves well pleased with the progress that had been made and the prospect for future work.

AERIAL BASE HEARING TO BEGIN HERE TODAY.

GOVERNMENT SEEKS NORTH ISLAND AS PERMANENT AVIATION CAMP.

In the U. S. District Judge Trippet's court today, the preliminary legal contest looking to the acquisition of North Island, in San Diego Harbor, by the Federal government, through condemnation proceedings, for the purpose of establishing a permanent aviation camp, will begin. It is believed that the case will take the most of the week.

The style of the action is the United States vs. the Coronado Beach Company, to secure North Island, covering about 130 acres of land. The point to be argued before the court is, whether or not the original grant of the Mexican government contained the reservation providing that the property might be used if necessary, without cost, in case it was needed for the national defense. It is, declared by George J. Denis, who represents Atty.-Gen. Palmer in the proceeding, that the original grant contained such a covenant, but this view of the case will be opposed by the attorneys representing the Coronado Beach Company, which now own North Island in fee simple.

It is not the intention of the government to take advantage of the reservation, if it is found to exist by Judge Trippet, except to have the price to be paid by the government reduced from the amount demanded for the property, which is said to $7,000,000.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Dec. 1.—Dr. Carol Aronovici of New York City and Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, State president of the League of Women Voters, were the speakers today at a meeting of the Women's Civic League. Americanization was the theme of the meeting. Mrs. Burdette, in her address, declared that the League of Women Voters is the greatest organization of women voters in the world, and that the organization in the United States is doing much in the cause of Americanization. Dr. Aronovici spoke on "Housing as a Phase of Americanization."

"Americanization," said Dr. Aronovici, "should begin at Ellis Island. The Americanization movement is a great necessity. We need not wait until the foreigner can speak our language before beginning instruction in Americanization. We should protect the life and health of the foreigner as a national duty, and one of the most practical means of protecting them is to provide better housing conditions."

TO RESURVEY ROAD.

As a result of the inspection of the proposed highway route in the Arroyo Seco by Federal, State, county and municipal officials, on last Saturday, a new survey is to be made as a working basis for all four organizations to agree on. It is expected that $100,000 will be spent in the Arroyo within the next few months, and that the road from the ranger's cabin to Camp Oake Wylde will be ready within a year.

CITY MAY WITHDRAW.

After appropriating $2000 to aid the Southern California City Attorneys' Association in the investigation of the Pacific Electric rate application, the City Commission at its meeting today considered the feasibility of rescinding its action. City Attorney J. H. Howard was authorized by the commission to learn the extent that the work had progressed.

MILK PRICES ADVANCE.

Milk costs more in Pasadena today as a result of the action of the dairymen supplying this city. The new quotations are 16 cents per quart and 9 cents per pint. Certified milk is 20 cents a quart and cream from 18 to 30 cents a half-pint according to quality. The increase is due to a recent advance in dairy feed.

POLICEMEN WILL DANCE

The fourth annual ball of the Pasadena Policemen's Relief Association will be held Wednesday night at Hotel Green. At the last ball $1600 was netted for the police relief fund. Chief W. S. McIntyre is chairman of the ball committee, and with Mrs. McIntyre will lead the grand march.

DRUG ADDICT BREAKS JAIL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Dec. 1.—Antonio Ramirez, serving a sentence of 180 days in the County Jail, jumped from a second-story window and escaped. He had been arrested on a charge of burglary, released and later taken up on the charge of having narcotics in his possession. He is still at liberty.

FLOOD CREST PASSES YUMA.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ANDRADE (Cal.) Dec. 1.—General Manager C. N. Perry of the Imperial Irrigation District is anxiously watching the Volcano Lake levee, which is being tested by a flash head of 180,000 second feet of water. This noon the water had risen to within three feet of the high-water mark of 1917, and the general manager was prepared to take drastic means to prevent a break.

Eleven bents in the weir across the Colorado River were blown up yesterday to save the city of Yuma from inundation. The plan was a success. The river yesterday reached the twenty eight and seven-tenths foot stage, a rise of seven feet since Saturday. The crest of the flood is reported to have passed Yuma.

FAIL TO REVIVE OLD-TIME SPEED.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Dec. 1.—Repeated representations on the part of orange packers of this district to secure from the Railroad Administration a resumption of fast freight schedule to the East for oranges have been without effect. According to packing-house managers here the Federal railroad executives have virtually informed them that no attempt will be made, during Federal control of the roads, to speed up freight deliveries. Various reasons are assigned by the officials for this arbitrary stand, among them being the contention that more motive power would be needed, and that this is not available at this time.

It is maintained here that no small proportion of the car shortage has been due to the slow deliveries of freight. At present the car supply appears to be adequate, but due to slow delivery, many car lots of fruit will fail to reach the Christmas markets in the East.

OBJECT TO JAPANESE.

Tulare County Ranchers to Hold Protest Meeting.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Dec. 1.—Members of the Poplar Grange and officials of the Poplar Farm Bureau have called a meeting, to be held Tuesday night, at which time plans are to be discussed for preventing an influx of Japanese laborers or land owners into the Poplar district, west of here.

Large tracts of the Poplar land are being divided and are to be set to grapes. Some of the new owners are quoted as having said they intend to use oriental labor. To prevent this action on the part of the new land owners the meeting has been called. Sentiment is strongly against Japanese in all parts of Southern Tulare county, and any attempt to import them may result in serious clashes.

A. Adams, vice-president; E. P. Southworth, secretary; W. H. Johnston, assistant, and P. B. Hasbrouck, superintendent.

Born in America, was Officer in British Army.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA BARBARA, Dec. 1.—Col. Willard French, who was found dead in his room at a local hotel last night, died of carbolic acid poisoning according to the verdict of the Coroner's jury today.

He had taken an overdose of sleeping powders and claimed, in a last message written while dying, that he drank from the contents of a bottle he found in his room, believing the bottle contained whisky, and instead it was carbolic acid.

French was 65 years old, educated in Berlin and Leipsig, and has been an extensive traveler, and though an American by birth, served as lieutenant-colonel with the British forces in India, South Africa, Egypt and Blue Nile. In recent years he lectured in England and America, and wrote many books and magazine articles.

He resided for many years in Washington.

Directors of the chamber, who were appointed to incorporate the company, were Chester Dowell, G. H. Waddell and Van W. Tyler.

The organization is to have a nominal capital stock of $25,000, but a system of financing is to be used whereby funds will be available for the construction of houses as long as there is a demand for them.

BIG WALNUT CROP.

Association Makes Known Series of Startling Figures.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Dec. 1.—More than a half million dollars was realized from the trees of the Walnut Growers' Association, according to approximate figures given today by Dr. J. G. Biller, vice-president of the organization. These record figures, says the association official, are due to the exceptionally favored location of the acreage, as well as to the high prices brought by the nuts this year.

The production from between 1500 and 1600 acres included within the scope of the association approximated 800 tons, which was sold for more than $600 a ton.

An outstanding feature of the crop, said the doctor, is the fact that no less than 30 per cent. of the nuts were from trees bearing for the first time, while 50 per cent. came from trees in their second or third year of production.

FIRE THREATENS BIG OIL FIELD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FELLOWS, Dec. 1.—Fire on the Associated Oil lease on section 32, near here, threatened the district with complete destruction. With a crew of approximately 300 men taken from surrounding leases, the fire was under control in an hour and a half after it started. No estimate of the damage has been made by Supt. C. M. Small of the Associated.

A crew of men were working on a leaking pipe line. It was stated that one of the men deliberately threw a lighted match in the leaking oil down a canyon. It immediately took fire with alarming force. The Alaska oil lease, about 200 feet down the canyon, was in danger. Men were summoned from all directions. Bonfires were built to back fire the approaching flame and the lease was saved.

HARVARD FAVORS BATTLE IN WEST

President, Faculty Committee, Coaches and Team Strong for the Cross-Country Jaunt to Pasadena; no Opposition in Any Quarter.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CAMBRIDGE (Mass.) Dec. 1.—Harvard's football team, with its season supposedly over, will play another game as a result of a decision made today for an East vs. West contest to be played in Pasadena, Cal. on New Year's Day.

The proposal, which originated among the residents of Pasadena with the backing of all Harvard men in the Far West for the Crimson eleven to meet the best college team of the Coast during the Pasadena Tournament of Roses, which is the crowning holiday of the winter season in Southern California, has been favorably accepted, according to a statement issued by Dr. Edward H. Nichols to a representative of the Los Angeles Times. Dr. Nichols, who, with "Pooch" Donavan, has charge of the conditioning of the Crimson football teams, issued his statement immediately following his conversation over the long-distance telephone with Fred W. Moore, graduate manager of athletics and secretary of the Harvard athletic committee at New York City. Dr. Nichols has been in touch with Coach Robert Fisher i . the same manner while putting in a busy day in Cambridge with President Lowell and other members of the Harvard faculty.

NOT FIRST TIME.

"This is not the first time that Harvard has received an invitation to send its football eleven west," said Dr. Nichols. "A number of such proposals have been declined in the past, due to the fact that the Christmas vacation was too short to permit such a journey, and the Harvard faculty has frowned on the idea of allowing the teams extra time from studies for the sake of an athletic event.

"Now, however, this difficulty is eliminated by the lengthening of the vacation period this year. In previous years the holiday vacation at Cambridge has covered from eight to ten days, allowing the students little more time than would be consumed in traveling to and from the Pacific Coast. This fall the vacation was extended. It will begin Saturday, December 20, and end Monday, January 5, thus allowing fifteen days respite from the classroom.

EXTENSION.

"Today I succeeded in having the faculty give a two-day extension of time. The period would be ample to allow the team to reach Pasadena and pass a week in getting acclimated to Coast conditions.

"The team can leave Cambridge December 20 and arrive in Pasadena on the 24th, the afternoon before Christmas, thus having a full week of preparation for the gridiron contest with the western stars. They could leave California January 2 and be back in Cambridge again Tuesday, January 6.

"This arrangement, I am advised by the faculty, is quite satisfactory as far as they are concerned."

"The initial move was to take the matter up with the Harvard endowment fund committee. This has been done and while they have not officially voted on the proposition, I have talked with each member of the committee, with the assurance that while the previous difficulty of insufficient vacation has now been eliminated by the faculty, who heartily sanction the trip, that they will heartily indorse the plan and co-operate in every manner possible. There is no question that the endowment fund campaign, before the public for the first time, has given added ground for this transcontinental trip of the team. The hospitality that would be shown to the members of the team would surely be in keeping with the large openhearted cordiality of the West, and would be something that the players themselves would long remember. I have talked with the most of them and they fully realize this point and there is great enthusiasm amongst them.

IN ADDITION.

"In addition the stopovers at various points will afford an opportunity for the team to be received by Harvard men at divers cities and towns. The endowment fund committee have agreed to assume charge of these arrangements from a physical standpoint. Mr. Donovan and I both agree that the trip is absolutely feasible. You may be sure that with a stretch of several weeks in Cambridge, and seven or eight days' preparatory work in California, the Crimsion squad will be trotted out in the very pink of physical condition.

"Just which Pacific Coast team will be Harvard's opponent in the battle, I do not know. Washington State, University of Washington, University of Oregon and the Oregon State teams are the strongest teams in the Northwest. The Washington State team is coached by Gus Welch, quarter-back on Jim Thorpe's famous Carlisle Indian team that beat Harvard. University of California has been the most successful of the California elevens.

NOT SUDDEN.

"This is no sudden inspiration on the part of Harvard men on the Pacific Coast. Many of them have not seen a Crimson team in action for a long stretch of years, but have had to content themselves, on the occasion of Harvard-Yale or Harvard-Princeton games, with a seat at the end of a telegraph wire and blackboard postings of the end runs and forward passes.

"For a long while they have been eager to see a Harvard team in action against the Westerners. Sec Witmer, who sends the official telegram, was in the class of 1912, and has always been closely in touch with the athletic situation at Cambridge.

"While the Harvard football team has never crossed the continent to play, both Harvard and Yale track teams and crews have journeyed equally as far in the other direction to compete with teams from Oxford and England. That argument alone had considerable to do with the winning over of those concerned in this proposition, although to be frank with you, the opposition, as I found it, amounted next to nothing."

"With the return of Messrs. Moore and Fisher, there is no question but what the invitation will be officially accepted and a committee chosen, in your opinion, Mr. Nichols, and the acceptance of this invitation officially now remains to be but a matter of form?" queried The Times correspondent. "That's it exactly," was the reply.

OXY LOOKING FOR COURT.

If some one will provide a court for the Occidental basketball players to practice on the Tigers stand a splendid chance of turning out a championship team. As the situation stands there are plenty of players of first-rate caliber at Eagle Rock, but no courts.

Last year the Orange and Black casaba shooters practiced at the Pasadena Y.M.C.A., but the Crown City "Y" courts are full up this year, and there is no recourse in that direction.

Occidental finished third in the A.A.U. race last year, being beaten by the L.A.A.C. and the Y.M.C.A. Bob Hadden, the Oxy skipper, is at a loss to know whether to issue a call for candidates this year until the court problem is solved. This is the composition of the team as it shapes up on paper: Kirkpatrick and Norton, guards; Williams, said to be a whale of a forward; Work, center, and Hadden, forward. Betts and Fulton are good men who may crowd some of the others off the varsity, says Hadden.

GRID GAMES IN COBLENZ.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COBLENZ (Germany Nov. 15.—The opening recently of the football season by the American forces in Germany proved a big social, as well as a football success. Gen. Henry T. Allen, commander of the forces, his staff, and a large number of women from the American colony, witnessed the games played at Carnival Island football fields. All games were played in a heavy downfall of snow. More than 10,000 doughboys, cheering on the side lines, cheered themselves hoarse in support of their favorites. Thousands of German civilians stood on the banks overlooking the field with their eyes wide open in amazement.

The Thirteenth Provisional Guard team defeated the Base Hospital, 13 to 0. The stars of the game were Capt. Stephen B. Wilson, formerly quarter-back for George Washington University; Lieut. Wicks, formerly of the West Point team, and Lieut. Bergman, a former back of St. Mary's College, Kansas.

The results of the other three games played were as follows: The Cavalry won from the Sixth Field Artillery, 13 to 0; Machine Gunners defeated the Q.M.C., 24 to 0, and the Eighth Infantry humbled the Engineers, 6 to 0

A SENSATION.

A few months ago George was the sensation among the local boxers. He knocked out several good boys, and was going good until he ran into Steve Dalton. Dalton caused him a lot of worry in a couple of bouts, and then he met Billy Shade three times and ran second each time, although he took one decision. Tonight he gets his big trial. If he wins he will still be a main eventer. If he loses he will have to step back into the semi-windup class.

Johnny Kid Mex, a rough, hard-hitting lightweight from Denver, is matched with Dave Shade in the semi-windup. Shade has showed considerable class in a number of starts, and is confident he will beat the newcomer.

SLUGGING MATCH.

Johnny Nunes is matched with Louie Rees, and the bout figures to be something of a slugging match. Charley Jones is matched with Frankie Dolan at 116 pounds, and the winner will be given a bout with Jimmy Pappas in the near future.

Ted Titus and Young Cumpston, a pair of sluggers, will battle in the second bout on the card, and Pat Quigley and Sidney White, 118-pounders will meet in the curtain raiser.

TIGERS DECLARE THEY PLAYED IN A QUARRY.

WIND AT TUCSON BLEW A GALE. KICKED BALL ALWAYS WENT WRONG WAY.

Occidental football players who returned yesterday from Tucson, where they were draped under a 27 to 0 score by the University of Arizona on Thanksgiving Day, had a few interesting sidelights to offer on the struggle.

Bobby Hadden, the Tiger signal caller, said: "The game was played on the best rock quarry field I have seen for some time. The wind blew at the rate of seventy-five knots or so. When we kicked in the teeth of it the ball traveled about five yards down the field. When we kicked the other way the oval went over the goal line.

"Kirkpatrick, Grube and Smith were all laid out in the first half. I had to play half, a position absolutely new to me. Before the game was over Coach Stanton had to ask the Arizona coach's permission to substitute a man who had already been in the game."

TORRID WINTER IN THE MAJORS.

Move on Foot to Get Garry Herrmann's Scalp.

Johnny Wray is Very Strong for Umpires.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

Time is being torn off so rapidly by our assorted clocks that the great national pastime will have hardly been renovated when the call of "Play ball!" will be heard abroad in the land.

Here it is, December 2, practically three months since the season closed, and only three more to go.

Managers are already showing signs of life following a dormant period, and club owlers will begin burnishing up the roll top desks inside of a month. Contracts will be sent out some time in January or early in February; players will begin seeping in about the same time, and March will witness the start of spring training.

ALL IS CALM.

Everything is calm and salubrious in the Coast League, but they are having a torrid winter in the majors. The feud between Ban Johnson on the one side and Comisky, Frazee and Ruppert on the other, has developed into one of the most acrimonious affairs in the history of baseball, and threatens to become so far-reaching as to revolutionize the situation in the majors. The American is on the verge of an upheaval that may tear it asunder and bring into being a third major league.

Few baseball men actually believe that the fight will be carried that far, but permanent peace between Johnson and the Comiskey faction is a consummation doubtful of realization. Either Johnson will be unsaddled or there will be a patched-up, unstable peace under which will smolder the fires of resentment.

WANT GARRY OUT.

Conditions are none too harmonious in the National, where a move is on foot to eliminate Garry Herrmann, at least as far as the National Commission is concerned.

Some are lamenting these flare-ups, and especially the one in the American, on the ground that the publi cairing of such matters tends to injure baseball.

However, whatever injury is inflicted will be only transient, and the effect should be wholesome. Too much harmony is not a good thing for baseball. It's greatest danger lies in its falling into the control of a small group of closely-allied men. This causes it to lose something of the element of competition, at least in the minds of the public. Prior to the war there was a tendency in some quarters to put baseball on the same basis as an amusement. But a group of baseball teams cannot be conducted in the same manner as a string of playhouses. Baseball is fundamentally a competitive sport, and only as such can it live.

PAWNS IN HAND.

There is even such a thing as the head of a league getting too firm a grip on his organization. Centralization of control is desirable up to a certain point only. It could be carried to a point where the teams and players would become little more than pawns in the hands of one man.

We do not profess to judge of the merits of either side of the case. But there are matters, including the intimation that Johnson owns part or all of the Cleveland club, which should be cleared up in the interests of the game. A fight to a finish

Ten Years Younger Than His Years

Doesn't it make you feel good—cause you to straighten up and feel "chesty"—when someone guesses your age at ten years or so younger than you really are? You look into your mirror, smile with satisfaction and say to yourself: "Well, he didn't make such a bad guess, at that."

If a man is strong, vigorous, mentally alert, fine and fit at 50 he has a better chance of living up to 80 than a man of 30 who is weak and run-down has of living up to 60. While none of us can stay the years nor stop time, we should all make an heroic effort to successfully resist the effects of time by ever keeping our vitality at par.

When you sense a feeling of slowing down of your physical forces—when your stomach, liver, kidneys and other organs show signs of weakness—when you notice a lack of your old time "pep" and "punch"—in other words, when you feel your vitality is on the wane, you should commence at once to restore your energy, strength and endurance by taking

LYKO

The Great General Tonic

This master body-builder will help you keep young in spirit and mental and physical action, because it will assist Nature in maintaining your vitality at par. It enriches the blood, restores worn-out tissues, soothes jangling and over-wrought nerves, induces sound refreshing sleep, sharpens the appetite, tones up the digestion—in short, will put new life, new vigor and new vim in every fibre of your body.

You will be surprised how much better you'll feel after taking a treatment of LYKO, if you are tired and worn out, nervously and physically exhausted. It's mildly laxative—keeps the bowels in fine condition. Get a bottle from your druggist today.

Sport Now Approaching its Best for the Season.

Conditions Detailed in the Various Open Places.

Quail Trespassers Arrested Near Moorpark Sunday.

Licensed huntsmen of the south took full advantage of a week-end of wonderful winter weather, ideal for their favorite sport, whether tastes ran to upland, marsh or lake as scene of their shooting expeditions.

While quail limits are becoming hard to get, the difficulty does not deter a host of skilled quail hunters from pitting their experience and ability against the wiles of California's gamest and most typical sporting birds at every opportunity. Saturday and Sunday saw many hundreds of small-bore scattergunners afield.

Quite a few limits were reported, while the number who succeeded in bagging a modest mess for their day's outing was large. Many harvested a few sage or cottontail rabbits, a couple of which will help out a "Game Mulligan" wonderfully. The two kinds of meat stew together equally well with dumplings, and form a justly-popular hunter's dish, which appeared on many a Los Angeles table last evening, although experienced sportsmen usually prefer to let their game "hang" a few days to become more tender.

Increase of "posting" of large ranches against the hunter has resulted in a considerable of trespassing, and some of the big landed proprietors are up in arms against it. The vast Strathearn ranch, northeast of Moorpark, was being patrolled by the Strathearn boys and a rider Sunday, all deputy sheriffs, and they made a number of arrests among those hunting there. The Doheny Tape Ranch adjoining on the north and east is also being posted and patrolled.

Both these properties have been closed for some years, but the proprietors have announced that they propose to take steps to enforce the prohibition, as the season has been dry and there is severe risk of fires burning over the stock range, making it essential that they know exactly who is on the ranches all the time.

Those arrested were cited to appear in Moorpark for trial yesterday for violation of the State law forbidding trespass on inclosed or cultivated land which is posted with the necessary three or more of signs to the mile along the exterior boundaries.

DUCK SHOOTING IS BETTER.

Duck shooting on the open lakes and sloughs of the interior from now on may be called at its best, all depending upon wind and weather, particularly as to how long the sport lasts. The mountain lakes at the higher altitudes are freezing, and their waters are now so cold that they will congeal the first quiet night; nothing but incessant winds have been keeping Baldwin Lake open, and thick ice is forming about its shores every night.

Splendid canvasbacks are still plentiful, likewise bluebills and widgeon; and somebody who happens in just about the time of final freeze-up is scheduled to enjoy a most wonderful shoot on the finest, fattest birds of the year. From now on, as the ice narrows down the feeding area the ducks will deteriorate in condition on the highland lakes until these no longer appeal to them; and when the feed is ice-sealed away from them, the big birds will soon depart. Then will be the time for the wise hunter to lay out a campaign for the lower lakes of San Diego county, and the Salton—Alamo country in Imperial Valley.

Imperial Valley duck shooting is good enough for anybody right now—a good shot who is used to the slough game can kill his limits at Raymer's or anywhere along the Alamo duck-camp line, while some fine bags of sprig are being downed on the Salton right along by taking advantage of the wind. The birds are in fine condition.

O. J. MAJORS ELECTED FOOTBALL CAPTAIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BERKELEY (Cal.) Dec. 1.—O. J. Majors, who registered at the University of California from San Diego, was elected captain of the 1920 varsity football team at a post-season election held in Seattle on Thanksgiving Day, it was announced here today.

For two years Majors has played at tackle on the university team and he also was a member of the 1921 freshmen eleven. Before coming to the university he played on the championship preparatory school team at San Diego in 1916.

DUCK HUNTERS RETURN.

Ed Bolz, Dr. Hunter and Lloyd Mangus returned yesterday from Bear Valley, where they spent Saturday and Sunday hunting ducks. They found Baldwin and Big Bear Lake partially frozen over, but had good sport, nevertheless. The party is going to Raymer's this week.

GET DUCK LIMIT.

Dr. E. A. Salisbury and Mike Helm, the latter from Kansas, secured the limit of canvasbacks and mallards at Raymer's, both Sunday and yesterday.

SMITH ON WAY TO AUSTRALIA.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Dec. 1.—Ross Smith, the British aviator, making a flight to Australia, arrived at Allahabad Thursday, and proceeded Friday. Lieut. Etienne Poulet, the French military aviator, who left his airdrome, near Paris, October 13 for Melbourne, arrived in Calcutta Thursday, leaving Saturday.

SOCCER NOTES.

Sunday's game at Exposition Park, between the Sons and United was a good boost for the game. The teams were ready on time and after they started they played for all they were worth. When a match is started after 3 o'clock it grows dark before the finish, so every game should be started at 2:45 o'clock sharp.

There is altogether too much chin music over some of the decisions. Spectators come to see football played and not to listen to a lot of ragchewing.

The refereeing this season has been good and no game has been lost or won by reason of any faulty decision.

A lot of new talent is signing up with the clubs every week, so that by the time the Cup-ties are due the team will be practically reorganized.

The hardest proposition facing the game is, the lack of a ground to take a gate. Meantime it is a case of "everything going out and nothing coming in." It costs lots of money to keep the game going these days of H. C. L.

Next Sunday promises another hard battle between the Sons and the L. A.'s. Both teams play about the same style of game and there is nothing to choose between them. In the league contest each has scored eight goals and they are even up on points.

The United looks to have the best chance to grab the B. H. Dyas cup, which goes with the championship of the league. They have already passed the L.A. and Sons and now they have to meet the Santa Monica team to complete the first half of the schedule. Next Sunday the United and Santa Monica will play on the Santa Monica High School grounds.

The Santa Monicans are having the same experience as every new club goes through. It takes time to find out who are the best men for the different positions as only in a match can a man show his ability.

The L.A.A.C. jumped from the bottom of the league column to second place. They are even with the Sons on points, but they have a shade the better on goal average.

Soccer followers can look forward to a good game every Sunday afternoon at Exposition Park and it is all free.

CALIPATRIA DEFEATS BRAWLEY NIPPONS.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALIPATRIA, Dec. 1.—Manager Harper's Calipatria Boosters defeated the Brawley Nippons, in the second game of the Imperial Valley League on the home grounds today by a lopsided score of 19 to 5. Both Toyo and Tokyo of the visitors were hit hard. Willard Dill, Calipatria's best bet, was in good form, and pitched splendidly. Toward the latter innings he let up and the Nippons gathered a few gift hits.

Manager Harper completely switched the line-up and secured Fred Blaser, an old Coast League player, which has materially strengthened the team. Fred Raymer was back on the initial sack, and with the boys playing as they did today, the team that beats Calipatria will win the pennant. Ed Finney umpired.

Batteries — Calipatria, Dill and Owen; Brawley Nippons, Toyo Tokyo and Saisho.

L.A.A.C. TO GIVE A BENEFIT FOR DIETRICH

There is to be a benefit at the L.A. A.C. on the night of December 11 for Ed Dietrich, a member of the club for a number of years. Dietrich was a promising young lawyer when he joined the service in 1917, but he came out of the army a wreck—a victim of what is believed to have been poisonous inoculations.

Charley Keppen is arranging the programme, which will include boxing bouts, wrestling matches, a vaudeville skit or two and exhibitions by Al Treloar and Prof. Ito, the jiu-jitsu expert.

PRACTICE BASKETBALL.

Basketball practice started at U.S.C. yesterday with forty candidates reporting for practice, Football Coach Henderson has been engaged to tutor the squad.

DUCKS PLENTIFUL.

Hunters returning from Raymer's Camp, near Calipatria, report that ducks are frequenting there in large numbers. A drive of canvasbacks and mallards is on.

SHOOTING IS GOOD.

Nimrods returning from Antelope Valley declare the reservoir shooting splendid there, but hard to find.

CLAREMONT, Dec. 1.—Keen rivalry between the two lower classes at Pomona College is to be decided Tuesday afternoon on Alumni Field, when the freshman-sophomore game, the last of the football season, will be played. Should the sophomores, who boast in their line-up nine varsity players and subs, win tomorrow, they will be granted the privilege of springing and carrying class canes during the rest of their college course, they having already defeated the freshman in the annual pole rush at the opening of the fall semester.

The freshmen, however, have a team which has won every game this season, with the exception of one with Pomona High School, when the score was a tie. The sophomores outweigh the frosh, both in the back field and in the line, but the freshies are noted for speed, so the game promises to be one of the closest ever played here between the two classes. W. S. Ament is coaching the freshmen and Marvin Greathouse, varsity captain, is the sophomore mentor. Maurer and Denebrink are the frosh and soph captains, respectively. The freshman team includes in its line-up Raymond Wilson, brother of the famous Dick Wilson of the Pomona class of '15, while the sophomores have Julius Stone, 195-pound full-back.

MAJ. WARWICK NIFTY AT HANDBALL GAME.

Maj. Robert Warwick yesterday demonstrated at the L.A.A.C. for the edification of one Charley Keppen that he has the latter's number when it comes to playing handball. The two paired off in the handball tourney now going on at the club.

They were eliminated, and Keppen intimated that it was Warwick's slipshod playing that was at fault. Warwick demurred, so a match was arranged to settle the argument. Four sets were played. Keppen won the first 14 points in the first set—but Warwick won all four sets. The scores were 21-18, 21-6, 21-3, 21-4. Keppen now admits that he was "it."

KEPPEN TO SWING A BIG HANDBALL MATCH.

A handball match between Ranft and Klawitter, L.A.A.C. doubles champs, and Friedenburg and Rapp, Olympic Club title holders, is a possibility of the holidays.

Charley Keppen mailed an official invitation to the Winged O commissioners yesterday. He also suggested that the Pacific Coast clubs get together and decide on a standard ball. It seems that the Frisco club uses a tennis ball, while the local organization uses the regulation handball.

GOLF EQUIPMENT DESTROYED BY FIRE.

TORRID WINTER IN THE MAJORS.

would do much to improve the general atmosphere.

Many believe that a change in the personnel of the National Commission would have a wholesome effect on baseball.

TO FAVOR HIMSELF.

In some quarters it is alleged that at least one member of the commission has attempted to use his position to favor his own interests. One of the chief objections to Garry Herrmann as a member of that body is said to rest on the fact that he also is a club owner, and in the course of his duties must pass on matters of vital interest to rival clubs.

What is claimed to be a glaring example of this was felt by a Coast League club last season.

The New York Americans had promised Elmer Miller, along with others, to the Vernon club, in exchange for an option on Bobby Meusel, of some other player they might pick. Huggins, however, at the last moment decided that he must have a certain catcher then with St. Paul, who could be obtained only by turning Miller over to the Saints. This worked a hardship on the Vernon club, who at that time had only Chadbourne in line for the outfield. Essick took the matter before the National Commission. Vernon's claim to Miller seemed to be reasonably clear.

BARKED UP TREE.

But as far as getting that player via the commission, Essick might as well have barked up a eucalyptus tree. Instead, he says he received a telegram from Herrmann, chairman of the commission, suggesting that Cincinnati might be able to make a deal with Vernon for Meusel, and Herrmann is president of the Cincinnati club.

Incidents of that sort do not benefit baseball, and are hardly worthy of the great national pastime. A row calculated to shake the seats of the mighty will help rather than harm the game.

"Glad to see the stand you have taken in behalf of the baseball umpires," writes Johnny Wray from Randsburg. "They deserve a living salary and better treatment from the public. "I was one myself back in the 70's, when George and Harry Wright played cricket during the week and baseball on Sundays at the cricket grounds, just on the outer edge of Hoboken, known then as the 'Elysian fields.'

WORE WHISKERS.

"Whiskers were then in vogue on the diamond, and creases in the pants had not yet been invented, but the lot of the umpire was as difficult then as now. I lost a mouthful of perfectly good teeth as the result of an entirely correct decision in one game. Later, I came west to grow up with the country.

"The last game I umpired was in 1889, when a nine from the Los Angeles police force, of whom Tom Cuddy was chief, thought they could outplay a team composed of deputy sheriffs and country constables. I came out with a pair of black eyes inflicted by these guardians of the peace. The game was played on the old First-street grounds under the Boyle Heights bluff."

FINDS A MINE.

Until he went exploring for a mine and found one, Johnny Wray was a newspaper man and politician of the old school. We see where they are bragging about their devil fish cutlets and stews in Gnu Y'wk—seem to think it an innovation.

Devil-fish dinners have invaded "lobster trail" about twenty years late. Years ago, epicures raved over Wray's devil-fish feeds down at San Pedro. He was the originator of the idea and could brown an octopus to the queen's taste.

Care of Food in the Home

If this care is not taken, members of the family may get ptomaine poisoning.

The germs of typhoid, diptheria, tuberculosis may get into the system through drinking water.

Flies may make tracks on food after having visited sick rooms of the neighborhood.

Dust from the pavements may get into food that is inadequately protected and deliver a message of death.

Then there is the matter of economy. Nearly every food requires a different treatment that it may not spoil. MAY ROBSON PLAY.

"TISH" IS SUNSHINY COMEDY AT MASON.

By Edwin Schallert.

Personalities like that of May Robson, illuming the stage with their sunshine, will always continue as an argument for the presence of the featured luminary in the play. There is just one May Rolson, as there is just one David Warfield and one John Drew. They are the classic stars, whose fame has been made certain, not by one success, but by many, and who are always sure of their following.

Perhaps Miss Robson in "Tish," this week, at the Mason, is just like the Miss Robson you have known in many other plays, but this does not diminish her hold upon your affections. She is one of the acquaintances with whom you have had a chance to become friends—and her friendship is worth knowing, because it is thoroughly human and unconventional.

"Tish" is one of the best comedies in which the favored star has appeared—not because it is so admirably adapted to herself, which it really is, but because the force of her own characterization is rendered delightful through the background provided by the two types associated with her.

Mary Roberts Rinehart deftly developed two contrasting weak women to offset the daring and masculinity of Tish, and the company at the Mason has made the most of these contrasts. The Aggie of Lillian Harmer should be in the movies. She is second cousin to a telegraph pole—about one-third as long and not quite as broad. Lillian Rhoads as Lizzie is equally effective in her simpering fear.

Miss Robson, of course, is the man of the house, yet wholly feminine. It is in the business of her part that she achieves her especial trimuhp. At times she turns the performance into a regular vaudeville show. Her business of trying to get comfortable on the too-small sette, her feigning of nervousness, her fear for the discovery of her possession of the money she took in the endeavor to save the young lover's reputation, bring all the Robson tricks of comedying to the fore. Withal she is entirely human every minute, even when she lets loose the jazz.

The supporting company, with one or two exceptions, is satisfying, and the two sisters are admirably portrayed.

A diverting comedy with even more plot and brightness, than some of Miss Robson's best plays is "Tish."

GRIFFITH WESTERN AT GRAUMAN'S THEATER.

So decidedly does "Scarlet Days," which had its first showing yesterday at Grauman's, differ from any previous play by D. W. Griffith, that not until the final climax does it portray the style of the producer. This new Griffith production is a western, but it departs essentially from the average type seen on the screen, yet it is not distinctly marked with the Griffith touch, except in the closing episode of battering down doors for the sake of a woman. This strain is unmistakable, because it has been more or less apparent in every film initialed D.G., since the days of "The Birth of a Nation." It is always Griffith's safety valve for stirring the pulses with excitement.

There is no denying the amount of atmosphere and color, very much like "The Girl of the Golden West," which the producer has made a part of the opening section of the story. There are a multitude of film types, all clearly drawn, and cast with accuracy, who lend dramatic force to the rather slow-moving action. There is picturesqueness and a deal of highly-tinted romance attached to the portrayal of the 49 period, but the general undercurrent is commonplace. It is the characterizations which really relieve a monotonous sequence of incidents.

Richard Barthelmess achieves an effective make-up as the bandit, Alvarez. Clarine Seymour in a dowdy role, furnished some of the lighter moments in the play, which culminate in a tragedy for her. Carol Dempster makes an all-girl picture as the daughter of Rosy Neil of the dance hall, who is ignorant of her mother's sensational past. Especially strong is the characterization of Walter Long as King Bagley. Ralph Graves gives a poetic type of miner.

The programme surrounding the feature is attractive in music and novelty.

Griffith's western is interesting chiefly because he has transferred his usual plot form to a different locale, and has manifested his customary acumen in giving life to the past.

CONNIE VAMPS IN SPARKLING FILM PLAY.

We all know there have been people who were born witn that "come-hither look" in their eyes, and as for flirting, why "it just flirts itself!" That's the theme of "The Virtuous Vamp," at Tally's, with Constance Talmadge placed with most sweet consistency in the leading role. "Connie" as the heroine has those talkative eyes that nobody let alone herself can make behave, and that jazz up her fate from 6 to 16. In fact we catch her vamping at the first named age when she's coaxing a busy fireman in the midst of the San Francisco disaster of 1906 to "carry her far away from here."

By which incident it will be seen that Clyde Fitch's play "The Batchelor," has been jerked right up to date by Anita Loos and John Emerson. Also its sex has been somewhat changed, so to speak, as the batchelor role has been made secondary to that of the young lady who stenogs, as well as works her eyes on everybody from boss to office boy in the establishment where she is employed.

Delightful, fresh, bubbling—in fact use any of the frothy adjectives you like, and you'll be quite safe in applying them all to "The Virtuous Vamp." Beside an amusing story in which a young lady high in English society camouflages herself as a stenographer, wins the love of her employer, is snubbed by the haughty sisters, and pays them back in kind. Miss Loos and Mr. Emerson have given the story a hundred touches of their own whimsical originality, making "The Virtuous Vamp" by miles and miles the best picture in which the ineffable "Connie" has appeared in many moons.

That fascinating young leading man, Conway Tearle, plays the more or less vamp-proof "bachelor" while an engaging youth named Karns is bound to spring soon into stellar fame through his work as Connie's kid brother.

ORPHEUM BILL RUNS IN HIGHEST HIGH.

There's some grand jazzerie at the Orpheum this week, furnished principally, of course, by the famous U. S. Jazz Band, consisting of twenty-five accomplished and pepful youths, who discourse music all the way from semi-classic to wildest rags. In this, at the height of enthusiasm, everything and everybody jazzes, with the boys tossing musical instruments, and even the piano stool, into the air. That handsome leader, Ensign Alfred J. Moore, wins both on looks and work.

There's a new bit of fluff in the sister act known as Flo and Ollie Walters, that's going to be grabbed off as a musical comedy or picture star some day. She's the nutty one, and one might call her a nut-sundae, because, besides being all to the T.N.T. she's a sweet youngster as well. You can't see whether she's really pretty or not, for her mugging, but I suspect she is. Both girls sing, dance and kid adorably and are a tremendous hit.

Ben Mann has a trick hat, but there's a lot under it, and he and his partner Hazel Mann get a lot of noise with their sidewalk act in which the woman is a dainty foil for Mann's clever foolery.

Ciccolini, the noted Italian grand opera tenor, comes trailing clouds of glory in the way of billing as "star" of Chicago and other well-known grand opera companies. He met with a warm reception yesterday, and while it was understood he was not in his usual form, he brought ferver and dramatic feeling as well as vocal beauty to Massenet's Elegie and the other numbers.

Saronoff and his violin peaches are still a big hit.

NEW ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS.

Thomas H. Ince was yesterday elected general manager and Mack Sennett treasurer of the new organization of motion picture producers, which is to be known as the Associated Producers. The members of the new organization, who were also present at the first meeting, are Mr. Ince, Mr. Sennett, George Loane Tucker, Marshall Neilan, Allan Dwan and Maurice Tourneur.

The new organization is one of the most important in the picture industry in recent years. The rentals on the combined products of the members represent a total of $20,000,000 annually, it is stated, and they will distribute this year about forty pictures.

The object of the organization, as explained yesterday by Mr. Ince and Mr. Sennett, is to eliminate the middle man in distribution and to bring together the producer and exhibitor, in the mutual interests of both. Each picture produced will be rented to theater owners strictly on its merits and on an open market basis. Another result which, it is said, will be achieved by the new organization is that the producer will be able to make bigger, better and more artistic pictures, as each one will completely finance his own pictures, and will not be limited in the amount of money he is to spend on each production.

Goldwyn Announces.

Negotiations have just been completed which mark the entry of large financial interests into the Goldywn Pictures Corporation, now one of the largest producing and distributing companies in the world.

Announcement was made yesterday from the Goldwyn studios that the new interests which will be identified with the company are represented by H. F. Dupont, vice-president of the Dupont Powder Company, Eugene E. Dupont, W. W. Laird, of Laird & Co., of Wilmington, Del., R. R. M. Carpenter, vice-president of the Dupont Powder Company, C. C. Kurtz, vice-president of the Wilmington Trust Company, E. V. R. Thayer, president of the Chase National Bank, Duncan A. Holmes, vice-president of the Chase Securities Corporation, William Topkis, George T. Bissell, G. W. Davidson, of the Central Union Trust Company, MacMillan Hoopes, Abbott M. Whittenberg, of the H. Content & Co.

These men will be actively identified with the business of the Goldwyn Corporation, and will act on the directorate in addition to the present board.

As announced some time ago, the Goldwyn company has acquired for film production the rights to all the J. J. and Lee Shubert and A. H. Woods plays, with these gentlemen becoming also officers of the Goldwyn organization.

Philharmonic Pop Concert.

The third popular concert of the Philharmonic Orchestra, Sunday afternoon at Trinity, again proved the growing fondness of the public for good music, as the house was practically filled, and the people received the musicians with an appreciation which crystallized in the demand for two encores. Mr. Rothwell gave a very spirited reading of the opening number, "The Wedding March" from "Midsummer-night's Dream," that discounted its banality. The orchestra repeated the symphonic poem, "Les Preludes" given at the opening concert, with equally brilliant results. The Massenet selections "Under the Lindens" from the "Alsatian Scenes" was a delight, especially in the 'cello portion by Ilya Bronson. Mr. Raimondi played the clarinet part. Some excellent incidental solo work was done by Sylvain Noack, the concertmaster, in the "Berceuse" by Jarnefelt. The "Peer Gynt" suite No. 1 was generally approved by the audience, who stayed to hear a repetition of "In the Hall of the Mountain King." Alfred Kastner was the soloist of the afternoon, revealing his fine technique and lightness of touch to advantage in the Saint-Saens' Fantasia for Harp in A Minor.

Alhambra.

"The Last of the Duanes," featuring William Farnum, started on its second week with an unusually large audience at the Alhambra Theater. William Farnum, supported by an excellent cast, makes the most of the splendid dramatic possibilities which the production affords.

A comedy of the better sort, an educational weekly and the topics of current events complete the programme.

Poole With Rothapfel.

S. L. Rothapfel, director of the California Theater, has appointed Mr. Robert H. Poole as his assistant with the title of managing director.

PHILLIPS GOES EAST WITH HIS NEW PLAY.

With the revised manuscript of a four-act play, "The Dawning of Truth," a dramatization from a new novel of the same name, Thomas Phillips will leave Los Angeles today for New York. The author is Narasha Navarre, who has done most of her recent writing in this city.

In New York Mr. Phillips will complete arrangements for the initial production of the play at the National Theater in Washington, D. C., on December 29. Miss Navarre left Los Angeles for New York yesterday, and will arrange for the publication of her novel, which will be one of the books of the coming season.

TO COMPLETE SALE.

Title to Mercantile Place will be Given in Few Days.

Within the next few days, Mercantile Place will be turned over to its new owners, according to Charles J. McCormick, chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Education. The abstract of title will be completed this week, Mr. McCormick said, and as soon as this is accomplished the formal transfer will be made. The sale of Mercantile Place netted the Board of Education $1,155,000, which will become a part of the school fund, to be used in the repair of the schoolhouses.

NEW LEGION OFFICERS.

Victory Post Holds Election and Adopts Official Song.

Officers were elected last night by the Victory Post No. 54, of the American Legion at a meeting held in the Enlisted Men's Club in the Trinity Hotel. At the meeting a new song, dedicated to the Legion, was sung by the Grauman Trio, consisting of "a Hardhead, a Leatherneck and a Gob." The song was written by two local boys.

The elected officers of the organization are Leo D. Daze, president; Monro Montgomery, vice-president; Clifford Henderson, vice-president; Benjamin Bogardus, secretary; John P. Haynor, treasurer. The Executive Committee of nine consists of Paul F. Collins, Earl O. Barnett, Dan Hogan, A. C. Houghton, Harry E. Insley, Charles L. Lewis, Frank R. Seaver, Mark R. Tuban and J. V. Wagoner.

DUPONT TO BACK GOLDWYN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—One of the most important announcements in the history of the motion-picture industry was made today with the completion of negotiations which mark the entry of huge financial interests into the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, making it one of the largest film concerns in the world. The new interests are headed by the Dupont powder millions.

The list includes: H. F. Dupont, president of the Dupont Powder Company; Eugene Dupont; W. W. Laird, of Laird & Co., Wilmington; R. R. M. Carpenter, vice-president of the Dupont Company; C. C. Kurtz, vice-president of the Wilmington Trust Company; E. V. R. Thayer, president of the Chase National Bank of New York; William Tomkins; George T. Bissell; Duncan A. Holmes, vice-president of the Chase Securities Corporation; G. W. Dvilason, vice-president of the Central Union Trust Company; MacMillan Hoopes, and Abbott M. Wittenberg, of H. Content & Co.

These men will be actively engaged with the business of the Goldwyn Company, and will act on the directorate. In addition to the millions they represent, they will make this company financially probably the strongest and most powerful organization of its kind in the United States.

This new development in the Goldwyn Corporation will mean an increase of capital stock to an authorized amount of 1,000,000 shares, of which there is intended to be presently outstanding about 450,000 shares.

Goldwyn announced a short time ago that the Lee and J. J. Shubert and A. H. Woods theatrical interests, controlling more than half of the stage productions made in this country, had become officers of the company, and would reserve all of the plays which they have produced and intend to produce in the future.

Samuel Goldwyn resigned as chairman of the board of directors of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation to organize his own company in 1916. Some of the greatest stars and authors are on the staff of Goldwyn.

The Culver City studios, near Los Angeles, the largest single studio grouping in the world, were recently acquired by this company. Production has also been started in New York City, and definite plans are nearing completion for an equally large studio and laboratory there.

LOVELY WOMAN.

TOURNEUR MAKES HER FASCINATING AT CLUNE'S.

By Grace Kingsley.

With lovely woman as a theme, and especially with it advertised that Eve, in the original birthday clothes, was on the programme, naturally, Maurice Tourneur's latest photodramatic spectacle, "Woman," packed Clune's Auditorium to the doors last night, men making up about two-thirds of the audience. Men are always so anxious to study women, providing the lesson be entirely painless!

Pictorially, "Woman" is a marvel of beauty; photodramatically, it is full of the vital, vigorous, natural action for which Mr. Tourneur's productions are noted; dramatically it is, of course, episodic, and the picture might almost as well have been called "Love" as "Woman," since all the episodes except one deal with famous love stories.

These stories begin with Adam and Eve, with Eve very lovely and Mr. Tourneur giving her a good excuse for eating the apple in the hope she might see something besides the dull swinish Adam, which Mr. Tourneur has visualized. Then there are the very naughty Messalina and her stern husband, Claudius; Abelard and Heloise; Cyrene and the fisherman, and the girl and the captured officer in the South. Naturally, being episodic, the picture has no climatical value, as a whole. Also, it would appear at the end that it was only because of the war that women were made good!

The picture begins with a modern man reading a book all about women, and, really, I think that man must have had a naughty mind, because he picked out all the bad ones to read about! This, of course, excepting Eve, whom everybody is willing to stipulate was merely curious.

The undisputed strength of the feature lies in the marvelous vitality and naturalness of the characters and action, the swiftness and clearness with which each story is told. It is wonderfully spectacular, also.

The feature is preceded by a prologue highly original in its presentation, since the same settings are made to represent consecutively—by the mere shifting of small props, by some lovely property girls—Damascus, a market place, a court yard, a harem, etc. This prologue has to do with a fat Damascan who goes to get apples at the whim of his lady love, only to have it reported to him after he has traveled 400 miles through the hot sun for them, that his wife says he is a pig! Well, of course, after that, nobody is going to expect much of the ladies who appear in the picture.

WANT MEETING HERE.

Greeters Discuss Plans to Capture Next National Convention.

"A real fish dinner" was served last night to the Greeters by Gus Mann at the opening of his new Marine Cafe at 617 South Spring street. The Greeters met to nominate candidates for officers for the coming year and were the guests of Mr. Mann, who recently took over Jim's Chowder House.

The big question under discussion at the meeting was the campaign to bring the Pacific Coast division of The Greeters to Los Angeles for their convention two months hence. It is planned by the local organization to hold the meeting here to prepare for the national convention, which they hope to secure for next year.

Ten members from other parts of the United States were present at last night's festivities. There are a number of outside hotel men in the city at this time and the association is using every means to have them look favorably on this city for the next big convention.

FOR CURB WORK.

Council Approves Ordinances for Many Improvements.

Ordinances were adopted by the City Council yesterday establishing the curb lines for Gower street, from Melrose avenue to Temple street; El Centro avenue, from Melrose avenue to Temple street; Larchmont boulevard, from Melrose avenue to Temple street; Vine streets, from Rosewood avenue to Temple street; north side of Temple street, from Gower to Vine streets.

The Council also adopted ordinances for the improvement of Maplewood avenue, between Wilton place and Van Ness avenue; the Melrose Hill improvement district; Lexington avenue, between Gordon and Gower streets; and the assessment district map for sewers in Sixtieth street, from San Pedro street to South Park avenue, was approved. The City Engineer was instructed to prepare an ordinance for the improvement of Hobart boulevard by private contract from Sunset boulevard to a point 610 feet north.

FOR HEATING PLANT.

Commissioner Suggests Using Gas for New Hospital System.

Los Feliz Hospital needs a new heating plant, and $2000 for this purpose was placed in the current municipal budget. Health Commissioner Powers informed the City Council yesterday that on account of the increased prices it will cost $4500 to install a plant.

He also reported that gas is piped to within about 5300 feet of the hospital and that it might be cheaper to install a gas-heating system. He asked that estimates on the two systems be compared. The request was sent to the Finance Committee.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that meat forms uric acid, which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Calomel, the most successful liver medicine, has been robbed of its griping, and nauseating effects. Calotabs, the new name, makes calomel-taking a real pleasure.

In future ask your druggist for Calotabs, the de-nauseated calomel tablet. He is authorized to refund the price if you are not "perfectly delighted" with Calotabs. One tablet on the tongue at bedtime, with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no salts nor unpleasantness of any kind. You wake up in the morning feeling fine, with a hearty appetite. Eat what you please and go about your work, no danger.

To Have Smooth, White Soft Skin All Winter

Does your skin chap or roughen easily in this weather, or become unduly red or blotchy? Here is a quick, easy way to overcome the trouble and keep your complexion beautifully white, smooth and soft the winter long. Just get an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax at the nearest drug store and use a little before retiring, as you would apply cold cream. Upon arising, remove the coating with sudsy water. The wax, through some peculiar attribute, flecks off the rough, discolored or blemished skin. The worn-out cuticle comes off just like dandruff, only in almost invisible particles. Mercolized wax simply hastens Nature's work. Used as required, it keeps the face constantly free from devitalized scarf skin and only the healthy, young-looking skin is in evidence. It's the best treatment known for weather-beaten, aged, muddy, freckled, pimpled and all unbeautiful complexions.

Actually Removes Hair Roots—Something New!

(Harmless Method; Works "Like Magic")

To have the superfluous hairs come out, roots and all, before one's very eyes, sounds almost too good to be true. Yet many thousands of women have proved to their own satisfaction that this can be accomplished—easily, quickly, harmlessly—by means of the wonderful phelactine process.

This method is not to be compared at all with any liquid, powder or paste, nor with electrolysis or anything else. Nothing like it ever originated. It causes the hairs to come out entire, roots included, leaving the skin smooth and hairless as a babe's. Phelactine is non-odorous, non-irritating, non-poisonous—a child could safely eat it. Get a small stick of phelactine from your druggist today, follow the simple instructions and you will have a most agreeable surprise.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to flush Kidneys if Back hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority, who tells us that meat forms uric acid, which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids, to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

WORLD MOVES FORWARD WITH LONG STRIDES

Peace Has Its Victories No Less Than War — Science Robs Calomel of Its Nauseating Qualities. "Calotabs" the New Name.

Here is good news for the sixteen hundred millions of people in the world who have livers to be cleansed, systems to be purified and biliousness, constipation and indigestion to be corrected. Calomel, the most successful liver medicine, has been robbed of its griping, and nauseating effects. Calotabs, the new name, makes calomel-taking a real pleasure.

In future ask your druggist for Calotabs, the de-nauseated calomel tablet. He is authorized to refund the price if you are not "perfectly delighted" with Calotabs. One tablet on the tongue at bedtime, with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no salts nor unpleasantness of any kind. You wake up in the morning feeling fine, with a hearty appetite. Eat what you please and go about your work, no danger.

To Have Smooth, White Soft Skin All Winter

Does your skin chap or roughen easily in this weather, or become unduly red or blotchy? Here is a quick, easy way to overcome the trouble and keep your complexion beautifully white, smooth and soft all winter long. FITTS CALLED TO WASHINGTON

Government to Discuss Plans of American Legion.

Anti-I.W.W. Tour Postponed by Special Prosecutor.

Red-Flag Appeal Case Taken Under Advisement.

Buron R. Fitts, first vice-president of the American Legion of California, and a special deputy district attorney, appointed to prosecute I.W.W. cases, will leave tonight or tomorrow for Washington, D.C., to attend a conference called by the Federal government. Mr. Fitts had intended to start for Sacramento today to urge drastic laws for vagrancy as a means of fighting the I.W.W., but he received a telegram from Fred F. Bebergall, State secretary of the American Legion, calling him East.

The conference will be held from December 8 to 15. It is to consider war risk insurance, resolutions recently passed by the American Legion at Minneapolis and pending legislation.

Mr. Fitts will carry with him a resolution passed by the American Legion in this State asking why the I.W.W. printing shops at Chicago and Newcastle, Pa., are permitted to run.

STAND ON UNIONS.

The stand of the American Legion in this State regarding labor unions and the I.W.W. was explained in an address by Mr. Fitts yesterday before the War Mothers at the Broadway Department Store.

He said in part: "The issue presented to every person today is that of Americanism. The American Legion recognizes that in all America there is no room for radicalism, Bolshevism or I.W.W.-ism, there is room for only one "ism" and that is plain, unadulterated 100 per cent. Americanism.

"We assume no position which either favors or opposes capital or labor. That is a fight with which we have no concern. It is recognized that the I.W.W. are as violently opposed to organized labor and unions as they are to capital and the employers. They openly accuse the heads of the present unions of being corruptly affiliated with capitalism.

"This organization is, therefore, the bitter enemy of labor, capital and our very government. Its members have no sympathy with the principles of either. It is with this common enemy of all that the American Legion takes issue. That person or organization which seeks to overthrow and destroy, by violence, bloodshed and a reign of terrorism, the very principles for which thousands of our comrades laid down their lives, will always find a continuous and determined opposition from the American Legion."

RED-FLAG APPEAL.

It was not necessary to show that Dave Weifman and Anna Hartman, convicted in police court of violation of the "red flag" ordinance, actually took part in the radical speaking at Scheutzen Park last May 1, according to argument presented yesterday in Judge Willis's court, during a hearing on an appeal. A jury in Police Judge Chambers's court found the two defendants guilty and the court sentenced them to 120 days each in the City Jail. They appealed, attacking the "red flag" ordinance as unconstitutional. This is the first case under this ordinance taken up on appeal.

After hearing argument yesterday, Judge Willis took the case under advisement for a few days. Chaim Shapiro and J. H. Ryckman, attorneys for the defense, held that the ordinance is unconstitutional and that the City Prosecutor at the original trial did not show that the defendants took part in the speaking. They also held that the prosecution did not show that I.W.W. and Bolshevik doctrines are antagonistic to the government of the United States.

Chief Deputy City Prosecutor Pendegast and Deputies Krowl and Taggart held that the avowed purpose for which hundreds of persons attended the "proletariat" picnic, and the fact that three red flags were raised at the park, although the American flag was not, showed the participants and speakers were antagonistic to the government. It was also declared whenever anyone at the picnic said anything favorable to the government, he was hooted down.

FLYING AS INDUSTRY.

Mercury Company Tells History of Commercial Aviation.

A handbook entitled "Flying, the New Industry," has been published by the Mercury Aviation Company, of which Cecil B. DeMille is president. The whole history of commercial aviation is shown by the story of the large local company.

The publication, which is one of the first of its kind to appear in print, explains the many ways in which aircraft are now successfully used, and outlines the possibilities of the future. It deals with the establishing of landing fields and is also a prospectus of the School of Aeronautics now in session at the De Mille field.

The pamphlet was printed by The Times-Mirror Company.

CALLS ON FOX AGAIN.

The "woman of mystery," who came here from New York to help George A. Fox, in his appeal to the State Supreme Court, was again a visitor at the County Jail yesterday. Fox, it was said, since her arrival, has changed his mind about giving up his appeal. The woman held a conference with Fox yesterday, and, it was intimated, may finance the appeal.

TO CHECK UP ON RADICALS.

Appeal is Made to All Who Have Any Information on "Red" Activities.

Anybody having information regarding radical societies, or meetings of the I.W.W., California Defense League, Bolshevism, "red flag" or socialistic organizations, please report to postoffice box 388 Station C.

All communications will be held as confidential and informant must sign letter, as no attention will be paid to anonymous reports.

Please give telephone number and address, so an investigation may be made.

TOPHAM TO TELL OF FIGHTING THE "REDS."

What the local engineers are doing to oppose the I.W.W. and Bolshevist propaganda in Los Angeles will be the subject of John Topham, who is to be toastmaster tonight at the annual banquet of the California Association, No. 2, National Association of Stationary Engineers, at the Roma Cafe. Two hundred guests are expected to participate in this banquet. Thomas J. Herlihy will preside and other addresses will be made by Roderick MacKay, of the Los Angeles Aqueduct, who last year was president of the National Association, and H. R. Hilton, engineer of the Central Building.

STUDENTS FLAY REDS.

Deportation or Prison is Urged by Southwestern Men.

A resolution, demanding the deportation or imprisonment of all I.W.W.'s, was unanimously adopted last night by the student body of Southwestern University, School of Law and School of Commerce and Accounts, at the annual "high jinks" held at the Gamut Club.

The resolution urged the officials to "remove from our midst this lawless organization by deporting all those members who are aliens, and prosecuting to the limit all those who are native Americans, so that the world may know that sedition, murder, destruction of property and disobedience to the law are not, and never will be, tolerated in the United States."

Copies of the resolution were sent to the U. S. District Attorney, the District Attorney of Los Angeles County, the Board of Supervisors and the Mayor.

MRS. CATT TO DEPART.

Suffragist Leader will Leave Today for Albuquerque Meeting.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, will leave this morning for Albuquerque, N. M., to join the other members of her party, who left yesterday for the New Mexico city to attend a conference of suffragists there. Mrs. Catt and her party have been in conference here for several days with the leading suffragists of this section, and have participated in a number of public meetings.

Miss Marjorie Shuler, Dr. Valeria Parker, Mrs. E. Jean Nelson Penfield and Mrs. Jessie Haver, with Mrs. Catt, are touring the country in the interests of suffrage. In States that have not yet ratified the national amendment they have made efforts to learn why, and are urging on suffrage associations throughout the country the necessity for laws that will be of benefit to women and children.

EASTERN VISITOR PRAISES SOUTHLAND.

NEW YORKER SAYS WE ARE LEADING NATION IN THE GROWING LINE.

Los Angeles came in for wholesome praise from Irving S. Farian upon his arrival yesterday from New York. Mr. Farian is the general representative of Hamburger's in New York.

"Everybody is coming to California," said Mr. Farian. "The trains are jammed. Every available accommodation is taken for weeks in advance. And no wonder! With the coal shortage growing more acute every hour, and zero weather threatening the whole territory, the possibility of a recurrence of the influenza epidemic staring the country in the face and the balmy suns of California beckoning invitingly, it's no wonder 'Westward, Ho!' is the slogan of half the nation.

"And it was simply amazing when I reached town to note the activity, the hustle and bustle here since my last visit. While things are booming to a degree in the East, it is nothing to be compared with Los Angeles. Chicago is busy, but there is complaint in some quarters of a lack of business."

Mr. Farian spoke of a possible reduction in the higher cost of living rather doubtfully. Eventually, he thought, prices would come down, but not for at least a year.

"High prices, in my estimation," he declared, "will continue as long as labor unrest is as big a factor as it is today, especially in the eastern centers. But it is a hopeful sign that the demand for fine goods is without a precedent."

SCORES TORREY SERMON.

A special committee appointed by the Methodist Minister's Association yesterday, in a meeting held in the Epworth League room in Trinity Auditorium, heard strong denunciation of the recent sermon of Dr. R. A. Torrey of the Bible Institute, in which Dr. Torrey criticised President Wilson. Later the committee adopted a resolution denouncing all persons who seek to cause international difficulties.

The special meeting was called to hear the answer by Dr. C. C. Selecman, pastor of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to Dr. Torrey's sermon. Dr. Selecman contended that the church should be the steadying, stabilizing force in the community, that loyalty should be preached and practiced by the church, and that inciting the people to radicalism should be stopped.

The report of the special committee on Dr. Selecman's answer read: "Be it resolved, that we indorse the public statement made by Dr. Selecman in his sermon, 'The Church of These Troubled Times.'"

WEATHERING THE STORM

Investments that are standing up firm during the present market liquidation are worthy of consideration. California Delta Farms holds consistently close to its highest sale point. The reason is that it is a security based on land and will soon begin to distribute its assets to its stockholders. Nets over 8 percent. from land rentals alone and should eventually pay out at a 15 per-cent. profit.

DAILY TRADE TALK.

Los Angeles is Financial Mecca; Many Attractive Opportunities.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

Los Angeles continues to be the mecca toward which eastern financial houses are attracted by reason of the big business which is developing in this city. There have been a number of such additions during the past half year. One of the latest is the Globle Syndicate, a New York house, which specializes in high-class bonds and preferred stock, public utilities, cities, corporation and joint stock land bank bonds, a species of investments not heretofore placed to any considerable extent on this Coast.

Western executive offices have been opened in Suite 320, Title Insurance Building, and at the present time the president of the syndicate, T. A. Frey; Edward B. Hinckley, manager of the bond department; William K. Detwiller, vice-president, and Ed P. Shaw, assistant secretary and manager of the local office, are all in the city, laying plans for an extensive selling campaign, and building up the office staff.

President Frey said yesterday that Los Angeles offered one of the best investment fields in the country, in fact he is so impressed with the city that he has purchased a home and plans to spend as much of his time here as the business will permit.

The formal opening of the new branch is announced today, and three of the initial offerings of the company constitute a $100,000 issue of first mortgage 6 per cent. bonds of the Western Maine Power Company, a Maine public utility corporation, and legal investments for savings banks in that State. This issue is priced at $98 and interest to yield 6.20 per cent. Arkansas Light and Power Company, $750,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. gold bonds. This company supplies twenty-one Arkansas towns. The bonds are offered subject to prior sale or increase in price at $93.50, to yield about 6.50 per cent. Another attractive issue is a $300,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the Central Maine Power Company, also a legal investment for Maine savings banks under the rigid laws of that Commonwealth. This stock is priced at $107.50 to yield 6.51 per cent.

The Stock Market.

The local market yesterday was perilously balanced and filled with possibilities. It would have taken very little to send it up and even less to send it down. It was as uncertain as the probable steerage of a jumping cat. Nothing happened, however, and the day ended with prices averaging just a shade stronger, and with some evidence of accumulating confidence. Liberties were still very low, and the trading in them was almost at the vanishing point. Seconds 4 1-4's sold at $91.50; Fourth 4 1-4's sold at $91.75 and Victories at $98.75. Ten shares of Security Trust were traded in at $305. Associated was weak around $107, declining in the afternoon to sales at $106.50. Republic Petroleum weakened off from an opening of 28½ cents to sales at 27 3-4 cents, the closing bid. Union Oil was fairly active around $178, but Union of Delaware continued to show little strength and sold down to $35.75, with a bid of $35. National Pacific was a little stronger and was in demand at 13 cents. United was down to 69 cents, with a closing bid of 70 cents. Los Angeles Investment led the industrials and was wanted at 88 cents, considerable stock changing hands at that figure. Union Sugar opened at $53.75 and sold up to $54. Mines were weak. United Eastern sold down to $3.85 and Tom Reed to $1.62½. There was some activity in the cheap Oatman's on a declining market.

Bank Clearings.

Bank clearings started the month by maintaining the $10,000,000 average which prevailed in November. The total yesterday was $10,431,192.99, an increase of $3,876,602.64 over the corresponding day a year ago.

Wire Trouble.

Wire trouble persisted yesterday because of storm conditions in the East and Middle West, and leased wire houses were considerably embarrassed in consequence. Because of these difficulties some quotations are missing this morning.

Birthday Celebration.

Three months isn't a very long life, but the investment security house of Hunsaker and Woodmancy is such a sturdy infant that the anniversary was celebrated yesterday at the firm's offices in the Mason Building with an old-fashioned house warming. Each of the partners has won his spurs in the investment fields of eastern cities. They are especially interested in oil field enterprises and have specialized in this class of securities. Royalties is their hobby, a line, which they claim, is but little understood in California. A block of Triangle Oil royalty has recently been successfully floated and new issues are in contemplation.

Inglewood Issue.

E. H. Rollins and Sons are participants in the distribution of a $217,000 City of Inglewood water works 5½ per cent. bonds. These bonds are dated December 1; tax exempt in California; in denominations of $1000; mature from 1924 to 1959 inclusive and are priced to yield about 4.90 per cent.

Recapitulation.

The business of the Los Angeles stock exchange for November totaled $3,637,072.98, representing a turnover of 1,297,406 shares. Oils led the list with a total of 875,890 shares valued at $2,703,089.38. Bonds were next in point of value, $387,331.30 for 2136 certificates. Industrials involved $325,152 for 41,414 shares. Mining, $166,657.71 for 377,794 shares, and banks $54,342.50 for 172 shares.

Poor Man's Club.

A Colorado man has succeeded in endowing the lowly street car with a social status. He likens them to club rooms and ventures to pity the man or woman who does not ride in them. "Sure," he says; "I belong. In my share of the course of human events I have been a joiner many times, but my most satisfactory experience in that line was when I entered the Ancient, Honorable, Imperial and Democratic Consolidated Order of the Sixcenters. It is a large order in more sense than one.

"Anybody can get in, for we are not at all exclusive. Anybody who stays out has nobody to blame but himself, and I really feel sorry for the outsiders who shut themselves out of our society and miss all the pleasant companionship and associations of our lodge and club room.

"Oh, yes; we have an elegant club room, electrically warmed and lighted, well furnished, well ventilated, artistically decorated with pictures and library of universal knowledge equal to the best. And the surprising thing is that our club room is movable, so that we go from place to place, according to our pleasures and necessities, quite in the fashion of the magic carpet of the Arabian Knights. Honest, we do.

"To and fro throughout the day and far into the night, the moving clubhouses of our order go, bearing the work and the pleasure, the griefs and the joys, the successes and the failures of our city. They have their part in all that makes life worth living, in all that makes life worth losing. I pity the man or the woman who doesn't ride in the street cars."

Investment Bankers

R. H. Moulton, heading the firm of R. H. Moulton & Co., and George C. Stephens, head of Stephens & Co., have realized for some time the necessity for an active, working local branch or chapter of the Investment Bankers' Association of America. They have succeeded in interesting bond men throughout the State in the enterprise, and recently attended a preliminary meeting in San Francisco. It is estimated by Mr. Moulton that at least fifty firms should become charter members. The object of the organization would be precisely that of the national body; uniformity of action in handling securities; to assist in helpful legislation; protection from loss by crime, or through willful or irresponsible dealers, and to surround the members generally, as well as the public, with safeguards in the matter of securities. Los Angeles firms already affiliated with the national organization include Blankenhorn-Hunter-Lulin Company, Blyth, Witter & Co., R. H. Moulton & Co., National City Company, Perrin, Drake and Riley, Inc., E. H. Rollins and Sons, William R. Staats Company, Stephens & Co., Torrance, Marshall & Co.

The Wheat Situation.

According to the advance sheets of the Northwestern Miller it is hard to trace any specific results in the flour market as yet from the announcement that import and export embargoes on wheat and flour would all be removed December 15. So far as exports are concerned, it seems to be generally felt that the removal of the embargo will have little immediate effect, as most of the business with the leading European nations will presumably have to be conducted for some time yet through the government agency. As for imports, nobody yet knows what Canada will do; but Canada is certainly short of the best milling grades of spring wheat, and even if

TRADING ACTIVE ON THE PRODUCE MARKET.

CAULIFLOWER, CELERY AND LETTUCE DECLINE; OTHER PRICES FIRM.

Trading was very active on the local produce market yesterday, and prices for good produce advanced to higher levels under the brisk demand. Shipping stock and fancy produce was snapped up early in the session by the buyers for the wholesale houses, who paid prices higher than those of Saturday's market in many instances, in order to get enough of this grade of produce to fill their requirements. The late arrivals were of poorer quality, but owing to the fact that they were light, the market did not weaken at the end, and prices closed firm for most varieties of produce.

Cauliflower arrivals were heavy yesterday, and many of the offerings were of inferior quality, with the result that prices showed a wide range. By the dozen heads cauliflower sold from 90 cents to $1.50. Field crates of good quality, however, held firm at Saturday's prices of $3 and $3.50 each.

It is confidently expected by the management that the Common Stock will ultimately advance to such a price as will make the conversion feature of great value. (See below.)

We strongly recommend this security for the following reasons:

1. The corporation has a thoroughly established business.
2. This Preferred stock is a prior obligation upon all of the corporation's net tangible assets, totaling more than $43,000,000.00. Substantial sinking fund designed to retire issue at premium of ten per cent. (For safeguarding provisions ask for circular.)
3. Corporation owns large factories at Toledo, Ohio; Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Syracuse, N. Y. and Elizabeth, N. J. Additions now being made to Elizabeth plant, will make it largest single-unit factory in United States, with capacity of over 500 finished automobiles per day, employing approximately 7,500 men.
4. Corporation's business divided into three main divisions:
   (a) Electric Auto-Lite Division—Organized 1911, largest manufacturer in world of electric starting and lighting systems for automobiles and of home generating electric light plants for use on farms, etc.

5. Present earnings from Auto-Lite and New Process Gear Division are at rate of $6,000,000 per annum, or five times amount necessary to pay 8 per cent dividend on this stock. These earnings are expected to be tremendously increased by earnings from automobile division, estimated at over $10,000,000 net, after Federal taxes for first full year of car operations, which together with present large profits of the other divisions, would bring earnings up to $16,000,000 net per year after taxes, or over 100 per cent on this issue.

ROTHAPFEL A HARMONIST.

The exhibitors cannot know what the public wants; neither does the public know what it wants; so it is the exhibitor's duty to give to the public the best that he possibly can.

The population of Los Angeles is not cosmopolitan, but is cosmo-American, and it is on this principle that I am building my programmes.

No, I have no sympathy with the hodge-podge programme; I believe that here should be a mood and a motif to every perfect picture entertainment—and that the feature, the music and the lights, should all be synchronized with the mood and motif.

In the future we shall not speak of exhibiting pictures, but of picture presentations; the day of circus performances in the photoplay theater is passing.

These are some of the tenets in the creed of S. L. Rothapfel, noted as the pathfinder in picture presentation, who won his title to greatness at the Rivoli and Rialto theaters in New York, and who has been invited to this city to supervise the reopening of the California Theater under new management. Mr. Rothapfel at the present time heads his own corporation, and his stay in this city will be limited to that time when he feels that the new theatrical enterprise is established.

His engagement here was negotiated just at the time he was planning a trip to Paris, whither he was called to consult with French picture producers on the presentation of features. He delayed his voyage at the solicitation of the Goldwyn corporation to assist in the christening of the new local house which they will take over from the Miller management this week.

HIS ENTHUSIASM.

The keystone of the Rothapfel structure of success has been enthusiasm. He is one of the few men who can make you forget himself and everyone else in the excitement over the idea. It is only by dint of perseverance that you can get him to relate anything of his own career. He'll slide off into an anecdote the first chance he has, and before you know it, he's telling you something about the future of pictures, and a new scheme for harmonizing of color and music with the action of a play.

"The chief factor in presenting of pictures is music," said Mr. Rothapfel. "It is the great thing. No other measures up with it. It is for this reason that I have enlarged the California orchestra, and have also made arrangements for the organization of a chorus.

"I believe that the day will come when all that is supplied by artificial means in pictures will be taken care of by the music. By this I mean the subtitles. It may not be possible to completely abolish the written word, but everything will make way for the idea picture, which is the supreme.

"Furthermore, the future of our presentations must center on keeping picture before the minds of the audience from the minute they enter the theater. In decorations, in lighting, in settings the picture must be ever amplified and emphasized. The entire scheme shall approximate one beautiful pictorial composition, growing out of harmony of ideas."

Mr. Rothapfel's creed is admittedly that of the idealist, but he is the type of idealist who never overlooks a practical point in working toward the end he desires. He has employed colored lighting with the greatest success in his picture presentations and, while he cannot carry this out on as large a plan as he desires at the theater here, he will embody it in his plan.

FILM AND STAGE.

One of the most unique lines of progress which Mr. Rothapfel points out is in the relation of the film to the future of stage entertainment. He believes that the day will come when the picture will be used for scenery. "Instead of having our scenery painted we will have it photographed. The settings will be thrown upon reflectors. The natural conditions will not be simulated, but actually reproduced.

"When certain events are spoken of in the play, they will be flashed on a screen as taking place to give greater reality to the action. Really, it is impossible to foretell how great a function the pictures will have in the future of the arts.

"In New York some of our presentations reached the quality of opera. It is by appealing to all the senses that you gain the greatest effect, and we sought to charm the eye, the ear, and perhaps, even to the finer sense of touch.

"Much of the future of presentation of pictures will depend on the closer relation established between the director of pictures and the so-called picture exhibitor. The essential outcome of such a union will be a better musical score. Sufficient time will be afforded for its preparation."

USED UNDERTAKER'S CHAIRS.

Mr. Rothapfel's experience in the picture business began some eleven or twelve years ago. At that time he lived in a small Pennsylvania town. "I used to exhibit in a small hall, that you had to travel down an alley, up some stairs, and over the roof to reach, as they say of the Samovar Cafe, in the Greenwich Village district. I used to borrow my chairs from an undertaking establishment, and every time there was a funeral in town we had to call off the show. It was really astonishing how many funerals there were.

"Later I engaged in picture exhibiting in Philadelphia, Milwaukee and other eastern cities. Finally I assumed the management of the New York theaters. At one time I also had a circuit about Indianapolis, but I have never regarded the circuit plan as a good idea because you cannot lend to it the personal touch.

"Do you know, I like to go back in my mind to the old days in that Pennsylvania town better than anything? I used to have to paint my own signs, and paste them up on the billboards, and take tickets, and furnish music, and everything else.

"Sometimes today I slip into a lunch counter and order a hamburger sandwich with onions on it just to recall the flavor of those days. My doctor says I'll kill myself some one of these days on those sandwiches, but I can't resist the temptation. I go into a big cafe and look at a bill of fare, and I can never see anything on it that I want. I generally tell the head waiter to bring me a good meal, and if he does I tip him, and if he doesn't I tell him to go to—well, I tell him it's his turn to move, anyhow."

It is this essentially human quality in Mr. Rothapfel's personality which makes him a delightful man to meet. He has tremendous faith in the public. He has even gone so far as to study individual faces in his audiences through an opera glass to find out what effect his picture was having. His firmest belief, however, is that you have to satisfy your own good taste before you can expect to please others.

On Historic Location.

With Mitchell Lewis resting, General Manager Cyrus J. Williams of the Lewis company has put a new producing unit in the field making five-reel features of original plays written by director Robert North Bradbury. The first of these is called "Hollyhocks" and is being filmed by Bradbury's players on location in the historic valley of Temecula, between Los Angeles and San Diego.

Corbett is Busy.

James J. Corbett is at work on the East Side streets of New York, reproduced at Universal City, producing "The Prince of Avenue A," under the direction of Jack Ford. For the ex-champion's first feature Universal has secured this play, by Frank and Charles T. Dazey, formerly used by Corbett on the stage. In his support will be seen Mary Warren, Harry Northrup, Richard Cummings, Frederick Vroom, Cora Drew, Johnnie Cooke, George Fisher and Lyria Yeamans Titus.

Rugs Closely Chaperoned.

Fifty thousand dollars' worth of rugs are used in the picture, "Flame of the Desert," starring Geraldine Farrar and Lou Tellegen, it is stated. This is the production that S. L. Rothapfel has selected for his open-

OPERA SEASON STIRS NERVES.

New Yorkers on Qui Vive for the Opening.

New Movie Show Bolstered up with Burlesque.

The High Cost of Theater Tickets this Year.

BY HARRY CARR.
[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—There is one event that can titillate even the jaded nerves of the New York theatergoers. That is the opening of the grand opera season. This year it will be "Tosca"—with Geraldine Farrar in the title role; Caruso as Mario, Scotti as Scarpia, Miss Arden as the shepherd, Mr. Malatesta as the sacristan, and Mr. De Angelo as Angellotti, Bada as Spoletta, Laurenti as the jailer. Robert Moranzoni will conduct the performance. There will be only eleven newcomers in the parterre or stockholders' circle of boxes this season. Among the new lessees are Mr. and Mrs. Reginald De Koven.

I don't know just why, but it seems to be the proper thing to be much excited about the occupants of the parterre boxes; so I am as excited as I can be—even if I knew what a parterre box was. What thrills me more is the fact that the grand opera this year will be $7 per. Some of the directors wanted to make the price about double that, but as the police reporters say when they report riots, "cooler heads prevailed." So it remains at a mere seven bones. When the heavy amusement tax is removed from theater tickets, I understand that the New York ticket speculators intend to raise the price of ordinary theater tickets to $4. With the war tax, they are now $3.30. The ticket speculators know that even the New York sucker public wouldn't stand for $4.40, but if the 30-cent tax is removed, they can shove it up to $4.

A REINFORCED SHOW.

These prices are only for the ordinary attractions. Anything for which there is an unusual demand for seats, like the Follies, costs a great deal more. When the new movie theater, the Capital, opened last week on Broadway, tickets sold all the way up to $10 each. I have an idea that the Capital is something of an experiment on the part of the movie magnates who are trying to corral all the picture theaters in the world. They want to see if movies can play at a dollar a ticket, reinforced by burlesque and vaudeville and played to enormous audiences. Wherefore they built the Capital, the largest playhouse in the world. It seats 5300 persons and the screen is so far away from the

Windows Worth Studying

The "California" believes that the people of Southern California are very much interested in the "Better Homes" idea. We accept it as our responsibility to encourage this interest because the public looks to this store as the authority on what is new and correct for the home.

We appreciate that our window displays provide one of the most effective avenues at our command for the accomplishment of this service. And so, ever since this store first opened its doors to the public, our windows have been dedicated to the encouragement of more culture, more refinement, more attractiveness in the home.

True enough our windows are intended as a reflection of the character of home furnishings you will find on our floors, but that object is secondary to the all important purpose of constantly instilling into the public mind by the power of suggestion a deeper interest in the "Home Beautiful."

We hope you will study our windows not merely for the profit we may derive therefrom but for the helpful, useful suggestions they may offer you.

For this week we have prepared two very exceptional window displays. - One shows a magnificent living room suite of the Louis XV period. It is in solid mahogany—one of the most extraordinary examples of fine hand carving and master cabinet making the "California" has ever presented. The other window shows a wonderful richly carved dining room suite of beautifully marked, specially selected walnut in the Louis XIV period.

THROUGH THE WIDOW'S LORGNETTE.

Every Wife's Job.

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

"Do I look saintly, and spirituelle, and ethereal—and all that, Mr. Cutting?" inquired the Widow, rising from her chair with languid grace, and an expression of sweet appeal.

"What on earth have you done to your HAIR?" he demanded, in a voice of shocked amazement.

"I'm doing it according to a man's 'ideal,'" explained the Widow, turning to glance in the mirror, and patting her sleek and demurely-parted locks, with a complacent smile. "The sweet, sanctified, madonna fashion——"

"Bunk!" the Bachelor exploded, bluntly. "You're no more the Madonna type than—than I am!" And he stretched his vast length in the low-cushioned chair, before the crackling fire, with a sigh of comfort.

"Not in YOUR bright visions, perhaps, Mr. Cutting," admitted the Widow, camouflaging her chagrin, "but every man has a different 'ideal,' you know. A woman is just the dummy on which he drapes his illusions and paints his favorite virtues. After that, it's her little life job to live up to her role."

The Bachelor chuckled.

"Great Scott!" he ejaculated. "What a vaudeville existence yours must be—with a change of bill every six weeks!"

"Well," confessed the Widow, ruefully, "I've been at least half a dozen 'ideals,' this summer—and perhaps a hundred, in my brief young life. It's very, very wearing!" And she attempted a little sigh, sufficiently pensive, to match her coiffure and her clinging black tea-gown.

"Then, don't add to your burdens, by assuming any 'role' for ME," the Bachelor urged her sympathetically. "I like you, just as yourself!"

"Which self?" inquired the Widow, turning innocently inquiring eyes up to his. "My cynical, worldly self—or my practical, sweet domestic self; my saucy, frivolous, coquettish self—or my pensive, romantic, poetic self; my sympathetic, gentle, motherly self—or my chummy, hail-fellow, play-fellow self; my tea-gown self, my golf-togs self, or my dancing frock self? Every woman has at least fifty-seven varieties of selves, you know. Otherwise, it would be impossible for her to live up to all the different 'ideals' of all the men who insist on idealizing her."

"Hear, hear!" cried the Bachelor mockingly. "Ideals furnished to order! Step up, gentlemen and take your choice! What shall the lady turn into now—a siren or a saint, a kitten or a highbrow. Good Lord! Marrying one of you is deliberately committing polygamy!"

"Well, isn't that what every man secretly wants?" retorted the Widow.

"Wh-what—polygamy?"

"A whole harem, in one wife," corrected the Widow. "But, unfortunately, after marriage, the average girl gives up her vaudeville career, with its constant change of character, and placidly settles down to just one, or two, roles. That's what makes marriage seem so monotonous to a man. He misses the novelty and excitement of meeting a different woman every evening."

"Two roles?" repeated the Bachelor, doubtfully. "Why two roles—and which two roles? One for hubby, and one for——"

"The role that most nearly meets his ideal, and the role that most nearly reaches down to his level," explained the Widow hastily. "That's why it's so much harder to please a man after marriage than before. You have only to live up to a lover's ideal; but you not only have to live up to a husband's ideal; you simply MUST crawl down to his LEVEL, once in a while, or he'll find some more congenial person to——to——"

"Cuddle?" suggested the Bachelor helpfully.

"Yes, and to tell his troubles and his jokes to; and play with and chum with and be comfortable with. Nothing makes a man so weary, after a while, as to have to stand around, craning his neck in order to look up to a woman. If she is never anything but a goddess or a saint, he'll put her in her niche in the wall, and leave her there, while he goes off to find some human being to worship HIM."

"It must be awfully fatiguing," sympathised the Bachelor.

"It is," agreed the widow cheerfully. "Hanging onto heaven with one hand and onto a man with the other. Thinking of what to have for his breakfast while you quote poetry to him; trying to look like a siren while you fry his eggs and bacon; listening to his racy jokes while you meditate on the future of the soul; singing him an aria while you sew the buttons on his pajamas; admiring his intellect while you clean his safety razor and help him find his collar button! Oh, it's an acrobatic feat, I assure you, holding your halo on with one hand while you tie your kitchen apron strings with the other!"

"And yet," mused the bachelor, blowing a smoke ring, "the average girl seems generously and unselfishly willing to exchange her exciting 'variety-show' existence for a long run in the drama of matrimony."

"Yes," acquiesced the widow, serenely, "because she doesn't realize that she will have to play a double role after marriage. She looks forward to a restful life, in which she will have to live up to only one man's ideal, and never counts on the exigency of having to climb down off her pedestal every few minutes in order to reach his level. But, unless she wakes up to her mistake before the honeymoon is over——"

"Why always 'down to his level'?" interrupted the bachelor. "Aren't there any men on the—the higher level?"

"Of course," agreed the widow. "And they all marry doddle-wits or kittens, or sofa pillows, and then wonder why they can't stop being frivolous or cute or silly once in a while and just be sensible, and sane, and intelligent. But the average man's ideals are so high—and his spiritual level is so—so——"

"So low?"

"So different," corrected the widow, rising. "And now I'm going to make you some tea," she added, disappearing through the door and returning two minutes later, trundling a tea wagon laden with cake and fruit and sandwiches and bonbons.

"Ah!" exclaimed the bachelor, appreciatively, "How did you know I was famishing, and—and what have you done to your hair?"

"Oh, just frivoled it up," and the widow laughed and pulled a few more curls fluffily over her ears. "It only takes a few minutes to change 'roles,' Mr. Cutting."

"Are you trying to climb up to my ideal?" demanded the bachelor suspiciously.

"No," and the widow bubbled happily as she busied herself with the samovar. "Just climbing down to your level! Let's eat up everything! These cakes are called 'Circe'—and warranted [illegible] anybody forget all about 'the future of the soul!'"

WIDOW-CISMS.

Marriage will never be anything but a lottery so long as a man continues to spend his days "idealizing" one kind of woman—and his evenings pursuing the other kind.

No sooner has a woman succeeded in persuading herself that "beauty is a matter of the soul" than somebody comes along and asks her how much she weighs.

No man will demand common sense from a woman so long as she offers him enough incense!

HOW LITHUANIANS CAME TO AMERICA.

In the early part of the sixteenth century a group of Lithuanians sailed away from the native country to escape religious persecution, and landed on the island of Guadeloupe. Years later, they, together with their descendants, were brought by the English as prisoners of war to what was then known as New Amsterdam, now New York City. From then on they have come to America in constantly increasing numbers and have dispersed all over the country. A great number of them became farmers and later on, when the mining regions were opened, a number of them went to work in the coal fields and ore mines of the country.

At the beginning of the nineteenth century, Rev. Alexander Burba, a Lithuanian priest and a man of great organizing talent, started out to organize the Lithuanians living in this country. Father Burba grouped around him a number of intellectuals of his own nationality, writers, poets and physicians, and together with them he founded the Lithuanian Union of America, with offices in Plymouth, Pa.

The aims of the organization were entirely spiritual:

(1.) To defend the Lithuanians from the bad influences under which they were apt to fall in the first months of their arrival.

(2.) To further moral and religious development.

(3.) To keep alive and develop American and Lithuanian national sentiment among the immigrants.

A short time after the organization was formed a Lithuanian paper was started under the name "The Country." This paper, edited by Dr. Jonas was a great factor in the progress of the Lithuanian Union of America and had great influence upon the Lithuanians here.

The immigration en masse from Lithuanian to America started about fifty years ago. In less than five years the whole of Lithuania was aflame with excitement caused by the reports of the first settlers. What astonished the Lithuanians even more than the dollars and cents, was the existence of personal and political liberty, or religious tolerance and of equality and justice before the law. Pilgrimages were made from great distances to hear by word of mouth the reports of men and women who returned from America, some on visits and others to make arrangements for the transportation of their families. About fifteen per cent. of the population migrated.

Newspapers, periodicals, histories, treatises and novels in the Lithuanian language were printed in Tilsit, minor Lithuania. Tons of this printed matter were surreptitiously smuggled into Lithuania. Defying the Russian prisons the different Lithuanian patriotic societies circulated this literature among the young and old.

About a million Lithuanians now live in this country and they are now seeking recognition in the United States for the newly reborn Lithuanian republic, on the shores of the Baltic Sea.

She Guessed.

"Robson, do you know why you are like a donkey?" the jester queried.

"Like a donkey?" echoed Robson, opening his eyes wide. "I don't."

"Because your better half is stubbornness itself."

The jest pleased Robson immensely, for he at once saw the opportunity for a glorious dig at his wife. So when he got home he said:

"Dear, do you know why I am like a donkey?"

He waited a moment, expecting his wife to give it up. But she didn't.

"I suppose it's because you were born so."—[London Tid-Bits.

Beautiful "Weller" Potteries

TO ALL art lovers "Weller" potteries are known as the most remarkable and beautiful productions in decorative art wares. We have just received a very large shipment direct from the "Weller" Potteries and are therefore able to offer the most unusual selections. The wares shown include very wonderful jardinieres and distinctive umbrella stands, flower pots, wall vases, baskets and many unusual pieces not obtainable in ordinary potteries.

Roma Ivory

Fern dishes, footed comports, vases, bowls, jardinieres, pedestals, window boxes, and other pieces in soft ivory backgrounds ornamented with floral festoons, rose garlands, and fruit and bird decorations.

Blue and Ivory

Fern dishes, jardinieres and vases in wonderful tones of blue, decorated with the famous Baldwin apple, especially effective in interior decorative work.

The Hudson Line

Woodcraft and Flemish Ware

The latter are so called because the color and decoration are principally Flemish. The decoration motifs include the acorn, cherry, plum, and Baldwin apple. The pieces include fern dishes, vases, tobacco jars, logs, baskets, jardinieres, flower holders and other pieces.

The Forest Line

One of the very latest "Weller" creations. Deep forests, big oak trees, limpid streams, characterize this beautiful ware which is produced mostly in autumn tones, in fern dishes, jardinieres and vases.

Art lovers will be particularly interested in this most unusual display and it will be ready Monday.
The price range is from 75c to $20.00.

After a two months' visit in the East, most of that time having been spent in New York, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Danziger are back at their home in Beverly Hills. Miss Danziger, who graduated in June from the Westlake School for Girls, left immediately afterward for Houlton, Me., to act as bridesmaid at a fashionable wedding.

Our Fiftieth Christmas Season

To commemorate this event we will present the most important Xmas stock in our history.

Place all orders for engraved Christmas cards and stationery NOW!

Nothing can prevent a tremendous shopping congestion this season. The early buyers will surely reap the reward of their thoughtfulness.

The longer you wait the more limited will be the selections. High-grade jewelry and the associated lines are exceedingly scarce this year owing to the unprecedented conditions which prevail throughout the nation. When stocks are broken it will be impossible to make replacements in time for holiday buying.

The tremendous growth of this business fully justifies a prophecy that our Christmas trade this year will vastly exceed that of any previous season.

In anticipation of the greatest trading activity we have ever experienced, we have made adequate preparations. Our buyers have literally combed the Eastern markets for the choicest offerings of the nation's best craftsmen.

Our display cases are now filled with typical examples of our immense Christmas stock—the modes of the hour in important diamond jewelry—masterpieces of jewelcraft—Oriental pearls of surpassing beauty—the latest conceptions in ladies' bracelet watches and men's strap watches—smart new effects in gold jewelry—aristocratic ideas in goldware—distinctive creations in sterling silver toiletware, flatware and hollowware—correct stationery and leather goods.

for Milady

CHARMING creations in 14 karat gold for Milady are shown by Brock and Company. These are conceded by all who see them to be superb productions of the jeweler's art.

In every piece of the artisan's handicraft is that combined touch of exclusiveness and individuality that is the paramount idea of Brock and Company in the designing of the new and the artistic in jewelry.

Combination mesh bags and vanities in new shapes that will appeal to the most discriminating, as well as the most conservative, are on display.

Poudre and lip stick boxes in fascinating designs — many jewel set — are also shown.

There are, too, combination vanity and cigarette cases, wonderful gold toilet sets, and many beautiful and exquisitely wrought productions which limited space will not permit us to enumerate.

Come and see them
at your convenience.

The Spirit of the Guild

The ancient guild, those societies of expert artisans, paid homage to the thing well done.

—slovenly workmanship glossed over was to them the crime of crimes; they strove for perfect craftsmanship.

—H. Liebes & Co. in its manufacture of Furs has this Spirit of the Guild;

—we shun the easier path of quick-and-easy fur-making for the harder path of finest quality fur-making;

—in our factory only the most skilled workman may enter and only the most painstaking work is tolerated;

—frigid Bank's Land in the very jaws of the Northwest Passage is not too far away for us to go for pelts;

—Paris is not too far away for us to send for a designer;

The best endeavors of H. Liebes & Co.'s fifty-five years have been to produce the finest furs.

garet home at LaVerne, where there are eighty-seven orphans.

Master Frank Lee celebrated his thirteenth birthday at his home at 241 Paloma avenue on Saturday, by entertaining twenty-four of his friends. There were Hallowe'en decorations and games with the usual birthday cake and ice cream.

The Parent-Teacher Association will hold its regular meeting at the school auditorium next Wednesday, when a programme will be given. Rev. B. B. Weatherall will speak on "How the parents and teachers may help the pupil to choose a life vocation." Mrs. Oldhousen of Glendale will sing, accompanied by Miss Laura Wilford Brown, and a short programme by the 1st grade.

Miss Lou Anna McNary entertained thirty of her friends with a Japanese party one night last week at which time they laid plans for a Spider Race in their Endeavor society. Their refreshments of noodle soup, rice, fish and tea and cakes were eaten, sitting on the floor in Japanese style. The "Race" promises to be an exciting one, the winners to be banqueted by the defeated ones at the end of the race.

The last week has been a festive one with the young people, and many have taken advantage of Hallowe'en time with its splendid opportunities for decorations and games, to entertain their friends. Miss Lillian Kirksey entertained sixteen of her friends in honor of Miss Margaret Long of Occidental, with a Halloween party at her home, at 210 E. Hill avenue.

Edward Keeler of 126 S. Highland celebrated with fourteen of his friends on Friday evening with a masquerade. Miss Dorothy Anderson of Los Angeles acted as the witch fortune-teller who unveiled their futures before their masks were removed. The home was artistically decorated in Hallowe'en style, and devil cake and orange ice were the refreshments.

The next meeting of the Thursday Morning Music Club will be held at the home of Mrs. Hartley Taylor on W. Colorado boulevard with the composer Massenet as the subject, on November 6.

Katherine Weir invited twenty of her friends to come in sheets and pillowcases on Hallowe'en evening to play games and dance and make merry, generally. Of course, everything was decorated and looked lovely, and individual pumpkin pies, apples and punch were the refreshments for the evening.

Mrs. Helen King has arrived from the East, after having spent the summer at Mackinaw, Mich., to occupy her winter home on Kenilworth avenue.

Mrs. Alice Winters, president of the Twentieth Century Club, and Mrs. M. T. Lee were guests at the Pathfinders' Club of Compton, on Wednesday. Mrs. Winters also attended the Shakespeare Club in Pasadena on Tuesday.

WHITTIER.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hazzard who have for some years resided on their ranch just south of the city have taken up their residence in Los Angeles. Mrs. Hazzard is well known throughout the country for her work in food conservation during the war and is now demonstration agent for the woman's work in the Los Angeles county farm bureau.

Renewing friendships made during a summer's stay in the Yosemite, Dr. Fred Robbins and daughters, Miss Cleo Robbins, entertained at dinner Thursday evening. Covers were laid for the honoree, Miss Mabel Irwin of Redondo, Miss Jessie Way, Mrs. R. B. Way, Mr. Charles Matthews, Robert Robbins and the host and hostess.

Miss Helen Dunlap, well-known artist of this city, is planning an extended tour of the old world as soon as proper passport arrangements can be made, for the purpose of gathering materials for artistic work. Her itinerary will include France, Spain, Tangier, Morocco, Tunis, Persia and India. Miss Dunlap's prospective tour will be of interest to her many friends among the artists of Southern California.

The advance guard of winter visitors have already begun to arrive in Whittier. Among very recent arrivals are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kenworthy, and daughters, Caroline and Lelia, of Plainfield, Ind. Mrs. Kenworthy is the daughter of Rev. Lewis I. Hadley, a former resident here.

The marriage of Miss Frieda Adams and David Weaver was solemnized at high noon, Friday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. S. Adams, 508 West Hadley street, Rev. Wilson J. Marsh of Yorba Linda officiating. Following the ceremony a delightful luncheon was served, after which the newlyweds left for a short honeymoon trip to San Diego. On their return they will reside here, the groom having a position with the Standard Oil Company. Mr. Weaver is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Weaver of this city, former residents of Woodlake, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Southwick of 200 Bright avenue are home from a summer's trip to eastern points, including New York, Buffalo, Chicago, Lincoln, Neb., and Kansas points.

Among well-known service men to return recently is Capt. G. H. Flanders, who with his family arrived home early this week. Dr. Flanders entered the dental branch of medical service early in the war and was only recently discharged from Washington, D. C. He saw long and strenuous service among wounded men, chiefly in eastern hospitals. Dr. Flanders will resume his private practice here at an early date.

A unique and delightful family affair was the double celebration of wedding anniversaries at the Fred L. Pease home, Sunday, when Mr. and Mrs. Pease entertained a group of relatives in honor of the golden wedding of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Warner, and at the same time celebrated their own silver wedding. The out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Winters of Lincoln, Neb., Mrs. Warner and Mrs. Winters being sisters; Mr. Mark Warner, a brother, from Wyoming, and Mr. and Mrs. Chauncy Warner of Riverside.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Morse of East Whittier entertained several young married couples Tuesday evening complimentary to their son and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Morse who were recently married at Savannah, Ga. The Halloween motif prevailed in the decorations of the Morse home, while Halloween games and refreshments aided in carrying out the suggestions of the season.

HIGHLAND.

The Woman's Club of Highland held a delightful opening last week and the year promises to be a very prosperous one. On Friday afternoon the club held its annual "at home" to members of the other organizations of the county, invitations having previously been sent out for hospitality day. Library Hall was in festive floral dress, there being decorations of autumn leaves, zinnias, marigolds and ferns. There was a delightful musical programme and the address of the afternoon was given by Mrs. Robert T. Garner of San Bernardino, State vice-president at large. Late in the afternoon delicious refreshments of ice cream, cakes, coffee and bon-bons were enjoyed, the tea table being decorated in autumn leaves.

Mrs. Edward Toeppler entertained the Young Ladies' Sewing Club on Tuesday evening at her West Main street home. Fancy work, visiting and refreshments made the evening a very happy one. Invited guests included Misses Bess and Helen Richardson, Misses Ruth and Helen Lindsey, Miss Villa Nye, Mrs. Ralph Graham, Misses Agnes and Kathryn Hall and Mrs. Frank Blake.

Announcement has recently been made of the marriage of Miss Emma Rohrer and John Linfesty, two popular young people of Highland. The ceremony was solemnized in Medford, Or., September 10th, but the news was kept from friends here for some time. Mr. and Mrs. Linfesty are temporarily domiciled in Payette, Ida., but a warm welcome awaits them here where they will return to make their home.

Mrs. John P. Coy presided as hostess at a handsomely appointed 6 o'clock dinner given Saturday evening at their home on South Palm avenue in honor of the home coming of their son, Clifford, who has just returned from nearly two years' service in the Aviation Corps. La France roses decorated the table and places were marked for Miss Gertrude Hilden, Miss Bess Cram, Miss Lucile Longmire, Miss Blanche Coy, Messrs. Lloyd Hilden, Fred Cram, Rufus Longmire, Clifford and Jack Coy, Miss Nellie Carter and Nathan Wilson of San Bernardino, and Mr. and Mrs. Coy. The evening was spent with music and games and was a happy reunion for these congenial young people.

Mrs. Edward Toeppler and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Frank Blake of Wisconsin, who is her house guest, were dinner guests Wednesday at the Mission Inn in Riverside.

ONTARIO.

Marking the opening of the society season in Ontario was the smart supper dance with which Mr. and Mrs. John Stewart Ingalls and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Oliver Chapman entertained at the Hotpoint Club Wednesday evening. The effective decorations of the ballroom were in keeping with the Halloween season. Golden-shaded incandescent bulbs and the soft shade of myriad candles set in crystal candlesticks cast a warm glow over the scene and countless huge yellow chrysanthemums, artistically combined with fernery and potted plants, furnished a charming setting for the assemblage of smartly-gowned women and their formally-attired escorts. Dossinger's Orchestra furnished the music and a delicious supper was served at midnight. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Earl Holmes Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Corry Benson White, Mr. and Mrs. Welles Thompson Ross, Mr. and Mrs. William Starbuck Fenton, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Monroe Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Baugh Fowler, Dr. and Mrs. Jerome Hill Titus, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Graettinger, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Howard Payne, Mr. and Mrs. George Edward Bender, Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Scott Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. George Theodore Stamn, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Clarke Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Arnold, the Rev. and Mrs. Richard Hodges Gushee, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Wright Nichols, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Montrose Shattuck, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Latimer, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Latimer, Mr. and Mrs. Stearns Ingalls, Mr. and Mrs. S. A wedding of unusual interest in Ontario was that solemnized at the Sacred Heart Church of Redlands Saturday morning at 8 o'clock when Joseph Puzey, wealthy young Ontario orange grower and a son of Mrs. William Henry Lindley, 539 West A street, was united in marriage with Miss Lucille Wilson, Portland, Or., society girl. The Rev. Father Fitzgerald, an old friend of the Lindley family, was the officiant. Mr. Lindley met his bride a few years ago while visiting in the northern city with his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Charles Muehe. At the wedding, Miss Jessie Lindley and Iza William Roderick Lindley, sister and brother of the bridegroom, served as bridesmaid and best man and were the only attendants. Upon their return from their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Lindley will reside in Ontario.

GARDENA.

Mrs. Edith Abbott of Orchard street attended a delightful party on Friday evening, honoring her sister, Mrs. David Henderson whose birthday it was and at whose house it was given; it also marked pleasantly the return to her home in Chicago of Mrs. Abbott's neice, Mrs. Vera Farmer, and the departure of a friend of the family, Mr. Jesse Dumont, to France.

Mrs. W. J. Metcalf and Mrs. Murray Harris were luncheon guests of the Wednesday Progressive Club last week. The hostesses for the delightful noon luncheon were Mmes E. THE DREAMERS.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

"Do you believe in signs?" asked the Happy Medium as she piled our hats in the corner and started a phonograph record.

"Everybody does; that's why advertising is the greatest thing in the world," answered the Old Resident. "If I see a granite building with a brass plate on it reading: 'First National Bank,' I know it's a good sign. If I'm driving past an orange grove and see a shingle on the fence with 'Poison Out' written on it I know it's a bad sign. Sure, I believe in signs. Who doesn't?"

"But do you believe that dreams are signs?" persisted the clairvoyant?

"Sure!" grunted the pioneer. "Sign of a disordered interior, anyhow."

"Dreams are the moving picture of a vagrant mind," continued the Good Scout, as he parked his gum on a bronze bust of Psyche. "They are the butterflies of the brain; the screenings of a capricious imagination; the zephyrs of an errant fantasy."

"Yep! The night cops of a nodding noodle," interrupted the Wild Man of Borneo.

"And isn't it wonderful how many people believe in them?" exclaimed the medium, with enthusiasm. "People you'd hardly suspect of it."

"Old guys like Pharaoh and Belshazzar at that," suggested the Scout.

"But they had to be shown," chirped the medium. "Ever since Eve dreamed she had a new fig leaf people have been worrying over their dreams and wondering if they didn't mean something. Why, you can sell a dream-book where you can't get away with an encyclopedia. Every old king that sat on a throne used to have somebody on his staff to either explain his dreams or make fun of them. Maybe they called them jesters, or poets, or minstrels, or historians, but they were little old soothsayers just the same. Who were the best interpreters of the Bible?"

"I should say Daniel and Joseph," said the Scout.

"Well, you remember Grover Cleveland?"

"Sure."

"You'd never think it, but he was a great believer in dreams. Whenever he'd have an unusual brain disturbance he'd want to tell it to the Democratic national comitteeman from Michigan, D. J. Campeau. His close friends used to wonder why he had so many confidential talks with the man from Michigan; but I found out why. It was because his name was Daniel Joseph. The President figured that a man with a name like that ought to be able to enterpret anything from a Welsh rarebit dream to a black-hand letter. Why, I've heard that Grover sometimes telegraphed to Dan at Detroit to get a tip on something that had bothered his brain the night before."

"Nothing to it," commented the Old Resident. "A dream simply doesn't mean anything in my young life, or anybody else's. You simply empty your brain when you go to sleep and the zephyrs blow the cobwebs and thistledown through the corridors. If any of them get temporarily lodged in a corner you call them dreams, but they don't mean anything."

"Don't they?" snapped the Scout. "That's all you know about it. The other night I dreamt that they were having a great party at the Rockefeller place. My! but it was a swell-looking affair. Napoleon, Mohammed, Joseph Smith, Sam Gompers, Lydia Pinkham, Brutus, Elsie Janis, William Penn, the Sutherland Sisters and Pat Moran, were all there. Everybody seemed to be crowding up to a row of gates with a white-winged girl at each opening. I noticed that each person gave a number on entering and was at once assigned to a tray on which were that number of glasses, each filled with an amber-colored liquid. I asked the man in front of me, who turned out to be Phineas T. Barnum, what it all meant. He explained that it was a birthday party, and that everybody was asked to give his age. He would then receive a tray bearing a mixed cocktail for each year. That was supposed to start the party off with a snap. Well, we crowded on up to one of the gates. The man ahead of me said he was 87 years old. Well, he looked younger than I did, so I told Hebe that I would be 106 on my next birthday. She laughed and said: 'Is that all?' and then she steered me to a group of cocktails that looked to be two yards square. I tasted one and, oh! boy! I was sure that this was going to be a nice party. Just then I turned around to see the next comer. Say, that guy had the longest white whiskers I ever saw on a human being. I asked the girl who it was and she said it was Methusaleh. What do you know about that? That bird got 969 of those cocktails! He had twelve of those big trays in front of him at one time. I might just as well have told the girl I was 1000 years old as not, and then look what I would have had! I felt so mad about it that I woke up!"

"Where does the interpretation come in? That doesn't mean anything," snorted the Old Resident.

"Oh, doesn't it?" exclaimed the Scout. "That is all you know about it. The next day the President vetoed the prohibition bill."

"But that is only for a minute; that doesn't mean anything," asserted the veteran.

"I think I understand," cooed the Happy Medium. "You say that Methusaleh said he was 969 years old?"

"That's right," answered the Scout readily.

"That means it will be 969 years before you get another drink," said the soothsayer.

"It will probably seem that," asserted the Scout.

Lafayette an American.

To the many things that have lately been written about the happy relations between Lafayette and America, Morris Edmond Speare, of the Department of History and English in the United States Naval Academy, has added the little known fact that Lafayette was actually a citizen of the United States. Before the United States came into existence Maryland passed an act to naturalize Major-General the Marquis de la Fayette and his "Heirs Male forever," and when that state came into the Union it brought all its citizens with it. The act was passed by the Maryland Legislature on December 28, 1784; and although the Constitution of the United States later assumed, in its first article, the exclusive right of establishing uniform rules of naturalization throughout the nation, all who were citizens of the respective states when they ratified the Constitution became citizens of the nation. One hardly doubts, however, that Congress, had it been necessary, would have ratified the citizenship that Maryland had given to Lafayette.—[Christian Science Monitor.

THE DREAMERS.

BY EUGENE BROWN.

"Do you believe in signs?" asked the Happy Medium as she piled our hats in the corner and started a phonograph record.

"Everybody does; that's why advertising is the greatest thing in the world," answered the Old Resident. "If I see a granite building with a brass plate on it reading: 'First National Bank,' I know it's a good sign. If I'm driving past an orange grove and see a shingle on the fence with 'Poison Out' written on it I know it's a bad sign. Sure, I believe in signs. Who doesn't?"

"But do you believe that dreams are signs?" persisted the clairvoyant?

"Sure!" grunted the pioneer. "Sign of a disordered interior, anyhow."

"Dreams are the moving picture of a vagrant mind," continued the Good Scout, as he parked his gum on a bronze bust of Psyche. "They are the butterflies of the brain; the screenings of a capricious imagination; the zephyrs of an errant fantasy."

"Yep! The night cops of a nodding noodle," interrupted the Wild Man of Borneo.

"And isn't it wonderful how many people believe in them?" exclaimed the medium, with enthusiasm. "People you'd hardly suspect of it."

"Old guys like Pharaoh and Belshazzar at that," suggested the Scout.

"But they had to be shown," chirped the medium. "Ever since Eve dreamed she had a new fig leaf people have been worrying over their dreams and wondering if they didn't mean something. Why, you can sell a dream-book where you can't get away with an encyclopedia. Every old king that sat on a throne used to have somebody on his staff to either explain his dreams or make fun of them. Maybe they called them jesters, or poets, or minstrels, or historians, but they were little old soothsayers just the same. Who were the best interpreters of the Bible?"

"I should say Daniel and Joseph," said the Scout.

"Well, you remember Grover Cleveland?"

"Sure."

"You'd never think it, but he was a great believer in dreams. Whenever he'd have an unusual brain disturbance he'd want to tell it to the Democratic national comitteeman from Michigan, D. J. Campeau. His close friends used to wonder why he had so many confidential talks with the man from Michigan; but I found out why. It was because his name was Daniel Joseph. The President figured that a man with a name like that ought to be able to interpret anything from a Welsh rarebit dream to a black-hand letter. Why, I've heard that Grover sometimes telegraphed to Dan at Detroit to get a tip on something that had bothered his brain the night before."

"Nothing to it," commented the Old Resident. "A dream simply doesn't mean anything in my young life, or anybody else's. You simply empty your brain when you go to sleep and the zephyrs blow the cobwebs and thistledown through the corridors. If any of them get temporarily lodged in a corner you call them dreams, but they don't mean anything."

"Don't they?" snapped the Scout. "That's all you know about it. The other night I dreamt that they were having a great party at the Rockefeller place. My! but it was a swell-looking affair. Napoleon, Mohammed, Joseph Smith, Sam Gompers, Lydia Pinkham, Brutus, Elsie Janis, William Penn, the Sutherland Sisters and Pat Moran, were all there. "That means it will be 969 years before you get another drink," said the soothsayer.

"It will probably seem that," asserted the Scout.

The Times Literary Page Books and Their Makers

BY THOMAS F. AND LILLIAN C. FORD.

AN IMPRESSIONISTIC NOVEL.

"The Tunnel," by Dorothy M. Richardson, Is a Story Devoid of Plot and Dramatics Representing the New Movement in Literary Art.

"The Tunnel."

"The Tunnel," by Dorothy M. Richardson (Knopf) is the fourth in the series of novels by this author, grouped under the title of "Pilgrimage." The novels previously published are "Pointed Rocks," "Backwater," and "Honeycomb." Each is concerned with the life of Miriam Henderson, but in a way altogether different from the treatment accorded heroines in ordinary novels.

With Miss Richardson, who is impressionistic to her finger tips, it is the inner life, the ever-changing impressions, the reveries and introspections of her characters that are of importance. Events, episodes, external things, are of value only in the reactions produced.

There is no plot, no suspense, little characterization in the usual sense. The characters for the most part flit like shadows through the pages, hardly distinguishable from the phantom thoughts that haunt Miriam's mind. A few, however, have a degree of reality. Miss Dear, the nurse who attaches herself to Miriam like a barnacle, is of real flesh and blood. So, in a less substantial way, is Mrs. Bailey, Miriam's landlady.

The story begins with Miriam's removal to the home of Mrs. Bailey, where "she felt like an inmate returning after an absence. The uncariness of the marble-topped hall table did not offend her. She held herself in. It was better to begin as she meant to go on. Behind Mrs. Bailey the staircase was beckoning. There was something waiting upstairs that would be gone if she stayed talking to Mrs. Bailey." And again: "She was surprised now at her familiarity with the detail of the room . . . that idea of visiting places in dreams. It was something more than that . . . all the real part of your life has a real dream in it; some of the real dream part of you coming true. You know in advance when you are really following your life. These things are familiar because reality is here. Coming events cast light. It is like dropping everything and walking backward to something you know is there. However far you go out you come back . . . I am back now where I was before I began trying to do things like other people. I left home to get here. None of those things can touch me here. They are mine. . . ."

Thus the opening chapter strikes the keynote of the book. Always Miriam's stream of consciousness, her over-accented impressions, her appalling modernity of mind, are in the foreground. The author glides from the inner consciousness to the event with such facility as to merge the two. The reader must always be on the alert or he will quite lose the thread of the story, so deftly are fancy and reality interwoven.

As it is, we are continually grasping after something tangible, weakly expecting that Mr. Hancock, one of the dentists for whom Miriam is secretary, may become her lover in a very human way, that she may follow the altogether too futuristic Mr. Wilson's advice and take to writing, or that she may find the stimulus and excitement she craves in one or other of the circles her life touches but never quite enters.

Such elusiveness irks the average reader. But to the lover of imagism, the follower of the new movement in literature and art, Miss Richardson is a supreme satisfaction, one of the few writers wholly successful in the realms of fiction.

Miss Richardson is not a psychological analyst, but an impressionistic artist, who gives us an X-ray representation of what is going on in the mind of her characters from moment to moment and who cares as little for character development as for plot. Her feeling for color, for atmosphere, for light and shade is as remarkable as is her peculiar power laying bare the devious working of the human mind.

Successful she is in painting pictures. The book is full of them. Short sentences, scraps of sentences, words tumbled together without regard to grammatical relations or punctuation abound. But the author, with uncanny precision, always chooses the right word. The following is typical: "An eager face was turned toward her from a thicket of soft, dull, wavy hair. She gazed vaguely. The small slippered feet planted firmly high up against the lintel, the sweep of the red dressing gown, the black patch of the Mudie book with its yellow label, the small ringed hand upon it, the outflung arm and hand, the little wreath of smoke, about the end of the freshly-lit cigarette, the cup of coffee on the table under the lamp, the dim shapes about the room lit by the flickering blaze . . . ."

The book arrives nowhere.

Miriam's life—all life—is a pilgrimage. In this fourth book of the series Miriam's life passes through the tunnel. There is no indication that she has emerged from the tunnel, though we are at liberty to surmise that her life at Mrs. Bailey's is ended and that she may in the next book, "The Interim," which the author is now writing, grope toward some mode of expression for her too active mind more satisfactory than polishing forceps and compounding cement in a dentist's office.

DAISY OR BARRIE, WHICH?

The question, did Daisy Ashford, at the age of 9, write the book entitled "The Little Visiters," the preface to which was written by J. M. Barrie, is just now agitating the world of letters. There are those who stoutly assert that Barrie must have written the book, holding that no 9-year-old, however precocious, could have created the character of Mr. Salteena.

A reviewer, who has any first-hand knowledge of clever and precocious children, will find the discussion as to the impossibility of a child of 9 years being the author of "The Little Visiters" ludicrously silly.

Scores of children whose parents have followed Oliver Wendell Holmes's advice and turned their offspring loose in a good library have written similar tales at an equally tender age. Miss Daisy evidently enjoyed the additional advantage of being allowed the run of her mother's reception-room during calling hours, thus becoming as familiar with social gossip as with literary methods.

The story is childishly clever indeed, but is far less remarkable in reflective and imaginative qualities than the literary remains of Marjorie Fleming, the beloved little friend of Sir Walter Scott, who died before the completion of her eighth year.

Let us suppose for a moment that the manuscript copies of "The Little Visiters" had been sent by one Jane Smith to, say, one hundred editors. Is there a human being so unsophisticated as to suppose that it would ever have been printed?

Ninety and nine of its recipients would have brushed it off their respective desks without a second glance. The one hundredth arbiter of authors' fates, being more humane, would have dictated a few lines of kindly exhortation to its callow author bidding her to "go to school regularly, practice composition assiduously, and try again in twenty years," and then would have patted himself on the back for his goodness. Yea, verily, for the one deadly aversion of the average editor is "the first fine careless rapture" which would give a literary production an unusual or original flavor. Authors who decline to accept this dictum offhand can readily and speedily prove its truth.

RECENT FICTION.

"The Messenger."

A book that stands out among novels written around the war is Elizabeth Robins's "The Messenger," just brought out in book form by the Century Company after running in the Century magazine.

It is a book in which the interest centers around Greta Schwartz, a German governess employed in the family of Sir William McIntyre, an important member of the British government. That the subtle, unctuous Greta, who does her best to be a vampire, is a spy is evident from the first. That the upright, downright McIntyres refused to suspect her seems probable enough, but that Nan Ellis, the American girl, remains obtuse to the last surpasses belief.

In Greta we find one of the best pictures of German character yet given in war literature. Her daring, her cowardice, her hypocrisy, her lack of real affection, her secret contempt for the English and American friends who sacrificed themselves for her, and her final collapse are told with such vividness as to give the character a quality of reality not often attained in fiction.

Nan Ellis, who becomes the tool and messenger of Greta and of the English pacifists, starts out to be a charming character but betrays such utter lack of common sense as the story progresses that the reader's sympathy goes out to Gavin Napier, the English secretary, who finally wins her love.

In Julian Grant we find the English pacifist in all his asininity, with his idealism run to seed and his mind closed to reason. His tragic awakening when the ship upon which he was crossing the Atlantic was submarined is a scene handled with great skill.

The book is one that holds its interest in peace as well as during the war period in which it was written.

Miss Bottome's Newest Book.

"A Servant of Reality," a new book by Phyllis Bottome, is published by the Century Company. Miss Bottome has won a reputation for sparkling dialogue, for clever character sketching, and for creating fresh situations that make her books entertaining reading.

In "A Servant of Reality," the author attempts to probe the deeper emotions. It is questionable whether the lilting style of which Miss Bottome is master is not misplaced in a book that treats of the tragedy of life as does this one. Such a style leads us to expect a book in lighter vein, adorned with surface misunderstandings and entanglements light as cobweb. Instead, we find in this book two themes, both of high seriousness. The first is concerned with the reactions of an English soldier, Capt. Arden, upon his return at the close of the war, from two years in a German prison camp—years that sapped the foundations of his life and threatened to undermine his reason.

The best part of the book is that which portrays the return of Capt. Arden to normality. His slow realization that the war had been a very different and far less devastating affair in the lives of those who served only as civilians, his carefully concealed resentment of the life-as-usual attitude of his family and friends, and the British restraint that made him refrain from describing the tortures he had suffered at the hands of the Germans are handled with skill.

The second theme, which has to do with the subtle allure of a woman without moral standards, is far less convincingly handled. Kitty Costrelle evidently captivated the author, as well as the senses of Capt. Arden. Yet to the sophisticated reader Kitty does not ring quite true; her charm lacks reality, her tragedy fails to appeal. There are, however, clever scenes enough to compensate for any limitations the reader may discover in the author.

"A Mystery Story."

In her latest mystery story, "The Man Who Fell Through the Earth," Carolyn Wells (Doran,) has sustained her mastery of the technique of the detective story.

In the opening chapter the reader gets the proper thrill. Tom Brice, a young attorney just about to leave his offices for the day, sees shadow shapes moving as in a struggle through the clouded glass door of the offices of Amos Gately, president of a powerful trust company, and immediately hears a pistol shot, followed by a woman's shrill scream. He enters the offices of Gately, but to his surprise and utter mystification there is no one there. Nothing but the cloud of smoke from the revolver and the acrid smell of burnt powder. Gately and his assailant have disappeared as effectually as if the building had opened and swallowed them.

From this moment the characters that play their various parts in the mystery are introduced with consummate skill, each serving to heighten the interest by just the proper amount of suspicion being cast upon them.

The mystery develops when Amos Gately's body is found on the floor of a secret elevator. Amory Manning, who has just asked Gately for the hand of his ward, Miss Olive Raynor, also disappears, which leads the police to suspect both Miss Raynor and Manning of a guilty knowledge of Gately's death.

The final discovery of Manning, the man who fell through the earth, and the events that lead up to this discovery form a series of incidents that supply all the thrills that the most exacting reader can expect.

Through the ingenuity of Penny Wise, the master detective, and his able and vivacious little assistant, Zizi, whose long suit in the unraveling of mysteries, due to her stout faith in "hunches," the real clue that leads to the clearing up of the mystery is finally hit upon.

"Drowned Gold."

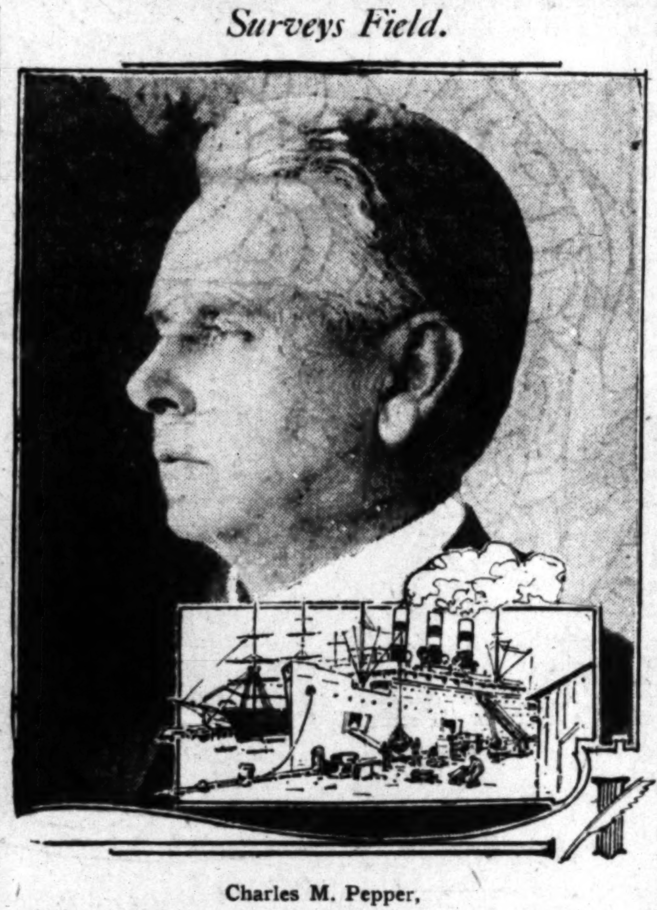
A rattling good sea story is "Drowned Gold," by Ray Norton (Houghton Mifflin) dealing with incidents of the war and the later application of the submarine to the recovering of sunken treasure from the ocean's dark unfathomed caves.

Capt. Hale, an American skipper, undertakes to transport three millions in gold to France as a gift from an exiled son of that fair land. The usual thing happened. The ship is torpedoed and lost with her precious cargo. Count Waldo von Vannemann, who before the war was the captain's rival for the heart and hand of "Marty" Sterritt, commands the German undersea boat that does the sinking and incidentally plants in the heart of his rival the seeds of suspicion as to "Marty's" loyalty.

The story is replete with thrilling incident and some of the characters are well drawn. The author knows the sea and the ways of the men who follow it, and has woven from incidents that have, because of the war, become commonplace an interesting tale that is well worth the reading.

The story appeared originally in a popular magazine.

Surveys Field.



Charles M. Pepper,

"AMERICAN FOREIGN TRADE."

Few subjects are more vital to the political, economic and commercial future of the United States today than its foreign trade. The vital problems involved in the extension of our foreign commerce are discussed with clarity, vigor and understanding by Charles M. Pepper in a book just published by the Century Company entitled "American Foreign Trade."

Mr. Pepper writes authoritatively on this subject, his information coming at first hand after a number of years spent in study and observation in this field.

The book deals largely with definitions of the terms employed in foreign trade. The importance of the distinction between import and export trade and the relation of each of these branches to our whole foreign commerce is emphasized. The author scorns statistics, but goes deeply into the underlying principles. He pictures the entire field and stresses the importance of a more accurate and complete knowledge of general trade conditions on the part of American business men who contemplate entering the overseas field.

His chapter on raw materials and their control is illuminating and his analysis of conditions arising as a result of the war is of value. He discusses the difference between British and American trade policies and points out the best and most important phases of both.

How trade is secured and held and the importance of considering the wishes of the merchants in the foreign field are also stressed. The relation of our foreign trade to the entire body politic and its effect on our future economic and commercial position are subjects covered. In fact the book is a comprehensive and balanced survey of a broad field.

The work is one that every merchant who contemplates entering the fields of foreign commerce should read. It is informative and authoritative.

"THE BOOK OF A NATURALIST."

A book that combines an intimate knowledge of and a rare affection for the hidden things of nature as revealed in their various forms is "The Book of a Naturalist" by W. H Hudson from the press of George H. Doran.

The author loves his subject. He loves with that deep and abiding love that is born of understanding, and many aspects of nature and her children are presented in this splendid work. He sees in the denizens of field and wood and lonely marsh living things that have their place in the scheme of the universe and he deals with their doings with a broad sympathy that enkindles a like sentiment in the hearts of his readers.

Even the snake finds in this kindly soul a defender. He holds that the hatred and fear which humanity as a whole has for the serpent is not instinctive but the result of education. In discussing this matter he says:

"I am inclined to believe that we regard serpents with hatred purely and simply because we are so taught from childhood. A tradition may be handed down without writing, or even articulated speech. We have not altogether ceased to be 'lower animals' ourselves. Show a child by gestures that a thing is fearful to you, and he will fear it; that you hate it, and he will catch your hatred."

He not only covers the subject of nature in its animate forms but deals with such simple things as potatoes and lawns, giving valuable information on both subjects.

The papers of which the book is a collection are twenty-nine in number and have appeared at different times in magazines and other publications.

In his preface the author expresses his disappointment at having to give the book its present name, he having planned for years to call it "The Diversion of a Naturalist," but this name was used by E. Ray Lankester in a book published some time before the appearance of Mr. Hudson's volume.

The book is one that will appeal strongly to all nature lovers and will have a decided influence on many who have heretofore given the subject little thought. The style is easy and simple. There is a total absence of tedious technical verbiage that mars so many books on this subject.

A SOUTH SEA BOOK.

Lovers of that fascinating and romantic region, the South Seas, with its cannibals, copra and dim tropic twilights, will find in Frederick O'Brien's book "White Shadows of the South Seas" (The Century Company) an intensely interesting and readable narrative.

The book is not what is commonly called a book of travel. It is in fact a story that can be picked up at any point and read at odd times, providing the reader be strongminded, for once you get into it you want to go on to the last page.

It is a tale in which the writer recounts his experience of a year's residence among the friendly cannibals in the farthest island in the South Seas, the Marquesas Islands. It is such a story as you might write after a similar experience. The peoples he met, their mode of living, their views of life here and hereafter, are all set down in simple words and plain.

Altogether, the author has given such an intimate picture of this far-off and fascinating group of islands that we immediately want to pack our kits and trek.

The author, now editor and part owner of the Manila Times, is a newspaper man of wide experience and he did not forget that he is still a newspaper man in writing this book. The style is straight narrative without any trimmings, but it is nevertheless a forcefully told story. During the war the author was on Herbert Hoover's staff

LOCAL AUTHORS.

"The Will of the People."

A series of essays, entitled "The Will of the People," by Francis Sullivan, published by the Ray Publishing Company, has just been issued. The essays deal with the philosophy of things in general with particular emphasis on the state and education and the state and religion.

The author's essay on "Patrons of Art and Letters" is probably the best thing in the volume, which is of handy size and bound in cardboard covers.

"Truth's Evangel."

A poem by Mrs. C. Lona Marsters, entitled "Truth's Evangel," has just been published. The verses, of which there are fifty-seven, breathe the message and spirit of Christian Science.

We quote the following:

"Bend thy ear to catch the message
From the silver-throated bugle
Pressed to lips of Truth's Evangel!
There's a calling to the rally.
Where the heroes of truth's standard.
Flock to don their heavenly armors,
And to gird their swords for battle."

The volume is dedicated to Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science. The binding is cloth, with the author's name and the title in gold lettering.

"Oliver Cromwell."

In a little brochure of some thirty-odd pages entitled "Oliver Cromwell," Annette R. Loveday Howard has given us a brief but illuminating sketch of the great warrior, statesman and ruler who held for a time the destinies of Great Britain and Ireland in the hollow of his hand.

Mrs. Howard is a resident of San Diego and a lineal descendant of Cromwell. She writes with sympathy and clarity and assembles within a small space a wealth of informative data on the great man's history and career.

"1960; A Retrospect."

A little purple-covered booklet in which the authors, James and Margaret Marshal, indulge in some prophetic and speculative fantasies as to the present and future has just come from the J. F. Rowey Press of this city.

While small in size this booklet is ambitious in its subject matter and deals with the most abstruse problems with an assurance that strikes one as egotistical. It is heralded as "Tomorrow's history told today" and as "the birth cry of a new civilization."

A few of the more ambitious topics discussed are "The Age of Destruction," "Evolution and Countless Mistakes," "Feminine Reign of Terror" and "Woman and War"

"The Nut Shell."

Capt. E. L. Gaines of Pasadena has just published a little pamphlet under the title "The Nut Shell," in which the nine cardinal points of parliamentary law are simplified and made clear for all practical purposes.

The author says in his preface to the work:

"The mariner's compass has four cardinal points with which he controls the course of his ship on a stormy sea. So in parliamentary law, we have nine cardinal motions which control the course of procedure in a stormy session."

The work is based on a study of the standard authorities and is arranged in a form that makes for ready understanding of what to most people is a difficult technical subject.

"The Strongest."

From the press of Doubleday, Page & Co. comes a translation of Premier Georges Clemenceau's novel, written some twenty years ago, entitled "The Strongest."

It is a book that would attract little attention if the name of the author did not lift it from the rut.

Its principal interest for American readers is the expression of Clemenceau's thoroughly democratic ideas—his democracy not being limited to politics but extending to the domain of economic and social organization.

Of secondary interest is the picture it gives of French society as it existed two or three decades ago and as in a large measure it exists today.

The story depicts the struggle that took place between Henri de Puymanfray, a marquis, and Dominic Harle, a millionaire paper manufacturer for control of the life of Claudia, the supposed daughter of the manufacturer but in fact the daughter of the marquis. The worldly manufacturer desires for Claudia a brilliant marriage while the marquis, who has lived the worldly life and seen the folly of it, longs to have her comprehend the deeper realities of life and so become the worthy daughter of her dead mother whose memory he still adores.

When Claudia chooses the splendor and excitement of the Parisian social life and makes the marriage the supposed father desires, Puymanfray tries to save her by disclosing the fact that he and not Harle is her father. Even this fails to win Claudia though the hope remains that she will through suffering and sorrow learn the lesson that only experience can teach.

The novel has brilliant patches though the interest sometimes flags. Throughout the story the reader is always conscious of the deeply comprehending mind of the author, a man who loves humanity and hates class domination and every form of injustice.

GRUB STREET GOSSIP.

"Law and the Family."

Judge Robert Grant of Boston, author of "Law and the Family," published by the Scribners, was reelected president of the board of overseers of Harvard University at the recent annual meeting. Judge Grant's new book, "Law and the Family," sets forth the new attitude of the law toward woman and the family. As judge of the Probate Court in Boston, he has for many years had the infelicities, the legal complications, and the tragedies of domestic relations daily spread before him by actual cases and actual people. His chapters include: "Feminism and Fiction in Real Life," "Women and Property," "The Third Generation and Invested Property," "Perils of Will Making," "Domestic Relations and the Child," "The Limits of Feminine Independence." and "Marriage and Divorce"

Novel of German Life.

A novel about Germany of more than usual interest and timeliness is promised for early publication by E. P. Dutton & Co. It is by Stuart Henry and under the title, "Villa Elsa," it gives an authoritative picture in miniature of German life, manners, customs, ways of thinking and attitude toward the rest of the world at the beginning of the war. The experiences and adventures of a young American studying in Germany make the story, whose unique feature is that it brings forward the question, how is the rest of the world to be able so to regenerate the spirit of Germany as to bring its people into harmony with the conceptions of civilization held by other nations? The author, who writes about Germany with thorough knowledge, is said to offer at the end of his story a solution for that problem.

New Van Dyke Book.

The Scribners are publishing a thin paper flexible leather edition of Henry Van Dyke's new book "The Valley of Vision."

League of Nations.

The Columbia University Press is the American publisher of Sir Charles Walston's latest book, published in England with the imprint of the Cambridge University Press, entitled "The English-speaking Brotherhood and the League of Nations." The good old Mother Goose rhymes are printed in a new and wonderfully attractive style in "Stokes' Wonder Book of Mother Goose," issued in October. This edition is complete and has been planned in every detail as a veritable nursery treasure book.

"The Gibson Upright," a three-act comedy by Booth Tarkington and Harry Leon Wilson, satirizing the application of Bolshevist methods to a prosperous American factory, is out in book by Doubleday, Page & Co. The piece is also scheduled for early production on Broadway, New York. In the typical style of these two popular humorists, the work sets forth what befell when Andrew Gibson, driven to desperation by the demands of strike committees, finally turned over his factory to the operatives.

Margaret Wilkinson.

Margaret Wilkinson, the poet, whose recent volume on the poets and poetry of today, entitled "New Voices" (Macmillan,) has gone into its third edition within a period of about six weeks, was born in Halifax, Nova Scotia, about thirty-six years ago. Her father was an American citizen, her mother a Canadian.

The volumes in the series are "Soldiers of Fortune," "Gallegher, and Other Stories," "Captain Macklin," "Ranson's Folly," "The White Mice" and "The Red Cross Girl."

Missed the Chance.

Miss Amelia Josephine Burr returned from an interview with Gen. Pershing during which he had expressed his appreciation of her book of war verses, "The Silver Trumpet" (Doran,) and told the elevator girl in her hotel that she had just shaken hands with Gen. Pershing. "Is that all?" said the elevator girl. "Why didn't you kiss him?" Miss Burr, it seems, hadn't thought of that.

A Garden at Dusk.

Peace like an angel walks
A garden gray
When western altars flame
With ending day.

As He on Olive found
The garden's peace,
So we may find from care
A calm release.

Shy winds with urns of musk
Go soft along
Or pause to hear enrapt
The thrush's song.

There tumult passes not
The gateway bars,
Only the wings of dusk,
The feet of stars!
—[Arthur Wallace Peach in Boston Transcript.

Pretending.

I know a magic woodland with grassy rides that ring
To strange fantastic music and whirr of elfin wing,
Where all the oaks and beeches moss-mantled to the knees,
Are really fairy princes pretending to be trees.

And pools among the peat-hags that mirror back the sky;
And there in golden bracken the fronds that toss and turn
Are really little people pretending to be fern.

I wander in the woodland, I walk the magic moor;
Sometimes I meet with fairies, sometimes I'm not so sure;
And oft I pause and wonder among the green and gold
If I am not a child again—pretending to be old.
—[W. H. O. in Punch.

A Warning.

Be careful what you're doing,
Be careful where you go;
If you begin a-sneezing
To stop it don't be slow;
If you catch a cold, to shake it
For the doctor face about,
Or the old flu germ will get you
If you don't watch out.

Be careful what you're eating,
Be careful what you drink,
Be careful of your talking,
E'en be careful what you think
Give yourself the mental treatment,
Meet scares with resistance stout
Or the mean flu germ will get you
If you don't watch out.

Be careful about going
Into crowds who're anywhere;
If in street cars you are riding,
Be quite sure to be near air;
All rules of health be learning,
And don't friendly wisdom doubt,
Or the keen flu germ will get you
If you don't watch out.

A Winter Evening.

Soft hands of white across a sunny sky—
And then the low-toned twilight creeping on.
A neighboring roof deep-etched with burdening snow;
Hill, field, and tree beyond,
Blending in one wide, gentle blur of gray;
Brown shrubs and withered grasses wave aloft
Their invitation to a passing feathered guest,
While here and there, and here again,
Faint wisps of smoke curl upward,
Telling once more the tale of little homes,
Whither the toil-worn hasten, to sit them down and rest.

o I will spread a table here beside our hearth;
A joyful feast, for love broods over it,
Lending the snow-white luster of his wings,
And now all things made ready, I will wait,
And listen for the voice I know so well.
—[Louise May Gridley in Good Housekeeping.

Monaltree.

he mornings came like sweethearts there and whistled me from bed, Monaltree! Monaltree!

I mind the sea-gulls crying then;
Myself, I could be flying then!
There was no 'dule nor dying then—

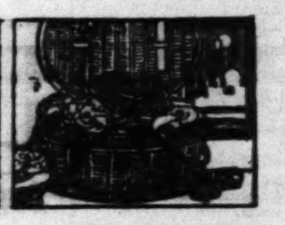
FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS NEEDLEWOMAN

BY ADELAIDE BYRD



A LIVING ROOM THAT MAKES YOU FEEL AT HOME

By Ethel Davis Seal

MRS. TOM PAYNTER had endured a shabby house for years. In fact, she had endured it for so long that she had grown fond of each dilapidated thing, and she had ceased to notice the faded colors, the darns and scratches—home was just home to her. And as for Mr. Tom—he fitted into his setting with the same content with which he fitted into his well-worn house slippers; behind his newspaper and on the other side of his pipe he felt very much at home, and that was all that mattered.

Time was when Mrs. Tom had had vague longings; and Mr. Tom had looked with interest at mahogany gleaming in the windows of the shops. Once he had even got so far as to take his foot rule and measure to see if a specially gorgeous desk would go into that narrow space beside the window; but the money had had to be spent for something more important, and—well—that was many years ago, and now things did very well the way they were. Nothing mattered so long as they were comfortable.

So comfortable were they, indeed, that Mr. Tom looked with distinct disfavor on the prospect of a week's visit with a school friend of Mrs. Tom's who had come to live in a neighboring town. He did not know her. He did not want to know her. And he was sure he would have to leave his comfortable old slippers—and perhaps his pipe—at home. But, for once, Mrs. Paynter was adamant, and one bright and sunny afternoon found their bags packed and ready, a basket of pies and homemade jams tied up, the unwilling cat escorted over to the house next door, and the windows double-locked and barred, tho, to be sure, there was nothing much that would have tempted the humblest burglar.

Mr. Tom found he was getting more and more nervous as they approached their destination. He didn't like strange women and strange houses; there would be fully an hour before they could possibly have supper, and he could just see himself sitting up straight like church in an uncomfortable high-backed chair, while the women talked. He wondered what the husband would be like. And as the train rushed on he found himself wishing he could put down all four feet and balk like their cat did when you tried to lead her on a string; he wondered if they would stop the train.

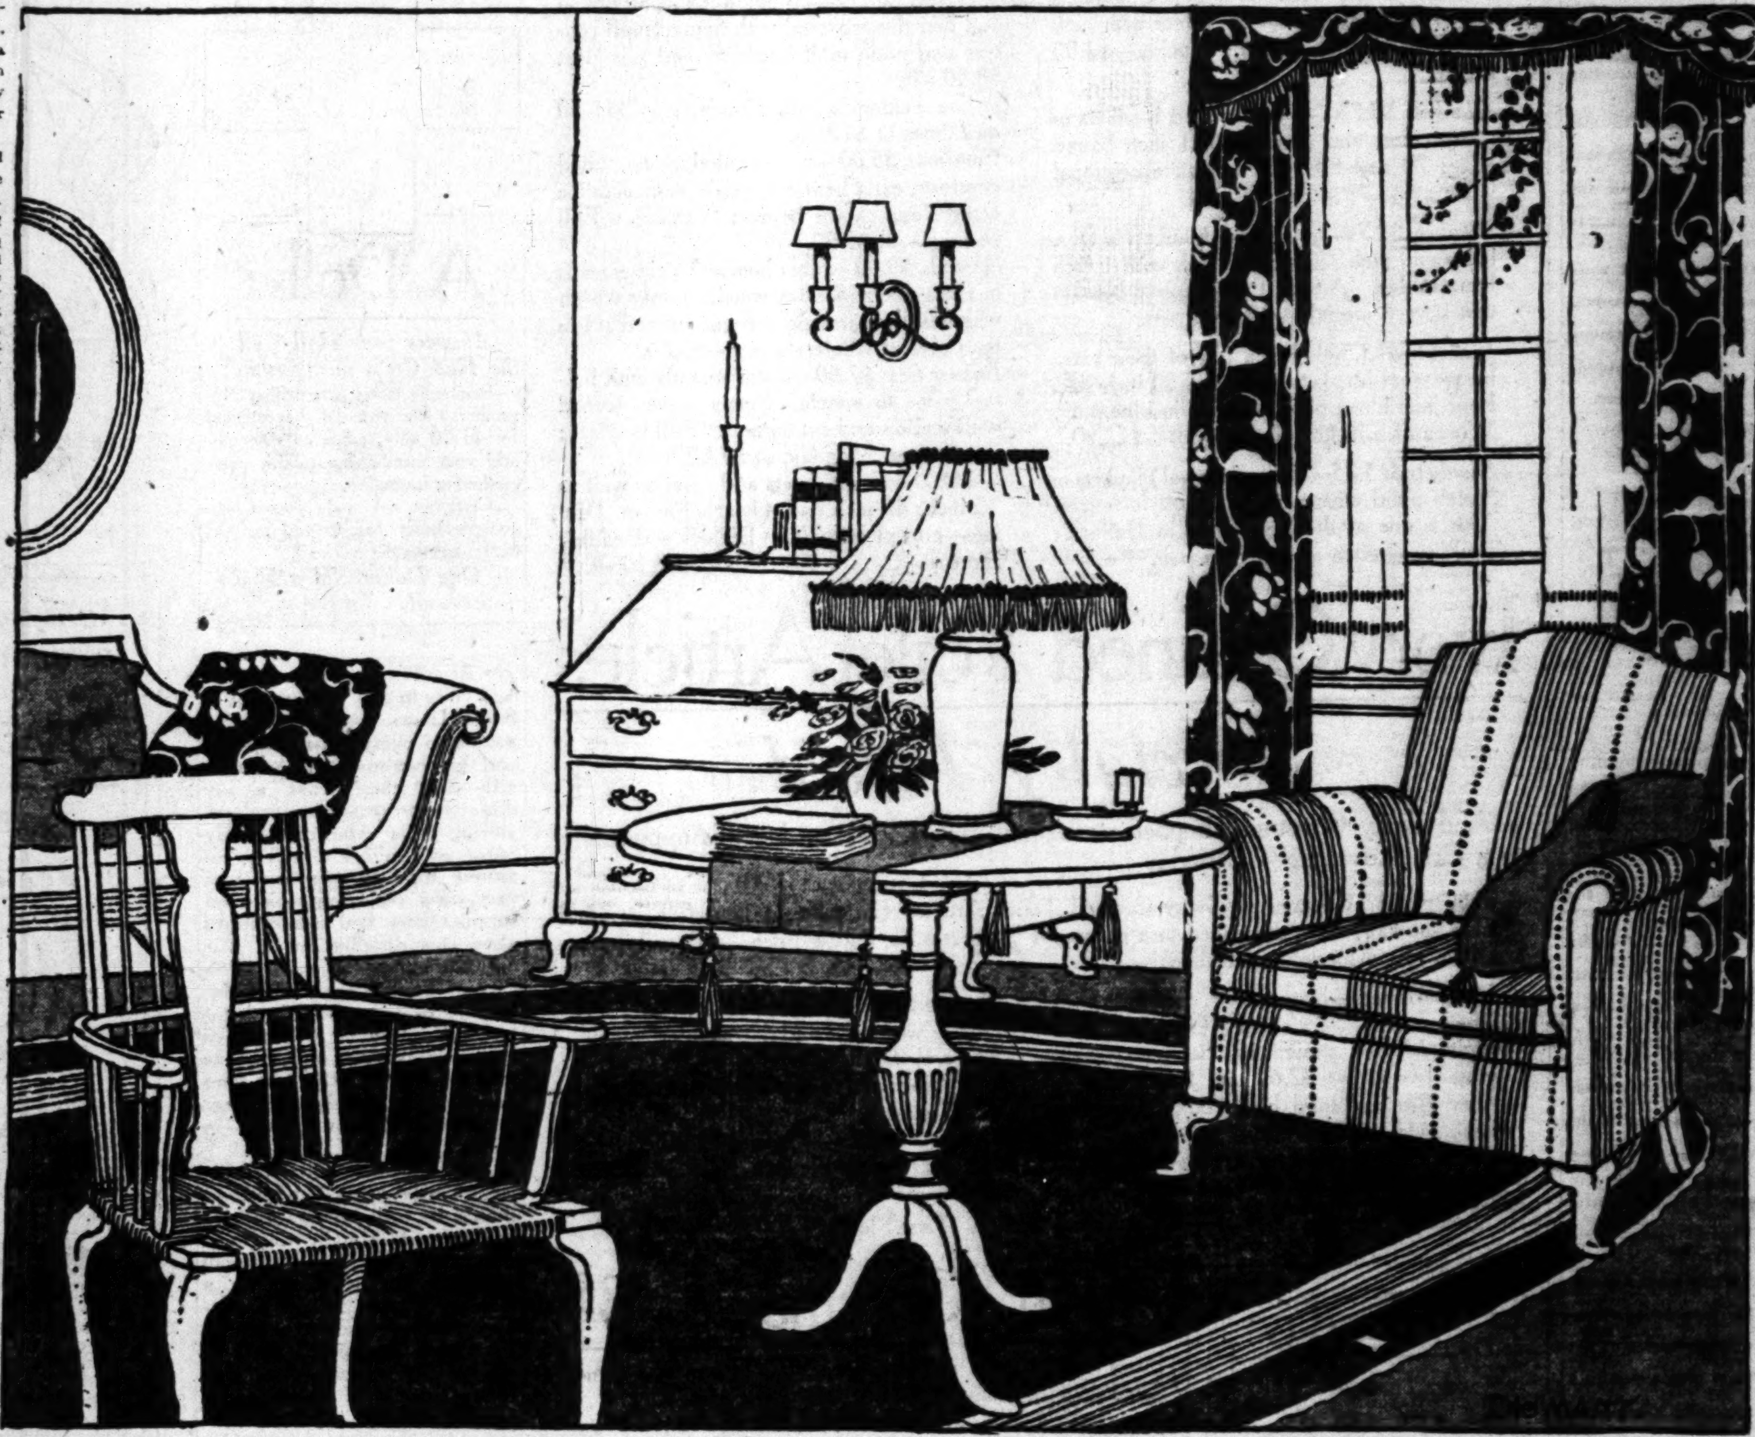
But Mrs. Tom, his better half, was having a delightful time in anticipation. She knew Angie Saunders would be pleasant indeed to visit; she remembered as a girl she was always trying to put people at their ease, and that her friends flocked to see her—the Saunders had kept open house. And at the thought Mrs. Paynter experienced a wave of longing; why couldn't their home be like that? They almost never had any company, and they had got into a hopeless rut; Tom needed jogging up, it would improve his business and he would be more enjoyable to have around the house; as it was he only grubbed and lounged, dear fellow! And they were both antediluvians in dress, she thought whimsically, as she stroked her blue serge that was a foot too wide, and glanced at Tom's too easy suit. Well, maybe this visit would do them good!

The nice flow of thoughts induced by relaxed riding in the train suddenly ceased, for Tom jumped up and said, "We get off here, Bab!" and in the hurried scuffle of getting together their bags and the basket they emerged from the train quite flushed and gay, and Angie carried them off in a twinkling, before Mr. Tom had time to think again about his four feet, to the dearest little house that looked out of shining eyes at them from under low-hung eaves; and in a moment they were happily jabbering away in the prettiest, most HOMELIKE living room Barbara Paynter thought she had ever even dreamed of, while Tom was stealthily stretching his hand into his pocket for his pipe.

It wasn't long before Barbara realized that the beautiful living room was the reason they felt so completely at home. And it wasn't shabby, either, like hers! She momentarily glimpsed her own and her cheeks burned; suppose Angie had come to see her first! And as she watched her Thomas, who was fairly licking his paws with content, a great truth dawned on her; it wasn't the old, shabby things you were used to that really made for comfort, it was a beautiful quality of home that could be accomplished by the newest things that could be bought out of the shops. If you only knew how, you could fix a room so that every one would be glad to come into it, a room that wasn't dependent, either, on its cost, its color, its size, its oldness, or its newness.

Barbara glanced with admiring eyes around her. The freshly papered walls were done in a soft rose-gray two-toned paper, without a single sign of a border trimming; the wall lights were a dull silver metal, and were supplied with bright rose silk shades bound with silver braid and lined with yellow. Angie must have made them herself, thought Barbara. The cretonne curtains showed a black ground which was nearly covered with rose and old gold flowers with flecks of green and blue. The rug was an oval one in snuff and black, one of the most serviceable combinations. And Barbara fairly smiled in admiration at the furniture: the chair that Mr. Tom had settled down into was a nice fat little overstuff done in deep majenta-rose velours lined in gold; the Virginia sofa was in snuff-brown haircloth, spotted with color by the pillows set on it, some of which were cretonne like the curtains; there was an ivory wicker chair to match the woodwork; and in mahogany a rush bottom Windsor chair, a tiptop center table, a bureau desk, a tea wagon and a bookcase.

The Lights—They Were So Cosy, So Bright and Satisfactory; the Books With Many Colored Bindings and Alluring Titles; the Bowls of Flowers; the Happy Cretonne Curtains.



All these things could be had by anybody, thought Barbara, and yet somehow few hit upon so pleasing a combination. She tried to think just where the secret lay. The lights—they were so cozy, so bright and satisfactory; the books, with many colored bindings and alluring titles; the bowls of flowers; the happy cretonne curtains; the fire blazing on the hearth. It was all these things, against their plain and dignified background, she decided, that made the place a home. What could not she do herself when she got back to her own living room thru this new inspiration! She made up her mind to burn her bridges—she would not lazily settle down again into her old shabbiness—she looked at Angie Saunders, and smiled a gay little smile.

"I just love this room of yours, dear Angie!—And some time very soon you must come to visit us!"

Make Your Own Bedspreads

THE bedspread has immense possibilities in connection with decorative schemes. Unbleached muslin makes attractive ones. Suppose you have just bits of unbleached muslin. You can join them together in crazy-quilt fashion. Use a chainstitch to finish the joined places. If the muslin is of all sorts of shaped pieces, you will have a rather unique pattern worked in chainstitch when you have the whole spread together. This sort of spread could be adopted to most any room, depending, of course, upon the color you use to chainstitch it.

For the old-fashioned room, what better spread could you find than Granny's old Paisley shawl? If it is not whole enough to use in its entirety, applique bits of it with black embroidery floss to an unbleached spread. You could arrange a pattern of diamonds, or circles—oh, you could do lots of things with that old Paisley!

A very elaborately embroidered bedspread may be gradually assembled if you will keep on the lookout for bargain remnants of linen. Embroider a small spray upon each piece as soon as you buy it. When you have enough pieces to make one large bedspread, connect them with a veining stitch in the embroidery floss. First neatly hem the edges of the pieces of linen (a good plan is to make them all of the same shape and size. How about squares?) and then mount them on strips of brown paper, half an inch or so apart, in order to insure straight veining. The spread will literally be a mass of embroidery and it will have grown so gradually that it will not seem to have been a bit of work! Just try it! The hem of the spread could be hemstitched. A buttonholed edge would give a nice finish to this spread.

There are some rooms where a striped spread would look just right. It is made by alternately joining strips of blue and white chambray or linen.

Other spreads simple to make are these: Take a delft blue linen or casement cloth for the spread and upon the center applique a rosebud design cut out of cretonne. Or if you have a pair of curtains which you are not needing any more sew them together and they will charmingly do bedspread duty.

A Novel Stocking Bag

HERE'S a bag which would be nice to give as a gift. Every really dainty girl these days has a stocking bag, for she will NOT have her darned and her to-be-darned stockings in the same place. There are ever so many tragedies which can occur if the stocking bag is not called upon to do duty when there is no time to take the stitch-in-time.

Make it of unbleached muslin and bind it with blue. Give it a double pocket upon the outside of the bag. This pocket will extend about one-third of the way up the bag.

Upon the one pocket draw a boot and upon the other a stocking. Give each two small feet. Now outline them with blue embroidery floss and give them both brown feet. They will need heads, too! These will be buttons, which you sew to the top of the shoe and the stocking. With ink convert the buttons into little "joy" faces.

There is a little rhyme to go with these little people. It starts on one pocket and continues on the next. It is written in your own handwriting and then outlined. Here are the lines:

Said the Shoe to the Stocking:
"I'll put a hole in you."

Said the Stocking to the Shoe:
"I'll be darned if you do!"

YOU PLAY BRIDGE?

Like as not, then, you give bridge parties. And is there a stunning little bridge set to make the party successful? If there isn't, and if you are interested, do look into the delightful applique suggestion coming on this page next Sunday.

To Make a Gay Little Pair of Guest Towels

IN DAYS gone by folks said, "When in doubt as to what to give, give handkerchiefs!" Nowadays we can say as much for guest towels. The girl with a hope chest, the little bride, the bride of many years, the bachelor maid—why, all of them have guests, and all of them like pretty things, so what could be more acceptable than a pair of guest towels?

Now here is a rather clever idea. Buy your all-linen huckaback by the yard. Cut it in the desired lengths and then to each edge sew a hem of pink or blue poplin. In color have them hemstitched on. The effect is charming.

In French knots in all the pastel colors you could add a little festoon of flowers if you care to. How about the initials of the receiver of them, in cross stitch? One's monogram on a gift always makes it truly the giver's gift to one's own self.

Instead of Buttons to Trim Your Sweater

ONE of the good shops reveals a rather startling sweater trimming. They are used just as buttons would be used—down the front in parallel rows, to trim the belt and sleeves, and even to extend around the neck. And guess what they are—beads!

The larger ones in contrasting color are used in rows down the front of the slip-on sweater. The smaller ones, often in white, are used to go around the neck and are sometimes caught in the wool to trace out a rather vagrant pattern on the front.

The crocheted sweaters which open in front have the overlapping front trimmed with a row of beads. They are also used to finish the neck and sleeves. Rather a unique idea. Why not try it?

EVENING BAGS EASY TO MAKE

'TWAS once said that the bag is the seasoning of the costume, and who will disprove it? Look at the woman about town who carries a blue bag when she is completely attired in brown otherwise—and doesn't she lack one point in being a genuinely well-dressed woman? Or you see a woman in opera cloak and evening hat carrying a commonplace street bag, and your eyes quickly leave her and rest with satisfaction upon the similarly dressed woman back of her who carries a suitably beautiful evening bag.

Age-old is the defence you will raise at this point, namely, "We try to buy evening bags and the price is simply prohibitive. We carry bags more during the day than at night, and so we expend our bag allowance upon the bag we carry before six!"

That is a true story, but the end has not yet been told. Nor have you vindicated yourself. Just because you cannot afford to buy one is no reason why you should not have one. Why don't you make one? These bag suggestions today offered you are designed by experts and may be carried out by amateurs.

Decide, first, whether you will have your bag a round regular one or quadrilateral irregular one, and then proceed.

This round bag is made of rich changeable taffeta. Over it is a very thin gold net. Gold cord is used to draw it together at the top, and gold lace makes the finish for the top. Gold fringe is used for the bottom. When you are cutting out this bag, instead of using a round piece of material, cut two oval pieces of silk and join them together at the sides and bottom. The narrow parts of the oval form top and bottom.

You may call your bag finished now, or you may go on and add the trimming, which is shown here. This may be either passamenterie trimming, or you may buy a gold insertion, and with embroidery ribbon outline at intervals a small design in the trimming. Use rose embroidery ribbon, or if the color of your evening wrap goes well with rose, use that for the embroidery.

If you prefer the shape of the other bag and have a bit more time to put on the making than the other one requires, make a specially beaded one above. You cannot fail to be gratified by the result.

Make it of that lovely green-and-gold color variety of changeable taffeta. The beaded designs are simple to copy, and are done in gold beads. Chiffon flowers in pastel shades supplement the beading very beautifully. Rings are covered with gold thread for the gold cord to string thru and draw the bag together.

Then there is another bag which you will find of greater utilitarian than of mostly aesthetic value—it is the slipper bag. Invariably when attending evening functions one must change one's slippers, and it is rather a problem to know just how to carry them. This bag solves the problem very beautifully. It is made of wide Dresden ribbon. Galloon is used along the sides and to wrap the large ring which serves as a handle.

These bags are, of course, just as delightful to give as to have and to hold.

The People and Their Troubles

NEW YORKER'S LETTER PEEVES AND PLEASES.

New Yorker's Letter.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I read with great enjoyment the shrill squeal of A. Sturtevant Courtland—ah, surely that name is too good to be true!—in this morning's Times. In a few things I agree with this fretful Percival, who one instinctively visualizes as a very lean soul, quite bald, and of uncertain age—but in others—

That we, collectively, are provincial is an undeniable fact, due to the overwhelming tendency of the swarming newcomers, with their small-town standard, to rob our city of beauty and freedom. Los Angeles is not at fault. She has not lost the keen appreciation, the warmth, the hospitality of the old days, but the voice of the real Californian is temporarily drowned in the blatant vociferation of the ex-denizen of Mid-West-ville, who is cursed with mental myopia; whose soul is still in swaddling clothes; whose goddess is Pollyanna. This narrowness of viewpoint cannot but be blighting and if the true Californian ould but bestir himself this Puritanic fanaticism would soon cease to prevail. Three generations of Californians are behind me; I was born in Los Angeles and therefore feel that I have the right to speak.

It is, of course, obvious that poor Mr. Courtland has not had the opportunity to meet the right people. That he is doomed by adverse circumstances to "eat" in inferior cafeterias and to frequent only those theaters where men are permitted to sit in their shirt sleeves is a matter for commiseration, not censure. That he knows nothing of the excellence of our symphony orchestras, of our undeniably clever artists, of our quick appreciation of real worth, is his loss.

Perhaps after he has gotten rid of the cold, in his head that prevents him from smelling the perfume of flowers and has learned to dodge pink automobiles without being tenderly led across the street by a traffic cop—after he has been allowed to meet a few people—New Yorkers, of course—then perhaps peevish Percival may change his mind.

But, as he seems to add to the yapping element, wouldn't it be just as well if he packed up his toothpick and red satin suspenders and oozed back to that Utopian town in the State of New York that he should never have parted from? He rather clutters up the place—although his letter has added to the gaiety of many a breakfast table. His shrinking terror of automobiles causes one to doubt if he is a real New Yorker. Could it be possible that he is Bill Smith, ribbon clerk of the Gosh-all-hemlock store of Bird Center, N. Y.?

HILARIA LONG SUFFERING.

Come Again.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Mr. A. Sturtevant Cortland (name sounds quite "class" I'll say,) but evidently it did not get him the entree he expected, when he came to Los Angeles, or he never would have soured enough to write the article published in The Times of October 28.

One can plainly see, from his article, that he has only frequented the Spring-street pool halls, cafeterias, State picnics and free excursions, trying to find something to "pick" on about Southern California. His nose is so polluted with the rank atmosphere he has been spending his time in, that he cannot smell the glorious perfume of our orange groves and garden after garden of beautiful flowers. Too bad he is too small to be able to lift his head above the slums which all cities have and overlook the rabble and cheap quarters of business, and look up, and ahead to what Los Angeles (much handicapped by the influx of tourists such as he which it has had to stop to feed and clothe and amuse in the meantime) is trying to make of itself. Its future has no limit, as everyone knows, but it cannot push ahead as rapidly as it might if it were not for taking its valuable time to make room for such as A. Sturtevant Cortland.

Come back for a visit to us, Mr. Cortland, some day, when you can go through our fine stores, luxurious homes, splendid clubs and institutions and when you have time, for a few trips, by motor over the most wonderful boulevards in the world, and see some scenery which no part of the world can surpass (if your eyesight is not so impaired by peering into the muck of the city that you cannot see it) and last, but not least, back in our perpetual sunshine.

A. H. J.

A New York convert to California.

From a Visitor.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Through your columns this morning you were informed that your beautiful city and surroundings are back numbers, that your good citizens are an uncultured lot of people with social standards somewhat similar to those of Red Dog in '65, and as William Allen White would express it, you were shown "how your soul looks in its underwear." I appreciate the value of honest and constructive criticism and the purpose of these few lines is not to defend your thoughts as thus to become an accessory to your crimes, but rather to console you in your embarrassment and to encourage you in your high resolve to do better.

Your citizens, of course, should not laugh when one comedian kicks another in the face, but lest your mortification at conduct so unbecoming give way to despondency I would explain that the purpose of the aforesaid kick was to provoke merriment and had it failed of its purpose the actor would have been held to strict account. I might further add that the kick was designed to take equally as well before a Chicago, St. Paul, New Orleans or New York audience and while your laughter was inexcusable in polite society yet after all it was only human and you can be forgiven on that ground. The actor evidently understands that most individuals in any audience are human and your critic apparently does not.

You may not all be able to distinguish the "Rosary" from the popular "jazz" as divinely interpreted in New York amusement houses, but don't forget that this is the home of Carrie Jacobs Bond, John Cooper, Charles Wakefield Cadman, and many others who know and appreciate good music, and that the percentage of citizens who are capable of being entertained in this way compares favorably with that of other cities. I think the reception given Farrar substantiates this statement.

It is also embarrassing to be unable to trace ancestry to some of the animals in Noah's ark, and to lack that tradition which trends to honesty and pride in mind and manners. I feel, however, that intellect is sometimes greater than tradition and cite as an example our own Abraham Lincoln, who, though born and reared in the backwoods of Kentucky, rose to a great emergency and made his name immortal.

I have never had the pleasure of visiting London, but I have spent considerable time in and around New York and am surprised to learn that the oranges there are better and cheaper than they are here. I understand you ship a lot of oranges to New York and certainly as soon as it became generally known that the local product is superior and cheaper than your own you are destined to lose a valuable market.

It is also true that you will find among your transient hotel guests some ladies from "Ioway and Dakoty," who do not dress in the latest and most becoming costumes and who occasionally use toothpicks when it adds to their personal comfort, but don't get the idea that this is peculiar to Los Angeles. I have seen these same ladies in countless numbers in the hotels in New York, and if anything, a little more so, for those who come here usually had the advantage of at least one trip to the great metropolis and have absorbed some of the great metropolitan culture.

I do not wish to prejudice your opinion about New York or its people. It is our greatest city and a majority of its citizens are broad and tolerant, but like Los Angeles and other cities it has its knockers, and those who find no good in other places.

I am by nature an optimist and always try to see the good more clearly than the bad, and must confess that after six weeks in your city I am very much delighted with it. Your industrial development is wonderful and its future possibilities are unlimited. Your boulevards and country roads would be a credit to some of those in some of the older States; you have analyzed the possibilities of your soil and climate and planted your orchards and vineyards accordingly; in fact, you have built a great community and a great city which are destined to become more so. Might I in closing ask if it is obligatory to remain here if I don't like it?

A VISITOR.

Why Not More Manners?

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—[To the Editor of The Times:] May I add one little bit to the comments of A. Sturtevant Cortland in Tuesday morning's Times? I have loved Los Angeles, have found its people very courteous like other westerners. (I being from the sure-enough West.) But on returning after a three-years' absence I am shocked at the changes not always for the best. You still have the glorious climate, the wonderful flowers, the mountains and the sea not far away. But, oh, dear Times, what is the matter with your people? What has become of the kindness to invalids, the courtesy to the woman and child, the breezy welcome to young and old men? I could a tale relate of rudeness, of positive insults to the unfortunates who venture to inquire at first-class (apparently) apartment-houses that ought to make the city blush for shame. Sometimes they slam the doors in your face, more frequently they allow you to come in, to pay for shelter at exorbitant prices, and systematically snub you when you ask for the merest bit of information.

Now what sense is there in such treatment of people who have come here in good faith allured by wonderful advertisements? Perhaps Los Angeles has forgotten gracious San Diego, Santa Barbara and other towns on the coast, and perhaps she does not realize the warm southern welcome of Florida and the Gulf cities of the East? We all like to come to Los Angeles, but we cannot stand her new uncouth and surprising manners.

MARY ELLIS.

"Done Herself Proud."

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 29.—[To the Editor of The Times:] When the visit from the King and Queen of Belgium was expected in Los Angeles, The Times printed an article suggesting how to approach and greet the royal visitors, if admitted to their august presence. No doubt many readers beside myself enjoyed the humor of the suggestions, but no one pictured a couple of events that really did take place.

On that now historic drive to Hollywood studios, the King sat in impressive, but, unconscious dignity, that compelled the admiration of observers; his dignity was that of the finest type of manhood, physically, mentally and morally; not a pigmy camouflaged with royal trappings.

By his side sat a person, who basked in the rays of reflected glory, but, horrors of horrors! In his mouth wrigled, hysterically, a long, black cigar on which he 'chawed' nonchalantly.

Today, we learn that a 'lady' who rode with the Queen, asserted that she (not the Queen) 'slapped the face' of the individual delegated by Washington dignitaries to assure every courtesy possible to the visiting royalties. And, this chastisement was administered right beside the automobile, and in the presence of the Queen.

Wild and woolly West! Hurrah! Los Angeles city has "done herself proud." No other city in the world now has her record. We have demonstrated to the world beyond question that we are not trammeled by any ordinary customs of society.

These two episodes, if reproduced in motion pictures, would be excellent educational films for future etiquette during visits here of celebrities, whether crowned or uncrowned.

A MERE BYSTANDER.

Honor to Whom Due.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The Times for October 27 contained an article regarding the probable intervention of the United States in Mexico, that seems to me hardly just.

Is it quite fair or just to give all the credit and honor to the men who have been to France—to the men who have been overseas? These men are heroes, and no praise is too great for what they have done, but in our hero-worship, is it right or just that they should also be given the praise and honor for what may be done in the future? Should we forget the praise due the men, who through no fault of their own, did not get to France.

These men who begged and besought in vain to go overseas; these men, who after years of faithful service to their country, were compelled to stand aside and eat their hearts out in silent misery, while others went to the front. These men who remained on border duty and did their best as the government required. These men who have given years of their lives to the unhonored, heartbreaking, monotonous border duty; and who fairly ached to ride across and put the fear of God and Uncle Sam into the hearts of the treacherous Mexican; but who could not do so without Uncle Sam's orders.

Then is it fair to say these men from overseas will not protect and patrol the border? It is safe to predict, that when the time comes for intervention, it will be these men who for years have patrolled the border who will lead the army to victory. No men unfamiliar with the border and Mexican methods could do it.

These are the men whom Gen. Pershing took with him into Mexico, and the men whom he saw fit to put in control and leave upon the border, because they were best suited to maintain the order, which he had established.

These men have made a study of the Mexican and his ways; they know the trickery and treachery lurking behind that ingratiating, oily smile; they know the Mexican's slippery character from A to Z.

These men have also studied and know every inch of the border, every bush in the surrounding country, from each bandit's roost in each barren frowning cliff to the few and far scattered waterholes. These are the men on whom we must depend and to whom some measure of honor is due.

G. A. JOHNS.

The Best Remedy.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] After reading A. Sturtevant Cortland's letter in the morning paper I am rather anxious to know why the gentleman stays in California, Los Angeles in particular. It seems strange to me that one poor nut from New York should find so much about which to complain. Perhaps he expected to be met with a brass band and everything, just because he came from New York, but he will have to learn if he stays out here that New York means very little in our young lives. The best remedy I can recommend for Mr. Cortland is for him to pack his two collars and his other shirt and hike for New York, for no one will miss him. This does not express what I actually think of this New York person, but if I wrote the real truth I would be forced to call him a familiar, but very uncomplimentary name.

DOROTHY DIX TALKS

The Price of an Engagement Ring.

BY DOROTHY DIX.

How much is it worth to be engaged by the year?

A woman has been doing some figuring on the subject and she estimates that a thousand dollars per annum is no more than fair compensation.

For twenty years she was wooed by a dilatory lover who courted and courted, but never named the wedding day, and eventually espoused another. Now the forsaken maiden asks the courts to award her damages at the rate of a thousand dollars a year for the time she wasted her sweetness on the desert air.

When you take into consideration the wear and tear on hope, and the strain on faith and affection involved in a long engagement, to say nothing of the wounds suffered by a susceptible heart, and the price of coal and electric lights in these days of the high cost of living, it doesn't seem a cent too much. Being engaged is a luxury a man should be willing to pay for, and it is a pity that when Cupid renders his little account so many slackers dispute the bill.

As a matter of fact being engaged is like a great many other things in life—the more you have of it, the less it is worth. It is only when it comes in small and explosive packages that it is really of any value, and there are many signs that indicate that women are beginning to perceive that the linked sweetness long drawn out of a lingering courtship isn't worth the price they have to pay for it. There is yearly an increasing number of breach of promise suits and it looks as if the suitor of the future would be required, in sporting parlance, to either put up or shut up.

In our sentimental age it is impossible to return to the good old custom that prevailed when a man, who asked permission to visit your daughter, filed a declaration of his intentions with his attentions and got down to business right away. There was something doing in the wedding bells line then. Nevertheless, every thoughtful person knows that there should be a time limit on engagements, and that it is a wise parent who calls for a break-away when there is no immediate prospect of a marriage being pulled off.

Nothing else is so trying on a girl as a long engagement. It bunches all the other woes and worries of her sex without any of their ameliorations. So is a grass widow without alimony, a wife without a bill payer, a maiden with no further opportunities of conquest.

She has made a compact with fate in which she has signed, sealed and delivered her freedom over without getting anything in return for it but a pie-crust promise from a man that he can break when he pleases. Therefore, a long engagement is so suicidal for a girl that anybody is justified in keeping her from committing that particular form of hara-kiri if they can.

American society, so far as men are concerned, is run too much on the open-door policy anyway. We need a little more home protection. Any man with a decent coat and half-way decent manners can make an entree into any house he chooses. This has produced a class of social free-booters—men who have had no inclination towards marriage, but who use the parlors of their feminine acquaintance as a kind of free club, where they are entertained without money and without price.

So far as married women are concerned this makes little difference. If a woman of mature years hasn't skill enough to rid herself of the society hobo she deserves to suffer for her stupidity. It is another matter where young girls are concerned, and many a young woman who started out with bright prospects of making a good match owes her collapsed matrimony book to the man whose love making never leads to the altar.

We often wonder why such and such a girl whose beauty and wit render her unusually charming, is drifting into old maidenhood when her less attractive sisters are marrying well all about her and establishing themselves in life. Ninety-nine times out of a hundred the answer is because she has been silly enough to tie herself up in an endless engagement to some man who either does not wish to assume the responsibilities of marriage, or else is in no position to do so.

The managing mamma has been much derided in the public prints, but in real life a mother who knows her business is the most useful possession any girl can have, and her first care should be to see that her daughter does not get tracked into one of these sentimental pockets.

There is nothing to be said in favor of the long engagement. It rubs bloom off of romance. It becomes a burden, and it ties two people together with a bond that sooner or later begins to chafe, and that one or the other would break if they had the courage to do so.

Especially is it a hardship on the girl. Her anomalous position as neither bond or free, neither maid, wife, nor widow, gets on her nerves, and makes her old before her time. Nor in the end can she ever avoid the suspicion that even when a man does, finally, make good on his promise to marry her that he is doing it because he is a good sport, and hasn't the heart to leave her in the lurch after all her patient waiting.

Therefore, it is encouraging to see a good stiff price being put on the long engagement. Perhaps when it costs as much to be engaged to a girl as it does to marry her, it will start a matrimonial boom.

A LETTER TO MR. CORTLAND.

Dear Mr. Cortland:

So sorry that you are leading such a lonesome life in Los Angeles, and beg leave to suggest your running back to Little Old N'York at your earliest pleasure.

Your very interesting letter will be appreciated by thoughtful people. Probably it is truthful portrayal of the only side of Los Angeles you will ever be able to see. The earthly physiographer can draw an accurate map of the one side of the moon that is constanty turned toward him; of the valleys and peaks of its reverse side he knows nothing, excepting by imagination. If it were not giving you an impossible assignment, it would be proper to request that you cover the intelligent, refined society of Los Angeles before you attempt comparing its rank, as a whole, with the debased portion of New York City, with which you seem to be so well acquainted.

If people come to Los Angeles and by force of habit associate with its "half-world" or with the uncouth grade just above it; if they frequent only cafes and cafeterias that give promise of serving illegal refreshments at the hands of "painted women," doubtless they will find the conditions you so charmingly describe and quite likely they will be robbed; perhaps less esthetically than in the dives of New York City which have long made a specialty of providing lavish entertainment for "men of the lewd and baser sort." If the visitor be essentially coarse and can find recreation in coarse plays, he must, inevitably, find in Los Angeles as elsewhere, a coarse audience, unmindful of the nicer proprieties of life, which may shock the sensibilities of a man from New York, whose rottenness is, possibly, covered by a thin veneer of respectability, but after all is said, coarseness is coarseness and can never be refined.

Really refined, cultured people are like quantities, wherever found. A man of such type is welcomed by society of his class, be he from Red Oak, Iowa; Cork, Ireland, or even from New York, N. Y.

If a man wanders into the little village of Los Angeles, from even the shadow of the "Woolworth Building," and would mingle with her real "Upper Ten," he will find glad welcome if he can pay the price. Its admission fee is not named in gold, nor in blatant distinction, but in the ability of the entrant to appreciate true hospitality, and to give and receive the only coin current in intelligent, unselfish, refined society. There is no prejudice in such society against "movie people," simply as a class. Members of this profession who retain refinement, integrity and purity find no discrimination against them. All honor to the movie actress who remains the high-type woman and earns and deserves the respect of refined Los Angeles; she is a welcome and favored guest. The roysterer and self-advertiser, the "social climber," is not wanted. It is only the "undesirables" who are excluded and such by reason of their tastes would be unhappy in the society of the clean, the refined, the virtuous. Really they are not excluded; they exclude themselves.

The kindest advice to people who find Los Angeles "too slow" for them and not up to date in unrefined pleasures is to wish a safe return to some swifter and coarser city.

Very truly yours,

Z. S. HEMENWAY.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

BY LADY JANE.

"Why domestic service should be a desirable profession for women" is to be the palpitating subject of the programme at the Woman's City Club, tomorrow. Mrs. Frances Noel is announced as the main speaker, but there is some doubt as to whether she will appear, owing to the fact that there has been a little controversy anent Mrs. Noel's rather pronounced radicalism and recent events. The club seems to feel it has had its fill of extremists for the present. But in any case the programme will remain the same and more or less valuable contributions may be expected from the floor.

How to get the housework done, especially in households where even the most energetic housewife cannot possibly accomplish it all herself, is certainly madame's arch-problem just now. A roomy house and a mighty atom or two can be highly exacting, but that once complacent heroine of multitudinous feminine conversations seems to be almost extinct. "My maid" is now a swanky luxury more glamorful than "my chauffeur" or "my limousine."

Wherefore any dame happy in the possession of contented help at home, at something less than the entire family income, will be heard with the utmost respect—and avid jealousy.

The club will resume its luncheon reunions, which always proved so popular in the past. They will meet at Pin Tan at noon for a 50-cent lunch, repairing to the Walker Auditorium for the programme.

Ebell Club.

The Zoellner Quartette will furnish the programme at the Ebell Club, tomorrow afternoon, with a happy selection of chamber music.

Miss Rosamond Wright will have the ear of the club in a brief preliminary address.

Woman's Press Club.

The Woman's Press Club met on Tuesday and enjoyed the excitement of a warm little controversy occasioned by Judge Brown's address and Mrs. Dora Oliphant Coe's contention that his film play, written for the Better Film Committee and now showing at the Alhambra, possessed undesirable elements. Judge Brown's discourse was on the subject of the films and their influence for good or evil. However, Mrs. Lincoln Heustis poured oil on troubled waters and diplomatically called forth the musical programme to "soothe savage breasts."

Miss Bertha Sinclair told some of her early experiences with editors and magazines for the benefit of the club members, and Fritzi Fremont proved highly entertaining with her character analysis from handwriting.

P.-T. A. Federation.

The Los Angeles Federation of Parent Teacher Associations will meet in the Broadway Department Store Auditorium, Thursday, for an all-day session, which will include reports of officers, department chairmen, resolutions committee, an address by E. B. DeGroot on the State programme for physical education and songs by Maude Miller Calentine.

Cosmos Club.

Prof. Roy Malcomb will discuss the "Japanese Problems of California" before the Cosmos Club on the 12th inst., at the Ebell clubhouse and former Senator Cartwright will talk on the "Mutual Interests of Labor and Capital in Connection with Americanization."

The Shakespeare section will meet at the home of Mrs. Jennie Tyler Kirkham, 858 East Twenty-eighth street, Tuesday, when Mrs. John Kemp will read a paper on the "Life of the Moors," contributory to the study of Othello.

Wednesday Morning Club.

"The Development of Taste and Art Principles" will be the subject of the next programme at the Wednesday Morning Club, presented by Mrs. Henrietta Kapp. Miss Isobella Sagalini will sing the Sextette from "Lucia" and the "Neapolitan Love Song."

Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith proved a great drawing card with her "Women in Modern Literature" programme last Wednesday, which christened the new auditorium, of which the club is justly proud. Mrs. Goldsmith's ability to win her audience to laughter and tears at will was in efficient working order. She concluded to send them home laughing with a recital of "Mother's Dash for Liberty."

Better Films Committee.

Mrs. Harriet H. Barry, of the Better Films National Federation, will give a talk, Friday, at the Kewanis Club which will meet at the Clark Hotel, when a two-reel picture, which she regards as a shining example of a cheering, sparkling picture, will be shown.

The picture being shown at the Alhambra Theater, under the auspices of the Woman's City Club, "Surprising Carlotta," is being duly presented for judgment, and opinions on its merits are varied and controversial. In the official announcement regarding this play it is stated, "If support for it is not forthcoming, the conclusion will be that the demand for cleaner pictures is not sincere." This seems rather drastic. The picture public is critical and it may demand art, action, interest and scenario ability, as well as cleanliness. Cleanliness alone is a meager virtue.

Highland Park Ebell.

In his talk on "The Quest of the Beautiful," before the Highland Park Ebell, last Tuesday morning, C. P. Townley, managing director of the Otis Art Institute, presented the true artist's viewpoint of the subject.

For Tuesday is promised a programme of double interest. Prof. B. M. Baumgardt will give his new lecture, "The Rebuilding of the Temple," and after the luncheon at noon, served under the direction of Mrs. S. Y. Van Meter, the literature and drama section will have a review of new books by Miss Gertrude Darlow of the Public Library.

Business Women.

Dr. Robert G. Cleland of the history department of Occidental College and of the University of California, will speak on some of the unsolved problems of Mexico before the Business Women's Civic Club, Monday evening, in the rose room, Investment Building. Dr. Cleland spent a year in Mexico as member of the Doheny commission, studying its economic and social problems.

Miss Gail Laughlin, attorney and clubwoman of San Francisco, president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, was greeted by over 150 members, who assembled at a dinner given in her honor last Monday by the Los Angeles county federation, of which Miss Florence E. Shindler is president.

Miss Laughlin captivated her hearers by the force and justice of her well-enunciated convictions relating to problems of women in business, for whom she demanded no favors, only a square deal, by which was meant the right to enter any line of work for which they could qualify, and for equal pay with men for the same service. Women workers were urged to continue to raise their standards of efficiency and were warned not to seek for all they could get by seeing how little they could give. Life, in the opinion of the speaker, was not a cup to be drained, but a measure to be filled. The eight-hour law for women has on the whole retarded their progress, and the measure should be remedied by substituting an eight-hour law for men as well as women in certain groups, she declared.

Women's Club of Hollywood.

Raymond Blathwayt, the English commission speaker for the Department of Information, spoke before the Women's Club of Hollywood at the afternoon meeting, Wednesday, on "The International Value of the Novel." Mr. Blathwayt, in this talk, dealt entirely with the novels of England and America. He will address the Friday Morning Club's next meeting.

Lovers of books had another treat the same day in the drama luncheon and programme at noon. Mrs. Clara B. Fithian, leader, had planned a most entertaining group of table-talks, from the exposition of "Barrie and His Time," through the reviews of "Barbara's Wedding," "Quality Street" and "The Twelve-Pound Look."

Music lovers enjoyed a well-attended meeting, Tuesday morning, at which the old vocal round, the rondo and variations were studied and illustrated.

Mrs. L. J. Selby, contralto, who has just returned after months of service as an entertainer with the American Expeditionary Force, will speak Wednesday on "Experiences with the A.E.F. in France." The club will also hear Helen Constance Morgan, pianist.

C. P. Townsley of the Otis Art Institute has consented to give several talks to the art section this year, the first of which will be "Environment in Art," November 5, at the luncheon at noon. Maj. Walter Pullerwell will address the club next Wednesday on the League of Nations, reviewing both sides of the question.

Philanthrophy and Civics.

The Elks' women, whose Philanthrophy and Civics Club is proving such a happy success, gave their ninety-seven new members a reception at the Elks' Club House, Thursday afternoon, in properly sumptuous Elks' manner. That very comfortable auditorium—these men certainly do themselves well—was crowded, and the reminiscent odor of expensive masculine cigars

A CLUB NEOPHYTE'S CHATTER.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 28.

Dear Aunt Sophie:

I think this new League of Women Voters, to automatically succeed the big Federation of Woman's Suffrage Societies, is going to prove very lively. There won't be anything dull about it. They insist that it is not going to be a woman's party, because they don't want darling masculinity to think there is going to be any antagonism or anything horrid like that, but I don't see why they should be so tactful about it when one remembers the Masons and Elks and other close masculine corporations, do you? It really looks as if the women want to usurp all the gallantry nowadays. But then, of course, dear Mrs. Burdette is organizing this league, and she will insist upon maintaining a lofty opinion of men.

Which reminds me. Club gossip tried to marry Mrs. Burdette for the fourth time last week, but she will have none of it. She is going to devote the next twenty years to applying her experience for the benefit of the whole sex and declines to discourage the spinsters any more. She is certainly a shining testimonial for successful matrimony.

Women's clubs can't be quite so detrimental to romance as the men once feared, can they? Indeed, clubland is boasting that no less than three newspaper club editors, who surely get their fill of them, have married from unalloyed excess of sentiment during the past year and evince every evidence of shameless satisfaction.

A perturbing discovery has been made at the Friday Club. It appears that, in going over the club linen, everything was in good order except the programme tablecloths. That's where the speakers are entertained at lunch, you know; and all the edges of the cloths have a gnawed and chewed appearance.

There were palpitating moments at the Woman's City Club on Monday, when Mrs. Herman Darling "called down" two prominent slub women for their bad behavior, from the platform. She did not exactly mention them by name, but no one was left in doubt. It appears that the ladies are conscientious objectors who can be trusted to throw a monkey wrench into the works on all debatable occasions, and they insisted upon cooking up their objections during the programme in very audible tones indeed.

• • •

I wonder if the club women are really as proud of their picture show, "Surprising Carlotta," as they say. Mrs. O. Shepherd Barnum recommended it as a sincere effort to take the "sin out of cinema," and, of course, we do all want better films. All the same, strictly entre nous, auntie, dear, it is the weakest, wishy-washiest thing I've seen for a long time. It opens with a string of bromidic little platitudes about everyone who is arrested not being a criminal, and childhood having rights, etc., and then introduces us to a lot of little boy crooks whose mammas obviously neglected to spank them, and somehow our sympathy fails to enthuse. There doesn't seem to be any point, and most of the action takes place "off," while sub-titles of dubious merit clutter up the scenes. Of course, one must not be too critical of worthy maiden efforts, but the club women are so bright one could not help expecting something rather special from them. It is evidently harder to make a good, clean, jolly, adventurous film than we know. The Juvenile Court scenes are distinctly frivolous, nicely calculated to undermine its dignity, and in the scenario foreword Judge Brown remarks that the naughty boys learn most of their sins from the movies. Well, they certainly can learn a new set from this particular film. Several small sons of club women in the audience were quite obviously taking notes.

• • •

The daughter of a prominent club woman is telling a naughty story just now, which, as she herself specializes in interpretive dancing of the wisp-of-chiffon apparel order, is extra piquant. She says that two girls boarded a street car recently in the very minimum of apparel and excess of revealed charms. Everyone was staring at them, when one turned to the other with a hoarse stage whisper: "Gee whillikens! Mabel, you got your ears showing."

In case you don't know, auntie dear, the present arch-modish crime is to show one's ears.

• • •

Mrs. C. B. Bowling, the parent-teacher dame, is just oozing venom against poor old England. At the League of Nations meeting on Monday she hopped up and got any amount of spleen off her chest. Somebody ought to tell her that hate is not only demode but very bad for the complexion. Of course, England can probably stand it, but we don't like to see Mrs. Bowling's charms sacrificed on the altar of ancient vengeance.

• • •

The spouses of one or two club women belong to the Athletic Club Uplifters—the uplift part referring to their preference for soaring above the sorrows of this world via convivial methods. Well, the Uplifters went to Catalina last week-end, and some of the home-comings were varied and peculiar. Mutual wifely confidences proved very illuminating. However, maybe Uncle John is an Uplifter, auntie dear, so I won't pursue this theme. Every husband ought to be allowed to tell his own story.

Yours faithfully,
BETTY.

COMMERCIALIZING GOODNESS IN FILMS.

BY MYRA NYE.

That's what Judge Willis Brown says he is trying to do with "Surprising Carlotta." The clubwomen of Los Angeles are with him in his venture because they think he has the right idea. He admits it is an experiment. The measure of his success, he also admits, will be the receipts at the box office of the Alhambra Theater, where, the past week, Carlotta has been surprising, but not surprising enough. Now a "Surprising Suzanne" in these alliterative days of titles, might have swelled the box office receipts a degree. And Suzanne is too modern even to be in the dictionary. Evidently Judge Brown doesn't want to be too modern. Besides, Suzanne is French, and Carlotta is Italian.

Goodness can be commercialized, goodness knows, as witness Peg O' My Heart and Daddy Long-Legs. No wonder that had a long run.

And Pollyanna! Was ever there such noxious winsomeness oozing cloying honey on every page? Even at the height of its ppularity it was too nauseating a book for me to get past more than ten pages. I never did like honey. But what a success Mary Pickford made of it as a play. There goodness was commercialized.

"Tess of the Storm Country," that old, old success of Mary Pickford's, is another story of a superhumanly good girl. That book, too, was the rankest attempt at literature that ever made an Arnld Bennet or Willard Huntington Wright open their chest of denunciatory words. It was a success as a picture because it was chuck full of action dominated always by one character, Tess, taken by little Mary. On the contrary, Daddy Long-Legs has little action and is one of the cleverest books of light fiction written by an American woman in the last decade. This cleverness of conception made for subtitles with a surprising twist that were a delight; for quaint humor, and whimsy, for appeal. Mary and her director did the rest without action, though there was much added thta was not in the book.

"Surprising Carlotta" has no Mary Pickford, though Ruth Hampton does very well. It has not the action of "Tess" nor the whimsy of "Daddy Long-Legs." Its sub-titles leave nothing to your imagination. In addition to a foreword, it has an afterword. Thoughtful people like forewords and some prologues, but I have yet to see a moving picture crowd care for an afterword. In spite of this, the play was good, and Judge Brown knew what he as doing when he used boys in his play. The boys took their parts well to a boy.

By Tuesday night the manager at the Alhambra doubted if the play could run two weeks as it was booked. The girl of the tickets was sure it was because the public couldn't see at least one of their favorite stars in the play. Judge Brown's test wasn't working right. But he started with the right idea. He said he wanted to present a square life and not a sex triangle. He didn't want to besmirch life for the sake of whitewashing it afterward. He wanted to emphasize the fact that you can't legislate for childhood; the parents or the State must be held responsible. He wanted to major goodness and make sin an incident.

He says the difference between boys and adults is that boys hypnotize each other and big folks hypnotize themselves. He objects to such hypnotizing of ourselves that we aplaud, in a frenzy, a murder, such as the one by the Chink, of the prize fighter in "Broken Blossoms." "In fact, you don't have to show sin at all to prove your birthright."

Judge Brown recognizes that the crowd will not go to see a punchless, goody-goody play that is as "dead as a Sunday-school."

"Surprising Carlotta" is too good to be damned by faint praise. But it has the misfortune to be set wrong. The other pictures that I saw run with it hurt it. In his photoplay, Judge Brown is dealing with what he intimately knows—boys who go a little wrong, police and the court and the judge. He knows what he is about. He has been there. But in the Christie comedy, which precedes it, there are also small boys, playing pranks; there is an arrest, as in "Surprising Carlotta," and a scene before the judge, all burlesque, and good fun it is, too. This stultifies the subtleties of Judge Brown's court scene with his very human boys and Carlotta.

MUCH HYPOCRISY IN MODERN LIFE.

Life, as we civilized beings live it, is one vast hypocrisy. And it would all be inexpressible pathetic were it not for the fact that it is so splendid.

How often it is that a smile but masks an aching heart; how often the cheery word hides despair. Very brave, indeed, is this hypocrisy of life.

You will meet a man on the street and say, "How are things going with you?" And he will say, "Fine." And you will meet a woman and ask, "How are you feeling?" and she will say, "Fine." And, as likely as not, things are not going well at all with the man. And the woman feels any way but well.

Yet they hide their fears, their worries, their disappointments, their mental and physical sufferings from the eyes of those whom they meet and with whom they associate in life.

Women are the bravest. How many a woman there is who has a bad husband or bad son, yet who never whines about it. They smile though their hearts are breaking. They make themselves look well though they may be seldom well. It is a fine bravado, is it not? How gloomy and grouchy the world would be were it not for this hypocrisy.

It is a thing that makes us take our hat off to the average man or woman. In the face of it, the soldier on the battlefield is not so worthy of his laurel wreath as these folks are who trudge the commonplace walks of the world.

We think it will be very interesting on the Day of Judgment when we are all lined up in the open and each man sees what the other man had to contend against, and how he bore it, and hear what God will say then.—[New York Times.

Albino Trout Breed True.

In the experience of the New York State fish hatcheries, one brook trout in about fifty thousand is an albino. If these albinos are picked out of the school and carefully reared they will breed true. At the Caledonia hatchery there are a number of albino lake trout, which are so old that they are now blind. Adult albino trout in a wild state are seldom, if ever, encountered, one reason being that on account of their conspicuousness they are the first to be destroyed by kingfishers and other birds of prey.—[New York Sun.

"I gave him ipecacuanha," he said.

"You might just as well have given him the Aurora Borealis," replied the coroner.

Son's Looks.

Father: Well, now that you've seen my son, which side of the house do you think he more closely resembles?

Tartar on Teeth
Shows You Leave the Film
All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Free
A 10-Day Tube of Pepsodent to show you its effects. See coupon.

Remove the Film

Film is the basis of tartar. It is the source of discolored teeth and decay.

In brushing teeth you leave a slimy film. You can feel it with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. Your tooth paste cannot dissolve it. Most tooth troubles are now traced to that clinging film.

That film is what discolors—not the teeth. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So the one great object in cleaning teeth should be to end that film.

Dental science, after years of searching has found a way to do that. For home use the way is now embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent.

The results are known. Convincing, clinical and laboratory tests have proved them beyond question. Leading dentists everywhere now advocate its use.

A 10-Day Test Supplied

We now send a 10-Day Tube to anyone who asks. Thus we are starting countless people toward cleaner, safer teeth.

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object is to dissolve the film, then to day by day combat it.

The way seems simple, but pepsin must be activated. The usual method is an acid harmful to the teeth. It is the invention of a harmless activating method which makes pepsin possible. That, with other Pepsodent ingredients, is doing now what was never done before.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the slimy film. See how teeth whiten as the fixed film disappears.

Read the book we send you. Learn the reason for these things. Then judge for yourself if you want your teeth kept in that way always. Cut out the coupon now.

See how teeth glisten when the film is gone.

It is film that makes teeth look dirty. It is film that is the source of most tooth troubles.

USE PHONOGRAPHS.

Parisians Adopt American Custom in Dancing.

A battered, war-worn cottage piano is on view in a dealer's window in Paris, labeled: 'Rescape—retour du Front.' Its case is splintered beyond all possibility of repair; the keyboard barely holds together; the candle-holders, wrenched and twisted, hang from the sockets. It tells an eloquent and forlorn tale of a devastated home in some modest street of a northern town, and no doubt there are thousands of instruments in a similar condition. But it does not follow that piano dealers are inundated with orders for new ones. On the contrary, it appears that many people will this year suppress the piano they formerly hired for the winter season, and will use the phonograph in its place for their impromptu dances. The Americans set the fashion in Paris of dancing to a phonograph, an unheard-of proceeding before the war, and already in the sociable Latin Quarter there have been some impromptu tangoes to the wail of the phonograph.

The dancers supplement its feebler notes by stamping on the parquet, like the peasants who mark the rhythm of their bourrees with the clank of their sabots.—[Continental Edition of the London Mail.

THE CAT AS AN ASSET.

St. Louis leads the world in fur sales and the latest as a rule turns out to be the greatest. In this month's offerings 26,000 domestic cat pelts were disposed of at an average of 67 cents each, the choice Persian and Angora variety bringing $1.50. It is said that homeless cats furnish these articles of commerce, but possibly in this case a homeless cat may be defined as any one apparently or constructively away from home and within vandal reach. Cat fur in the St. Louis sales is commendably called by its real name, an example that should be followed in stockyards "out West" where the flesh of the goat masquerades as lamb. People who are fond of their cats should realize that they have a value apart from sentiment, and try to emphasize the cat's natural propensity to stay at home if well treated. They can only be gadabouts at their peril, and nocturnal cat musicales are even less safe than heretofore. Individual attention is the only insurance for a favorite cat.—[St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

LITERATURE WITH DEAD ENGINE.

BY THOMAS L. MASSON,
Editor of "Life."

When the more or less Bolshiviki air of the Metropolis has been cleared, and the world of arts and letters has settled back on its typographical haunches—then and only then will the oldest citizens sit around the sizzling radiators and tell about the great strike that discombobolated the magazines of New York.

Nothing like it has ever been known in American literature—always assuming that there be such.

In the common bond of sympathy that a common misfortune has so suddenly established among authors and artists, all distinctions have been forgotten. Even professional humorists have been spoken to kindly by writers of best sellers. Dramatic critics have noticed sporting writers. Book reviewers have found time enough to read the books which, under normal conditions, they would review—something never before deemed possible. And women editors have been seen actually kissing one another. Nobody quite believed that the thing could happen. The idea that hundreds of periodicals—many of them the leading periodicals of America—could be put out of commission almost overnight, seemed incredible. Yet it happened and there was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth among the Hittites, the Moabites, the Serialites, the Epigramites and the Sobstuffites. Writers of free verse gathered in knots in secluded soda marts and abandoned bar-rooms and passed resolutions in which "Give us Liberty or give us bread" was the high note. Haughty publishers associated with one another for the first time in history. Advertising writers descended from their heights and mingled with the common crowd. Society artists bade farewells to weeping models and went back to the bosoms of their respective families. Editors alone were calm; they embraced the opportunity presented of rejecting masterpieces of literature for a good reason—that they could not be printed. Chicago, the pork-ridden siren of the West, issued its clarion call to Gotham. "Come on and rest your weary heads on my waiting breast," said Chicago, "and I will give you comfort and cheer. Willing workmen, imbued with the spirit of the brotherhood of man with Lakeside chrysanthemums in their buttonholes, cluster my perfumed printing shops. We will set up and print anything you give us, without shame—anything from a minor editorial to a Robert W. Chambers novelette. Leave the fetid soviet atmosphere of New York and lead the glad free life of a Chicago publisher."

Many have responded to this siren call, and have treked to the West.

If this is only the beginning and our magazines eventually go to Chicago and other points in the great West, it remains to be seen what will be the effect upon literature. Writers, who have never strayed beyond the Harlem River and who, within the sacred recesses of Brooklyn boarding-houses or Harlem flats, have written thrilling tales of cowboys and wild prairies, may actually have to travel hereafter and see the country. The prospect is appalling. I know one writer who pounds out a 70,000-word thriller every month. He goes to the "movies" weekly and sees a western film, to get the local color. He is so used to writing about things he doesn't know anything about that if he is forced to live in Chicago or Kansas City and learn something of real life, where will it end? He may be forced into some respectable trade. And he is only one of thousands.

We must face this thing as best we may. If Rupert Hughes and Robert W. Chambers and Sam Merwin and George Barr McCutcheon and Gouverneur Morris and Julian Street are forced to abandon their palatial suburban residences in the East, and have to be tethered on the prairies of Illinois and Kansas, or seek subsistence in the alkali desert or the culture oases of Nebraska, what is going to be the effect upon our heroes and heroines? The Federal unreserve sex centers of the East will have a crimp put in them that will shake all the divorce courts to their foundations, and cause the literary 400 to begin to think about living half-way decent lives—something that has never before occurred to them. These heroes and heroines, hitherto confined to the hot atmosphere of metropolitan drawing-rooms and studios and adjacent golf links, will have to shake loose from their bearings. The thought that in time they may become real men and women who pass their days and nights talking of something else besides throwing themselves in and out of each other's arms—all this is a problem enough to make strong men weep.

Short-story writers, who have hitherto come on to the metropolis fresh from the correspondence schools attached to all self-respecting universities, and have tried to get the pulse beat of the nation by plunging into the cardiac region of the East Side, will have to begin life all over again in the wilds of Michigan or in the Presidential Sam Browne belt of Ohio. Only Irvin Cobb is safe, for he gets all of his local color out of himself.

Up to the present time the strike has not extended to Washington, and the Congressional Record is still coming out undisturbed in its pristine purity. But if this Fountain of Mirth should eventually have to be printed in sections in various parts of the country, the American people—take them as a whole—might develop such a sense of humor that they would laugh themselves sick over the H. C. of L. and other irrelevant matters now regarded with so much solemnity.

Congressmen, who at present get their literary pabulum from printing-house square and have their sense of humor relayed through the inspirational professionals of the metropolis, will take on new points of view. Mr. Caleb Jones will rise in the House and say:

"Mr. Speaker, I bear in my hands a copy of my favorite magazine, formerly of Madison avenue, and now printed and issued from the banks of the Mississippi, that glorious and translucent river that rises in the north and sets in the south and, without objection, I will read from it a short story of 8000 words, with leave to print, and which actually reveals, sir, the hitherto unknown character and habits of the benighted inhabitants of the Middle West. By means of this marvelous tale, I shall attempt to show that these obscure people have developed a sort of rudimentary intelligence and are capable of laughing and crying and otherwise disporting themselves like human beings, just as if they had once visited the Great White Way,"—etc.

The effect of the strike upon the public has been no less disheartening. Deprived of its magazines, this public has been forced to read the newspapers more carefully than ever, and it has made the alarming discovery that the newspapers often publish better real literature than the magazines, and much of this by wild western writers.

It will be seen from all this that the printers' strike in New York is different from all other strikes. In an ordinary industrial strike three elements are involved—capital, labor and the public. But in this strike there is a fourth element—that typewritten body of men and women, whose work it is not only to amuse the public, but who are presumed to enlighten and instruct it. Whatever our literature may be, it is composed of a mass of workers, each one of whom is striving to reach the top. Many of them, having previously achieved a reputation outside of Broadway, come on to New York, and engage rooms in a family hotel so that, by forgetting all they have previously learned, they can continue to enlarge their reputations as epoch makers.

If whole groups of these writers and artists are suddenly stopped short in their energies and output and have to emigrate to new centers of literary industry this is bound to create a national mental disturbance and just at present we are not short of national mental disturbances. It is for this reason that the printers' strike in New York is unique and highly important.

While some of our most inspiring writers remain faithful to their own home towns in the West and South, it still remains true that all literary roads have hitherto led to New York.

Philadelphia has its esoteric circle and the highbrows of Boston stick to their last. But these gentlemen are in close touch with the great commercial center and vibrate back and forth with great regularity. If the printers unconsciously and in pursuit of their own ends now succeed in compelling a large proportion of the great magazines to go elsewhere, and a diversity of literary meccas is set up, we shall undoubtedly have a new order of things.

In America public opinion is supreme, and it has been mighty slow in forming. Maybe this is because New York has made such a business of trying to form it. Certainly, the environment in which the printed page is issued becomes all important. If every section of the country has its magazines and book plants it follows that the whole consciousness of America must be more closely interwoven. When New York has to go West for its brand of thought it may in time look to the West, learn to know something about it, and acquire an almost human intelligence of its own, instead of being constantly recruited by the intelligence of outsiders who come on to sell their wares.

The benevolent hand of Providence may, therefore, be in the printers' strike. Doubtless, the printers didn't know it. But even printers don't know everything.

When Mary Roberts Rinehart, Irvin Cobb, Harold Bell Wright, Kathleen Norris, Booth Tarkington and Edna Ferber all begin to think as one man—then things may be different.

TURNING FROM IDOL WORSHIP.

"A great change is coming over the people in this part of India," says Methodist Missionary Steadman Aldis of Basim, in the Central Provinces. "They have suffered much from sickness and famine in the past year, and now a water famine is upon them. Many have, on this account, lost all faith in their heathen gods.

"A short time ago, I was touring through one of the villages with my native helpers, one of whom declared to the people: 'You have seen little children making men of mud, and pretending to feed them, and give them flowers, etc., and then, when dinner time comes they wipe it all out and go home. That is just the way you people are in your idol worship.'

"If that native preacher had made such a statement two years ago the people would have driven him out of town, or worse. As it was they laughed and admitted that it was quite true. Some of them added his testimony as to the foolishness of their faith.

"Many of the people are really giving up their idol worship. My wife says this is especially true of the women among whom she is working."

A Consideration.

WOMEN.

Girls in England are said to have grown larger during the war. Waists now measure on an average 26 to 28 inches, while 7½ in gloves and sizes 7 and 8 in shoes are sold.

The largest insurance society for women in the world is the Ladies of the Maccabees, which has a membership of 188,000, and has disbursed a total of more than $14,000,000 in benefits.

There have been a limited number of women admitted to the Order of the Garter, though for nearly 400 years no English sovereign conferred this honor on a woman.

By the will of Mrs. Annie Davidson of Newburg, N. Y., recently admitted to probate at Goshen, she bequeaths 5 cents each to her several grandchildren, and the remainder of her small estate to her children. The will is written on a sheet of note paper, the reverse side of which contains this warning: "If anyone makes any trouble they will get nothing."

Five women are included in the membership of the municipal Council of Amsterdam.

Some of the tallest steeples and smokestacks in Cincinnati have been painted by Myrtle Kennett, a young matron, who makes a good living as a steeplejack.

Female workers in Japanese factories number 500,000, of whom 300 are under 20 years of age.

Announcement is made at Boston University that Miss Marie Duggan, A. B., will take charge of the shorthand work at the new College of Secretarial Science. Miss Duggan is a graduate of the State University of Nebraska and has done post-graduate work at the University of California. Previous to her appointment to the faculty at Boston University, Miss Duggan taught for several years in the West. Her home is in South Dakota. She will probably teach at least one class in the personal affairs management division of the college, as well as the secretarial classes.

The British boot and shoe industry in 1914 employed 56,000 female workers, and in 1918 more than 71,000, an increase of 10 per cent.

Two girls staying at a boarding-house at Atlantic City left a window open and a heavy rain played havoc with wallpaper and furnishings. The landlady went to court for satisfaction, and the girls were ordered to py her $223.

The women physicians from thirty-five foreign nations and from all parts of the United States meeting in the conference at the national Y.W.C.A. headquarters, heard a statement of Charlotte Perkins Gilman's, who said it is not necessary for a mother who is a good mother to take the entire care of her own children and do all her own housework. Mrs. Gilman believes in a professional, a highly-trained expert mother, who can take care of many children while the actual and individual mothers are carrying out their various schemes of life. "But no expert woman can love fifty children as well as the mother loves her own," she said.

The Bears, not the Man.

A tourist traveling in the Rocky Mountains was introduced to an old hunter who claimed to have killed no fewer than a hundred bears. "Bill," said the introducer, "this feller wants to hear some narrer escapes you had from bears." "Young man," said Bill, "if thar's been any narrer escapes, the bears had 'em."

SEAL OF HONOR.

Employers in National Scheme to Aid Disabled Soldiers.

A "national scheme for disabled men" is the latest movement in England for the aiding of men who fought in the war and returned crippled. The plan aims at a fair distribution of the disabled men over all industries. All employers of ten men and upwards are asked to promise to find work for disabled men up to the minimum of 5 per cent. of the total number of those employers who consent to the scheme will be inscribed on a national roll, and the privilege granted them of using on their correspondence an official seal indicating the acceptance of the duty. The Edinburgh Scotsman says:

"If the aftermath of previous wars is not to be reproduced, the fullest possible opportunity must be given to these men to find positions in trade and industry suited to their disability. Apart from medical treatment, the government has carried out its part of the obligation by providing out of work pay for the disabled for an extended period, by offering them training for remunerative work, with the payment of allowances during the training, and by promoting employment through the labor exchanges. Both these expedients are inadequate for a complete and early solution of the problem, and the national scheme now launched aims at the more rapid absorption of the disabled into the ranks of industry Out of a total of eight hundred thousand about seven hundred thousand disabled men are already employed, and of the remaining one hundred thousand half are still in hospital. The immediate task is to find employment for the other fifty thousand before further discharges."

The government has set an example by proposing to employ the full percentage of disabled men in connection with the different departments.—[Kansas City Star.

MANY BRITISH ESTATES SOLD.

Easy-Going Type of Landed Gentry is Obsolete.

Dawn of a New Democracy is Believed at Hand.

Class that Made Money in War is Now on Top.

BY LADY MARY.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Oct. 18.—An extraordinary game of "General Post" seems to be taking place in England just now. Everybody is "on the move," either actually or spiritually. Tradition is getting the cold shoulder, while a new view of life seems to be taken by all classes and grades of society.

For instance, an entirely new "landed gentry" is rapidly coming into existence. They are for the most part recruited from the class which made easy money during the war. Old country families are glad enough to sell, their property and make room for a newer and a richer land owner. Almost every landed proprietor in the British Isles is selling farms or estates of from ten to a thousand acres; during the last ten days nearly 300 acres of land in Leicestershire belonging to the Countess of Warwick has come into the market. Auctioneers all over England and Scotland are at their wits' end to take care of the orders for sales that they are receiving.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP.

It is said that, except for romantic and historic reasons, the changes of ownership that thus occur are all to the good of the country. I was talking recently on this subject to Sir Herbert Morgan, K. B. E. He is an eminent business man, who has an inside knowledge of practical matters all over the kingdom.

"These 'new' people," he said, "are for the most part men with capital and business acumen to back them up. They will develop the land with all the 'push and go' they possess, and they are untrammeled by any hereditary dyed-in-the-wool programme. The old type of landed proprietor—good-natured, easy-going, fine fellow that he was—made very little effort to develop his estate. A little shooting, a little fishing, enough money to spend, a couple of years in a Guard's regiment and to see life, and he was content. His property was mortgaged to the hilt, probably by ancestors a century or more ago, and he was just scraping along.

"Today these one-time landed proprietors are getting out because there is a new class clamoring to possess land and the market is in its favor. Surely no greater proof of what I say can be instanced than the extraordinary number of young titled men whose names have recently been listed in the bankruptcy court."

Certainly, Sir Herbert Morgan sheds the right light on one of the serious situations of the moment. Within the last few months, marquieses, earls, baronets and others of lesser degree have had to be publicly examined as to their means and not so very long ago the Duke of Manchester had to "face the music' 'at a similar enquiry. Even speaking roughly from memory, such names as the Earl of Cowley, Viscount of Uffington, Sir Guy Domville(who committed suicide to add to the tragedy of his complicated history,) Sir Edward Fitzgerald (brother of the Duke of Leinster) are just a few of the names that present themselves.

UPSETTING TRADITIONS.

Added to all this, men and women bearing distinguished names and titles are emerging from the hide-bound traditions that have closed in upon them for generations and, sometimes for centuries. The young Duke of Sutherland, for instance, the other day made a speech, in which he said: "One can now see, far away, the dawn of a better day for mankind, a day of better feelings and more class friendships than the old ones before the war, when the poor will be better paid, fed and housed, and the rich will realize that they cannot spend their entire wealth on themselves."

The Duchess of Westminster, however, commenting on the Duke of Sutherland's speech, does not see eye to eye with his optimistic Grace.

"The day has gone," says her Grace of Westminster, "when the peerage was a thing apart. In the old days the poor were dependent on the rich; the day is now dawning on the poor; there is at least an equal dependence on both sides. I quite admit that the war brought unexampled prosperity to the working classes. That this was an unexpected result of a universal tragedy, was proved when the Prince of Wales opened a special fund on behalf of the working classes, to which enormous sums were subscribed; but it is well known that an immense surplus remained from the Prince's fund when the war finished and it is almost in the nature of a sarcastic paradox to know that this surplus of the Prince of Wales's fund is being devoted to the help of disabled officers who cannot find jobs and who have no means of livelihood."

DUCHESS ON STUMP.

The Duchess of Westminster has been making speeches and rushing into print a good deal lately. Perhaps you will remember that a few months ago she obtained a divorce from the Duke of Westminster, who is supposed to be the richest nobleman and the greatest land owner in the kingdom.

Speaking of rich people, reminds me of a wedding that took place very quietly in London the other day. This was the marriage between Lady Wernher and Lord Ludlow. The late Lord Wernher was many times a millionaire and Bath House in Piccadilly overlooking the Green Park (which belongs to the Wernhers) is one of the famous residences in London. Lord Wernher was of the group that included Sir Ernest Cassell, Sir Edgar Speyer, the Rothschilds, the Neumanns, the Beits and the Monds. One of the younger sons of Lord and Lady Wernher married two or three years ago Countess Xia Torby, second daughter to the Grand Duke Michael of Russia, and his wife, the Countess Torby.

Lord Ludlow's first wife was Lady Howard de Walden, mother of the present Lord Howard de Walden, who is another of England's moneyed peers, who also "married money." Lord Ludlow has not a great fortune. I fancy that the late Lady Ludlow left him the greater part of his present income. When he married Lady Howard de Walden, there was a great amount of gossip and talk on the subject, because she had taken up her residence at her son's beautiful house in Belgrave Square and was always regarded as a permanent attachment to that establishment. Lord Ludlow, like the Wernhers, is of Hebraic persuasion; while of course, the De Waldens are British. Therefore, there was considerable opposition to a marriage which, like his present wedding with Lady Wernher, was contracted in a most secret fashion.

LONDON SENSATIONS.

London has been going through a wonderful series of sensations lately and I must say that, as Londoners, we should all be very proud of the manner in which we resisted any temptations to be "down-hearted" during the great railway strike. I have never seen the streets so full of cheerful-looking people as during those days when everyone more or less had to "foot it" or else stay at home. Of course there were many serious drawbacks to the optimistic attitude of many people, but as far as outward appearances went, everyone "bucked up" and looked as smiling as they possibly could under many very trying circumstances.

It was very interesting to watch the people who possessed motors acting the part of good Samaritans to stranded and foot-weary pedestrians. I saw one day, for instance, the Countess of Drogheda stop near the curb in Piccadilly and invite four very tired and disheveled-looking shop girls into her car, which she was driving herself. They evidently lived in an unfashionable eastward direction, for I saw them giving her directions as to the route she should take and, as she turned her steering wheel away from the west, I heard her say, "Well, I've never been there, but I daresay I can find it."

CAPT. MATLCAK, BORDER TERROR.

Bandits in Big Bend District Rejoice at His Leaving.

Composite Type of American Soldier from the Ranks.

Frequently Went Into Mexico Alone on Punitive Trip.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CANDELARIA (Tex.) Oct. 9.—When Capt. Leonard Matlack and his command, Co. K of the Eighth United States Cavalry, broke camp here a few days ago and took up their march for Fort Bliss at El Paso, their new station, the banditry element on the upper Rio Grande border, probably did some rejoicing. Capt. Matlack has been a terror to evil-doers ever since he came to the notorious Big Bend region with his company, four years ago.

He came to be feared more than the famous Rangers who for many years were the only official guardians of peace in this remote stretch of border country. Although the men of Co. K were also of the daring, fighting type, Capt. Matlack often preferred to go it alone when it came to dealing with dangerous situations.

UP FROM THE RANKS.

When Matlack came to Candelaria he was a sergeant in his company. He is in all respects a composite type of the American soldier. For twelve years he had served in the ranks. He had put in the allotted time in Philippine service and at various posts in this country. When the Eighth Cavalry, commanded by Col. George T. Langhorne, came to the Big Bend region in 1915 things were popping pretty lively along the river. Matlack took station with his company at this small, isolated community on the banks of the Rio Grande, while Col. Langhorne established headquarters at Marfa on the Southern Pacific Railroad.

Just across the river from Candelaria is the little adobe Mexican town of San Antonio, which Matlack and his company of fighting men soon found to be a hot-bed of bandits. It had long been the practice of the male inhabitants of the town to obtain the principal subsistence for themselves and families by means of raids upon ranches and stores on this side of the border. It frequently happened that they committed a few murders on these expeditions. Until the Eighth Cavalry came to the border the bandits met with little interference in their robbing and killing exploits.

DOES OWN INVESTIGATION.

Matlack did a little investigating on his own account soon after coming to Candelaria. He found that the leader of the bandit crew in San Antonio was one Chico Cano, who was an erstwhile captain in the Carranza army. Matlack visited San Antonio alone at different times and managed to pick up an intimate knowledge of the lay of the land, not only topographically, but from the standpoint of how the townspeople spent their time. He got acquainted with Cano and the two men became good friends, so far as outward appearances went. Both were working to a purpose. Matlack took occasion to tell Cano that unless he quit his bandit ways he would come to a sudden and tragic end, along with his companions.

"If you and your gang want to do any raiding why don't you confine your work to your own side of the river" Matlack asked Cano one day as the two were sitting in the shade of the little custom-house building in San Antonio.

GIVES CANO WARNING.

Cano openly told him that he obtained better results from his exploits on the American side and that it was dangerous to get in bad on both sides of the Rio Grande, for then there would be no place of refuge for him.

"Well, I give you fair warning that I am going to get you if you make any more raids in my bailiwick," Matlack warned him.

It was not long after this that Cano led his bandits across the Rio Grande and raided a ranch, driving off several hundred head of cattle. Matlack took up the trail of the outlaws, followed them into Mexico, attacked and killed five of them, recovered the cattle and drove them back into Texas.

It is not surprising that Matlack visited alone the rendezvous of the bandits who had captured the two American aviators and were holding them for ransom, or that when he had paid over one-half of the sum that was demanded, coolly rode away with the remainder, inviting death for himself and the aviators at the time he did it, say men who know him well. He has long been noted for taking desperate chances.

GOES IN ALONE.

It is also not surprising to men who know him that he crossed into Mexico alone recently for the purpose of meeting and having it out with certain bandits who had threatened to kill him if he ever got in their way. Capt. Matlack on this daring visit to San Antonio encountered a brother of Jesus Renterias, the bandit leader who held the aviators, Peterson and Davis, in captivity pending the payment of ransom money. The meeting came near resulting in Matlack's death, as he was fired upon from ambush. He returned the fire and killed Renterias.

It was evident to his superior officers that Matlack was specially fitted for coping with the banditry situation on the upper border and he was promoted to second lieutenant, first lieutenant and captain in quick succession. Time after time he braved the dangers of the trails and Mexican communities on both sides of the river in his search for brigands. On one occasion he and a handful of his men were led into a trap by an overwhelming force of outlaws. When Capt. Matlack discovered the situation in which he and his soldiers were placed he gave the command to charge the Mexicans, instead of making a stand-to fight, as the bandits expected. At break-neck speed the soldiers, with Matlack at their head, rode down upon the Mexicans firing volley after volley of shots into their ranks. Not satisfied with shooting himself out of the trap Capt. Matlack turned his horse and rode through the stampeded crowd of Mexicans again and back to his astonished detachment of men. In this little affray thirty-five Mexicans were killed. The Americans met with no casualties.

KILLS HIS ASSAILANT.

Not long after this bout with bandits a cattle ranch not far from Candelaria was raided. Matlack and his company chased and killed a number of the outlaws. Later Matlack crossed the river for the purpose of searching for some stolen cattle. He found the hides of the cattle and sent them across the river. While he was prowling around the town a shot was fired at him from an adobe house. The bullet went wild. Matlack boldly rode to the house, dismounted, kicked in the door and killed the Mexican who had fired at him.

It probably will never be officially known how many Mexicans were killed following the bandit raid upon the Brite ranch in the Big Bend country in 1917. Capt. Matlack led in the chase of the outlaws on that occasion. They were followed into Mexico and according to current report all were wiped out.

No Means of Defense.

Ina: But perhaps he was bashful. You should have thrown out some hints that a kiss would not be objectionable.

May: I did everything possible. I told him I had such a sore throat that I couldn't scream, whatever happened.—[Pittsburgh Chronicle.

A FARM IN SAHARA.

That Desert Not Altogether Unfit for Human Life.

[J. Nicholas Brusse, in La Nation, Paris. Translated for the Scientific American.]

As far back as 1893, Henri Schirmer, whose ideas on the geography of the Sahara and its climate are today accepted by all the world and no longer inspire criticism, proved that the Sahara is not entirely lacking in rain, although the regimen of the winds occasions its present sterility; he has explained that the Sahara is not absolutely unfit for life, either for plant life or for animal life; but that Saharan agriculture has but little resemblance to that of other countries; that the European cannot suppress a desert as some of them dream of doing, and that a strategic road could be constructed across it as far as Soudan; that its oases should be developed, and "that land long left barren should be restored to cultivation." The surface of the Sahara is estimated at 2,394,200 square kilometers, and its population at 450,000 inhabitants. It is incorrect to believe that this expanse is a recently emerged bottom of the ocean. It consists of a vast series of plateaux with a few groups of mountains.

The Sahara has been incorrectly represented as an immense expanse composed of shifting sands, receiving no rain whatever, and entirely destitute of vegetation.

The Sahara is, to be sure, a very dry region; but it does rain there. It also contains a number of wells or pools of water—without mentioning the numerous Ghedirs, "temporary ponds or water holes, spots where rain water stands for a certain length of time." But for many centuries these wells have received no attention and no care.

Another legend which does injustice to the Sahara is that this immense expanse is entirely deprived of vegetation; but the largest portion of this immense surface proclaimed as a desert in reality possesses a plant life which is quite various and often very abundant. It contains numerous pastures and some pieces of woodland, even outside the oases.

Besides the palm tree, which requires rather a large sheet of water, various other sorts of trees are found in the Sahara aside from numerous shrubs and tamarisks; principally the rubber tree and the ethel, a variety of the tamarisk. In the southern Sahara the Doumor Egyptian palm is found; it does not bear fruit, but the trunk and branches serve various purposes. The Apir possesses other arborescent species—notably mimosas of all sorts in the most unpromising regions. Foureau believes that wooded plateaux still exist.

The Sahara contains a number of forage plants and shrubs. It was upon these that the caravans pastured, and that even the 1200 or 1300 camels of the Foureau-Lamy expedition and its auxiliary convoys succeeded in sustaining themselves.

It must not be forgotten that we are speaking here of spontaneous vegetation, which grows without demanding help or labor from man. It is, therefore, an incontestable fact that these pasture lands are capable of a certain degree of improvement, provided there is an initial establishment of roads of communication. This improvement can be attained by the selection of the best grasses, forage plants and arborescent species. According to Messrs. L. Trabut and R. Mares, the Saharan plants are very remarkable in their adaptation to a dry climate and a salty earth. The date tree is adapted to those Saharan regions,

MAKING MOTHER'S WORK EASY.

Inventors Give Their Best Efforts to Taking the Drudgery Out of Her Life—Fireless Cookers are of Great Assistance.

There was a time when the dreary drudgeries of housework were meekly accepted as a dispensation of Fate, or Destiny, or whatever it is that orders the disagreeable things of this life, and mother didn't say much about it. She went about her daily tasks uncomplainingly, and if her steps lagged a little as she put on the evening meal it was not noticed very much by anyone. If there was anything going on in the evening mother usually said she guessed she would stay home and read a little, she was too tired to dress and go out.

But nowadays does she stay at home when the family is invited to a party? I should say not! She is the gayest one of the lot and never too tired to do anything. Why? Because the inventors have had a heart and have given their best efforts to taking the load from her weary back. They have rejuvenated mother.

Fireless cookers have taken away the strain of watching the clock, or that ghastly hurried feeling when you are out anywhere in the afternoon. Electricity flies through the house like a fairy thing, and vacuum cleaners have done away forever with the old back-breaking shaking of rugs. But not only is it in the big things that housework has been lightened but all the little annoyances are being taken out.

DON'T BURN YOUR HANDS.

For instance, I wonder how many times each one of us has burned her hands with steam when pouring the water from vegetables. Of course, I know we are not supposed to have any left when they are boiled, to pour off, but you must admit it is being done in the best families. You tip the pot with one hand while you hold the cover on with the other, protected by a dish towel and what happens? The cover slips, we are burned, and one more little raw jag is added to the many in our nervous system. That is what I have done up to very recently, when I acquire a strainer that is a joy. It is the one in the illustration. The little hooks on its curved edge make it fit any keetle and its handle is at the side where you hold it right with the handle of the kettle. It drains everything perfectly and you couldn't burn yourself with it if you tried.

THAT TROUBLESOME CORD.

Right here I want to express my thanks to the man who invented the spring that will hold the extension cord out of your way when you are ironing. You know how it insists on catching in the garment you are ironing. We have all had the same exasperating experience with it, and I know everyone will be as glad as I was to find a remedy. The little spring is very simple and very inexpensive. It is in the form of a coiled spiral, which you slip over the cord without even the trouble of taking the cord out of the socket. Presto! Your troublesome cord springs up in the air, out of your way, but with such a flexibility to the spring that it stretches and shortens with no effort on your part, as the sweep of your iron demands. This simple device is only 25 cents. No one can afford to be without one. I know lots of mothers who would be very pleased to get one from their little girls or boys for a Christmas present.

SOMETHING FOR FATHER.

No matter how many closets there are in the house, father seems to have his clothes sort of crowded out. We always mean to let father have the closet clear, but it is such a temptation to put a little of our overflow in it. Now, here's a device to increase the hanging space for his clothes. It is an adjustable, hinged frame that screws onto the wall of the closet, and holds several garments at the same time, and without mussing them. Fastened to this frame are six sets of snapper clothespins that will hold that many pairs of trousers tight and straight, or anything else you want to hang up. When the clothes are fastened to this clever arrangement you just shut it up against the wall and it carries the garments with it and holds them there, lying smoothly, one over the other. The accompanying illustration shows just how it works.

A REAL CAN OPENER.

Most of them are a delusion, but here is one that really opens the can without any hesitancy or balking. And, added to that virtue, it turns in the edges as it goes along, so that there are no rough or sharp edges to tear the hands. It is a bit different in action, too, working outward around the tin so that you pull it around instead of pushing it.

COFFEE IDEAS.

Have you ever tried adding a few grains of salt to your cup of coffee? You will be surprised to find how the flavor is improved—it attains an indescribable mellowness. Of course, there is a reason, and in this case it is the addition of just the right amount of alkali to neutralize the slight acidity of the coffee. This addition is suited to coffee for all occasions, and is absolutely essential when coffee is used as the flavoring agent of various desserts—otherwise, the taste is "empty."

MAPLE SUGAR SWEETENER.

Have you ever tried maple sugar as a coffee sweetener? You may have heard of it during the sugar shortage of the war and, afraid perhaps that it would not taste good, clung tenaciously to your white sugar. In reality, it is delicious, for there is something about the flavors of maple and coffee that harmonize. That is one reason why a cup of coffee and a plate of griddle cakes or waffles with maple syrup is a perfect combination. As to the amount of maple sugar to use in sweetening the coffee, just serve it in the sugar bowl, broken into little lumps and appetite will do the rest!

TRY HONEY.

Perhaps you have never flavored your coffee with honey. Yet you can search a long time before you can taste anything more delicious than a perfect cup of coffee, sweetened with some perfect sweet clover honey. Of course, you would not use honey in the comb. Strained honey, or better still, the newer solidified, or granulated honey gives the best results. The coffee may be served either black or topped with whipped cream. Probably, served in this way, the coffee is best suited to after lunch, or afternoon tea service; without the cream, it may take the place of the familiar cafe noir.

There is no better luncheon accompaniment to the honeyed coffee than some delicious old-fashioned sponge or nut cake. For afternoon tea, try it with cinnamon toast, and for after dinner, use it alone with its delicious self.

MARSHMALLOWS.

Speaking of after-dinner coffee, or coffee particularly suited to party service, are you familiar with marshmallows as a sweetening agent? Just drop two in a medium-sized cup, then fill it with coffee. The result will be a delightful sweetness, with a frothy foam on the top which somewhat resembles cream. If you like you can add a little plain cream also to the beverage, but it is not necessary. When serving this at dinner you will find it delicious when accompanied by some simple cake or wafers, flavored with vanilla and containing either cocoanut or nuts. The same combination would be suitable for a party, or a little French pastry could be used, if desired. If the coffee is served from the pantry, a dessert spoonful of marshmallow creme to the medium-sized cup may be used instead of the marshmallows proper.

One of the reasons why marshmallows are so well adapted to coffee is because of the vanilla flavoring which they contain. Sometimes a drop or two of this extract may be served in each cup of coffee, or the coffee may be topped with sweetened whipped cream, flavored with vanilla, as is done so much in foreign countries. In this case, the coffee should be served as part of the dessert, because the whipped cream is so rich. A harmonious accompaniment to this consists of fruit tarts, such as strawberry, raspberry, or little orange pies, or a cake or cooky which is rather highly seasoned with spice.

"COFFEE MARASCHINO."

Now that the old type of coffee, with brown sugar and brandy, is no longer being served, "Coffee Maraschino" will undoubtedly take its place, especially as maraschino cherries are now being put up without liquor. In this case a demi-tasse is used, the coffee being flavored with a little of the liquid from the maraschino cherries and a cherry or two being dropped into each cup. Cream, either plain or whipped, may be used, or not, as desired. If served as "black coffee" at the end of a dinner, there should be no accompaniment, unless perhaps that of the usual bonbons, but, if served as part of the dessert course at luncheon, almost any good cake is a suitable accompaniment, except one containing chocolate.

But, in any case, when making the coffee, be sure to put in those few grains of salt!

BACK-SAVERS.

Better equipment and more systematic planning help the housekeeper to do her cleaning more easily and quickly. It is well to have a special place where cleaning utensils may be kept in the best condition and ready for instant use. Much time and energy is spent in collecting the utensils needed for cleaning.

A closet, cupboard, or wardrobe in the kitchen is the best place for keeping the cleaning utensils. A backstairs closet is also a good place. One end of a back porch may be inclosed and used for such a purpose. The closet should have plenty of hooks and racks for utensils and a shelf for cleaning materials.

The housekeeper should choose utensils according to her own needs and according to the requirements of her house. Those suggested below are inexpensive and will help to lighten the work of cleaning.

Bucket with wringer for mopping:

A piece of inch board fifteen inches square, with rollers, makes a convenient platform on which to set the mop bucket, and permits it to be moved easily without lifting.

Wall mop made by tying a bag made of wool or cotton cloth over an ordinary broom.

A broom, with a hook screwed in the end of the handle, by which it can be hung up.

A long-handled dustpan.

Several brushes for cleaning purposes.

Cheesecloth, worn silk, and flannelette for dusters.

Dusters may be made by dipping pieces of cheesecloth in two quarts of warm water, to which one-half cup of kerosene has been added. These cloths should be kept away from the stove or lighted lamp as they are inflammable.

An oiled floor mop to use on oiled or polished floors. Several makes can be found on the market, or one may be made of old stockings or any discarded woolen or flannelette material. The material is cut into one-inch strips and sewed across the middle to a foundation of heavy cloth. This is fastened to an old broom handle or used in a clamp mop handle. The mop is dipped into a solution made of one-half cup melted paraffin and one cup kerosene, and allowed to dry. To keep it moist, it is rolled tight and kept in a paper bag, away from stove or lamp.

It is estimated that four miles of an ordinary spider's thread would weigh scarcely a grain.

PICTURES DECEIVE.

Misleading pictures and other devices appearing on the labels of foods is a form of misbranding against which housewives will do well to be on their guard.

Inconspicuous statements in fine print are placed on the illustrated label in many instances to correct ostensibly the misleading features of the picture or other device. However, as the picture or device attracts the attention at once, while the inconspicuous corrective statement can be seen only by a most careful scrutiny of the label, the purchaser is certain to be misled unless attention is directed to the exacting wording of the entire label.

The picture of an olive tree and a map of Italy on the label of a bottle of oil leads the average housewive to expect an Italian olive oil, but a careful reading of the fine print on the label will enable her sometimes to discover that the bottle contains cottonseed oil made in America. Cottonseed oil is a wholesome product; is well able to stand on its own merits, and is cheaper than olive oil.

ORANGES DECEPTIVE.

The picture of a luscious orange on the label of a bottle of imitation orangeade not only adds to the attractiveness of the label, but helps to hypnotise the purchaser into the belief that he is getting the real article, notwithstanding the fact that there is tucked away somewhere in a mass of fine print a little statement to the effect that this most excellent beverage is but an imitation.

Many consumers asking and paying for Arabian coffee accept a package having on the label the picture of an Arab mounted on a fiery steed, and imagine they are getting the aroma of the delightful beverage of the Far East, although there is on the label an inconspicuous statement that the coffee in that particular package was produced in South America.

The picture of a maple leaf on a can of syrup carries the fancy to the delicious flavor and sweetness of the product from Vermont, inducing purchasers to pay more than they would pay if they noted the statement in very small type on the bottom of the label that the product is corn syrup flavored with cane.

The use of panel bottles, which appear to have a capacity of four ounces of flavoring extract, but which on account of the thickness and contour of the sides can not be made to hold more than two ounces, is an old practice to deceive the housewife in regard to the quantity. Even when the quantity of the contents is marked on the bottle, the purchaser is likely to judge the quantity more by the size of the bottle, which is so apparent, than by an inconspicuous statement, which can be seen only by close observation.

A more-recent device for making a little bit of pepper or spice look like a whole lot is a six-ounce tin package with a shaker top, which, because it cannot be removed without destroying the package, prevents the purchaser from observing that there are only two ounces or less in the package.

WATER CRYSTALS

'Way back in Gran'ma's day her one real labor saver was the family rain barrel. Ready at any moment with clean, soft water for kitchen, laundry or bath it stood alone as a household help in a day singularly devoid of labor saving devices.

Rain Water Crystals will make the hardest water as soft as rain water. They are especially recommended for washing dishes—for washing clothes—for a luxurious bath—a delightful shampoo.

Hard water ruins clothes and hands, is unsatisfactory for use in kitchen and bath. The successful washing of delicate fabrics is out of the question with hard water.

Rain Water Crystals produce a satisfactory substitute for rain-barrel soft water. There is no substitute for Rain Water Crystals. Not a washing powder but a washing-water softener.

—for cleansing the face and hands— keep the skin soft and white instead of rough and hard.

—for the BATH—they turn the hardest water into velvet softness.

—for the HAIR—they offer the luxury of a rain water shampoo.

—for WASHING DISHES, they remove the grease and make 'em shiney bright.

—WASHING CLOTHES is so easy when RAIN WATER CRYSTALS are used.

Every time you need water for cleansing, you need RAIN WATER CRYSTALS—

SINKS AND TABLES.

The height of a woman's kitchen sink and work tables are important factors in her well-being and well-doing. She can't do as much or as good work and feel well and strong with her sink and table so low that she has to bend over to work, or so high that she has to "reach up," as she would were they the proper height. As a general rule, 32 to 36 inches from the floor is the height for general work tables and the bottom of the sink should usually be 30 to 31 inches from the floor. However, each woman ought to find out for herself the height of the table at which she can work most easily and efficiently, and see that her work tables and sink are adjusted accordingly. Legs which are too long can be cut off, and those too short can be raised by blocks under them.

FOR CHILDREN'S PARTIES.

With children most any excuse to wear a white dress and a pink sash, play games and have "refreshments" makes a delightful party. Entertaining for children need not be at all expensive, if only games, decorations, favors and "eats" that will appeal to childish hearts are chosen. A few suggestions for children's parties follow:

A peanut hunt is a very enjoyable entertainment for most kiddies from 7 to 14 years old. Little bags of pretty bright colored materials, such as can be contrived from scraps of ribbon, silk or flowered cottons, should be furnished each little guest to collect peanuts in. A suitable prize for the one who finds the most peanuts is a box, made of cardboard tinted to resemble a great big peanut, and filled with candy. Refreshments for a peanut party might consist of peanut-butter sandwiches and salted peanuts, besides ice cream and cake.

When it is not practical to decorate a birthday cake with candles, the cake should be frosted with an attractive pink frosting, and animal crackers stuck "standing up" around the edge of the top, while the frosting is soft enough to embed them firmly. The kiddies will be pleased when told that this is a sweet "merry go round" that they can eat! A nicer, better tasting coloring for pink frosting, instead of the artificial coloring, can be secured by extracting a little strawberry, raspberry or loganberry juice or even a little bit of any red jelly well beaten into the icing during its making.

Pretty favors for girls are wreaths of paper flowers to wear on the head and a pretty way to present these is to place a wreath on each girl's head as she enters the dining-room for refreshments.

A delightful centerpiece, that will appeal to boys particularly, can be made from popcorn. Use the same syrup that sticks cornballs together, but instead, fashion either a figure of the snowballs together or a kewpie. The latter can be copied faithfully from a kewpie doll of the twelve-inch size and will be more realistic if gay red ribbon is tied kewpishly around the "tummy" of the popcorn figure.

A way of serving refreshments that will save lots of work for a busy mother, and yet appeal to the children, is to have a little box luncheon ready for each child, after the games, to eat on the porch, lawn or even on the roof of an apartment-house. Such a "party box" might contain besides a pretty paper napkin, two kinds of sandwiches, a little round chocolate cake, a slice of pink frosted cake, fruit gelatine in aluminum molds (to be collected afterwards,) and either a candy cane or a package of losenges in assorted colors. Another such box might hold an assortment of fancy crackers and ice cream might be passed in cornucopias. Usually with a box luncheon a beverage needs to be passed. Small bottles, one for each guest, of any of the fruit juices, are welcomed.

Something "different" in candy is sure to be appreciated by the little folks. At one party, the most longed for dish on the table, which was set with "all the refreshments aboard," was a plate holding for each child a big pink peppermint the size of a cookie. "Ploughed field," a confection invented by college girls, consisting of marshmallows stuck into chocolate fudge before it hardened, would be hailed joyously by the youngsters. Candy in the shape of animals is another popular sweet that makes suitable favors as well.

Something to take home is always cherished by children, favors of some sort should be provided, therefore. Many attractive candy containers can be made from boxes. They can be covered with prettily flowered wall paper, cretonne, crepe or tissue paper, and tied with ribbon. If open, a basket effect is pretty, and a braided paper handle should be added. A mixture of nuts, popcorn and candy is a nice mixture to fill such baskets with.

EXCELLENT SAVING.

A correspondent sends the following good economies:

My union suits always wear out under the arms, long before any break comes anywhere else, so I watch for a sale of vests of similar weight, cut off the top of suit and add the new top of the vest. When another suit gives out, it is a little more trouble to make a new top, but I do, crocheting the edge of neck and armholes with cotton. One vest will renew several union suits, if cut with discretion.

I am on my feet a great deal, so my hose wear out in the foot part long before the legs are damaged. I cut off the feet and open the legs along the seam carefully. When I have several pairs I make little bloomers of them for my little girl, laying the hem on the end of the leg of the pattern and piecing the width out with another hose leg. If made roomy enough, they last quite a while, are easy to wash out, comfortable to wear, and, I think, a prize winner in economy.

Refurbishing the Little Girl's Dress.

Dresses will shrink and children will grow, until sometimes it is quite a problem to the mother how to manage. A dress that has become too short will often show a frayed, worn mark where the former hem has been turned up if simply let down. Instead of doing this, rip the hem out and cut off the worn place. Put in a narrow embroidery insertion, wash braid, or goods of some contrasty color, and then add the new hem. If the collar and cuffs have become worn and frayed, new ones can be added. Many an old wash dress can be given a few such touches, and if too badly frayed redyed, which is an easy process, and thus given a lease on life. Look over the old cotton dresses and try to see their possibilities. You will find it well worth while when materials for new ones are so expensive.

WAR WORK OF A FIGHTING RABBI

Entered the Army Early in the War as a Private.

Voorsanger Became Captain, Chaplain of His Division.

No Distinction of Creed or Sect in Service.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Capt. Elkan Voorsanger, the "fighting rabbi," who returned recently from France, went over as a buck private in May, 1917, with the first 750 Americans, and rose by successive promotions to sergeant, lieutenant, chaplain, captain, senior chaplain of the New York Seventy-seventh Division.

When the Seventy-seventh returned home, Capt. Voorsanger volunteered to stay behind to become overseas director of the Jewish Welfare Board. He lived in trenches and shell-rocked dugouts, took part in major actions in the Baccarat and Toul sectors, the Meuse-Argonne region, and Argonne Forest; buried the dead—under incessant fire, and ministered to the wounded and dying on the field of battle. His hands are horny with the callouses that came from carrying heavy litters of men.

"In France there were no distinctions," the 'fighting rabbi' says. "A chaplain was a chaplain, not a Jewish chaplain, a Catholic chaplain, or a Protestant. Each chaplain was responsible for the religion of every man, and it didn't matter to us how a man prayed, but that he prayed. A Catholic chaplain organized Yom Kippur services for Jewish men in a ruined cathedral on the battle line. The division had been called out on line to the Argonne on Yom Kippur Day, and I was endeavoring to organize services along the lines wherever there was a group of Jewish men. At Cologne the Catholic chaplain came out to meet me.

"'I was afraid you wouldn't get here,' he said. 'I got your men together and started them off with a prayer. We had arranged to conduct services ourselves in case you didn't come.'

"I took up the services where he had left off, and after the traditional prayers were over and we had given them a brief soldierly talk, the men filed out of the cathedral and went on with the business of fighting. These services in the battered old house of Christian worship were the most impressive thing I have ever witnessed. The Catholic chaplain would frequently call me up and say: 'I've got some Jewish boys here who want to say Kaddish—I'd like to oblige them, but they don't like my accent. I'll hold them until you come.' That was the spirit over there. That's what we learned in France.

AHEAD OF GEN. PERSHING.

Chaplain Voorsanger went to France with base hospital No. 21. He arrived on French soil before Gen. Pershing came, and when his chaplain's commission had been attained, he was assigned to the Seventy-seventh Division, of which he became senior chaplain, with the rank of captain. At the same time, he was burial officer, school and entertainment officer and Jewish Welfare Board adviser in the Seventy-seventh Division. He went "over the top" with the lads of the Melting Pot Division—with the lads "who had never seen a green tree in their lives, yet went through the Argonne Forest as though they had been born there."

When Capt. Voorsanger speaks of the Jewish Welfare Board, he talks primarily as a soldier-recipient of the benefits of the organization. As a chaplain he first came into contact with this organization.

"They supplied me with an automobile, which made it possible for me to reach all of the Jewish men along the battle area. Money and supplies provided by the organization, and its generous co-operation, enhanced my opportunities for service." When hostilities ceased, Capt. Voorsanger became an active participant in the work of the Jewish Welfare Board, and was appointed overseas director.

RAPID GROWTH OF WORK.

"The Jewish Welfare Board came in directly after the armistice was signed. Its huts sprang up like mushrooms in every American Expeditionary Force center and at all base posts. They were cheerful huts that offered an atmosphere vastly different from the gloomy barracks. There were crisp muslin curtains on the windows, pictures and decorations that brought the American soldier a breath from home. We took over Red Cross canteens near the tracks at all railroad stations and the coffee pot was always on the fire—twenty-four hours a day. Can you imagine how good that coffee tasted to a cold and hungry soldier? This work and all other Jewish Welfare Board work with the Army of Occupation was done at the invitation of Maj.-Gen. Dickman of the Third Army, who requested the Jewish Welfare Board to take over all canteens in the occupied portion of Germany.

GREAT PASSOVER SERVICE.

"To my mind the greatest achievement of the Jewish Welfare Board in France," he said, "was the Passover services held throughout the American Expeditionary Forces. There was a Seder for every Jewish man in France. Matzoths were distributed to everyone. We received magnificent co-operation in this from the Quartermaster's Corps. There isn't one man out of the 1000 who attended the memorable Jewish Welfare Board Seder in Paris who will ever forget that event. Money for Passover supplies was also sent by the Jewish Welfare Board to members of the Jewish Legion in Palestine.

"Another big thing that the Jewish Welfare Board is now working on is the matter of graves registration and the marking of the graves of all Jewish men who fell in France. We have records of every Jewish man who was killed in the war, with the location of his grave, and can assure every Jewish mother and father that their loved heroes will sleep beneath the Jewish emblem—the Star of David—and their graves will be tenderly cared for."

The New Republic's Chief.

"What is this new nation of Hedjaz you hear so much about these days?" inquired Dad Burnett.

"Oh," said A. P. Nutt of Choas, Ok., "that is just one more of those new jazz republics that have come out of the war. The ruler is called the head jazz."—[Wichita Beacon.

Take It from Bee Palmer, Jazzopate Yourself to Fame.

By Jane Dixon.

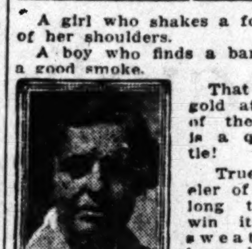
A boy who finds a bank roll in a good smoke.



JANE DIXON

That pot of gold at the end of the rainbow is a queer kettle!

True, the traveler of the long, long trail may win it by the sweat of his brow, but as he is toiling wearily onward he is sure to be passed by a sprinty youngster who leaps by and leaves him in the dust of the road, gazing blinkingly after the brilliant trail of fire.

The girl with the fortune in her shoulders—Miss Bee Palmer of Chicago, twenty-two in years, flaxen-haired, fair-skinned, syncopating Swedish Bee, who "shimmies" in six languages and some more.

The boy with a bank roll in a good smoke—"Frisco" of Dubuque, Iowa, likewise in his early twenties, small, stuttering, side-splitting, rapier-witted Frisco, who has more jazz in his system than a saxophone is full of melodies.

Both of these favorite children of fortune came up from Nowhere. They landed Somewhere with a splash.

Bee Palmer used to syncopate around the cafes of South Chicago, sit at tables and croon to guests for less per week than it is costing her right now to buy pork chops for her colored maid.

Frisco, who somehow or other migrated from Dubuque to Chicago, was discovered by Harry Weber the vaudeville agent, in a Lake City inn, where he jazzed himself into a job, for the magnificent sum of a quarter flopped across the floor.

Today both the girl and the boy are drawing their salaries in four figures. As they ride up and down the Great White Way in their own motor cars, electric lights blazoning their names to all the world wink merrily at them.

They have jazzed their way straight to that pot of gold.

Who says there is nothing in this jazz craze?

In her dressing-room at the Palace Theater, in New York City, where she is holding forth in all her jazzopated glory, Miss Palmer told of her journey all along that same long trail.

"I've syncopated since I was a wee kiddie," she explained. "Note the use of the word syncopate. There is a vast difference between syncopation and just jazz.

"Jazz is a lot of noise. It is a sort of an all-over-the-place affair brassy and loud.

"Syncopation is rhythm, moving the body in perfect harmony with the tones of the music. My specialty is syncopation. Jazz doesn't appeal to me at all.

DANCES WITH SHOULDERS.

"It is true my shoulders are responsible for my success. I dance with them. I remember when I was a tot mother used to sing for me and I'd wiggle my shoulders and sway my body with the music. The folks at home thought it was a great joke, and mother used to give me a nickel or dime to do my little stunt for company.

"My family is Swedish. The people of Sweden like their afternoon coffee. They have their coffee hour as the English have their tea. Mother's friends would drop in for coffee and gossip, and I would be called upon to perform just as many little girls and boys are asked to speak a piece.

"This constant practice from childhood limbered my shoulders, developed my chest, kept my body lithe. I have seldom been ill. Every muscle in my body is in perfect condition. I can stand a tremendous amount of exercise, of work, without feeling the least fatigue."

"Then you would encourage children to dance, even to jazz?" was asked.

Miss Palmer swung around in her chair. Make-up was, for the moment, forgotten. This syncopation is to her serious business.

SCHOOLS SHOULD TEACH IT.

"I wish every mother could be made to realize the benefits of dancing," she said. "Dancing should be compulsory in the public schools.

"No mother will deny the importance of calisthenics, of setting-up exercises. But such exercises are burdensome to a child. They are dry, uneventful. As such they are dodged as often as possible.

"Dancing is another matter. Dancing is play, fun. It makes bodily exercise attractive. Likewise, it is more effective than mere set motion, for it combines grace with movement rhythm with motion. If I had a dozen daughters they should all learn to dance."

"Would they all syncopate?" was the next question.

"They surely would. Of course, they would do other dances too, but syncopation would be included. There is nothing more effective in the pursuit of health. Not only health, but what is of equal importance to every woman—a good figure. Many women sacrifice health to obtain a good figure, diet and take injurious drugs. It is all so simple—if they would only syncopate.

"I haven't an extra ounce of flesh on my body. Not one of my muscles is abnormally developed. I eat as I please and enjoy the good things of life. And with all this I have never worn a pair of stays. Syncopation—that's the answer."

"And—er—the shimmy. What do you think of that?" I inquired, hesitantly.

"Fine!" came the hearty response. "I do not dance it professionally, but I can do it. The shimmy is not a shaking of the shoulders, as so many think. The real dance, as done by the colored dancers, is a movement mostly of the hips. The word originated with the title of a colored ragtime tune popular about two years ago. It is really a folk dance, and is very funny as executed by the colored dancers at one of their typical 'shake-downs.' Under native conditions it loses all of its vulgarity.

"When will I give up syncopation? When I'm 90, and only then because I have to."

Through the dressing-room door seeped the strains of a jazztime melody. The shoulders of the girl who has made syncopation an art began to sway almost imperceptibly at first, then quite visibly.

"It's just like that," she smiled mischievously. "You have to feel it, and once you feel it you simply can't keep still."

When cornered on the subject of jazz fortunes "Frisco," the prince of jazzbos, had something to say concerning the origin of the word.

JAZZ BORN IN CHICAGO.

"The name jazz was born in Chicago," he related. "A colored comedian by the name of James ("Fat") Thompson—you know "Fat"—was explaining to the judge why he ought to nick his wife for a divorce. "Fat" came from down in Texas somewhere, and before he turned artist and actor, he killed snakes for a living.

"Well, fat was acting out for the judge. He kinda figured his act floppin, so he slapped on a sure fire tag line. 'Judge,' he hollered, 'this woman o' mine is—well, she's—she's jest a jazz, Judge, that's all you call her, a jazz.'

"Some of Fat's cronies were there for the obsequies and they passed the jazz along. The word has been knocking 'em for a goal ever since."

"You are fairly strong for it yourself," was suggested.

"S-s-strong for it," grinning. "You s-s-says it. And it's s-s-strong for m-m-me."

I will not attempt to quote "Frisco," because there are not that many dashes on the typewriter.

Suffice it to say the little, lean, limber exponent of jazz has built up a comfortable and ever-swelling bank account on the strength of his amazing movements.

As a pal of other days puts it: "Frisco's grabbed off a rubber-tired perambulator—with chauffeur, lifted the mortgage off the old homestead out in Dubuque and is twelve-sheeting a glistener that makes the king's crown jools look like cracked glass."

"I'm glad I left D-d-d-duguque," says the jazz princeling. "T-t-that's how I m-m-met up with j-j-jazz, giving the old t-t-town the M-m-mike Swift. I h-h-had to l-l-leave anyhow though, because I couldn't pronounce D-d-d-du-b-b-buque."

Both Miss Palmer and the boy wonder of wiggles are firm in the belief jazz will never lose its popularity. This winter will find it at its height, and from then on it will be an established institution like Caruso, or the Spanish castanets.

I bethought me of Mr. Mose Gumble. Mr. Mose Gumble is a man who, above all others, should be satiated to sickness on jazz time. All day long he sits in his office in the music publishing palaces of Remick & Co. and listens to seventeen separate jazz tunes emanating from seventeen different rooms in seventeen different keys.

"Tell me, honestly," I asked Mr. Gumble, "aren't you ready to crawl into some faraway corner and pass out of the picture when they strike up the syncopation?"

"No, indeed," warbled Mr. G., jazzily. "I get so I miss the darn stuff when there's any less than three consignments of it going at the same time. You know, it gets to be a disease, this jazz. You have to have it all the time, with your meals and everything. I've heard hundreds of versions, good, bad and indifferent. In my mind the best jazz number we ever had is 'Tacking 'Em Down.' I have it on the Victrola every evening with my coffee. It kind of cheers you up, sets your blood circulating, gets you in good humor. The first thing you know your feet are tapping the floor, and you're wondering where you can go to stir up a little fun. That's the mission of jazz—to put pep into you. And, take it from an old-timer—it does."

Yes, and it has been the gilded car on which at least two of its partisans found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

Look sharp. Your fortune may be in your little finger.

KENYON'S CENTENNIAL.

The Story of Ohio's Long Established Episcopalian College.

Kenyon College, the institution for higher education of the Episcopalians of Ohio, is approaching the centennial of its establishment and its friends hope to see the event celebrated with a public movement for a more liberal endowment that will enable her to address herself to the work that comes to her hand with better chances of success.

It is a product of the mind of Philander Chase, uncle of Salmon P. Chase, Governor of Ohio, Senator of the United States and Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States. Philander Chase came into the Northwest in 1810 as Bishop of Ohio and saw the immediate need of an Episcopalian college if that denomination was to take its place with the others already on the ground here.

In 1814 he went to England in quest of funds, despairing of securing any considerable amount of money from the pioneers of the State for that purpose. He returned highly elated at his success, having secured the sum of $30,000. That would not be considered sufficient to establish even an academy in these days, but Bishop Chase went to work with enthusiasm and a will to establish his college in the woods.

He bought a tract of 8000 acres in Knox county and began clearing it. By 1824 he had a building and a small corps of teachers. The college was chartered in 1824, and that is taken as the date of its establishment. Lord Kenyon was one of the churchmen in England who had contributed liberally to the bishop's enterprise, and he was honored by having the town named after him. Lord Gambier was another and he was honored by giving his name to the college. Lord Bexley was another generous English supporter and his name was given to one of the college buildings. Hannah Moore was still another who aided in the work, but being a woman she was given merely an honorable mention.

Like most other Ohio colleges, Kenyon has never had as much money as she needed. In the nation-wide movement of the church now to be made it is hoped that $250,000 may be secured for it. A long line of distinguished graduates have come from Kenyon, including Rutherford B. Hayes and Edwin M. Stanton, the great Civil War time Secretary of War.—[Columbus Dispatch.

BIG FUTURE FOR ALCOHOL.

It will Soon be Running All Our Automobiles.

In Short Time Gasoline will Have Disappeared.

Sun Likely to be Source of Our Steam Power.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Anyone who imagines that prohibition has materially diminished the importance of alcohol is sadly mistaken. Alcohol has an immense industrial future. If you want to get rich, start an alcohol still. Provided you are making industrial alcohol, which is not potable, the law will not interfere with you.

Within a comparatively short time, alcohol will be running all of our automobiles and tractors. It will be used to produce heat and light in practically all situations where kerosene and other petroleum derivatives are now used.

In a recent Haskin letter it was explained that we would soon have to go direct to the sun for our heat in order to make power, because the supply of heat stored up in coal is steadily diminishing and becoming harder to reach. We must, therefore, tap the sun, which is the permanent source of heat. It was explained how this sun heat can be converted into either steam or electricity. It will then light our homes, run our factories, and pull our street cars, wherever this work cannot be done by water power. But it will not, of course, run our jitneys and our motorcycles.

PETROLEUM DIMINISHING.

The petroleum upon which we depend for transportation is diminishing in amount even more rapidly than coal. Gasoline is becoming more and more expensive and scarce. The government experts say that we will surely be out of gas in a few years unless great, new deposits of petroleum are discovered.

Therefore we must now discover a permanent source of motor fuel to take the place of the temporary one upon which we have been drawing, and to supplement the sun as a permanent source of power. Scientists seem to agree that alcohol will furnish this permanent source of motor fuel. Government experts have been studying both the production of alcohol and its use as fuel in motors. Reports on both cases will soon be available.

Alcohol will furnish a permanent supply of motor fuel because it can be made out of vegetation, and vegetation can be produced on the earth indefinitely. It now costs more to produce alcohol than it does to produce gasoline, but gasoline is becoming more expensive all the time, while the cheap and large scale production of alcohol, in this country especially, is just beginning.

Alcohol has already begun to replace gasoline abroad. In France a fifty-fifty mixture of alcohol and benzol, is in common use as a motor fuel, and some mixtures of 80 per cent. alcohol and 20 per cent. benzol are used. In this country alcohol has been tried as a motor fuel both in automobiles and in tractors. You can use alcohol in an ordinary automobile designed to use gasoline but you cannot get very good results. In a motor designed for the use of alcohol, it will give just as much work, gallon for gallon, as gasoline. It has not as high a fuel value as gasoline, but there is less waste about it. An alcohol engine is more efficient than a gasoline engine. It is also cleaner.

TWO KINDS OF ALCOHOL.

As you may know, there are two kinds of alcohol, ethyl alcohol and methyl (or wood) alcohol. Ethyl alcohol is the kind we used to drink in the old days. Methyl alcohol is the kind that some misguided persons drink these days, causing blindness in some cases and sudden death in others.

Ethyl alcohol is also the kind that will be used as a motor fuel. Do not infer from this, however, that you will have always a few gallons of cheering beverage in the gas tank when alcohol comes into general use as fuel. In order to be made drinkable, ethyl alcohol must be rectified, which consists in distilling it in a special way, so as to eliminate fusil oils and other impurities. Most of this industrial alcohol will presumably contain some of these impurities and therefore be unfit to drink.

Butt his is not certain, for alcohol must be distilled to a high point before it can be used as fuel. Fermentation produces a mixture of alcohol and water in which alcohol is only 16 per cent. That is, it produces a "thirty-two proof" alcohol. Now alcohol must be at least 100 proof, or not more than 50 per cent. water, before it will serve as fuel. And to distill it to that point heat must be used. This use of heat to produce fuel, is, of course, a process which to a certain extent defeats its own end. But the Bureau of Chemistry has also found that the water can be separated from alcohol by freezing, because water freezes at a higher temperature than alcohol. It seems probable that this freezing method will ultimately replace distillation as a method of raising the proof of fuel alcohol. The freezing process will leave in all the impurities and so insure that no one can drink the stuff.

IT IS EASY TO MAKE.

To the layman who is used to paying a steep price for alcohol in any form, it seems improbable that this substance should be made cheap enough to burn in a motor. But the materials from which alcohol is made are easy to produce and very abundant in nature.

Alcohol is made from sugar. Sugar is made from starch. And either sugar or starch occur in practically all forms of vegetation. It is possible to make alcohol out of every weed and tree that grows. Of course, it is practicable to use only certain forms of vegetation for making alcohol. Our present largest and cheapest source of industrial alcohol is "black strap," which is a sugary residue that is left when all the crystalline sugar has been extracted from sugar cane.

But in addition to this source, alcohol has been made in commercial quantities from saw dust and mill waste, from the sap of palm trees, from the Mexican agave, from cull apples and potatoes, from sorghum, sugar beets and garbage.

Sawmill waste is one of the most promising sources of alcohol, and it may be stated with some confidence that the making of alcohol from sawdust is a most promising field of enterprise. A government investigator says that 49.1 per cent. of the lumber cut is waste—that is, nearly half of every tree cut down goes into sawdust and scraps. Some of the scraps are used locally for fuel, and some of the sawdust was used for covering bar-room floors and is still used for stuffing low-grade dolls. But over half of this mill waste is really wasted. It lies on the ground and rots. And all of it can be made into alcohol, but the waste of conifers (evergreen trees such as pine and spruce) is especially valuable for this purpose. The investigator quoted says that there are at least fifty locations in the United States where stills for the making of alcohol from sawdust could be profitably operated at present prices. All such establishments would have bright futures.

WILD VEGETATION USED.

The use of wild vegetation for making alcohol is another interesting field for experiment. In the Southwest are great areas covered with cactus and Spanish bayonet. These have been tried as a source of alcohol, but their alcohol content seems to be low, and when a supply has been exhausted, it is a long time replacing itself. But there are numerous other forms of wild vegetation that can be tried.

The most valuable source of this kind so far discovered is the nipa palm swamps of the Philippine Islands. Alcohol is now made from the sap of the nipa palm at a very low cost. There are vast swamp areas in the Philippines covered with this growth, and most of this wilderness has not been touched. It seems not improbable that swamp areas in this country might also contain some plant readily convertible into alcohol.

At any rate, here is a new and promising field for that enterprise and ingenuity for which we Americans are famous.

MOROS ATTEND SCHOOL.

The enrollment in the schools of Mindanao and Sulu is now 40,000 pupils, most of them Mohammedans and pagans. The number of farm schools is above 150. This is the type of school found best adapted to the educational needs of the people of that region. The children are taught to make an honest living as well as how to read and write and work arithmetical sums.

For the first time in the history of public education in Mindanao Moro girls are attending the primary schools in large numbers. Breaking a set custom of the Moros, they attend the same classes as the boys. The plan has had more success where schools are taught by married couples, and the Department is anxious to have hore married teachers in its service.

Some Patient Guy.

It was a cold and cheerless night. The wind blew in from the northeast, cutting down the veracity of the real estate men by 50 per cent. On the deck of a boat stood a female tourist. Her eye caught the glint of the breakwater lighthouse. For a long time she watched it. Then she turned to her campanion.

"How patient those lighthouse men must be," she said.

"Patient! How so?"

"Only One Easy Way To Remove Superfluous Hairs"

How to "Dissolve Away" Hairs—A superfluous Hair Remover Without the Trouble and Skin-Spotting. A Method Used by Those Who Know.

By Valeska Suratt.

THERE is now no further excuse or necessity for going about with superfluous hair when there is such an easy, sure and delightful way to remove it. The way to do it is to "dissolve away" the hairs. This is done by moistening the hairs with sulfo solution. This can be obtained at any drug store for about a dollar. In a few moments the hairs are seen to crinkle up and dissolve, so that you can wipe off the hairs completely with a swish of the finger. It leaves the skin absolutely clear and clean, and leaves no spot or redness whatever. Using a face lotion could not be any easier. There is nothing to mix or make ready. It is almost magic in its action. By all means use it.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

AGEING.—You will be able to remove most of your wrinkles if you will faithfully use a cream made by mixing one tablespoonful of glycerine and the contents of a two-ounce package of eptol in a half pint of water. The way it works is this: The pores of the skin are made smaller and the texture of the skin is refined. As the skin becomes more plump, the wrinkles, large and small, promptly vanish. The eptol costs about half a dollar at the drug store. This is the new way, and you will save a lot of time and trouble by adopting it from today on.

BACKWARD.—Here is a formula which has the remarkable power of forcing hair to grow, and it is quickly absorbed by the hair roots. Short, thin hair simply means that the roots of the hair are not getting the nourishment which they should have. To a half pint of bay rum and a half pint of water, or if preferred, to a full pint of witch hazel add the contents of a one ounce bottle of beta-quinol, which costs about fifty cents at any drug store. Within a short time your hair should stop falling, and you should see a remarkable difference in the length and thickness of your hair.

USES COMMON YELLOW MUSTARD FOR CHEST COLDS AND SORE THROA

Old Fashioned Simple Home Remedy Much Used by Doctors and Nurses for Inflammation, Congestion, Aches, Pains and Swellings.

Mustard, real yellow mustard, the kind you use at home, is being used more than ever to banish distress and misery and free mankind from agony and suffering.

Not very long ago people used to make yellow mustard into a paste, spread it on a cloth and apply it to that part of the body where pain or inflammation was present.

It surely did do the work it was expected to do, but it was mussy and bothersome and often blistered the skin.

People still use yellow mustard when they get a cold in the chest or have pleurisy, lumbago or rheumatic pains and swellings.

But nowadays they buy this yellow mustard in condensed form all ready for use for something like 30 cents a box and find it much better, cheaper and cleaner than mustard plasters.

This yellow mustard preparation, which is known to millions as Begy's

BLOODY BATTLE OF CIVIL WAR.

Anniversary of Quantrell's Fight at Centralia.

Former Member of Guerrilla Band Tells this Story.

Two-thirds of Union Soldiers Shot Through the Head.

[From the Kansas City Star.]

COLUMBIA (Mo.) Sept. 27.—Today marks the fifty-fifth anniversary of Quantrell's Centralia massacre and of the battle which followed it, said to be one of the bloodiest fights of the Civil War.

"Bill" Stewart, at that time only 15 years old, the youngest of Quantrell's men, after traveling far from the scene of his Civil War activities recently has returned to Columbia. Stewart is one of two or three living men who were under Quantrell the day of the massacre.

BAND OF 400 MEN.

"Bill" Anderson, according to Stewart, was the organizer of the band. He gathered a band of 400 guerrillas. George Todd and John Thrailkill came with seventy-five men from Howard county. The Rev. Tom Todd and Si Gordon brought small bands of men to the gang. The James boys were members of the division.

The band marched to Randolph county, where it defeated Union forces, sacked a station where Moberly now stands, went to Monroe county, and then returned to Centralia.

"The biggest fight we had was at Centralia," Stewart says.

It was about 10 o'clock on the morning of September 27, fifty-five years ago, that the band entered the village of about a dozen houses, including two small hotels, two general stores, a schoolhouse and a depot.

As they approached citizens fled, shouting, "The guerrillas are coming."

"GOOD PLACE FOR A FIGHT."

Capt. Anderson went to the Eldorado House, one of the hotels, and talked to the proprietor, Vol Miller, and Dr. A. F. Sneed.

"This is a fine location, doctor, for a fight," he said. "If those 'Feds' at Sturgeon will come down I will give them a twist today."

During this conversation one of the band led away Dr. Sneed's horse. Leaving the veranda Dr. Sneed was robbed of his pocket-book and valuables. Later, he several times answered to the cry of "Hands up" with "You are too late—somebody beat you to my money."

THE STAGE COACH ARRIVED.

The Columbia stage arrived at 11 o'clock. It was an old-fashioned coach drawn by four horses. In the coach were James W. Waugh, sheriff of Boone county; John M. Samuel, a former Sheriff; James S. Rollins, Representative in Congress, then on his way to a Congressional district convention; Henry Keene, [illegible] Gordon, Lewis Sharp, Columbus Hickam and Lafayette Hume. All were robbed. The identity of Rollins and Samuel was not detected.

The train arrived at 11:30 o'clock from St. Louis. The engineer, seeing the mob, tried to run through the town, but ties were thrown in front of the engine.

There were twenty-three Federal soldiers on the train, discharged or on furlough, and 125 passengers.

FRANK JAMES FOUND $10,000.

The passengers were beaten and robbed by the guerrillas, the express car was looted of $5000 and Frank James found boxes said to have contained $10,000 in greenbacks. This was divided.

Discovering the Union soldiers the band took them and a German from St. Louis then in a blue uniform and stripped them of their uniforms. They were then lined up at the side of the North Missouri railroad depot.

"When I give the word, pour hell into them," Anderson instructed Arch Clements. The word was given and twenty-five shots rang out.

Twelve unionists fell as the guerrillas fired the first volley from twelve guns. The firing kept up. The rest, all wounded, staggered about and were shot down. One sergeant, shot three times through the body, staggered to the side of the depot with blood pouring from his body and crawled under the platform, only to be dragged out and killed. All were dead before the band quit its work. The locomotive engine was started, and all the coaches set afire, down the track.

The guerrillas withdrew to Col. G. Singleton's farm, three miles south of Centralia, after firing the town.

That afternoon, Maj. Johnson, with 175 men of the Thirty-ninth Missouri Volunteers, marched into town. Hearing of the outrages of the morning the major marched to the camp of the guerrillas determined to secure revenge for their men. The battle is described by Stewart.

"When Johnson and his men came through Centralia the citizens begged him not to continue. But he brought his men down here, and we killed the most of them, because we were armed so much better than the Federals. Each of us had from six to eight pistols, while the Union soldiers carried only powder and ball muskets.

"Two-thirds of the Federals were shot through the head. The last man was shot by Frank James. We would have gotten him sooner, but he was on the best horse and we didn't want to kill it. We took all the horses we wanted, leaving the rest. We couldn't sell them because they were branded on the shoulder with 'U. S.'"

BATTLE WAS A MASSACRE.

After one volley the battle was a massacre, according to historical documents. Only four or five of the soldiers escaped. Quantrell's gang had three killed, three severely wounded and several slightly wounded.

The bodies of the dead Union men were gathered up by the people and taken to Centralia. Several were sent to Mexico, Mo., for burial, but several others were buried, unidentified, in a long trench. Many years later the trench was reopened and the bodies were taken to Jefferson City, where they were buried in one grave in the National Cemetery.

Stewart now has one of the eight pistols he carried during the campaign. Six of them he carried in his belt, the other two on either side of his saddle. He is a painter

VANDALS SEEK WAR SOUVENIRS

No European Battlefields are Held Sacred.

Measures Now Being Taken to Guard Ypres.

Other Spots Renowned in War Being Desecrated.

BY E. M. GOODMAN.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—The officer in charge of Ypres has put up this placard among the ruins of the glorious Cloth Hall, shattered by German shell:

"Notice: This is holy ground. No stone of this fabric may be taken away. It is a heritage for all civilized peoples."

Within sight of this notice people hunt for souvenirs and then sit in the sun and drink beer. An English correspondent who has seen that sad exhibition of human callousness, calls them "Ghouls of the battlefield."

Who are they? Belgians, who have perhaps supped so full of horrors in the last five years that it comes natural to them to live in a graveyard. "French," so says Lieut.-Gen. Bethune, "a few English, many Americans. And British soldiers were selling bogus souvenirs." Making holiday in a graveyard!

At Zonnebeke, Zillebeke, Hooge and Houthulst, there is no merry-making and souvenir buying. Those are the hunting grounds for the souvenir hunter with a crowbar. The French and Belgians take no hand in this game—the vandals are, say the British newspapers, English and Americans—American officers among others. Here is no town major's notice and no vigilant watchman, and the ruined gun pits and gun fittings are vanishing, stone by stone, and bit by bit. The Chinese salvage men stand by and see white men of Anglo-Saxon race pilfer on what is a veritable field of martyrs.

GRAVES EVERYWHERE.

In Europe it may be true to say that one can hardly find a foot of ground that is not someone's grave. Belgium has been the battlefield of Europe since the coming of the Romans and perhaps before. Countless generations of enemies and allies of the native dwellers have left their bones between the North Sea and the Rhine vineyards, and no one heeds them. The dead past has buried its dead. But that we should forget those whose graves are not yet green is to write ourselves down less than human.

The Belgians are coming back from exile: it is natural that they should look upon the matter with different eyes from ours. Americans are accustomed to wide spaces and to feeling at home in a whole continent. They would quite naturally set aside battlefields as sacred places to be kept unusued. But to the Belgian most of these blood-stained fields are primarily sacred because they are his home, and the way to keep homes sacred is to live in them. Anglo-Saxons cannot demand that Belgians should make their homeland into a vast museum because other people have died there. Belgium is a small country, very crowded, and its sons do not wish to emigrate. They must live in their country whoever is buried under it. What they can do they do, in tending the cemeteries where Americans and British lie.

YPRES AN EXCEPTION.

But Ypres is an exception. Before the war it was, being very old and beautiful and sparsely inhabited, almost a memorial of the past. It is said that its late inhabitants are willing to build their new homes upon another site, and to leave the Cloth Hall ruins and the unidentified graves as a memorial of the great war and those who fell in it. One suggestion is that King Albert should be asked to drive all the money-changers out of this temple; another that this ground should be given over to Britain as a symbol of its sacrifice as the British graveyards in France are to be British ground forever.

Others think that Britain should buy Ypres; but that is a plan which well might wound Belgian pride. Can Allies who have fought for the freedom of Belgian soil without offense offer money for it? Before we came there it was a Belgian monument.

The Minister of the Interior has told the Belgian Parliament that his government has come to an agreement with the British government to preserve Ypres as it is as a "Place of Pilgrimage." But it depends in the main on the pilgrims whether any such place is sacred or desecrated. Governments cannot control this; nor can bereaved parents who remain at home. And Ypres is not the only battlefield.

APPEAL OF BRITAIN.

But Britain can appeal to King Albert to save Ypres from desecration and allot a sum of money to have it guarded and kept. The Coliseum in Rome, the old Egyptian temples, Stonehenge, are historical records of a nation and are preserved as an act of national piety. There are English graves all over the world. Americans are born all over the world, but make good in America and die there. They wished, at first, to take home their dead from the French battlefields.

Any request from his Allies will be met with sympathy by King Albert and his people. But no request can be made unless we ourselves show respect to the dead and honor to a splendid record. It is, then, for Americans and Britons alike, to deal ruthlessly with our own souvenir hunters, who break up the national monuments of King Albert's people, that we may have something to take home and boast about.

If we applaud and boast about the treasures that our friends have brought from Ypres and Bruges, Louvain and all the martyred towns of Belgium, we are worse than the "ghouls" who sit drinking beer and playing cards on new graves in Flanders. If King Albert sees wreckage of his own country in British homes can Britons have the insolence to ask him for Ypres as a memorial of our dead?

Some Difference.

"Do you think," said the intellectual young woman, "that there is any truth in the theory that big creatures are better-natured than small ones?"

"Yes," answered the young man. "I do. Look at the difference between the Jersey mosquito and the Jersey cow."—[Alcatraz Rock.

WOMEN IN THE FOREGROUND.

Striking Feminine Note in the Week's Films.

Premiere of "Youth's Eyes;" New Clark Feature.

Katherine MacDonald First National Release.

Women are primarily concerned in features showing along the Picture Rialto this week. Their problems, duties and happiness come in for a large share of attention, and are dealt with both in the serious and lighter vein. Marguerite Clark is a ruling star in "Luck in Pawn," which, while it concerns no particular problem, has its chief interest centered around the heroine. "What Every Woman Learns" is a title in line with the general trend. "The Eyes of Youth," with Clara Kimball Young starred, is another woman's play. So too is "The Thunderbolt," with Katherine MacDonald. "Virtuous Men," at another theater, deals directly with the double standard of morals. Even in the Earle Williams play, "The Black Gate," the story is largely devoted to a mother's sacrifice.

In contrast with these Harry Carey's latest feature, "The Rider of the Law," is an out-and-out man's play.

Holdovers and repeats include "When Bearcat Went Dry," the "Miracle Man" and "The Witness for the Defense."

Grauman's.

Marguerite Clark comes to Grauman's Theater in a Paramount-Artcraft picturization of "Luck in Pawn," directed by Walter Edwards commencing tomorrow. The joy note will be kept dominant with Mack Sennett's latest comedy, "Up in Alf's Place," starring Ben Turpin, Charlie Murray and Jack Finlayson.

The outsanding event on the programme will be the musical and terpsichorean act in which the thirty-two Grauman usherettes, white pantalettes and all, will appear on the stage. The ideas incorporated in this act our Grauman refuses to reveal prior to the initial presentation. Arthur Kay, conductor of Grauman's Symphony Orchestra, announces the overture to "Oberon," by Von Weber, which was recently used by the Philharmonic Orchestra in its initial concert. Milton Charles will play a medley of plantation melodies as his morning organ recital feature.

A special act will be presented in which several of the luxurious gowns worn by Gloria Swanson in the coming De Mille production, "Male and Female," will be displayed.

A Paramount-Post scenic, the Literary Digest topics and the Paramount weekly magazine will complete the programme.

California.

May Allison's biggest comedy hit, "Fair and Warmer" will be shown tonight for the last time at the California Theater.

The California Theater will be dark for five days beginning tomorrow while changes and improvements are made in the house in accordance with the plans of S. L. Rothapfel, who has come out from New York to assume charge of presentations at the theater for an indefinite period. Among the new innovations that this exhibitor will introduce will be an orchestra of forty men under the direction of Carli D. Elinor. The house is also being redecorated, and Mr. Rothapfel will introduce many of the original ideas that made the Strand, Rivoli and Rialto theaters in New York so popular under his management during the past five years.

The theater will reopen with two performances next Friday evening. Mr. Rothapfel has selected Geraldine Farrar's latest Goldwyn production, "Flame of the Desert," as his first picture attraction. This is a photodrama with a romantic love appeal, the Egyptian Desert, the mysteries of the Far East and the charm of ancient Cario forming an interesting background. The production is one of Reginald Barker's.

Clune's Broadway.

Does every woman make the same mistake in life and have to learn the same sad lesson? While this may be questionable, "What Every Woman Learns" is the title of Enid Bennett's latest picture, written by Eugene B. Lewis and directed by Fred Niblo, and which comes to Clune's Broadway Theater today. This new Ince production tells the story of a beautiful young girl who lived for pleasure alone. She meets a parlor clown and awakens to find him a cad with the heart of a coyote. There is another man in her life, but, in her infatuation for the happy-go-lucky fool, the girl gives him no consideration.

Then comes the time when the sincere friendship of this other man becomes a vital thing in the girl's life and she calls upon him to save her from the shame and disgrace which her husband would have thrust upon her.

Supporting Miss Bennett are Irving Cummings, Milton Sills, Theodore Roberts, Lydia Knott and William Conklin.

Tally's Broadway.

Katherine McDonald, "the American Beauty" in "The Thunderbolt," her initial First National attraction, is to be at Tally's Broadway Theater this week. This will be Miss McDonald's first stellar appearance since her success in "The Woman Thou Gavest Me." The leading masculine role is played by Thomas Meighan and the cast includes Spottiswoode Aitken, Forest Stanley and Antrim Short.

The story is of a man, Bruce Corbin, birthmarked by a thunderbolt, and a girl, Ruth Pomeroy, whose fathers are feudal enemies. Corbin marries the girl for the purpose of putting an end to the Pomeroy family.

Then comes "The Thunderbolt" and lights the way to vengeance for the wronged woman. C. Percival Garrett will play the musical accompaniment.

Palace.

With Earle Williams in the stellar role, a Vitagraph picture entitled "The Black Gate," the story of a mother's great sacrifice, comes to the Palace Theater, beginning today. A mother is revealed going into an agreement to pay a fortune to purchase the sacrifice of another man's life in the death chair for a crime with which her son has been charged. Mother love forms a strong undercurrent throughout the story whose principal incidents center around the man who offers to make the sacrifice.

Mr. Williams plays the role of a brilliant lawyer whose life is blasted at first, but who recovers name, fame and fortune in the climax.

Palace.

George Loane Tucker's "The Miracle Man" is to have its first Broadway showing at the Symphony, starting today. This is a return engagement in answer to the demand from theater goers, who failed to see the picture when it was given its western premiere some weeks ago.

"The Miracle Man" played to more than 200,000 paid admissions during its original run, and it is estimated by the Paramount Artcraft exchange that this means the production has now 200,000 unpaid verbal press agents going around singing its praises.

Since playing Los Angeles "The Miracle Man" has won every large coast city.

Appearing in the picture are Thomas Meighan, Lon Chaney, Joseph Dowling, Betty Compson and others.

Superba.

Harry Carey comes to the Superba today in "The Rider of the Law," a spectacular western production, in which the cowboy star is supported by a cast headed by Gloria Hope. The added attraction of the week is a Century animal comedy, "Daring Lions and Dizzy Lovers."

"The Rider of the Law" was adapted by H. Tipton Steck, screen author, from "Jim of the Ranges," a novel by G. K. Lancaster, the noted English writer. Jack Ford directed the production. It tells the story of a law officer of the Texas ranges, who is obliged to hunt down his own brother and is full of romance and pathos, as well as thrills. One of the big scenes is where a horse and rider plunge over a steep cliff.

Victory.

The Ralph Ince melodrama, "Virtuous Men," which attacks the double standard of morality, and which stars E. K. Lincoln and Grace Darling, opens at the Victory Theater today. "Virtuous Men" is a story of both the upper and lower strata of society, and shows that passions of the eternal masculine are just as present in the society feibler as in the lumberjack. A forest fire furnishes many of the thrills in the picture. More than 10,000 persons took part in some of the scenes, it is said.

Garrick.

President Wilson and Congress may have trouble unending over prohibition, and the local authorities are kept busy raiding illicit stills, but "Bear Cat" Stacy, hero of "When Bear Cat Went Dry," has his own method of putting the ban on liquor, and the methods he uses make a thrilling six-reel picture, which played to such large audiences at the Garrick last week that it has been decided to continue the feature. The scenes of the play are laid in the Cumberland Mountains, and the story is built around the hardy men and maids of the hills. One big episode is a battle royal, in which fifty men take "very active" part.

De Luxe.

"The Witness for the Defense," a dramatic photoplay starring Elsie Ferguson, is the attraction at the De Luxe Theater for today and tomorrow. In this story Miss Ferguson plays the role of a young woman who sacrifices her love to aid her invalid father, and who leads a stormy, miserable life, until a tragedy, of which she is the central figure, releases her from her bitter bondage and brings the happiness she deserves.

The author of "The Witness for the Defense" is A. E. W. Mason, playwright and novelist of England.

"The Dark Mirror."

Work has begun in New York on "The Dark Mirror," the Dorothy Dalton story by Louis Joseph Vance. E. Magnus Ingleton made the adaptation for Thomas H. Ince. This is one of Mr. Vance's most thrilling novels.

Enid Bennett Diets.

Enid Bennett, Thomas H. Ince star, who was ordered to take a rest by her doctor a few days ago, is already improving rapidly. Miss Bennett has been placed on a strict diet of milk and grapes, and is showing a marked improvement, and it is thought that her retirement will be only for a couple of weeks. Rest was principally what she needed, her last picture, "The Woman in the Suitcase," having been a decided strain on her nerves.

Miss Glaum's New Play.

"Sex," the story written for Louise Glaum by C. Gardner Sullivan, has already been started at the Thomas H. Ince studio in Culver City. Myrtle Stedman has been engaged by J. Parker Read, Jr., to appear with Miss Glaum.

A Sennett Starlet.

Little Don Marion, the 2-year-old comedian discovered by Mack Sennett, and who made his first screen appearance in "Back to the Kitchen," has just finished his third Sennett picture, "Down on the Farm," which will soon be released. The baby is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry G. Davis of Hollywood, in which suburb the baby was born. Neither of his parents is in pictures.

St. Denis Dance Drama.

Ruth St. Denis's latest company of Denishawn dancers will present the premier showing of the newest allegorical dance creation produced by Ted Shawn at Pantages Theater next week. "Julnar of the Sea" is the title, and Mr. Shawn calls it a dance drama based on a story from "The Arabian Knights." It will be staged under the personal supervision of Ted Shawn and Miss St. Denis.

The names of the principals in the production are: Miss Lillian Powell, as Junar; Miss Bertha Fiske, the story teller; Miles Smith, Prince Bedr Basio; Jack Mershon and J. Roy Busclark, slaves; Betty Herst, Marian Williams and Nancy Jackson, odalisques; Earl Forbes, the eunuch; Grace McCrea, Chinese princess; Irene Pryor and Anne Douglas, ladies-in-waiting.

The first scene shows a window in the palace, the second scene the bronze palace of the Shah of Persia, third scene, home of Julnar at the bottom of the sea, fourth scene, slave market in an oriental city.

Went Into Business.

Colleen Moore has quit trying to reform the world, after a strenuous campaign lasting one day.

A neighbor boy, a tot of 4 years, suddenly decided to become a cigarette smoker. He "rolled his own," too. They were harmless affairs, for they were nothing more nor less than paper rolled up and the youngster did not attempt to light them. But he went through all the motions of smoking.

Miss Moore figured the habit was harmful for one so young, and offered the tot a dime if he would give her his supply. He gladly handed over the half-dozen imitation "snipes" and toddled off to the store to spend the dime.

The film star regarded the incident as closed. The next morning she was surprised when she heard her name called in a shrill treble voice.

"Mith Moore," the kiddy lisped. "Oh, Mith Moore!"

She waited till he caught up with her. He handed her a big pasteboard box. It was full to overflowing with the same sort of cigarettes he had "sold" her the day before.

"Here 're thum more," he explained, "for y' to buy. Did y' like th' otherth?"

That is why Colleen Moore, screen star, is no longer a reformer.

What's the Reason?

"Virtuous Men" must be a curiosity in Los Angeles, says Chris Glimm, manager of the Victory Theater, where Ralph Ince's sensational melodrama attacking the double standard of morality is to be shown.

"We have had scores of phone calls from feminine voices asking us if we really were going to show 'Virtuous Men' and all about the starting time of shows, etc."

Could, But Don't.

Julius Tannen, comedian of the legitimate and vaudeville stage, threw a new sidelight on studio life when he visited Universal City the other day, during his vaudeville engagement in Los Angeles. He was taking lunch at the Universal restaurant when the huge eating place was filled with nearly 500 movie folks, from leading stars to extras.

"I have been in nearly every prominent cafe in America from New York to Los Angeles, and this is the first one in which I have failed to see a woman smoke," observed Tannen. "Are there any restrictions?"

"None whatever," he was assured.

"And still they talk about the wickedness of the movies," said Tannen.

Reels of Reels.

"Well, guess I'll go home and practice my drunk scenes," was the common expression of charming May Allison during the strenuous month she put in filming "Fair and Warmer," now at the California Theater.

Someone asked her one day if that was for her role in "Fair and Warmer."

"Yes," she answered. "You see I have to be drunk in two reels."

Bennie at the U.

Bennie Alexander, the child actor, who made a hit in Griffith's photoplay, "Hearts of the World," and who afterward played in "The Turn of the Road," has been engaged by Universal for an important juvenile role in "The Triflers," a comedy-drama of New York life, being produced by Christy Cabanne and featuring Edith Roberts and David Butler.

PICTURE BRINGS RELATIVES NEAR.

As the curse of the ancient Tower of Babel scattered and estranged the peoples of the earth, the modern miracle—the motion picture—on the other hand, seems to serve to bring them more closely together and establish a relationship between the distant parts of the world which has not heretofore existed.

Miss M. C. O'Connor, scenario editor at the Lasky studio, tells a strange but true story which offers striking proof of the truth of this statement.

"My brother," says Miss O'Connor, "has been up in the arctic circle for many years working his mines. He has a perfect set of teeth, which he has always kept in the best of condition. One day he discovered that one of them needed filling and upon investigating as to where he might find the nearest dentist, learned that he would have to travel 1000 miles over the ice and snow, in one direction, but that by going towards Siberia he would reach a settlement 500 miles away, which boasted a dentist.

"Harnessing up his dogs he journeyed for three months in a sled and finally came to the Siberian town. It just happened that 200 American soldiers of the Siberian expedition were then stationed in the town and a motion-picture film was being exhibited for their entertainment.

"My brother entered the small shack which served as a theater and took his seat. As he looked up to the screen the first character he saw was our sister, Loyola O'Conner, who had played a role in the picture. This was the first time he had seen her image in fifteen years, but he immediately recognized her. He was wild with joy."

The story, as told by Miss O'Connor, was written to her in a letter from her brother, who is still in the far-away frigid realms of arctic lands.

KELLERD COMING SOON.

Actor has Achieved Note Through Shakespearean Work.

John E. Kellerd, noted for his Shakespearean plays, is shortly to play an engagement in this city. His present tour, which under the direction of William F. Connor is to extend to Australia and thence, by way of London and Paris, back to New York, not only includes the Shakespearean plays in the interpretation of which Mr. Kellerd has won fame, but also a few select modern plays of the higher class, "The Bells," "The Ladies Battle," by Scribe; "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "The Great Lover" and "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

Mr. Kellerd came of a theatrical family in England, and made his first apearance on the boards in that country in "Hamlet," at a Kensington theater at the age of 10 years. He came to this country early to join the Boston Museum, where, after playing many parts and gaining through the constant change and hard work of those days, a world of expereince, he went over to the Boston Theater, where he became leading man in succession to W. J. Florence and Joseph Jefferson.

Then for a time he appeared in such modern plays as "The Climbers," "The Cipher Code," "The Vampire" and "Taps," but returned to the classics when he played with Mme. Modjeska in Shakespearean repertoire. Only once since then has he deserted the "immortal bard," and that was when he was featured in W. S. Willard's plays in place of Willard.

It was Mr. Kellerd, who, in his constant striving for the highest dramatic ideal, made the original production of "Oedipus Rex" in New York. He proved to be the first player in the history of the American stage who could carry performances of "Hamlet" over a peroid of 102 consecutive nights on Broadway.

MILLER'S CLOSING REGIME.

Today and Sunday will be the closing days of the California Theater under the present Miller management. The Goldwyn Company has bought a controlling interest in the beautiful theater and will reopen it next Friday evening under the direction of S. L. Rothapfel, the New York exhibitor, who made a reputation by his management of the Strand, Rivoli and Rialto theaters. The Millers will still remain both as stockholders and officials of the new company, as will also Harry Leonhardt, who has been associated with them in the management and ownership. But today and tomorrow's showings of the farce comedy success, "Fair and Warmer," will end the present regime.

HARRY LAUDER COMING BACK.

Scotland's Lark will Sing at Clune's Auditorium.

Tragedy and Pathos Absent from Week's Bill.

Mason and Majestic Offer New Comedies.

The woman who said, "Laugh and the world laughs with you" passed from the world's great stage a few days ago, but the truth of that line will doubtless be demonstrated as long as this optimistic old world shall last. The next line of the poem, however, poetic though it may be, does not apply universally, for few of us ever weep alone, thanks to that bond of sympathy that makes humanity a unit in sorrow or in joy.

When war's alarm sounded and the young men of America marched away beneath the colors there was apprehension in the minds of all of us, and when, later, news began to arrive, telling of those who had been killed and wounded, there was an ache in every heart throughout the land.

The stage is a reflection of life—at times a sad or bad reflection, it is true, but always a reflection of things as they are. Always the audience will shiver when beholding a tragedy, weep at the pathetic and laugh at the ludicrous. Is it not a hopeful sign that dramas portraying or suggesting the horrors of war are gradually being eliminated?

While reverence for our citizen soldiers will grow deeper into our souls as the years shall pass, we are doing our best to forget the unpleasant events connected with their sacrifices, and in this effort the stage is helping us to no inconsiderable extent.

At the local theaters this week there is no hint of either tragedy or pathos. On the contrary, every play offered suggests either the happy or the ridiculous.

The Mason offers a Cohan and Harris production, Wilde's "Ideal Husband," will be presented at the Majestic, while the Morosco enters its nineteenth week in "Civilian Clothes."

The vaudeville houses offer entertainment varied in theme, but with comedy predominating.

Mason.

Following a run of a solid year in New York, "A Tailor-made Man" will be presented by Cohan and Harris, at the Mason Operahouse beginning tomorrow night, for a week's engagement. "A Tailor-made Man" is a modern variation of a good old theme, the story of an audacious young man whose mendacity overcomes a host of obstacles.

Having culled a number of brilliant phrases from a work on social philosophy, which he finds in his shop, the tailor, knows no bounds for his ambition, and he aspires to do things that Napoleon would have balked at. Donning a dress suit belonging to one of his customers, he wears it to a grand ball—and his fortune is made. He wins the captain of industry he had set out to meet, makes friends with everybody and, when he leaves the stage as the hero of the ballroom, it is only to appear later as the associate of a great shipbuilder. He reconciles the public to a worthy enterprise and even settles an impending strike.

Of course, he wins the girl of his choice, and even stems the tide of jealousy that rises in the breast of the author, whose book he had stolen.

For the local presentation of "A Tailor-made Man" Cohan and Harris announce a cast including Harold Vermilye, Florence Ryerson, J. H. Greene, A. L. Henry, Clifford Worman, Doris Cochran, Robert Williamson, Lisle Leigh, Redfield Clarke, Albert Wyart, George Henry, Abigail Marshall, Josephine Deffry, William C. Hodges, Ines Cerma, Frank Sherlock, Della Evans, Mabel Ressley, W. H. Pendergast, John Warren, Ralph MacKenzie, George Wyart and Lillian Martin.

Majestic.

"An Ideal Husband," a comedy drama by Oscar Wilde, with Edward Everett Horton and Evelyn Varden in the leading roles, will open at the Majestic Theater tonight. In the opinion of some dramatic reviewers and critics, "An Ideal Husband" is Wilde's masterpiece both in construction and the brilliancy of its lines. The story of the play revolves around Sir Robert Chiltern, an English statesman who, in his youth, sold a state secret and in return received considerable political benefit. Years after, at the height of his career, an adventuress confronts him with a letter which if revealed, would ruin him both socially and politically. The dramatist's ingenuity is applied in extricating his leading character from the dilemna, providing an unusual, though satisfactory ending, to the play.

Miss Ruth Renick, Beulah Munro, Marie Curtis, Franklin Pangborn, Arthur Allard, Harry Garrity, George C. Pearce and others of the Wilkes organization will appear in support of Mr. Horton and Miss Varden. The play will be staged by Miss Williamene Wilkes, with Dick Morgan in charge of the technical direction.

Orpheum.

Amelia Stone and Armand Kalisz head the nine-act bill which opens at the Orpheum tomorrow. Miss Stone and Mr. Kalisz, who, for a time had abandoned the vaudeville field for musical comedy, are back at the old game, this time with a new act called "A Song Romance," with Paul Parnell at the piano. Another feature act, quite a contrast to the headliner, is the Farrell-Taylor company in "The African Duke," a burlesque sketch with a colored man and his brother as the central figures. Jack Sidney and Isabel Townley are a new pair to present a patter act called "A Subway Flirtation," but it is said there is nothing "low down," dark or mysterious about it. It is quite in the open and the title merely gives an excuse for patter songs and steps.

largely in the act, and some startling new disclosures in fashions are promised. Billy Fern and his company present "A Quiet Evening," an acrobatic and balancing turn in which the girl is featured.

The Melnotte Duo offers a surprise; despite the name, it is not a high-brow singing act, but something entirely different. The Tennessee Ten, a big negro act, will return for another week, and Mme. Ellis stays another week to answer questions of the curious.

Morosco.

Everybody loves the uniform, of course, but civilian clothes can be made even more interesting, it seems, especially when woven into drama. An evidence of the truth of this statement is to be found in the fact that "Civilian Clothes," the comedy by Thompson Buchanan, author of "The Cub" and "Woman's Way," will start on its nineteenth week at the Morosco Theater with today's matinee. During the week the 192nd performance will be played. It has been estimated that already 210,000 people have viewed the production.

If the run of "Civilian Clothes" is ever terminated, declares the management, the play will be followed with the presentation of David Belasco's success, "Polly with a Past."

Among the players who have contributed toward making the success of "Civilian Clothes" are Clyde Fillmore, Eleanor Woodruff, Alfred Whitman, Lillian Elliott, Joseph Eggenton, Harry Duffield, Joseph Cox, Dora Mae Howe Roscoe Kearns, James Corrigan and Eloise Clement.

Pantages.

The Pantages show for the coming week is heralded as an assortment of unusual acts. The Morton Jewel Four are clever club jugglers, good singers and dancers. Fred and Daisy Rial are experts on the Roman rings, with a lot of comedy and some adept juggling. Ed Blondell offers a sketch in which he plays the part of a silly boy who wanders into a strange house and has a number of adventures while prowling about in an aimless manner. Blondell is ably supported by Miss Lila Bliss, a Los Angeles girl, well known in picture circles.

Shaw and Bernard offer something new in the way of a vaudeville skit. They appear before the audience as a pair of promoters who have stock to sell in the mosquito trust, their plan being to charge 10 cents a head for every inhabitant to keep the mosquitos penned up.

Murray Livingston appears as "The Dreamer" in a succession of portrayals of different characters, making lightning changes of costume in front of the audience Austin and Delaney are two young colored men who represent themselves as bellhops in a fashionable hotel.

In addition, there will be another Harold Lloyd comedy and the latest assortment of the world's important events as pictured on the screen

Clune's Auditorium.

Harry Lauder, direct from Australia, with a new repertoire of typically Lauderesque songs and stories, and with his new honors as a knight of the British realm resting easily upon his shoulders, will open a week's engagement at Clune's Auditorium November 10. Sir Harry, as his host of admirers now elect to call him, will doubtless be heartily welcomed, for the coming of the famous Scotch comedian is always an event. The stage has only one Lauder, and his songs and methods are peculiarly his own There are plenty of new songs in Sir Harry's repertoire this season, it is said. While Sir Harry will, as always, contribute the major part of the programme, he has been surrounded by a company of international entertainers. Among the auxiliary features are the Kitamuras, Japanese artists, Miss Marian Vallance, a bonny Scotch singer; the famous Milo; the Act Beautiful, which is accredited with being one of the most remarkable displays of equine intelligence ever seen on the stage, and Miss Muriel Window, the "Little Peacock of Vaudeville." The Scotch Highland Bagpipers, who have always been a feature of the Lauder programme continue with the company.

Hippodrome.

Steed's Sextette, a jazz orchestra in spicy syncopated melody, tops the Hip bill this week. These six boys are all kings of ragtime, and will prove a riot.

Browning and Davis, two minstrel boys from Dixie, will prove amusing blackface comedians, and Nellie Bennett and Girls offer a boxing and wrestling act.

Hall and Tyson present a song and dance act entitled "I Want a Kiss," and the Bull Bear Indians offer an Indian novelty

Ellis Nowland & Co., of five people, are known as merry monarchs of the sawdust arena.

June Elvidge will appear in the World film drama, "The Woman of Lies."

The scenes are laid in Egypt and the meetings of Bedouin insurrectionists are held in the desert tents of Abdul Rey (Macey Harlam,) their leader. The rugs are used on the floor, couches and walls of these tents, and serve as background. A regular armed guard hovered about the scenes where the rugs were used all the time they were at the studio, for, with over 900 Arabian and Hindu extras working in the big procession, and other spectacular scenes, there was a possibility that someone might be a connoisseur of choice silken prayer rugs.

Mary MacLaren Returns.

Mary MacLaren and her company, appearing in "Rouge and Riches" for Universal under Harry Franklin's direction, have returned from the cotton fields of Southern California, and are now making interior scenes at Universal City. In this story of Bohemian life in New York the star is supported by Marguerite Snow, Wallace MacDonald, Alberta Lee, Dorothy Abril, Syn de Conde, Robert Walker, Lloyd Whitlock and Helen Sullivan.

For Color Process.

After two years spent on a color film process which he has developed, W. K. Thalhammer, a local inventor, left for New York last week, where a group of capitalists have become interested in his process. According to Thalhammer, the easterners want to organize a company and erect a studio in Los Angeles for the production of color motion pictures.

Technical men from the local studios, who have seen the Thalhammer process, declare it to be very excellently perfected. Thalhammer was master mechanic in the camera department at Universal City for several years. He is the inventor of the Thalhammer special iris, which is used on hundreds of movie cameras.

Motor-Meter's New Function.

Three times within two weeks, the motor-meter was stolen off the front of David Butler's car. Butler is a Universal film star. His car was insured against theft but after getting two new motor-meters from the insurance company, he felt a bit timid about asking for any more.

So he bought the third himself. Now when he leaves his car, David takes the motor-meter along in his pocket. He has discovered that it comes in handy as a "buck" in poker games.

Working on "Madame X."

Marjorie Rambeau has commenced work on "Madame X" for the screen, under the direction of Cappellani. She is filling a special contract in the films, while she is rehearsing in New York the new Al Woods play, "The Unknown Woman."

Eddie Lowe Active.

Edmund Lowe, former matinee idol of Los Angeles, is leading a double life in New York at present. Lowe is playing both on the stage and in the films.

He will soon open as leading man with Leonore Ulrich in a new play in which the company has been rehearsing for some time under the direction of David Belasco.

Since his arrival in New York Lowe has been under contract with Famous Players.

Lauder's New Songs.

When Sir Harry Lauder, the famous Scotch comedian, who is to appear at Clune's Auditorium November 10 decided to visit Australia by way of resuming a world tour that had been interrupted by the great war, he wrote a number of typical songs for his Antipodean season, and now that he has returned from Australia, these songs will be included in his American programmes.

Lauder and his wife—then plain Mr. and Mrs. Lauder—were in Sydney, Australia, when the comedian received his commission as a knight of the British realm. He had started on a four-weeks' engagement, but, delayed by the shipping strike, was engaged for ten weeks. The news that he had been made a knight because of his work in the war was made the occasion for a great ovation, people even gathering outside the theater and cheering and shouting in his honor.

Tears as wells as laughter were mingled in Sir Harry's war work—and he has the grave of his son as a pitiful reminder.

A Film Novelty.

A novelty in films has been originated by Virginia Van Nuys, local writer, under the title of "Spotlights." The themes are chosen from art subjects, and brief characteristic sketches, and the purpose of the productions, which are all very short, is to furnish fillers for larger programmes. Miss Van Nuys not only produced the pictures herself, but appears in them in a number of different poses, and achieves a very distinctive and well-varied make-up. In one of the features she gives a very good representation of an art study of Sarah Bernhardt. In another she appears as a naughty child, who got a bad case of mal-de-mer from cigarette smoking.

The ideas are uncoventional, and quite effectively worked out.

Washburn Keeps in Trim.

Bryant Washburn is going in for the strenuous life. The popular star has signed a trainer, and every morning at 6:30 o'clock he is in his gymnasium togs ready for a stiff hour's workout. He is not seeking any all-round athletic championships, but he says he will not be averse to accept a few challenges after another month's work. Most of the Paramount-Artcraft favorite's time since he started on "Too Much Johnson" has been spent on a yacht, but he has not neglected his daily workout, even under adverse conditions.

Keep Their Sea Legs.

During the filming of scenes for "The Sea Wolf," in the waters outside San Francisco Bay, two members of the company earned the nickname of "The Buzzards."

While most of the actors sometimes refused to eat any lunch at all, and frequently had only a light repast, the two "Buzzards" ate with vigor and vim. The rough weather, instead of diminishing their appetites, increased them.

Cake was their specialty. They had a standing order for the cake of all actors who did not feel like eating, and when the order was not filled to their liking, they would raid various lunch baskets to satisfy their craving.

The "Buzzards" were Raymond Hatton and Eddie Sutherland.

Eddie Polo in North.

Eddie Polo, Universal serial star, left a few days ago for San Francisco, via automobile, on an important business trip. Mr. Polo will be gone one week. Immediately on his return he will start work on a new fifteen-episode story, "The Vanishing Dagger."

No Loss of Time.

"What do you think of Japan, Wally" queried one of Wallace Beery's friends, after he had returned from a year's siege of picture production in the land of cherry blossoms and Geisha girls.

"They call it 'topsy-turvy' land," replied the prominent actor, and believe me it's named correctly. I shall never forget the time I went into a Japanese theater with one of the cameramen in our company. We had just returned from three months' work in the interior. After leaving our shoes at the checkroom, we clamped in a couple of back-breaking seats.

"After the third act I felt drowsy, and fell into a light sleep. I do not know how long I slept, but when I woke I saw a sight never to be forgotten. I rubbed my eyes to be sure I was awake. This is what I saw—the hero was about to stab the villain to death, the scene was intensely dramatic, and just as the climax was being approached, a couple of coolies strolled upon the stage, and after expectorating about a quart of tobacco juice on the floor, calmly set about removing the scenery. Before the villain died a complete set of new scenery was installed. My friend informed me that it was the custom in Japan."

OPERA SEASON STIRS NERVES

rear seats you have to watch it through a telescope.

The opening bill was Douglas Fairbanks in his first picture for the United Artists, and a Ned Wayburn girl show. For a week the house has been sold to capacity at every performance. Should the experiment thoroughly justify itself it would seem to mean good night for the small exhibitor and a cold hard winter for the traveling theatrical road show as well.

Nearly every show in New York is drawing huge audiences, but the producers are still wailing. Owing to the terrific rents and the tumultuous rise in the price of advertising and salaries, they claim that they make very little money. In order to add to their faltering fortunes they are planning a concerted attack upon the serenity of the Sabbath.

The only law that seems to bother New York much is the severe Sunday-closing ordinance. For years there have been no Sunday baseball and no Sunday theatergoing.

Of late years, however, the vaudeville houses have remained open on Sundays disguised as sacred concerts. The other producers have decided that if a monologist spilling punk jokes and a half clothed girl singing off key constitute a sacred concert, then a real play is also a sacred concert. Several religious organizations which have maintained a placid calm in the face of the so-called vaudeville sacred concerts, vow to fight the opening of the regular theaters.

If they do away with the Sunday performances, the managers intend to abandon Wednesday matinees, which they say have never paid.

MARLOWE AND SOTHERN.

Julia Marlowe and E. H. Sothern are closing their season of Shakespeare and are going on the road to tour as far west as Kansas City. As usual they got faint praise from the critics, but made money. Sothern's Hamlet is a heavy, ponderous, mosaic, painfully thought out and embodying all the sacred "business" devised by the great guns of the past.

Alexander Wollcott, one of the local dramatic critics, suggests that one of these days a bright clever actor like John Barrymore will happen upon "Hamlet" and will say "Why here is a darn good role," unabashed by the memories of Edwin Booth, Irving and Forbes Robertson, play the part sweetly and carelessly and like a human being, and make the play mean something to other real human beings.

In spite of the spinster schoolteachers who profess to see all sorts of hidden and mysterious meanings in Shakespeare, no more natural untheatrical dramatist ever wrote plays. The plays were intended to be staged in the most naturalistic style. That they could have lasted under the suffocating assaults of the commonplace strutting old hams who became classic traditions for heaven knows why, is a tribute to their lasting powers.

Firmin Gemier, the great Gallic actor, played "Taming of the Shrew" with a rollicksome gaiety that made Shakespeare as interesting as it should be. When the haberdasher from Padua brings the proffered stuffs for Kate's approval and Petruchio will have none of them, Gemier, they say, bounds down into the audience and holds whispered conferences about the goods with any woman spectator who chances to meet his eye, bending solicitously to catch her opinion and then rushing back to the stage to quote her loudly to the audience.

EFFACES MOVIES.

Forbes Robertson, by the way, is back in New York for a series of Shakespearean readings. Upon being interviewed at the docks, the cultured Englishman proceeded to efface the movies from the map. After which he landed.

"At one time," he said, "it was the burlesque that was ruining the theater, then it was musical farce and comedy. Now it is the cinema."

Dorothy Gish landed in a gust of enthusiasm from Los Angeles yesterday, having come in advance of her company, which is to work at the Griffith studios in Marmaroneck this winter. Dorothy says it is terrible to be an orphan even for three weeks. She is with her mother and sister at the Commodore Hotel and they are all three in a wild house hunt.

Ann Andrews, who seems to have been the sole and only result of the Little Theater experiment in Los Angeles, has been engaged as leading woman of "The Haunted Viol," a new Cohan and Harris show.

Oliver Morosco is putting out two new musical shows this season. "Linger Longer Letty," with Charlotte Greenwood as leading woman, and "Merry Mary Brown."

"Palmy Days," which seems likely to be another triumph for Augustus Thomas, the author, and for Wilton Lackaye, the star, has Southern California in the days of forty-nine as a locale. Mr. Lackaye plays the part of an old broken-down actor who is working as a miner.

Gaby Deslys, who found the American film producers slightly calm about the matter of starring her, has sailed for Italy, where she is to be in the films. In her wake dangled a young French count. Gaby has always had a penchant for the nobility.

MOVE FILM POWER STATION MILES.

An electrical plant, complete to an extent seldom realized by a motion-picture producing unit on location, was transported sixty miles from the Metro studios to the beach near Laguna, Cal., where night scenes were filmed for "Should a Woman Tell?" the all-star drama by Finis Fox produced by Screen Classics, Inc., under the supervision of Maxwell Karger.

A two-mile high-voltage line was strung on sixty-foot poles from the Southern California Edison Company substation at Laguna, and three bare copper wires carried the 10,000-volt current to a pair of transformers that stepped it down to 2200 volts and passed it to other transformers that fed out two currents.

One was a 220-volt three-phase current for the motor generator set supplying the direct or unflickering current needed for flood arcs, spotlights mercury vapor lights, and "practicals" in houses and ship. The other was a 110-volt alternating current feeding the side arcs and other secondary lights.

BESSIE BARRISCALE ASKS FOR A NAME.

Have you a name under your dome that you are not using?

If you have, and it would be a good monicker for a home, send it to suite 902 Baker-Detwiler Building, Los Angeles, Cal., and if Bessie Barriscale likes it better than any other name she will choose it for her new home, and the lucky suggester will receive as a reward something decidedly worth while.

The prize is to remain a secret until the selection is made. There are no rules to abide by except that the names should all be in by midnight of December 15, and the selection of the winning name will be made in time to award the prize as a Christmas gift.

The name may consist of one, two or three words, but more than three would make it too long, and brevity is preferred.

To guide the contestants it may be stated that the new home is a town house. It is not near the sea or in the foothills or in the country, but, like all California houses, whether in the city or elsewhere, it will have a garden and be surrounded by many flowers.

The style of architecture is distinctly Californian, with broad porches, wide windows, low ceilings roofs almost flat, pergolas, and a touch or two of old Spanish Colonial.

Faculty Recital.

The faculty of the Westlake Art Studios gave a recital Wednesday evening at the Ansonia Apartments. Mrs. Carolyne Wood, the director of the school, opened the programme with a few remarks concerning the ideals and standards of the school and its various branches. Patrick O'Neil, the Irish tenor, made his first public appearance here, singing a Handel group, and Irish songs. Mr. O'Neil, revealed excellent pronunciation and articulation in his songs.

Charles T Ferry, senior member of the piano faculty, accompanied Mr. O'Neil. He also played two groups of his numbers; especially well liked was his Prelude in C Minor.

Ruth Bagnell Townsend gave a group of Chopin, which was well received.

Capt. Leslie Peacoke, the dramatic teacher, motion picture director, offered a reading of his own composition, "The Devil's Invention." He responded to an encore with "The Devil in Love."

Hastings Organ Programme.

Dr. Ray Hastings, head of the organ department of the Davis Musical College, gave his concert in the First Methodist Church of San Bernardino to a large audience. He also played for the school children in the afternoon to a capacity house Friday night he was heard in another recital in the Union Church of San Dimas. His bookings include a large number of concerts for the ensuing winter.

Quartette Singers Heard.

Miss Ruth Smith, with the American Girls' Quartette, of the Rice Chautauqua, and Miss Reta Mitchell, formerly with the same quartette, gave a programme at the Santa Fe Avenue College Friday evening. Miss Mitchell featured Spanish and Chinese songs, and Miss Smith Japanese and Scotch songs in costume. The entertainment was in charge of Miss Mary Elizabeth Smith, Americanization teacher for the school.

HOARDED RAZORS.

Collections of 35,000 Years Ago Being Uncovered in Egypt.

Menepthah, the Pharaoh of the Exodus, was well prepared for a barbers' strike 3500 years ago. He had in his palace in Egypt a collection of the razors of cavemen with which he probably would have found little trouble in keeping himself beardless to this day had he found the fountain of eternal youth.

Whether it was a barbers' strike, a mania for collecting things or an idiosyncrasy for tonsorial paraphernalia that motivated this now cherished collection is a subject for scholars of the ancients. But at any event he had the razors carefully preserved in his palace.

This is one of the discoveries of the Eckley B. Coxe, Jr., expedition to Egypt, which has been excavating the palace of the ancient Pharaoh for the last five years.

Revelations of the life of ancient Egypt more important than any others made in this century are expected with the continuation of the work of excavating the palace of Menepthah.

Dr. Clarence S. Fisher, leader of the expedition, in a letter to the university museum, reports he already has uncovered about two-fifths of the palace, including the front of the structure, the throne room and the thrones intact.

The luxurious private rooms of Rameses show that he was an artist in self-adornment and an archaeologist. Some of his treasures include relics of the Stone Age which may be 30,000 years old.

The work of the expedition was started five years ago, but was discontinued last winter on account of the war. It is being watched by students of ancient civilization in all parts of the world, as evidenced by the inquiry received by the museum from a man in New Zealand.—[New York Sun.

Flag Ceremonies.

Originally the practice of hoisting flags on public buildings only part of the way up the flagpoles when a prominent man dies was a military one. Ever since flags were used in war it has been the custom to have the superior or conquering nation above that of the inferior or vanquished. When an army found itself hopelessly beaten it hauled its flag down far enough for the victor's flag to be placed above it on the same pole. This was a token, not only of submission, but of respect. In like manner when a famous soldier died flags were lowered, not only to indicate respect to his memory, but to show that he had succumbed to the greatest conqueror of all, death, for which flag space was left at the top of the staff.—[Indianapolis News.

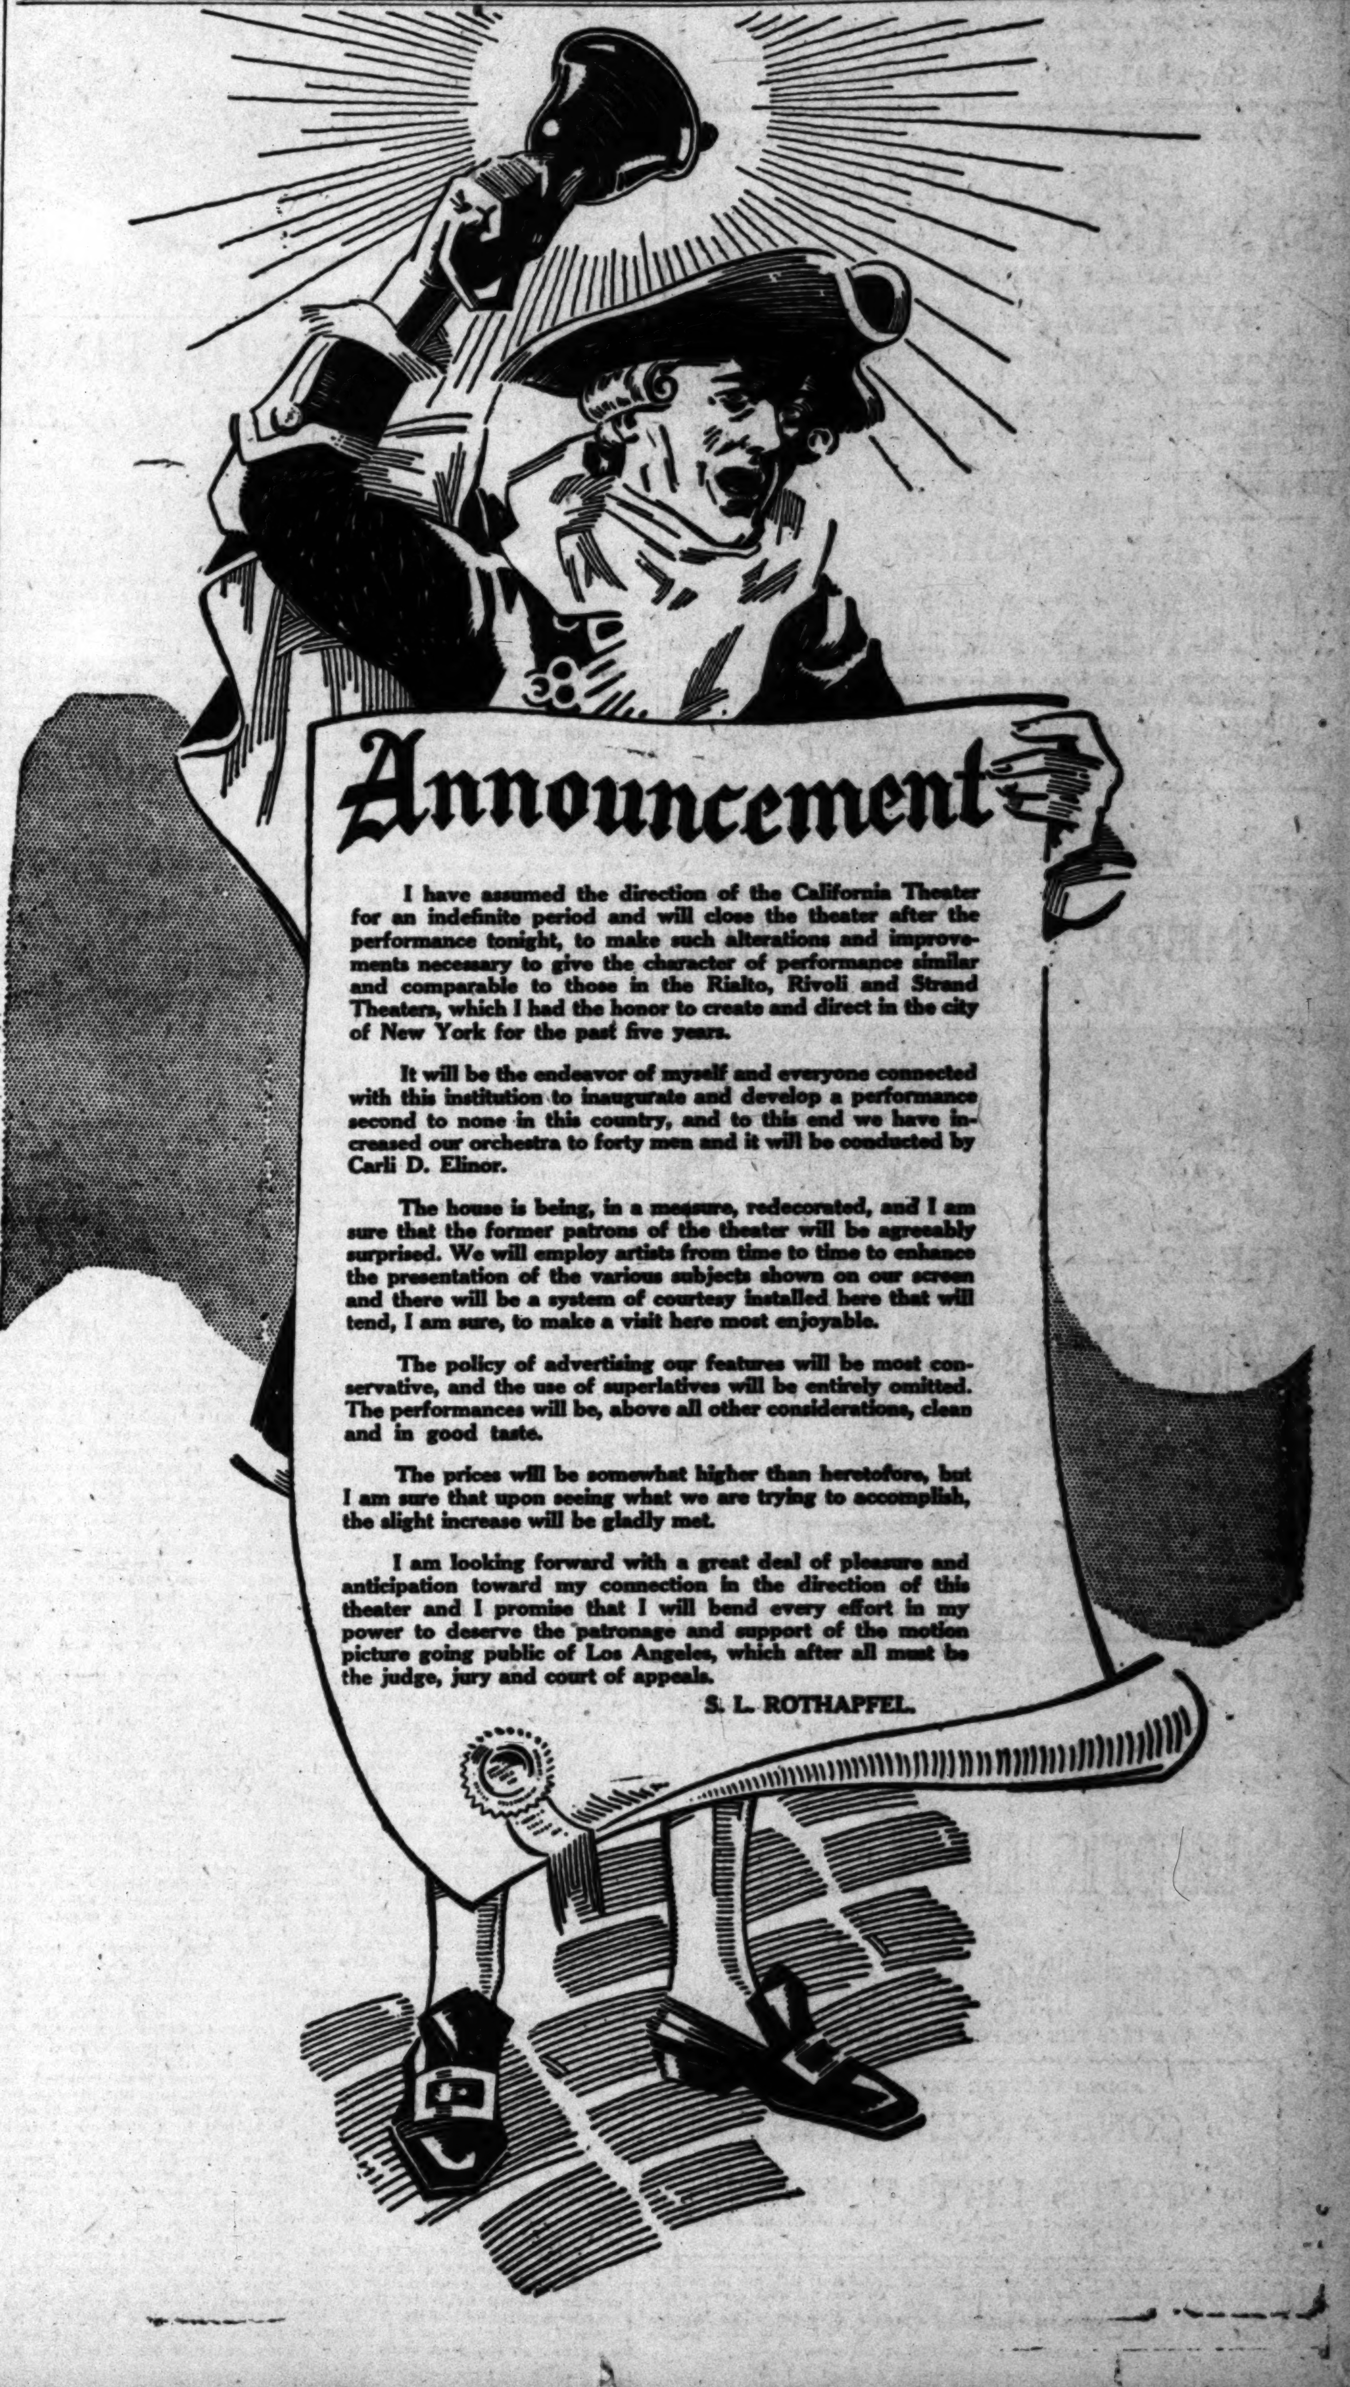
GARRICK—SECOND BIG WEEK Bdwy. at 8th
"BEARCAT" STACY In "WHEN BEARCAT WENT DRY." Full of real fights and love.



Announcement

I have assumed the direction of the California Theater for an indefinite period and will close the theater after the performance tonight, to make such alterations and improvements necessary to give the character of performance similar and comparable to those in the Rialto, Rivoli and Strand Theaters, which I had the honor to create and direct in the city of New York for the past five years.

It will be the endeavor of myself and everyone connected with this institution to inaugurate and develop a performance second to none in this country, and to this end we have increased our orchestra to forty men and it will be conducted by Carli D. Elinor.

The house is being, in a measure, redecorated, and I am sure that the former patrons of the theater will be agreeably surprised. We will employ artists from time to time to enhance the presentation of the various subjects shown on our screen and there will be a system of courtesy installed here that will tend, I am sure, to make a visit here most enjoyable.

The policy of advertising our features will be most conservative, and the use of superlatives will be entirely omitted. The performances will be, above all other considerations, clean and in good taste.

The prices will be somewhat higher than heretofore, but I am sure that upon seeing what we are trying to accomplish, the slight increase will be gladly met.

I am looking forward with a great deal of pleasure and anticipation toward my connection in the direction of this theater and I promise that I will bend every effort in my power to deserve the patronage and support of the motion picture going public of Los Angeles, which after all must be the judge, jury and court of appeals.

CLARA GREETS THE KING.

A Meeting with Rova'ty, as Told by Ella, the Extra Girl.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

As Clara Kimball Young rightly says, even if we have been fighting to make the world safe for democracy, still and all, dearie, a king is a king, especially with them getting scarcer every year, like oaks and sealskin coats and buffaloes, and probably soon there will be only one left and him stuffed and kept in a museum like a ichthyosaurus, what ever that is, whilst little children clamor to play with the crown jules and other royal stuff. And, of course, everybody is anxious to meet one, though not knowing what do do, whether to kiss their hand or just say—"Hello, King!"

All of us I guess is disappointed deep down when we find a king looking like Arrow collars, etc. We expect to find him going around all dolled-up like the King of Hearts in a deck of cards, wearing his ermine and clanking his sword and everything. But anyhow, take it from me and Clara Kimball Young, dearie, this King of Belgium is a regular guy, even if he ain't jabbin' 'round with his sword none these days, for well the Germans and us know he can jab. For he made a noise like a king by going into the depths of battle and using his sword freely, though he doubtless felt about losing an arm or leg just like anybody else would feel, a king having feelings but never allowed to show them, except patriotism, though just as prone as anybody doubtless to lose collar-buttons and probably sometimes not finding the coffee hot enough, and maybe at times feeling irritable at the queen because she doesn't play golf or maybe because she does, whichever way you do being all wrong in a husband's eyes at times, though other times he's proud of whichever way you do. Funny animals, husbands!

Naturally all of us movie folks wanted to get a peek at the King. Also we wanted to give the King a treat, for whilst a king is a king, and no denying it, still and all I'll bet there's many a hoi-polloi knows the face of Charles Chaplin that don't know any king's last name. However, dearie, as I was saying, you know as well as I do that day the ruler of Belgium was out here, when we heard he was going to visit our great fillum center, every picture actor in the West got dolled-up like an electric chewing gum sign hoping to be looked at by royalty. They all wanted to be expressin' of theirselves in their art when the King happened around.

But you can't make a king run on schedule. So that's how it really all happened.

TOOK HER BY SURPRISE.

Miss Young says she never really expected to meet a king, and when it did happen, it happened all so suddenly she didn't even have time to worry if her nose was powdered or not. But anyhow, Miss Young hasn't got one of those shiny noses that constantly needs a dull finish, so she was in luck that way; also her hair always stays put, which is merciful for a queen of the silent drama, and anyhow, learning how to stay beautiful though drug all over a set by the villain is one of the accomplishments of our art.

As for me, when the great moment came, dearie, I remained calm and unruffled like a tiger tamer's daughter should, not to mention one who has just played through "The Perils of Percy," so I feel sure I was entirely easy to look at, as always I am, even early in the morning, it being a gift, I think, though grand maw says it's just youth, and for me not to get swelled up about it.

Even after the experiences of that morning, which I'm just going to tell you about if you'll wait a minute, dearie, I feel we both looked perfectly kipple.

If you wanta know the truth, dearie, it was mere fake stage money which was the real cause of our getting to say hello to the King, which seems odd doesn't it, but heigho! mighty oaks from tiny nuts do grow, as the poet says.

And speakin' o' nuts, it was my being one, dearie, that led me over to the Clara Kimball Young studio, that eventful morning, I hot-footing over there to get a rabbit's foot I had forgot in my dressing-room when I hastily left the night before to join Dick, now my actor husband, though formerly an ice man. Certainly I shall always hereafter believe in the power of a rabbit's foot, realizing all the things we was saved from that day, let alone getting to shake hands with royalty.

Miss Young had just come out of the projection-room where she took a last peek at "The Eyes of Youth," and I met her at the door. Though I had played but a small part in her picture, I guess she recognized it was an important one, for she asked me to ride to town with her, and from there over to the aviation field where her airplane was. Like all the rest of the picture stars she has learned to fly.

So we got into the little car she drives herself, she saying she's looking forward to taking a hop, and though the King was supposed to be at the field, she didn't expect he'd really get there because he was going to Ince's studio, and heaven knows every wile would be used to keep him there or in any other studio he got into even if a coupla ham actors had to be killed to do it. So she wasn't counting at all on seeing him, but she wanted to try her new plane, she said, and as the way 'round was long, she decided to drive through one of the canyons to town to get some birdseed for her parrot, and then on out.

A HOLD-UP.

The canyon was lovely with all the trees and plants green by the wayside, and we was bowling along thinking of nothin' nearer to royalty than the furniture the different Louises had wished on us some of which Miss Young is going to use in her sets for her next picture, and we was wondering how the Louises could take so much time off their pleasures to invent so much furniture, when blooey! Out from behind a tree leaped a man and pointed a pistol straight at us! Miss Young knows no fear and neither do I, being a tiger tamer's daughter and never flinching even when there's nobody looking; but she said afterward she made a lightning calculation, and see she couldn't run over the man without us going over the cliff, so she stopped the car and both of us started putting up our hands, the man reached in and grabbed her purse and jumped aside.

Just then around the turn in the road came whistling a blithe and handsome young man, plainly clad, all which I noted at the time though highly excited. He saw what was the matter in a minute, and before the man could make his get away in the brush, the young fellow had grabbed him by the collar and got the purse away from him. But the fellow was big and strong and broke away. The young man, as we now saw, had bright blue eyes and strong white teeth, and a nice manner, even though a son of the common people, judging from his clothes.

Miss Young thanked him nicely when he handed her the purse, but she just couldn't help laughing.

"It—it was just stage money in that purse," she explained, "that I had been using in my work! Please don't mind my laughing. I really can't help it!"

The young man laughed good-humoredly, too, but all the same I saw his jaw set a bit firmly, like Bill Hart in a close-up. I reckoned he wasn't used to being laughed at. Then Miss Young asked him graciously if he was going to town, and would he care to ride with her. He thanked her and got in and sat down by her, first bestowing an appreciative glance on me in the back seat. He said he expected to meet his dad at the aviation field, and Miss Young says, well, isn't that fortunate, she was going there too! Then she invites him to ride with her in her airplane, and tells him her name is Miss Young. And he says his name is Leo Brabant.

"Aren't you Miss Clara Kimball Young, the famous screen star?" he asked, and she admitted she was.

"An air trip with Clara Kimball Young!" he exclaimed, and his eyes sparkled with pleasure.

"It's one of the new Curtiss flyers," she told him.

"Oh, I've been wanting to see one of those!" cried the young man.

I asked to take the wheel and Miss Young let me, the two sitting in the back seat. I couldn't hear their talk very plain, and Miss Young says she can't just remember what she said about kings, but she does hope to heaven it was complimentary, and she's sure it was about King Albert, because he's a wonderful man, and all she thinks maybe she said was that she didn't like sandy hair, which is the kind King Albert has.

AN ACCIDENT.

All laughing and talking, and realizing it was late, I got to running the car pretty fast, and all of a sudden an old man appeared on the road right in front of us. He got panicky when he saw us, and though I put on the brakes and stopped the car in a second, it skidded somehow, and hit the old fellow with the fender and over he went. We all jumped out scared to death, but the man wasn't hurt much, only shaken up and awful scared. Miss Young asked him where he lived, and said she'd take him home, so he got in and Miss Young took the wheel. Suddenly she thought of something.

"We can't have that airplane ride if we take our friend here home," she said low to the young man, thinking the youth seldom had aviation trips and that maybe he'd be awfully disappointed. "You see I've got to be back at the studio early this afternoon. He isn't hurt, and we can easily put him into a taxi and send him home from town."

The young man looked disappointed, but only a second. He took a look at the poor old fellow, huddled up on the back seat with me, and he says, quietly, "No, we'll take him home!"

And neither of us at the time realized it was one of the great happenings of our lives. We took the old fellow home, to the lower part of town, gave him some money, and really he felt he said as if he had had an awfully good time.

It would seem that from then on all should have run as easy as the first reel. But not so. The morning was to be a chapter of accident. Whilst bowling along, something suddenly went wrong with the machine, but the young man got out and fixed it in a jiffy. When he got in again, Miss Young asked him what he did for a living, and he said, kind of sad, I thought, "Oh nothing much."

Miss Young says, "Well, you seem to be a very good mechanic."

And he says, "Well, I guess I could be if I settled right down to it," and Miss Young says, "Have you had a thorough education in mechanics?" And he says, "Alas no!"

But he was smiling, which I didn't think was very nice of him when Miss Young was taking such an interest in him. But she was watching the road and didn't notice, but just went on, "Well, I'll be glad to help you, if you will let me. I know a scholarship I can get for you." And then she gave him quite a lecture about a young man like him wasting his time. The young man says, "Well, that's awfully good of you, to take so much interest, but I'll have to ask my dad about it. I fear he has different plans for me."

But his face suddenly lighted up with a light of which we were later to learn the meaning.

AT THE FIELD.

There was a big crowd at the aviation field when we got there, and suddenly we all remembered the Kinf of Belgium was supposed to be there! Miss Young said she supposed we wouldn't have any chance to speak to the King, though two prominent city officials had invited her to meet him, but she just hated to bother such a busy King as he was. The young man said he supposed that was so, so we all went over and had a peek at Miss Young's airplane which was in the place they called the hangar, and they both said how they wished they had time to go up.

"Well," says Mr. Brabant, "I'll go and look for my dad, but I suppose I'll have a hard time finding him in that jam. But I want you to meet him." And off he dashed.

Pretty soon he came hurrying back with his cheeks all flushed and his eyes sparkling like a ham actor's when a director throws him a kind word. Miss Young and I at once decided he had made up his mind to work for a living.

"I've found him," he cried, "and he wishes very much to meet you two ladies."

Miss Young being a star, is used to having folks come to her, so she couldn't see it that way. "I'll wait here," she said.

"Oh, please," said the boy, "You see my father is so crowded in he can't come!"

The young man's pleadings just weren't to be resisted, so we followed him. The crowd seemed to melt before his youthful impetuosity, and before we knew it, we were standing before a tall, smiling man with a healthy complexion and bright blue eyes. He was clothed in a soldier's uniform and his chest was covered with medals.

Yes, dearie, there's no use trying to deceive you longer. Our Leo Brabant was none other than the young Prince, as we woulda knowed if we had been up on Blue Book stuff, and it was his royal father King Albert, of Belgium, we were standing before, and we dizzily heard Leo saying, all formal and upstage like, like royalty has to treat each other in company, and just as if he never asked his own father for a quarter or anything like that:

"Your Majesty, my father, allow me to present my friends," mentioning our names. And then we shook hands. I was quite calm and decomposed, and just murmured something, knowing I looked all right, anyhow, and deeply conscious of my pale pink sweater, which, by the mercy of heaven I had had a hunch to put on that morning. I always say, be sure your clothes are right, murmur something genteel, and don't fall over your feet, and you can get by anywheres. A great crowd was standing around watching us, and it was a grand moment.

NOT BIT FLUSTERED.

Miss Young wasn't flustered, either. But oh, she was mad! Any dame that was a star would have a right to be! Pushed, so to speak, right up to a first king you ever met in your life without having a chance to even see if your hat was on straight or if, perchance, there is a splotch of soot on your lily-white nose, or a bit of misplaced pinkie on your swan-like throat—Also, Gawd knows, she felt humiliated, when she remembered how she was going to recommend a mechanic's education for the Prince."

"This is indeed a great honor!" said the King, smiling into our eyes.

"Your son did me a wonderful service," said Miss Young, sweet and cool like ice cream, and she told me afterward she was going to say: "He recovered a lot of stage money for me," and give a little laugh with just the right touch of scorn in it, like when she lets the vamp in the picture know she's got something on her. But Prince Leopold broke in with a laugh:

"Nonsense—I made a silly ass of myself and knocked down a fellow that had only stolen some stage money. And just to think, Miss Young offered me a ride in her airplane."

And Miss Young says she can never be thankful enough to Providence that she didn't say what she intended. Instead all her natural sweetness returned, and she said: "And to think, I was so dull I didn't know who he was!"

"Ah," said the King gallantly, "I doubt not your own face is much better known to the world than my son's."

So cleverly did he kill two birds wtih one stone, neatly calling his son down and complimenting Miss Young all in one breath. But at that, I guess he's right.

There was some more compliments, with the King asking for the star's picture, and then it came over Miss Young, she says, just how wonderful the Prince had been to her. She saw him looking wistfully over at her airplane in the hangar. The King turned to the seething crowd.

"Come," she said to the Prince, "We'll go for a hop."

And as they turned away toward the airplane, with the Prince's eyes sparkling, she thought of the little old man His Highness had insisted on taking to his humble home, forgetful of his own pleasure, I heard her murmur, just this, that's all:

"He's a regular prince, he is."

DE MILLE PLAY AT STANFORD.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Oct. 31.—"In 1999," a burlesque written by Cecil B. DeMille, the Hollywood motion picture producer, will be produced here next Friday by Stanford students. De Mille's clever little burlesque on the "eternal triangle" situation is to serve as a curtain raiser to the annual production of the Sword and Sandals society. The production this year is "The First Born," a Chinese drama, originally produced by David Belasco.

The cast of "In 1999" consists of only three characters. The Wife is played by Miss Margaret Shedd, Florence is taken by Miss Mary Largent, and Louis McDermott has the role of the Husband. Gordon Davis, of Los Angeles, is coaching the show, and Leland Pickering, of Hollywood, is the property manager.

RE-SIGNS KALLA PASHA.

Those picture fans who have raved over the manly beauty of Kalla Pasha, the handsome 300-pound wrestling gentleman with the black hedge of whiskers, as he appears in Sennett comedies, will be pleased to know that Mack Sennett has just signed up the wrestling Kalla for two years. Kalla says he will grow more whiskers than ever before.

THE RED-HEADED.

Subjects of Suspicion Since Time of Judas.

"Salute no red-haired man nearer than thirty feet off," runs an old French saying, "and even so, hold three stones in the fist wherewith to defend thyself."

From biblical times to the present day can be traced the prejudice against red hair. "Never lodge at red-haired people's houses," runs a precept in the fifteenth century "Boke of Curtasye," "for these be folks that are to drede." According to one tradition this distrust of red-haired people date from the times of Judas, who, himself redhaired, caused treachery to be ever afterward connected with hair of that color.

Shakespeare alludes to this belief. Says Rosalind, complaining of her lover, "His very hair is of the dissembling color." Whereupon Celia answers her: "Something browner than Judas's." Marston, too, in "The Insatiate Countess," makes one of his characters remark: "I ever thought by his red beard he would prove a Judas."

In Sweden prejudice against red hair was very strong; here its connection with treachery was twofold, for the traitor, Ashjorn, who betrayed Canute, possessed red hair. In Germany, also, red hair met with scant regard. "The short in stature," says a German proverb, "are naturally proud, and the red-haired untrustworthy."

Red hair, however unjustly, is still associated with deceit, and, in Ireland and Scotland, with ill luck as well. In the Highlands he who meets a red-haired woman when starting on a journey will be well-advised, say the wiseacres, to return home and start the journey afresh; and in Ireland red-haired people are supposed to exercise the same baleful influence upon any undertaking.

A man staying in western Connemara for brown trout fishing complained one day that sport had been unusually poor. The landlord smoothed his chin and pondered for some little time upon the reason for this lack of fish. Then, suddenly, his face lighted—the lakes, after all, it seemed, were not at fault. "Sure," said he, "ye'll have met Red Maggie Murphy on the way to the lake? 'Twas herself that passed by the minute after!"

The fairy folk are at one with human beings in disliking red-haired people, although in other connections they are by no means averse to red. Pixies, indeed, are sometimes known in the west of England by the names of "red caps," owing to their fondness for caps of the color; while fairy cows, those strange, hornless animals which have the power of crossing the sea by themselves, are invariably red.

But the unfortunate human possessor of red hair meets with scant courtesy from the fairy folk; he it is who suffers most acutely from the unwelcome attentions of spriggans and buccas. He will be decoyed across the bogland at night by lights like those of cottage windows, only to find that these lights have, in truth, no existence; his cattle will be pixyridden, his colts chased all night long. Only, indeed, by wearing his coat turned inside out, and drawing his cap well over that obnoxious hair, can he hope to mitigate such unwelcome attentions.—[Philadelphia Ledger.

WATT'S GARRET.

Room in Same Condition as When Inventor Worked in It.

The problem of how to remove and preserve intact the garret in which James Watt, the engineering genius (who made the steam engine a practical proposition) pursued his mechanical studies, is now puzzling the James Watt Centenary Committee, which arranged elaborate centenary celebrations at Birmingham last month.

It is proposed, if possible, to take this garret from its position at the top of Heathfield Hall, the old manor house at Handsworth, where Watt spent his last years, and to re-erect it intact in the central memorial building to be provided in the heart of Birmingham.

The difficulties of removal, however, are very great, and the house of which it is a part is at present in occupation. The garret is still in exactly the same condition as when Watt worked in it.

The piece of iron Watt was last engaged in turning lies on the lathe. The ashes of his last fire, where Watt used to do his own cooking because of his wife's objection to seeing her husband looking like a blacksmith, are in the grate; the last lump of coal is in its place over the stove and the frying pan in which he cooked his meals is hanging on its accustomed nail.

A dish on the shelf contains a withered bunch of grapes. On the floor in a corner is a trunk containing Gregory's school books. Gregory was the youngest son of James Watt, who, to his father's infinite grief, died young and at the commencement of a most promising career.—[Glasgow Herald.

RIGHT SPIRIT.

"Mr. Grabcoin spent thousands of dollars on his daughter's education. She attended some of the most expensive schools in America and Europe. She was taught to paint, to play various musical instruments and to speak three or four languages."

"Fine."

"But let me tell you how ungratefully she repaid her father's care. She came back home and married his chauffeur!"

"Splendid! A girl with her education and accomplishments might have married a broken-down duke."—[Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Not much. He still spends a great deal of his time in a trench."—[Home Sector.

Not a Bite of Breakfast Until You Drink Water

Says a glass of hot water and phosphate prevents illness and keeps us fit.

Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind incombustible ashes, so the food and drink taken day after day leaves in the alimentary canal indigestible material, which if not completely eliminated from the system each day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels. From this mass of left-over waste, toxins and ptomainelike poisons are formed and sucked into the blood.

Men and women who can't get feeling right must begin to take inside baths. Before breakfast each morning drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash out of the bowels the previous day's poisons and toxins, and to keep the entire alimentary canal clean, pure and fresh.

Those who are subject to sick headache, colds, biliousness, constipation, others who wake up with bad taste, foul breath, backache, rheumatic stiffness, or have a sour, gassy stomach after meals, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store, and begin practicing internal sanitation. This will cost very little, but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on the subject.—[Advertisement.

SOCIETY.

REDLANDS.

All of the students of the University of Redlands gathered at the Zanja Fiesta grounds on Friday evening for the first annual fall festival, an indoor circus it was called. There was no act or animal of a real circus that was not successfully burlesqued by the students. Following the circus there was a social time and this was greatly enjoyed by the guests of the students as well as the performers.

Miss Floy Gleason of Corona, a former student of the university, announced her engagement to Charles Clark of Corona, at an an affair given her by her sorority sisters Misses Beaulah Dye and Ruth Anna Blowers were in charge of the affair. There were about twenty present. Miss Gleason was a member of the graduating class of 1918.

A reception to celebrate the return of the Rev. Charles F. Seitter to the First Methodist Church, was celebrated with a reception at the church. The receiving line included Rev. and Mrs. Seitter, the president of each department of the church and Mrs. J. L. Avey, the hostess for the evening. Mrs. J. W. Sleeper was chairman of the committee that decorated the stage, where a programme was given by Ted Strang, Mrs. Elsie Giles, Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Pugh and daughter, Gladys, A. N. Dike and Mrs. R. A. Covington. Mrs. Norley Ray presided at the tables, where the light supper was served following the programme.

Miss Helen Fisk, Mrs. John P. Fisk, Miss Margaret Sanborn and Mrs. C. L. Curtiss of this city attended the Mt. Holyoke Alumnae Association luncheon, which was held in Los Angeles last week, Miss Fisk being a speaker.

Mrs. Louise Herold has just received one of the few letters that came across the continent in the recent transcontinental race. It was mailed in New York by her son, who is in the Division of Military Aeronautics, and was carried across by William Mitchell. Mr. Herold attempted to get in the race, but was needed in the East.

Suess, president of the southern district, was hostess at her home on Palm avenue, with a reception from 4 to 6. About 300 accepted the invitation. Miss Mildred Wheat during the afternoon gave a programme of piano music. The marriage of Miss Marie Stanton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Stanton, and Clarence Ralph was one of the interesting events of fall, because of the popularity of the young people. They were married on the anniversary of the wedding of her sister and Marvin Dudley. Both Mr. Ralph and Mr. Dudley served in the same company in France. They will make their home in this city.

The members of the junior class of the university had a hard-time party on Friday evening at the Log Cabin of the Nichewaug, and it was one of the most delightful affairs of the season, with some startling costumes.

The women of the Christian church entertained the boys of the Y.M.C.A. with a fine supper last night and a good talk was given by C. D. Eddy, the physical director of the San Bernardino association.

The banquet at the Nichewaug on Monday evening was one of the brilliant social affairs of the season. It was given by the directors and officers of the civic organizations of the city in order that people might plan the year's work.

WATTS.

Games, music and dancing occupied the evening, which concluded with the serving of light refreshments.

"Civics" was the topic discussed by Mrs. Elizabeth Elston of Covina at the last meeting of the W.C.T.U. Tuesday afternoon, which was attended by a larger number of members than usual. She told how the W.C.T.U. should co-operate with the P.-T.A. and the Chamber of Commerce in every community for the betterment of that community.

Miss Pearl Weimer, daughter of Mrs. Mary L. Weimer, 540 Defiance avenue and Casper M. Miller of Waterford, were united in marriage at a pretty home wedding on Wednesday evening, Rev. J. L. The bride was attractive in white Georgette crepe, carrying a shower bouquet of bridal roses and maidenhair fern. Frank Kimball was best man. White cosmos and dahlias were effectively combined with ferns in the floral decoration. Light refreshments were served to fifty guests, concluding the ceremony and felicitations. It was decided to hold a cooked-food sale in the Red Cross rooms last Tuesday, and to have Tom Thumb's wedding presented by the kindergarten grade at the November meeting.

Smith. Cosmos blooms made an attractive decoration for rooms and board, where covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Baker and Mr. and Mrs. Smith of Los Angeles. A Baby In Your Home Science Discovers Remarkable Tonic Influence for Sterility—a Subject of Absorbing Interest, Fully Explained to Every Childless Woman Who Will Send Her Name and Address.

One of the most remarkable results ever attained in the use of a medicinal product is the effect of Steriltone for the constitutional weaknesses that cause sterility or barrenness.

A Baby is the Most Wonderful, the Most Interesting of Life's Hopes and Ambitions.

It seems to most people almost incredible that this can be accomplished. A host of married couples yearn for children, but nature seems to have been strangely unfriendly. Travel, recreation, careful living, and medicinal treatment have all utterly failed heretofore, not only for sterility but for the constitutional conditions or weaknesses responsible.

But now comes Steriltone that exerts an influence so profound in its workings that the entire system seems lifted up, renewed and rejuvenated. The sense of health, of well-being, of strength is so pronounced that when there is no mechanical obstruction, sterility, due to such causes, may cease, and thus dull, uninteresting, perhaps unhappy homes may be transformed into wonderful palaces by the advent of babies.

This subject is so important, the results will mean so much to many women, that satisfaction in the use of Steriltone is fully guaranteed.

Every childless woman who would overcome the condition, should consider it her first duty to know what Steriltone is and why it should be so wonderful an aid to her. This is fully described in a little book sent free by sealed mail in a plain envelope.

Read this little book. Whether or not you ever decide to use Steriltone, this little book unfolds facts in nature which most women have never before had explained to them. Fill out the coupon below and mail it today to Dr. H. Will Elders, 1022 Wens Building, St. Joseph, Mo.

Mrs. Walter Dossett of the Lewis Apartment entertained Wednesday evening with a 6 o'clock dinner honoring her mother, Mrs. M. J. Dossett, who celebrated her birthday anniversary. Halloween appointments in black and orange added attractively to the evening. A bowl of orange-colored marigolds centered the dining table, which stood beneath a canopy of orange and black ribbons. Thurman, De Brunner, A. B. Cleveland, C. J. Booth, H. E. Walcott, Leo LeVoy and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Hathaway, press correspondent; Mrs. Justin Patterson, Mrs. A. R. Swanson and Mrs. Gilbert.

RIVERSIDE.

A luncheon party of novel appointments was enjoyed by the members of branch five of the Charity Tree, on Monday afternoon, when they were the guests of their president, Mrs. John T. Garner, of 1442 Lime street. The living-room and dining-room were tastefully decorated in the red and yellow leaves of autumn. In the center of the luncheon table stood a fruit-filled pumpkin basket, from which radiated tendrils of Virginia creeper, veined with autumn color. At each end of the table odd candlesticks, fashioned from huge golden-hued carrots, held the tapers that lighted the festal board. The members of the branch who enjoyed their president's hospitality included Mrs. Raymond, Mrs. J. F. Daniels, Mrs. A. M. Lewis, Mrs. E. S. Mickey, Mrs. H. E. Ross, Mrs. H. L. Thompson, Mrs. C. P. Hancock, Mrs. O. B. Ormiston, Mrs. C. Van Zwalenburg, Mrs. Frank Merrifield, Mrs. J. Herman, Mrs. C. O. Poore, Mrs. H. J. Webber, Mrs. J. H. Warren, Mrs. H E De Nyse, Mrs. J. A. Taylor, Mrs. E. B. Howe, Mrs. Gilliland, Mrs. Miguel Estudillo, Mrs. Urban Alguire and Mrs. H. G. Stanley.

Mrs. Clarence G. Decker, of 205 East Fifth street, opened her home, Tuesday, to the members of the Neighbors of Woodcraft Thimble Club. Luncheon was served at noon by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Eva Blannin.

Music lovers were afforded a rare treat on Tuesday evening, on the occasion of the Y.M.C.A.'s first fireside evening for the winter season. An informal programme of songs and piano numbers was provided under the direction of B. K. Keck and Miss Joy Keck, the performers including Miss Elma Marvin, Miss Amy Brown, Miss Marguerite Holland, Robert Bell and C. J. Carlson.

Knights of Columbus entertained with a dancing and card party at Eagles' Hall, Tuesday evening. A feature of the programme was a humorous skit by Joe Scott of Los Angeles, on "The Fine Points of Matrimony." Rev. Father O'Conner of St. Francis de Sales Church contributed two vocal numbers. Refreshments were served to nearly 200 guests.

Junior College freshmen, the faculty members and their wives were the guests, Saturday evening, of the members of the sophomore class, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Myine, on Hawarden drive. The home and gardens were striking in their decorations of grinning pumpkins, black cats, witches, corn stalks and cat-tails. Following a guessing contest, in which Miss

ANAHEIM.

The Halloween spirit has been in the air all of the week and the uppermost thought of the majority of the young people, as well as of many who are not so young in years, has seemed to center around spooks, hobgoblins and such things. On Friday evening the W. O. C. class of the Methodist Sunday-school gave a Halloween party at the home of Miss Janie Van Der Veer of East North street. Two amusing features of the evening was the gypsy fortune tellers, impersonated by Mrs. Edmiston, and the ghost walk, and the refreshments were also very appropriate to the occasion. GLENDALE.

On Thursday evening, at the home of the bride's parents on West Cypress street, occurred the marriage of Miss Laura Lillian Ellias, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Bertine Ellias, to Lieut. Edward Wheeler Davis of San Francisco, with Rev. Samuel A. Thomas, past district superintendent of the Southern California Methodist Episcopal conference, officiating. Carrying out a military motif, a decorative scheme of red, white and blue was used for the home, a silk flag forming the background before which the bride, lovely in a gown of white Georgette, and the groom, in uniform, were united. The bride was attended by Miss Gladys Bronson, who wore a pink satin gown and carried a bouquet of pink sweet peas. A prettily appointed supper was served immediately after the ceremony, the color scheme being further carried out in the place cards and favors. Mr. and Mrs. Davis will be at home in San Francisco, where Lieut. Davis is superintendent of an electric power station, after the first of November.

The senior hop, an affair given annually by the senior class of Glendale Union High School, took place on Friday evening at the Masonic Temple, which was prettily decorated with pennants and streamers of green and white, the class colors. About 180 students and alumni were present. Principal and Mrs. Moyse and Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Hayhurst acted as patrons and patronesses, and the grand march was led by Miss Leota Webster and Fred Jenkins, class president.

RIALTO.

One of the notable affairs of the week took place on Tuesday evening, when the Loyal Workers held their annual banquet at the Methodist Church parlors. The large social hall was beautifully decorated with blossoms of the season and greenery while Halloween colors formed a canopy overhead. The speaker of the evening, Rev. W. C. Dalton of the First Methodist Church, San Bernardino, and but recently from Topeka, Kansas, taking as his topic, "Vision," delivered a short address filled with inspiration. W. B. Ried gave an interesting account of Rialto's beginning as a Kansas colony and her progress and growth. Prof. A. E. Juckett's talk on "New Educational Methods" was very interesting and instructive as well. A genuine old-fashioned chicken-pie supper was served at charmingly-appointed tables arranged to form an open square and dressed in fragrant roses while autumn foliage trailed over the snowy cloth. Especially invited guests included Prof. and Mrs. E. A. Juckett, Miss Nancy McManis, Mrs. Ella Knouts, Miss April Newton, Miss Clara Hatch, Miss Elsie Angell, Miss Alice Reid, Miss Ruth Auxier, Miss Esther Almquist, Miss Cora Larsen. Those present numbered seventy-five.

On Saturday Mrs. C. G. Milligan, who is ever a particularly happy hostess, entertained out of compliment to Mrs. N. Harley of Los Angeles. The handsome interior of the Milligan home was only embellished with buttonhole chrysanthemums and cosmos forming harmonious background, while the very informality of the occasion added to the pleasure. Complete in all its appointments was the course luncheon enjoyed by Mrs. N. Harley, Mmes. George T. Nicholls, C. N. Johnson and house guest Miss Aigen; William Dunn, W. W. Dalgleish, W. A. Van Frank, C. A. Crosson, May Nealey, C. D. Weir, J. Knoblaugh, Harriet Roberts, L. E. Williamson, T. B. Oliver, C. H. Gurney, Kate Friend, Anna Leckley, Joseph Mort, T. H. Lackey, Miss Mary Knoblaugh and Mrs. C. G. Milligan.

On Sunday at 3 o'clock in the afternoon Miss Blanche Rosemont Brasher and William Oldenberg were quietly married at the E. D. Roberts ranch on North Riverside avenue. Rev. Samuel Kerr of the United Church of Rialto performed the ceremony, which was witnessed only by relatives and a few intimate friends.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Rider, son, H. L. Rider, and grandson, Lewis, motored up from Los Angeles for a week-end visit at the C. V. Roberts and the W. R. Lesh homes and on Monday morning journeyed on eastward, meeting two automobiles bringing from Kansas City expected relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Worley, Mr. and Mrs. Will Brown and Mrs. Rider's mother, Mrs. Worley, who although nearly 80 years of age has greatly enjoyed the overland trip to the Golden State.

FAMOUS OLD CUP IS SOLD.

The beautiful silver gilt cup and cover, originally belonging to Sir Francis Drake, the victor of the Armada, said to have been given to him by Queen Elizabeth, and which has lain for many years bricked up in a cellar in an old house in Cornwall, was sold at auction the other day for $19,000.

The cup, which is 20¼ inches high and which weighs about 2½ pounds, is in the form of a terrestrial globe, delicately engraved with a map of the world as known in the Sixteenth Century. On the British Isles are the names "Irlant," "Scotia," "Anglia." The land is gilt, and on the silver seas sailing ships, dolphins, and whales are engraved. The cover of the cup is surmounted by a vase chased with cherubs, grotesque masks, and fruits, forming a pedestal for an armillary sphere. The stem is finely chased with marine deities and supported on a circular base.—[Edinburgh Scotscan.

DIDN'T DISCOVER TOWN ALONE.

James Hennery McChesney Smith, age 7, walked in with an important air.

"Where have you been, James Hennery?" demanded his mother.

"Down town."

"Gee, maw, no," replied James Hennery, disgustedly. "There was a lot of other people there."—[Dallas News.

LLOYD GEORGE'S REWARD.

A country yokel dropped in at an English tavern and overheard some conversation which led him to remark to the landlord, "So this is St. George's day, is it?"

"Yes," said the landlord, "and every Englishman should know it."

"Well, I be English, but blowed if I knowed they'd made 'im a saint," cackled the old gaffer, raising his glass; "'ere's to you, David!"—[Boston Transcript.

DIAMOND AND PLATINUM JEWELS.

Platinum has ushered in a new Epoch in the Jeweler's Art. Because of its beauty, its permanent color, the toughness of its substance and its individualism, it rightly deserves to be the legitimate successor to the age long reign of gold.

The shortage of unusual pieces in jewels has never been so keenly felt as this year, and while our Fall display of these is larger than ever, we most earnestly urge an early selection.

Ever mindful of those seeking something more modest in price, we have added an exquisite line of diamond pieces with platinum fronts and 14-K green gold backs.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

A Voice That Sang to the Hearts of the World's Readers; Looking Into the Poet's Own Purposes.

BY LILLIAN C. FORD.

In the death of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, which occurred October 30 at Short Beach, Ct., a voice that sang its way into the hearts of the multitudes was stilled.

Despite the refusal of the critics to award her a place high among the poets, her audience was as wide as the world. Not only has edition after edition of her poems been published in this country and in England, but they have found eager and responsive audiences in many other lands through translations into different languages.

The universality of her appeal is the sure proof of her greatness. She struck the chord to which all hearts respond. Love, death, ambition, longing for the unattainable, devotion, friendship, forgiveness, aspiration—these are her themes, each of universal appeal, that struck an answering note in the heart of old and young, of high and low.

But it is her love poems that are the best known and the most cherished.

Years ago the author herself pointed out that of the 1200 poems she had then written, only between forty and fifty had for their theme the motive which has been denominated the grand passion—love.

Nevertheless, it is these poems that first made her known to the world and it is these that a large majority of readers call to mind when her name is mentioned.

Until that collection of ardent love poems called "Poems of Passion" was published the author had won only a small following. These poems had all appeared from time to time in various periodicals, but had received little attention from the critics. Then the ambitious author gathered them together and offered them to a well-known firm of Chicago publishers for publication in book form. Imagine the author's chagrin when the manuscript was returned with the intimation that the poems were immoral. At this time Miss Wheeler lived in Wisconsin. She told a friend in Milwaukee of the sad rebuff she had received at the hands of the highly moral Chicago firm. Of course the story was too good to keep, so it was passed on, eventually to be played up by a Milwaukee newspaper, with these startling headlines: "Too loud for Chicago. The scarlet city by the lake shocked by a Badger girl, whose verse out-Swinburne Swinburne and out-Whitman Whitman."

Other newspapers pounced upon the story. Whereupon another Chicago publisher saw his golden opportunity and arranged to bring out the work. Heralded as it had been, discussed, condemned, anathematised, gasped over—the stray poems eagerly sought in old magazines and newspapers—the book found an enthusiastic public ready for it. They bought the book in thousands and success far beyond the author's fondest dreams was hers.

In after years Mrs. Wilcox defended this much-criticised volume thus:

"By the word 'passion' I meant the 'grand passion' of love. To those who take exception to the title of the book I would suggest an early reference to Webster's definitions of the word.

"Since this volume has caused so much agitation throughout the entire country and even sent a tremor across the Atlantic to the Old World, I beg leave to make a few statements concerning the poems.

"The excitement of mingled horror and amaze seems to center upon four poems, namely, 'Deliah,' 'Ad Finem,' 'Conversion' and 'Communism.' 'Deliah' was written and first published in 1877. I had been reading history and became stirred by the power of such women as Aspasia and Cleopatra over such grand men as Antony, Socrates and Pericles. Under the influence of this feeling I dashed off 'Deliah,' which I intended to be an expression of the powerful facination of such women upon the memory of a man, even as he neared the hour of death. If the poem is immoral then the history which inspired it is immoral. I consider it my finest effort.

"'Ad Finem' was written in 1878. I think there are few women of strong character and affections who cannot, from either experience or observation, understand the violent intensity of regret and despair which sometimes takes possession of the human heart after the loss by death, fate or the forces of circumstances of some one very dear.

"In 'Ad Finem' I intended to give voice to this very common experience of almost every heart. Many noble women have since told me that the poem was true to life. It is not, as many people have wilfully or stupidly construed it, a bit of poetical advice to womankind to 'barter the joys of Paradise' for one kiss. It is simply an illustration of a moment of turbulent anguish and vehement despair, such moments of unreasoning and overwhelming sorrow as the most moral people may experience during a lifetime.

"In 'Communism' I endeavored to use a new simile in illustrating that somewhat hackneyed theme of the supremacy of love over reason; and simply to carry out my idea I represented the violent uprising of the Communist emotions against King Reason.

"'Conversion' was suggested to me by the remark of a gentleman friend. In speaking to me of the woman he loved, he said: 'I have always been a skeptic regarding the existence of heaven, but I am so much happier in my love for this woman than I ever supposed it possible for me to be on earth that I begin to believe that the tales of heavenly raptures may be true.'

"I embodied this idea in the poem, which has brought, with a few others, so much censure and criticism upon this volume, although it contains nearly seventy-five other selections quite irreproachable in character, however faulty they may be in construction."

Perhaps no more adequate explanation and defense of the inevitable changes in individual emotions and consequently in individual relations as the character develops and the intellect ripens has ever been made than in the stanzas entitled "Old and New." Mrs. Wilcox has never been rated as a dramatic poet; that is to say, as a versier able to look upon the world and the world's people with the detachment of an analytic and unimpassioned spectator of the drama of life, and to describe closely what she has thus seen.

But when the reviewer finds within the compass of one slight volume such widely differing poems as the firelly passionate "Ad Finem," with its burden of "Give-all, take-all and the proprieties be-hanged," and the sweetly reasonable "Old and New," it becomes necessary to credit the writer with a more universal outlook than has been popularly assigned her.

"On the white throat of the useless passion
That scorched my soul with burning breath
I clutched my fingers in murderous fashion,
And gathered them close in the grip of death;
For why should I fan or feed with fuel,
A love that showed me but black despair
So my hold was firm and my grasp was cruel—
I meant to strangle it then and there!"

From "Old and New" the last two stanzas showing the dramatic quality of the author are quoted:

"Give me new times bright with prosperous cheer,
In place of old tear-blotted burdened days;
I hold a sunlit present far more dear,
And worthy of my praise.
"When the old creeds are threadbare and worn through,
And all too narrow for the broadening soul,
Give me the fine, firm texture of the new,
Fair, beautiful and whole!"

In the preface to a later edition of an early work, Mrs. Wilcox repentantly refers to her "too prolific" pen." It is quite true that she published many verses which ought, in justice to her fame, to have been suppressed. She seems to have absolutely no critical sense, for some amazingly good work has been placed beside woefully inferior verse—stuff having neither metre nor metre-making quality.

A consideration of Mrs. Wheeler's life is illuminating, for it brings to light the hidden impulses and influences that inspired her work.

She was born in Johnstowne Center, Wisconsin, in 1855, her parents having moved there from Vermont a year before her birth. She was only one of a large family, the home life of which was marked by poverty, privation, discontent and disappointment. As a child of 8 she began to write verse and stories, completing a year later a novel of eleven chapters headed with original rhymes. Years after, the author still cherished this manuscript, "bound in paper taken from a loose panel on the kitchen wall." It is still extant, and some canny publisher, mindful of the success of "The Little Visiters," may bring it out of its hiding-place and present it to a curious world.

At the age of 13 we find this young author writing two "essays," both published in the New York Mercury. Thereupon she obtained a list of all the principal magazines and bombarded them with essays, stories and poems. Many were published, payment being made in subscriptions and articles from the various prize lists, which included all sorts of bric-abrac. The first money payment was $10 for two poems published in one of Frank Leslie's periodicals.

Thus encouraged, Miss Wheeler poured forth two and three poems a day, and with persistency had most of them accepted by one editor or another. In the words of the author: "I frequently sent out ten manuscripts in one post to have nine come back with drooping heads."

Her "heart wails," as she called most of her poems, soon became popular. But it was not until the publication of the "Poems of Passion" that real success was won. After that the way was clear.

Following her marriage in 1884, Mrs. Wilcox moved to the East. She took up journalistic work in New York with marked success, and was received everywhere as a literary celebrity. Her marriage was a very happy one, the authoress and her husband being inthorough sympathy. Upon the death of her husband in 1916, Mrs. Wilcox collapsed physically and mentally. A trip to Southern California did much to restore her health and she later went abroad for war work.

Mrs. Wilcox's best work from a purely critical standpoint is her latest volume of poetry, "Sonnets of Sorrow and Triumph."

In these we see the rich fruition of a mature mind. Emotion is still her theme, but is it not the theme of all great poetry? But in these sonnets and other poems we find a depth and sincerity of feeling, a ripeness of thought and perfection of expression that mark them as the harvest at the close of a full and vital life. They are surcharged with her poignant and lasting grief over the death of her husband and dearest friend, a loss from which she never recovered.

Those who have suffered the loss of one deeply and intimately beloved find the highest expression of noble grief in such poems as this:

"Oh, to wake once again with that old joy,
That consciousness of angels hovering near!
Oh, for a shaft of light that would destroy
This dark despondency, this nameless fear!
My radiant thoughts had never given form
Or substance to those two unbidden things;
Yet in that night of devastating storm,
Bat-like they come on black and brooding wings."

HOW SAYVILLE, L. I., GOT ITS NAME.

It is not generally known that the village of Sayville, L. I., seat of the world-famous Blue Points oysters industry and mecca for thousands of summer vacationists, owes its name to a clerical error. Yet that is a fact. If the clerk of the meeting some 83 years ago at which the name of the village was selected had known how to spell correctly, and if the proverbial red tape at Washington had not stood in the way of easy correction of the error. Sayville would now be called "Seville," after the Spanish city of that name.

The facts concerning this historical error are found in a brief history of Sayville written by the late John Wood and read by him at the centennial celebration in that village on July 4, 1876. Of the manner in which Sayville came to acquire a name, Mr. Wood wrote as follows:

"The former village (meaning the old village before the name was adopted) possessed a store and tavern in one, as was the custom in those days, and it became the headquarters for Eastern Islip, and the people of the neighborhood became ambitious to establish a village and to have a postoffice. But to do this they wanted a name for their prospective village.

"Accordingly, about the year 1836, a meeting of the inhabitants was duly called to consider the propriety of naming the village and petitioning the proper department to establish a postoffice. The meeting was held at the aforesaid store and tavern; the several names of Edwardsville, Greenville (after John Edwards and Willet Green, joint founders of the settlement) and Judea were canvassed, their respective merits duly discussed and ballots prepared; but then as now, with candidates for official honors, the friends of the favorite names were only just strong enough to defeat each other, and the name 'Seville', from the city of that name in Spain, had a majority on the count of the ballots. The secretary of the meeting blundered in his spelling and wrote the name 'Sayville,' and it was so forwarded to the Postoffice Department at Washington and adopted. Thus it is plain enough how our village came to be called Sayville, but why it should ever have been intended to have it Seville is past finding out."

Having in mind that Mr. Wood's historical sketch of Sayville was written in 1876, it is interesting to find another part of it dealing with our old familiar, the "High Cost of Living" and kindred matters for complaint. On this subject he wrote as follows:

"The compiler of this sketch (meaning himself) came to this village to reside in 1838 as a school teacher. His compensation at that time was $12 a month and board—'boarding around,' as was then the custom. Other wages were then in the same proportion, and many who complain of hard times and privations at the present day, can hardly realize the simplicity of fare and dress as it existed at that time.

"There were then but four dwellings on the main road between the schoolhouse and Green's brook. In one of these was the tavern, store and postoffice. There was no church edifice within the bounds of the school district, no Sabbath school nor any public cemetery or burial ground. Religious meetings, however, were held weekly in the schoolhouse. All the books in the district, aside from Bibles, hymn books and school books, could easily have been carried under one's arm. There was but one newspaper that came to the postoffice and that a single copy of the Republican Watchman, then published at Sag Harbor. Letters came but seldom, and frequently the entire South Side mail would be overhauled without finding a single letter for Sayville."—[Brooklyn Eagle.

All of the buildings and recreational equipage of the Knights of Columbus in Nome, Alaska, have been turned over to 1000 Indian children whose parents were victims of the influenza epidemic. A recent survey was made by the Knights to ascertain how many army posts would be operative during the winter months in the frigid country.

"At Nome it was found that the soldiers at Fort Davis," said William P. Larkin, Overseas Director, last night, "had been taken out for the winter months. Our representatives found hundreds of small boys and girls without fathers and mothers in crowded homes. Without any further negotiations they turned over several of the buildings at Fort Davis, used by the soldiers, a large quantity of supplies including mittens and mufflers and war coverings and accommodated 1000 of the poor little kiddies."

Putting a roof on a poor widow's house and furnishing her with coal for the winter, was reported by Brookfield Center (Ct.) boy scouts as their "good turns."

Each Milwaukee troop of scouts will take care of those sidewalks in the troop's vicinity that face empty lots. In many cases the walks are not cleaned during the winter months. During the summer months the scouts may see that no rubbish is allowed to accumulate in the vacant lots.

As an instance of this colossal work of mercy, THE MODERN HOSPITAL reports that drugs, clothing, foodstuffs and miscellaneous supplies valued at $5,254,349 have been shipped to Siberia by the American Red Cross during the last nine months and have been distributed over an area of 4000 miles abutting the Trans-Siberian railway.

Every ten days a Red Cross supply train of twenty-six cars loaded with medicines, surgical dressings, foodstuffs and refugee garments leaves Vladivostok to administer to the relief of the needy civilian population and to restock the nine hospitals operated by the Red Cross in Siberia. These hospitals, several of which are used exclusively in caring for wounded Allied and Russian soldiers, have a total bed capacity of 4000. EDUCATIONAL.

Low wages in the teaching profession and high wages in other professions have resulted in a nation-wide shortage of public school teachers. According to a survey completed by the National Education Association and covering the entire country, it would take about 38,000 more men and women to bring the teaching staffs to their normal size. The shortage of teachers has been so acute that cities and towns have been forced to relax the customary requirements and today there are in this country 65,000 teachers who have neither the ability nor the training hitherto demanded of those to whom the education of our pupils is intrusted.—[Boston Transcript.

Members of the Vassar faculty, on returning to the college to resume their duties, noted that among the interesting developments of the summer was action by the trustees in the direction of increased pay for all members of the teaching staff. This latest advance is one of a series and means that since 1917 faculty salaries have been increased as much as 50 per cent. in the lower grades and 12½ per cent. in the highest grades.

Donaldson Ryder, who received the degree of bachelor of science in agriculture from the University of Arizona last June, has obtained a position at State College, New Mexico, where he has charge of the experimental work in agronomy under Prof. Stewart.

Personal letters from President A. Lawrence Lowell and President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot, and embodying a plea for a fair living wage for the teaching staff and an appeal for a material manifestation of a "devotion to the higher education and the American kind of democracy" have been sent out by the Greater Boston committee of the Harvard Endowment Fund to Harvard men throughout the world.

Further strengthening of the Boston Institute of Technology's department of naval architecture has been accomplished by the appointment to the faculty of James R. Jack, manager since 1900 of the extensive shipbuilding yards of the Denny Brothers at Dumbarton on the Clyde. Mr. Jack is a graduate of Glasgow University, where he specialized in the courses in naval design.

The United States pays its ditch diggers more than its college instructors and its mechanics and trainmen more than its professors, Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University, declares in a statement issued in support of a campaign for an additional $5,000,000 endowment to increase the salaries of Cornell's teachers.

The number of students at Amherst this year shows a material gain over the number in college last year. According to the figures up to September 29, there are between 465 and 470 new registered. The increase is largely due to the fact that many men who entered in the classes of 1918 and 1919 and who were called into service returned to complete their college course. The freshman class this year is also larger than last year in spite of the fact that the establishment of the S.A.T.C. last year attracted many who would not otherwise have entered. Of the 140 students in this class 118 have been pledged to join some one of the twelve national fraternities which have chapters at Amherst.

The class of 1923 at the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, the ninety-ninth entering class, numbers approximately 300 new engineering and chemistry students, the largest in the history of the college.

LIVING IN A BATHTUB.

"Water Cure" Patient May Spend Weeks in Submerged Hammock.

A fortnight in a bath! Night and day, sleeping and waking. Most people think five minutes a long time, or, in the sea, ten or fifteen minutes.

In England there are about twenty baths fitted up so that they can be really lived in, and quite comfortable the patients find them. The flow of water into the bath and the waste are regulated so that the temperature remains the same at all times. The patient rests on a sort of hammock hanging under water, and, with the exception of head and arms, is entirely immersed. A comfortable pillow is provided for the head, and a board across the bath forms a table for the tray for meals or on which to rest a book while reading, rather similar to what is used for patients in an ordinary bed.

The entire bath is covered over with a quilt, so that to outward appearances the bath might be just a bed and nothing more.

Sometimes the water is ordinary tapwater, and others it has various things added to it, so that the patient is immersed in a special solution. It depends on what treatment is required as to what the doctor adds to the water.

The water treatment has been found most successful in the treatment of severe cases of burning, and it was used abroad long before the war. Some patients need to remain in the bath only two or three days, while others have to remain as many weeks.—[London Answers.

Word "Liberty" is Registered.

For the first time in its history the government of the United States has registered a trade-mark under its own patent office laws. The word so distinguished is the familiar "Liberty" applied to airplane engines and parts. In connection with this unusual action it will be recalled that the engine was known as the "United States standard aircraft engine" back in the experimental days of 1917.

Workers in the Bureau of Aircraft Production, then the equipment division of the Signal Corps, were human, however, and so cast about for a nickname. "Liberty" was happily the word suggested, and adopted by general consent. But the name was later applied to a dozen different articles, including soft drinks and Hamburger steaks, as well as commercial airplane commodities, with the result that the government has been forced to take this action to prevent confusion.—[Popular Mechanics.

Third Degree Required.

"She took M. A. and he took B. A."

"And so they are married now."

"Yes, and now he will have to be a doctor of philosophy to bear the burden."—[Boston Transcript.

RETURNED SOLDIER MISSES SOMETHING.

The returning soldier, restless in his former occupation or work that resembles it, is a familiar phenomenon.

Said a young Philadelphian, who went from Hog Island to France and is now applying his engineering training in the manufacturing field in another city:

"I am working at last.

"My job is with a small concern manufacturing weaving machinery. We have only 600 employees and you have no conception of how slow, uninteresting and (I was going to say) futile it seems after the terrific rush we had at Hog Island and then after that in the army.

"When I write a man that the best delivery we can offer him on our goods is next August I smile at the thought of what we would say at the Island or at some base in France. 'August, hell!' it would be. 'I've got to have them tomorrow!' And tomorrow it would be, too.

"Still, I am getting a little fun now, for we are to install a [illegible] of new machinery which I have to lay for a three months' delivery, while the best promises I am getting are seven months. Besides that, I have got to get the things here and get them running. That is what I call fun.

"But when evening comes, with no big crowd of young fellows to hang around with; when I have to sit in chairs instead of sprawling over another man's bunk; when I have to be dragged to social occasions infested with girls—well, then there are certain phases of army life that I yearn for."—[Philadelphia Ledger.

AROUND THE MUSIC WORLD.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

According to his present plans, Charles Wakefield Cadman will probably spend the entire winter in Southern California. You see, the point is that Mr. Cadman is soon to be buried under reams and reams of music paper, for he has been engaged to compose an original score for the production of the Cathrine Curtis Film Producing Company. And this is an altogether new thing for the composer of songs, sonatas and the opera, "Shanewis."

Mr. Cadman expects to receive the scenario of the photoplay this week, and has been allowed three months in which to complete the score. And that's little enough for anybody to turn out a musical accompaniment for a six-reel picture, considering how long it usually takes for a grand opera to materialize. But there have been composers in the past, like Rossini, I believe it was, who wrote an opera in a week or two, and it is their example that the cinema composer seems to have to emulate.

Three-fourths of the photoplay story on which Cadman is to work is to be Indian in subject matter. And he's right at home with the Indianesque mood—for there is no composer in the country that has made any closer study of tribal melodies, or succeeded so well in utilizing them in idealizations.

The story of the Indian photoplay was written by Edward S. Curtis, who is also the master photographer of the production. Mr. Curtis is well known as an illustrator, some of his most notable art work having been done for "The Flute of the Gods," by Marah Ellis Ryan. The company which is producing the play is now in Idaho, where they went to seek proper atmosphere for the story. Mr. Cadman does not believe it will be necessary to visit the northern State, as he carries a good supply of the Indian atmosphere with him at all times, having absorbed it during many long visits to reservations and former habitats of the red men.

The composer will make one flying trip East, probably in December, to be present at the opening performance of the two American operas in Minneapolis, Mr. Cadman's "Shanewis" and Joseph Carl Breil's "Legend" are the companion operas which the company will produce on tour. Last year these operas were on the bill at the Metropolitan, with John Adams Hugo's "Temple Dancer." "Shanewis" is the only American opera which has had two successful seasons at the Metropolitan. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., among others, is interested in the presentation of the American works throughout the country. Following the start of the tour in Minneapolis, they will be played in the Northwest and then along the Coast.

Revives Unusual Work.

Not the least notable achievement of Arthur Bodanzky at the opening concert of the New Symphony Orchestra in New York was the revival of Charles Martin Loeffler's "Pagan Poem," which is among the most original of efforts by a composer residing in this country. The "Pagan Poem" was given its original presentation some twelve or fifteen years ago in New York, and has seldom been heard since that time.

Loeffler might be described as a musical Poe. He has written a great many difficult and beautifuly harmonized songs on verses of that poet, and also of Verlaine and modern French poets. Perhaps no one has succeeded so well in bringing out in music the spirit of such poems as "To Helen." For many years Loeffler has gone practically unrecognized on concert programmes. Whether it is the daring of his methods that bars him, or the difficulty of successfully presenting his works, which nowadays should not prove a serious deterrent factor, is difficult to fathom; but certainly he deserves to be heard for his conception of the moods of an American writer, who, like himself, has never been fully understood or recognized.

One of Loeffler's most successful orchestral numbers was "The Death of Tintagiles," founded on the Maeterlinck play. In this composition he introduced a distinct novelty in two violas d'amour, an instrument of ancient origin with a double set of strings. The second set vibrates sympathetically with the fundamental tones played on the first set.

More of Ancient Instruments.

Speaking of violas d'amour, reminds me that George Schoenefeld is anxiously awaiting the arrival of his viola da gamba from France, necessary for the formation of his proposed society of ancient instruments.

Mr. Schoenefeld is the son of Henry Schoenefeld, director of the Woman's Symphony Orchestra, and during the time he was in the service in France, became very much interested in the organization of such a society here. Since he has returned he has been devoting his time and attention to the harpsichord, of which he has made an especial study. He has appeared in recital using this instrument a number of times in the past. While in Paris he secured a viola da gamba, and is having it shipped to this country. When it arrives he will take steps to form the proposed society.

Carl Kuehne.
Eastern musician, who is now first clarinettist of Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra.

MUSICAL.

THE CHORAL CLUB.

WOMAN'S LYRIC PLANS FOR AMBITIOUS SEASON.

Conventional shackles are to be demolished this year by the local choral clubs, according to present indications. While the Ellis and Orpheus clubs have not yet announced their plans in full, it is evident in the proposed season of the Lyric Club, the woman's chorus of this city, that every effort is being bent toward keeping on an equal footing with the musical progress. No musical year has ever started under a brighter star of auspiciousness, and all local organizations feel the urge to do greater things.

Among the innovations in the executive scheme of the Lyric Club is that of special associate memberships. A campaign has been started to secure a large support to enable the club successfully to carry out their plan for bringing noted artists as guest soloists, and to cover the expenditures on new music. It is the club's idea to present nothing they have previously given.

This is the sixteenth year of the Woman's Lyric. Their opening concert will be given November 14 at Trinity Auditorium, under the direction of J. B. Poulin.

The programme announced is as follows: "God in Nature (Franz Schubert;) "In the Engle-nook" (George Nevin;) "The Three Cavaliers" (Kurt Schindler,) with Miss Annice Howell as soloist; (a) "To the Spirit of Music" (Percy Rector Stephens;) (b) "Pages Road Song" (Harold Osborn Smith;) (c) "When I Walk in the Garden" (Robert Schumann;) solo trio: "Ashes of Roses" (Rossefer Cole;) "Sonnet" (Edward Horsman;) "The Nightingale and the Rose" (Henry Hadley,) with Helen Brown-Reed, Jay Plowe and Robert Alter as soloists.

The club now has headquarters in the Trinity Building. Mrs. Walter Goodfellow is president; Mrs. Lloyd Harmon, vice-president; Mrs. Walter Boyd, secretary; M. Louise Wharton, financial secretary, and Mrs. Edith Wing Hughes, treasurer.

Directors this year are Mrs. Grace Carroll Elliot, Mrs. M. H. Whittier, Mrs. A. R. Condit and Mrs. William Tanner. Librarians are Mrs. Stickney and Miss Meuser.

Mrs. Goodfellow has named the following chairmen of committees: Mrs. Hughes, Press; Miss Howell, Hospitality; Mrs. Merrick, Associate Membership; Mrs. Elliot, Music Committee; Mrs. Frank Collier, Voice Committee; Miss Willie Brown, Printing Committee.

Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson will act as club accompanist.

FIRST POPULAR CONCERT TODAY.

The first of the series of fourteen popular concerts by the Philharmonic Orchestra will take place this afternoon at Trinity Auditorium, the hour being at 3 o'clock. While the programmes and prices for this series will be essentially popular, the personnel of the orchestra will not be curtailed in any degree, and Mr. Rothwell will conduct. He has made an especial study of popular programme building and the first offering proves his knowledge and taste.

The concert will open with the "Pomp and Circumstance" march by Elgar, written for the coronation of Edward VII. Elgar is one of the best-known composers, and while he was knighted in 1904, he started his career as a bandmaster at a public institution, the members of the band being attendants.

The ballet music from the "Cid," by Massenet, is also on the programme. The string section of the Philharmonic will be given opportunity in the Andante Cantabile (Tschaikowsky) based upon a folk song sung by a plasterer who was at work on Tschaikowsky's house. The prelude to "Lohengrin," third act; the Adagio Pathetique (Godard,) and a repetition of the "Oberon" overture complete the instrumental offerings.

Marie Tiffany, soprano from the Metropolitan, will be soloist. She is returning to Los Angeles after an absence of three years. She has chosen the lovely soprano aria from the "Marriage of Figaro" (Mozart) and the Liszt, "Quand je Dors," for her share of the programme.

SYMPHONY PAIR THIS WEEK ALSO.

The next symphonic pair by the Philharmonic will be Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, at Trinity Auditorium.

Clarence Whitehill, baritone from the Metropolitan, is to be soloist. He has chosen the "Credo" from "Otello" (Verdi;) and an aria from "La Jolie Fille de Perth" (Bizet.) The symphony will be Beethoven's C minor, and the overture, from "Marriage of Figaro" (Mozart,) Capriccio Italien (Tschaikowsky) and the Rakoczy March from "The Damnation of Faust" (Berlioz) completes the programme.

Although Whitehill's career has been essentially in opera and oratorio, he will be remembered with much pleasure by those who heard him here some years ago with the Chicago Opera. He appeared in some of his greatest roles. He will be the first of the nationally famous soloists with the Philharmonic, the others to be Helen Stanley, soprano; Albert Spalding, violinist; Leo Ornstein and Rudolph Ganz, pianists, and Sophie Braslau, contralto from the Metropolitan.

LOS ANGELES SYMPHONY BUSY.

Daily rehearsals are bringing the most satisfactory results for the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, which opens its season November 21 at Clune's Auditorium. Adolf Tandler, who is in his sixth consecutive year as director of the orchestra, is conducting the rehearsals, and the eastern musicians brought here, who form the heads of the different sections, anticipate a tremendous success at the first concert. Alexander Saslovsky, formerly concertmaster of the New York Symphony, and who occupies the same post with the local orchestra, is to be the soloist at the first concert.

Mr. Saslavsky has also become interested in chamber music in this city, and has formed a trio with May McDonald Hope, pianiste, and Axel Simonsen, leader of the 'cello section of the orchestra, which will make its first appearance for the Valley Hunt Club of Pasadena the evening of December 11. The trio is also to give a series of eight concerts here.

Beside his work with the New York Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Saslavsky has devoted his summers to the presentation of chamber music.

Announcement is made by the Symphony Orchestra that Jaime Overton, assistant concertmaster, who has played in leading cities in America and abroad in concert, is also to be a soloist with the orchestra during the season. Mr. Overton has been enjoyed in recital in Los Angeles, but has not been heard here for several years.

An interesting novelty of the programme, to be presented on the 21st inst., is the "Pioneers" overture by Rossetter G. Cole. It was written to celebrate the centennial of the Statehood of Illinois last year, and is dedicated to that greatest of pioneers, Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Cole is one of the leading musicians of the country. He has written about seventy-five works, and this overture is said to be one of the most attractive. It received a great deal of praise on its performance by the Chicago orchestra.

"Fireworks" by Stravinsky is another novelty of the programme that was heard here under Emil Oberhoffer's baton a few seasons ago. It is decidedly futuristic in tendency, and most strikingly represents what is suggested by its title.

Second Zoellner Concert.

The Zoellner Quartette, who opened their series of ten chamber music evenings at the Ebell Club on last Tuesday, have announced their programme for next Tuesday. Two of the principal numbers will be Quartette Opus 76, No. 4, by Haydn, and Sinding's Serenade, Opus 92, for two violins and piano, the 'cellist, Joseph Zoellner, Jr., being at the piano. This Serenade by Sinding, the Zoellners introduced as a "first performance" work to a New York audience, also had that privilege in Brussels, Belgium and Paris.

Smallman in Pasadena.

John Smallman, baritone, with Mrs. Holbert Thomas at the piano, gave the programme at the annual "Reciprocity" meeting of the Shakesphere Club at Pasadena, last week. Mr. Smallman sang Giordani's "Caro Mio Ben," and "Se Tu M'Ami," by Pergolesi for his first group. Five miniature ballads by Hurlstone and two negro spirituals by Guion and Reddick afforded variety, and the programme was closed with Ward Stephens's "Christ in Flanders."

Mr. Smallman will appear before the Visalia Club and the Wednesday Afternoon Club of Alhambra during the coming month. A number of engagements with Charles Wakefield Cadman are listed for November.

Cadman at Cumnock.

A verbal, instrumental and vocal interpretation of American Indian music will be a feature of the recital by Charles Wakefield Cadman, composer, and Princess Tsianina, Indian mezzo-soprano, next Wednesday morning, at Cumnock School, 200 South Vermont avenue. The Cadman recital will be the second in a series arranged for the school this season.

The princess has consented to give also a demonstration of involved rhythm of Indian songs, employing native rattles and drums. The programme at Cumnock will include songs harmonized and idealized, as well as some piano numbers based on Indian tunes, as well as both vocal and instrumental selections from Cadman's "Shanewis."

Whybark Pupils Heard.

Pupils of Joseph Nevlin Whybark gave a recital at the Walker Auditerium last Thursday evening, the programme consisting of both secular and sacred songs. Appearing were: Miss Gladys Hardman, Mrs. Laura Grunell, Miss Margaret Heckman, Miss Adeline Disparte, Mr. Charles Bahnmiller, Mr. George McDougal, Mrs. Emily Haynes, Mr. Bernard Brennan, Mrs. Charles T. Rathke, Miss Florence Holden, Mrs. Bertha Gernhardt, Miss Gladys Shepard, Mr. Harry Trehearne and Miss Nellie Vaughn Whybark at the piano. Mr. Whybark states that in his next monthly recital he will have a chorus of fifty children in nature songs.

Piano Pupils' Recital.

A piano programme was presented by pupils of Miss Edith Miller last Saturday afternoon, at her residence, 1503 South Van Ness avenue. The following were heard on the programme: Lucille Campbell, Marguerite Reiss, Audrae Keough, Bernice Foley, Audren Jones, Louis Strawser, Myrna Field, Gerald Kelly, Marguerite Featheringale. Miss Oahlee Genevieve Hubbard assisted in dramatic readings.

Clarence Whitehill,
Metropolitan Opera baritone, who will be soloist at Philharmonic symphony concerts Friday afternoon and Saturday evening.

School of Arts Opening.

A very enjoyable musical event of the past week was the opening concert of the California School of Arts, Thursday evening. The programme was presented by members of the faculty, and musical numbers were followed by a special entertainment by pupils of Signor Giovanni Vittoria Rosi, director of the dancing department. Following is the programme:

(a) "Floods of Spring"..........Rachmaninoff
(b) "In Summer Fields"..........Brahms
(c) "Elli! Elli!"..........Traditional Yiddish melody
Ellis Rhodes.
Air ....Goldmark
Josef Rosenfeld.
Cantillation..........."Miantowona"
Poem by Thomas Bailey Aldrich,
Music by John Mokrejs.
Kelso Murdoch, and Margery Morrison at the piano.
"Stephanie" Gavotte.
Danced by Miss Margaret Gallimore.
"Sylvia" Pizzicato..........Delibes
Danced by Miss Gladys Conrad.

Vocal Instructor Here.

Mrs. Mable Stanaway Briggs, a graduate of the New England Conservatory in Boston, and for fifteen years a member of the faculty of the institution, announces she will locate in Los Angeles. Her method is characterized by its striving toward cultivation of natural resources. She regards Los Angeles as an excellent field for teaching, in view of recent musical development here.

Engel as Litterateur.

S. Camillo Engel, local instructor in voice, has had considerable success in his literary efforts recently. Just recently an article by Mr. Engel on "The Mission of the Singer" was accepted by the Musical Quarterly published by G. Schirmer. This is one of the foremost reviews of the higher phases of music.

Tschaikowsky Programme.

Tschaikowsky music will be treated in the programme at the repertoire recital of Miss Margaret Goetz, Tuesday evening, at her residence studio, on the corner of Seventh and Beacon streets. This is the third event of the series. A feature of the programme will be the talk given by Dr. Alexis Kall on Russian music.

Orchestra for Church.

Arrangements are being made by Walter H. Potter, to form a church orchestra at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, as soon as that institution is moved to its new location. It is hoped to secure a membership of 100. Concerts are planned at frequent intervals, the ensemble to be assisted by Homer Simmons, pianist, and soloists.

Second Petchnikoff Recital.

The second recital by Mmes. Lili Petchnikoff, violinist, and Cornelia Rider-Possart, pianiste, will be tomorrow morning at 3210 Highland avenue. The programme will be repeated tomorrow night. The following numbers will be played by the musicians: Sonata in A Major, by Cesar Franck, for violin and piano; Impromtu in B flat Major by Schubert, Rigaudon by Raff for pianoforte; Canzonetta, Tschaikowsky, Etude by De Beriot, and Dance No. 5 by Brahms for violin. The initial programme was so successful that Mmes. Petchnikoff and Rider-Possart decided to give their remaining concerts in pairs.

Symphony Interpretation.

Gertrude Ross is conducting a series of lecture recitals on symphony programmes, immediately preceding Philharmonic symphony concerts. She has given them the name of "Classes on How to Listen to Music, in Appreciation of the Next Philharmonic Programme." Her next recital will be Tuesday morning at her residence-studio on the corner of Tenth and Alvarado.

Musical Demonstration.

A musical programme and a demonstration of theory and harmony problems, as well as ear-training exercises, was given under the auspices of the Rector Institute at the Woman's Club of Hollywood last Wednesday evening. Hugo Kirchhoffer, formerly of Hollywood High School, was heard in a short talk in explanation of the subjects demonstrated.

COMPOSES MUSIC SETTING.

Arrangements are being made for the presentation of a poem with musical setting, composed by Mrs. Doria Lyndall by the Norma Gould School of Dancing. Mrs. Lyndall is the mother of one of the pupils of the school, and her daughter, Dorothy Lyndall, and Doris Carl, Bertha Wardell and Gertrude Cope have worked out the expression. Special attention is being paid to musical events by the students of the school this year in order that they may utilize the knowledge thus gained in their own original work. Mrs. Lyndall arranged her musical setting to a poem by Vachell Lindsay.

SHAKESPEAREAN EXCERPTS.

The Wallis School of Dramatic Art is devoting much attention to classical drama. Shakespeare's "Mid-Summer Night's Dream" has been arranged in three acts for presentation by the three classes of the children's depatment. "Macbeth" is being prepared in three scenes in duo-drama form, one man taking the male characters and one the female; the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" has been arranged to go into the third act of Henry Arthur Jones's two-act comedy, "The Deacon," while the famous quarrel scene of the third act of Schiller's "Mary Stuart" affords plenty of work for the advanced or classical grades of the school. Additional comedies and dramas being undertaken by other classes of the school include "House or Home" and "All for a Million."

Small Matter.

"There must be an important piece of legislation under way," remarked a gentleman in the visitors' gallery.

"Why do you think so?" asked his guide.

"I notice a statesman down there on the floor of the House shaking his mane, bellowing at the top of his voice and waving his arms like a windmill. A man seldom gets worked up like that over trifles."

"I'm afraid you don't know a stateman when you see one, sir. That's the Hon. Jeremiah Piffle. He's asking an appropriation of $500,000 to make Horse Creek, Ala., navigable for canoes the year round."—[Birmingham Age-Herald.

PIERRE KEY'S Music Article

BY PIERRE V. R. KEY.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Music is generally conceded to soothe the savage beast, but there are occasions when it exerts the opposite effect. Setting aside from the consideration the feelings of New York people at large, the music patrons are now engaged in rather warm discussions as to the wisdom of the Star Opera Company's act in reintroducing in this city German opera sung in the German language. We are not likely soon to forget what happened in and outside the Lexington Theater when excerpts from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger" were given, and the programme concluded with a presentation of the unfamiliar "Ein Nachtlager in Granada" (A Night in Granada,) by Conrad Kreutzer. That public opinion seems to have been opposed to such a performance prior to the signing of the peace treaty is an indisputable fact. Mayor Hylan ruled against issuing a permit, after a three-hour hearing, in which an American Legion petition signed by 23,000 citizens was offered in protest. It was less than an hour before the scheduled time for the curtain's rise that the Mayor reversed his earlier ruling. Unable to locate the corporation counsel, from whom he wished legal support for his action, the Mayor veered from "no" to "yes;" whereupon there was excitement, attended by acts of violence in the section adjacent to the theater which the city will not soon forget.

The principal theme of discussion concerns the wisdom of the Star Company's management in proceeding with an enterprise in the face of such widespread disapproval. And it is the feeling that, regardless of consequences, the cause has not been helped. Many music patrons who admit frankly their wish to again hear German operatic music express with equal frankness their regret that its reintroduction was effected under the conditions attending it. The audience which packed the Lexington Theater, however, was openly jubilant—even to the point of enthusiasm for a performance inferior from many points of view.

The critics and unbiased music connoisseurs who were present are almost unanimous that the artistic standard was ordinary in the extreme. And one expert voiced the opinion of not a few in the words: "I doubt if we realized until tonight how much explosive singing we have heard in German opera performances at the Metropolitan."

From a vocal standpoint the speaker was right. For there was little in the efforts of Carl Braun, Margaret Ober, Hermann Weil and other former Metropolitan principals to soothe the ear. As for the orchestra, the chorus and the conducting of Theodore Spiering and Louis Koemmenich—it all combined to confirm the majority critical consensus of common-place achievement.

How much, I sometimes wonder, does individual success owe to personality. An attribute—where public appearances are in order—which cannot be too lightly regarded. Very often it is responsible for a "break in the luck." You look upon a comely face and figure, and lo! it pleases you. Straightway singing or playing that is not of the ultimate takes on unsuspected graces. Fortunate are those thus endowed, among them and to-wit, Thelma Given.

An Ohioan is Miss Given, from Columbus, and a violinist. Not yet a Paganini or Joachim; nor quite an approach to those moderns of household-word fame, Heifetz, Kreisler and Ysaye. But another creditable product of the prolific pedagogue Auer, who is beginning her second year of public playing before her own country people. She must have felt encouraged after her recent Carnegie Hall recital, despite the smallness of the audience, because she was given the sincere sort of applause an artist most likes. Incidentally the critics wrote approvingly of the tall and slender fiddler.

There was a time when Leo Ornstein's piano playing was nearly as disturbing to the nervous system as his musically-jumbled-up "Wild Man's Dance." Spasmodic playing which impressed some as fingers going their own fantastic ways without much directing. How different a pianist these days is Mr. Ornstein. He still shuffles across the stage to the keyboard, but once seated and playing he compels interest.

He is an emotional player, and tempestuous enough in dramatic moments for the ultra-dramatic. During the last few years, however, he has learned the value of gradual changes from quiet phrases to loud ones, and how grateful to the listener is the cultivation of poise. His audience—larger now than in previous years—prefer his playing to his composing. They indicated this at his recital, when he offered several numbers sufficiently complicated harmonically to confuse the average sense of hearing. Neither his auditors nor the critics accepted them with favor.

A maturer pianist and an artist bigger in all respects is Serge Rachmaninoff, now well on the road to replenish part of the world estate lost to him through Russia's mad ways. There is a tragic touch in the appearance of this distinguished musician. No doubt pictures of what befell him before he was able to leave his native land rise often before his mind's eye. Perhaps time may temper the suffering which must have seized his sensitive soul.

He seemed, at his opening New York recital, to respond more readily to the enthusiasm of a vast Carnegie Hall assemblage than he did a year ago. Once I caught in his stern features a smile. I question, if we did not know, whether in looking at him our fancy would connect him with the famous C sharp minor prelude. Yet he achieved amazing popularity years ago through writing this pianoforte piece. Nowadays he composes in a larger vein. And so absorbed is he in the creative field that he declined the leadership of one of our great symphony orchestras. This season Rachmaninoff is playing with greater finesse, with less abrupt contrasts in power and lightness of tone that he did in 1918.

The knack of pleasing all grades of musically inclined persons certainly belongs to Louis Graveure. A baritone who is the envy of most other baritones because he impresses, also, the critics. This season he is starting out in the same old way, with the same ingratiating assurance—commanding admiration and applause. Benefited by a summer of rest, Mr. Graveure's voice has regained the richness which had become dimmed last spring.

Fifty years in music, and still going strong—that's Nahan Franko. You would scarcely believe, to look at him, that he had traversed so lengthy a road; for the spirit and vigor of youth still remain. Nevertheless he made his debut back in 1869, at the age of 7, playing the violin in Steinway Hall. Franko has had a spectacular career; few living musicians can boast of so extensive and intimate an association with the great musical artists of the last half century.

It was fitting that a concert should be given to celebrate Nahan Franko's golden jubilee. The Hippodrome was comfortably filled by admirers, who included many of the city's notables in music. Not in the recollection of the oldest inhabitant has such an array of conducting talent been corralled for a concert. Fancy Artur Bodanzky of the Metropolitan Operahouse and the New Symphony; Leopold Stokowski, the Philadelphia Orchestra's leader; Henry Hadley, American composer, and the Philharmonic's Josef Stransky forswearing prima donna prerogatives for the sake of a fellow-musician. Yes, and Victor Herbert conducted, too.

Toward the close of the evening Raymond Hitchcock said some complimentary words about the happy Franko. Shortly afterward a young Philadelphia pianist named Israel Vichmin played. He also was happy, for the man whose career lies mainly behind him and had recognized a younger talent by arranging to give it financial aid.

The annual avalanche of singing aspirants is with us again. Never before, however, in such amazing number or bringing with them so much cold cash. The brigade of "charlatan teachers" is smiling in anticipation of the shearing—which is on the way. There seems no one more susceptible to false encouragement than the young person with a singing voice and professional ambitions. Just at present most of them are alone in a great city, with only faint ideas of which direction to go.

The Sabbath may be a day of rest, but it seems also one on which people yield to a desire for music. The first of Arnold Volpe's popular orchestra concerts found a large gathering in the Hippodrome at which Sascha Jacobson, who sprang suddenly into a conspicuous position last year, played brilliantly the Bruch G minor violin concerto. Amparita Farrar—who is not related to the more celebrated Geraldine—sang the "Faust" jewel song well enough to surprise some of us—who had not anticipated so creditable an achievement.

Woman's effort and influence has nowhere been utilized to a more constructive end than in music. America's vast growth in its appreciation of fine composers and artists is largely a record of feminine cooperation. Now come the 200 clubs forming the National Federation of Music Clubs, and having a 200,000 membership, with a further move to swing music to a higher popular niche. The plan is still a secret. But very soon a meeting is to be held in the Akron, O., home of the federation, president, Mrs. Frank A. Seiberling. Vice-presidents Mmes. William A. Hinckle, Frederick W. Abbott and Mrs. George Houston Davis, Mrs. David A. Campbell of the Executive Committee, and the fourteen "district" federation presidents will attend the conference. Millions of Amrican people, we are in a position to announce, will benefit by the outcome.

WATERSPOUTS SEEN OFF WAIKIKI BEACH.

Three waterspouts formed off Waikiki Beach late one afternoon and presented a marine phenomenon which brought hundreds of persons to the shores.

The Mikahala was passing out at the time, the spouts approaching the vessel but passing considerably beyond it.

The first spout rose to a lofty column and sped over the surface and was followed by a second one. Just as a third arose from the sea the first disappeared and the second and third continued in motion for some time.

This was the third of a series of phenomena witnessed during the day.

SKY OBSCURED BY HAZE.

A haze belt composed of volcanic smoke from Mauna Loa clung to the rim of the island and drifted over Tantalus and Koolau ranges. Late in the afternoon this smoke barrage formed a belt, reaching from the valleys to far above the mountain tops, contrasting gravely with the blue black clouds above. Residents of Manoa saw Kaimuki and Diamond Head through this haze while view of Nuuanu valley was obscured.

Shortly after 5 o'clock residents of the uplands had an astonishing view of the setting sun. It showed a great disc, ox-blood in color owing to the haze. It was a spectacular scene as the great blood red ball appeared to rest first on the horizon and then slowly sink beneath the ocean, all the while continuing its intense glow.

RECALL KRAKATOA ERUPTION.

Kamaainas were reminded of the days—about a quarter of a century ago—following terrific explosions of Krakatoa volcano, in Java. For months afterward Honolulans experienced what is known as the "afterglow." The sun took on an appearance similar to that last evening and instead of the day changing directly into darkness, as usual, there was a long "twilight."

Scientists explained this phenomenon as being due to the particles of volcanic dust which was blown into the upper air strata by the Krakatoa explosion, producing in various parts of the world the peculiar, but beautiful afterglow.

About 20 years ago, during an eruption of Mauna Loa, when the Dewey Crater was formed, smoke was carried to the northeast and was caught by another wind blowing southwest which carried the smoke over Oahu. The city was enveloped in a thick fog which lasted for some time, obscuring objects even across the streets.—[Pacific Commercial Advertiser.

ON QUEER ECONOMIES.

Well, my stars! She has got the funniest way of economizing what I ever saw. I don't call that economy. . . .

Ma'm? Well, that's so. Everybudy has different ideas about economy. Some folks will pinch and pinch every nickel and argue with the meat man and the vegetable man and all that—

Ma'm? why it ain't economy to buy that kind of stuff for your lining and as for them shoe ribbons you got at the little store. My land! They won't pay you to put 'em in, if you will excuse my telling you about it. . . .

Ma'm? Why yes'm, indeed, I do have funny economies myself.

Now I got a cousin what argues with the poor vegetable man what gets up at 4 o'clock in the morning and brings home-grown lettuce to her door for 15 cents a basket.

Well, she says to him, "I can't use only half that basket. How much will you take for half of it? The whole basket is 15 cents you say. Well, I don't see why you should charge 8 cents for half.

Well, then he says she can have it for 7 though it's 7½ cents any way you fix it. But she decides that she don't need only a fourth of that basket of lettuce and so she goes on arguing ontil that man is plum wore out into giving it to her for anything she wants.

Lonny told a joke on her.

Ma'm? That's my husband. Lonny says, "Lutie, I know you must have a hard time a-figuring how to buy peaches with or without the fuzz on," he says. Now I heard you ask a man the other day about a basket of peaches and he figured a half the basket and then a dozen and then a half a dozen, and I heard you ask him how much was the peaches without the fuzz on."

Well, 'course that wasn't so. But she blushed like fire and I just thought to myself, "I'm glad Lonny said that. It will do her good."

But you know when folks have got a funny economy habit, it's right hard to break 'em of it.

Some folks save on heat and spend money on doctors and they's some what save on fresh air a'thinking that it is a waste of heat to have fire and the winders open at the same time. Now that's auful ignorant. My pa used to say make up the fires and open the winders. And he wasn't no spendthrift, as the saying is.

Now then I had another cousin—

Ma'm? Yes'm. It was Cousin William. Well, he was the aufulest spending money on seegars and taking his nip before meal times. But do you think that he would buy hisself a new necktie? No, indeed. He always waited for somebudy to give him one for Christmas. And if they didn't do it why he just went without ontil we was ashamed and give him one.

Now Lonny is that sensitive about his neckties, when he wears them after he takes off his working clothes that he don't want nobudy to buy him one. He'd ruther do without forever than to wear one of them things what Mary Ann Shivers give him two Christmases ago. Yet and still, when we see her coming he's right nice about wanting to have it on.

My land! But I've took notice that he don't never go out of the house with it on.

Well, and there's Mis' Gray (don't you tell her) what always buys penny pins instead of getting something what will stick through the goods and won't rust nothing. And she wastes enough thread a-throwing away the basting threads to buy good pins.

Well, and there's a door neighbor of mine what buys this mushy stuff all white and takes a little red capsule what looks like a ripe gooseberry and she makes butter. She pays more than half what she pays for good butter; yet and still, it don't go near as far and she wastes it to beat the band, yes'm.

It looks like to me that they ort to be some kind of a standard of what folks calls economy. But I reckon as they say they are "pet economies" and you couldn't make 'em give up so's they could have money for something else.

Now one time Isabel Pearl (that's my daughter what lives up in Canady) went traveling with a widow woman.

Well, they say that woman had $3,000,000. It wasn't only hearsay. She certainly did have it. And Isabel Pearl went along as a companion. Well, she carried along her horses and barooch and she carried six trunks and two wigs.

Well, she had money in rolls in her pocket and in her shoe and in her dress and in a pocket in her petticoat. And she would spend $20 for something. But she kept account of every penny. Now all she needed was to keep account of her checks.

My land! Isabel Pearl says that she was as nervous as a cat and if she couldn't remember when she had spent 35 cents and what it was for she would most throw a fit. And she certainly did hate to buy a new face veil and she could hardly ever be pushed into getting a new traveling bag.

Isabel Pearl says she was ashamed of this lady's hand bag more than she was her straw suit case.

But they want no telling where her economy would bust out. It was always a surprise to Isabel Pearl.

It's the same way about men's cigars they smoke and some folks' groceries.

Sometimes they haven't allowed theirselves to find out about quality. They think they are auful virtuous and other folks is foolishly extravagant and then they will go and spend a lot on foolishness; or what looks like to us is foolishness. They'll have a grand time at the picture show and buying ice cream sandwiches for the crowd, or always bringing home popcorn and candy to make the children sick.

Well, and some folks economize on milk. Now that's a bad thing to economize on. I ain't saying that canned milk ain't good sometimes. No'm.

Sometimes in a pinch we used canned milk and I'd ruther have it than bad milk; yet and still, I would ruther economize on popcorn, I lieve.

They's a heap of ways to sugar, and I reckon that's one of economies. I wouldn't never th of buying candy, no'm.

Now I've heard a good deal a sugar being so nourishin'. I re some of it is. But I don't t they's many folks what don't eat much.

Some folks gets the habit of p on so thick it's ridiculous. It ridiculous. Now it's just a h what the war showed us could broke. I got Lonny over taking his coffee enduring the war. A haven't never begun giving it to again.

Well, I use condensed milk ins of cream and sugar if we are a-f ing our livers too much. You k sugar ain't a bit good for the l

Well, and I sweeten a good m things with honey and such.

After all is said and done, can't think alike. We might as leave each other and our feeling agree on one thing: that is, if they don't hurt nobudy. W one person's economy is ano body's extravagance and, I can't no standard in sight. But we'll ain't nobudy what likes to e omise.

Let us show you our tables and other dining-room furniture, if you are looking for something in that line. We know with our large and up-to-date stock we can please the most particular housewife.

A visit to our store just now will be a revelation to you.

THE NEW.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

Up-to-Datest:

The broad hip band of embroidery or heavy lace has, more or less, replaced the waist-defining girdle, both for evening gowns and on dressy day blouses.

Even though hip drapery is popular, many women of good taste will adhere to the straight-line silhouette, especially when it best becomes them.

"Sphynx blue," the gray-green blue of the Nile, is the latest Parisian fad in evening gowns.

Paris has created what she calls "the American silhouette." It is long, swirling and graceful, rather than tight-waisted and hip-distended, and verges upon the oriental, which, it is declared by the leading couturier inventing it, best suits the dignified American woman.

Now is the Time to Buy:

The wanted hat. Whether it be long-wished-for, or just a hat—the time to buy is on Tuesday next. If you look about, you'll know the reason why.

China for the Thanksgiving table. Linens, also, are offered attractively, and what is the first of the winter holidays without some new and interesting feature in the home—something a bit better than formerly, for the Thanksgiving table!

Furniture to make the home more homey. The sale at that oldest store which is about removing to its handsome new home affords furniture offerings.

∴

Framed in Gold.

An example of couturial art worthy of being framed in gold, as it is so picture-like, in the window of that big store! An evening gown of elegance and artistry supreme from the ateliers of Paquin, the work is as fine as that upon a treasured handbag. Flower petals blended as carefully as ever nature blended her rare productions, form the main effect, pallettes in that electric tint, a twilight of color between blue and black forming the background for the lighter pastel tints. Grace is in each line of it, and beauty in every fold. Truly, a fitting emissary from fair Paris to our beauty-loving land, this gown tells us that Parisian makers are not to be superseded easily.

∴

Great Millinery Values.

If there is anything you have oh—so wanted, in the millinery line, now is your opportunity to secure it and at a price so low that you are likely to purchase two instead of one.

Brown panne velvet shapes, stitched all over, and trimmed with self-velvet flowers; chic leather turbans in brown, toques of metallic cloth in gold, bronze or silver; gold-embroidered hats of panne, hats with ostrich, hats trimmed elaborately in fur; in fact, such a collection at such a price has not been shown this season. Quality is there, and style is there, and price—high price—is absent!

∴

Christmas Buying.

Christmas buying is certain to be fast and furious this year, and it has already started. Are your lists in readiness? Stocks are certain to be short, despite all efforts of store buyers in the East. Never was demand so insistent along every line; never has merchandise been so difficult to obtain. And—let us add—not in a long, long time has the holiday spirit been so ready to blossom.

∴

Blouse Week.

The movement toward designating certain weeks in the year as devoted to an especial garment, as well as giving over certain days to special activities, is a growing practice. We have "Mother's Day," "Children's Day," "Apple Day," "Raisin Day" and have had "Gingham Week," "Silk Week" and now we are to have "Blouse Week"—which is to begin on November 10. A concerted action throughout the United States will make special offerings in this important line of women's wear. The fact that so lovely are the season's blouses, amounting in some cases to almost dresses in themselves, ranks these useful garments among the truly practical Christmas gifts. Hence "Blouse Week" will take on a double value, occurring at this time.

∴

Impending.

It is declared that men's cravats are on the verge of a change. No longer is there to be such a waste of lovely silk and crepe as has been the case for some seasons past; but the cravat forthcoming is to be much narrower and very closely tied. Just as men were beginning to enjoy showing off their neckties, too! Haven't you observed how vainly they spread the flowing ends of lovely silk and brocade on the outside of carelessly unbuttoned vests? Of course it "just happened" to be that way—for men are never fond of showing off, you know! But anyhow, those luxurious superfluities are to be taken from them soon. A few examples of the new, narrow ties have already come to town.

∴

Those Podgy Chairs.

"No, I'll not sit down—not even to try one of them!" said Eleanor, "for if I do, I shall just remain there all day dreaming of Arabian nights, and Alices in wonderland, and I shall never see the end of this shopping list." We were doting upon the big, inviting chairs, in the enlarged furniture section of a popular store, and had been invited to sample the sit-quality of the great puffy rockers. And by the way, the new materials with which they were upholstered were most lovely. Brocades in wine and gold, in mauve with underlints of blue, and in rich mahogany tones with an effect of velvet brocaded upon satin. "Mohairs," the man said they were; and that may be their trade name, but they looked as velvety as do our hats or dressy gowns; and the colorings were quite as beautiful.

Aproning his Shirts.

"My wife always selects my cotton shirts," said one of the young men in an office, recently, "because she is particular as to the colors and the patterns of her aprons." Seeing that his hearer wore a puzzled look, he further explained: "Beth always makes her kitchen and needle-work aprons from my worn-out shirts. It is her pet frugality; and she is never so triumphant as when she has cut away the worn-out neck of a shirt, utilizing the remainder as an apron. I tell her she has enough aprons to supply a factory—but she keeps right on making them, just for the sake of feeling righteously economical, I believe."

∴

Winter Fashion Leads.

Navy blue and black camisoles are worn under thin blouses.

The finest, most cobwebby laces are those most sought by fashion.

A few tailored silk waists have high collars with tiny turnovers.

Velveteen with a duvetyne border is one of fashion's newest vagaries.

Color is one of the most important elements in winter millinery.

Leaf green, with black and a little old gold, is another good color scheme.

Some of the new gaiters, in tan and brown, come almost to the knees.

A very simple type of wrap has a shawl collar open almost to the waist.

Silver tinsel and peach-colored Georgette combined make lovely dance frocks.

Low shoes and spats are the natural result of the high cost of leather.

Never before has embroidery played so important a part in women's apparel.

Little embroidered caps of self material appear on many new set-in sleeves.

Parrot-green taffeta and black velvet are a good combination for evening.

Sweater blouses and simple skirts of knitted goods are used for sports costumes.

French suede gloves, mousquetaire, should be worn with costumes of delicate fabrics.

Pink taffeta, with a gray-blue sash-ribbon, is a charming arrangement for a little girl's party frock.

The lovely brocaded vests, cut perfectly straight, and worn with velour coats and skirts, are very fashionable.

Not So Slow.

He was a very young officer who looked as if he should be wearing knee breeches, says Everybody's. One day, when his company was up for inspection at the training camp, one of the men remarked in a tone of deep sarcasm, "And a little child shall lead them." "The man that said that, step forward," was the immediate command. The entire company stepped out and repeated the quotation. The lieutenant looked up and down the line. "Dismissed," he announced shortly. The men thought that they had got the better of him, but not for long, for that night at retreat when the orders for the following day were read, they heard: "There will be a 25-mile hike tomorrow with full equipment, and a little child shall lead them—on a damned good horse."

USELESS HORSES.

A Million of Them Consuming Fodder in Montana.

One million head of useless horses eating their way across Montana's plains have brought to that State its greatest curse, according to Hughie Hunter, rancher, of Miles City, Mont.

Figures compiled this summer by the State veterinary of Montana estimated the number of useless horses in the State at a little more than 1,000,000, according to Mr. Hunter.

The 1,000,000 useless horses consume 30,000,000 pounds of fodder every day, thousands of miles of ranch country yielding up their fruits to the army of horses.

"No matter how many horses a Montanan may own or what may be their quality, he cannot ship them to market," said Mr. Hunter. "They will not bring enough on any market to pay for the freight. It is against the State law to butcher them.

"A man with a large herd of horses is worse off than 'broke.' The animals are pests which eat up their fodder without a single cent of return."

J. B. Long of Great Falls, Mont., brought a friend of his to his ranch one day early in June, according to Mr. Hunter, and allowed the friend to choose 1000 head of horses for his herd. Long gave the friend the horses free of charge, but the latter had to sign a contract that he would have them off Long's ranch before July 1.

The contract was completed and the new owner of the horses consigned one load to Kansas City to test the market.

The load cost him $500. "And he didn't have to pay a cent for the horses, either," Mr. Hunter commented.—[Omaha Bee.

HE DOESN'T MIND IT NOW.

"I don't know what's come over George in the last year and a half or so," she confided to the group at her bridge table, the other afternoon. She was speaking of her husband, and continued: "It used to be that I never could get him to do a thing about the house, like making repairs. But now all I have to do is to put down in the cellar the things that I want fixed and he'll spend a whole day down there on Sundays, sometimes."

"And so you had good luck with your cellar stock this year, did you, my dear?" asked her catty partner. And the others smiled understandingly.—[Indianapolis News.

A Weekly News Letter from London

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

DON, Nov. 1.—Taking tea on rrace of the House of Commons some weeks ago I saw a figure though strange, yet seemed to me. It was a lady in a garb half English and Hindu, surrounded by turbans in flowing garments the aureole of thick gray the figure of ample proportions a middle-aged woman. The stood out strong and prominent. She might have passed for a dowager of Belgian figure and habits.

Suddenly I realized who it was. My memory went back nearly fifty years, when I had seen this same lady with so different a figure. She was a fascinating Irish beauty then, with fine, brilliant eyes, delicate features, cherubic mouth, soft manners and perfect figure. Beside her towered one of the ugliest and most powerful, even frightening figures I have ever seen, with shoulders and chest as broad and thick as John L. Sullivan's, long, fishy face, clean-shaven and yellow complexioned, with a short nose that ended abruptly above an upper lip of portentous length and a jaw that looked like a blacksmith's anvil.

There blazed literally in this face two large gray eyes, whose every look seered a challenge and menace, and you might well imagine there stood before you, as like in temperament as in person, that terrible Danton, who threw the head of a king in defiance at reactionary Europe, coalesced against republican France and roused his countrymen to a gigantic effort of self-defense against foes threatening to encircle and strangle France in an appeal to be audacious and audacious and yet again audacious.

These two remarkable, greatly contrasted figures were at that time closely associated in the iconoclastic work, which was at once aimed at the breakdown of all such institutions as the monarchy in England and Christianity everywhere. I met them at a building known as the Hall of Science, which was then a cathedral for the free thinkers of England. I was present as a friend of another Irishman, once famous as Frank Hugh O'Donnell, one of Parnell's first associates, and O'Donnell was carrying out a challenge to his burly opponent to discuss the comparative merits of free thought and the Catholic religion.

The lady was Mrs. Annie Besant. The man was Charles Bradlaugh. There were no two figures more unpopular in all social circles of England at that epoch. Free thought was much less common then than now, and especially free thought as expressed not in the beautiful and suave diction of John Morley or the severe, cold, scientific essays of Herbert Spencer, but in the coarse and almost brutal speeches of these two speakers. They had offended even more deeply by making themselves responsible for the publication of a semi-medical work which advocated the limitation of population on Malthusian lines, with a plainness of speech, which would err on the side of frankness even in a medical work seen only by medical experts.

They had been hauled before the police courts and acquitted only after many months of hard struggle, where Bradlaugh's infinite knowledge of every trick and defense of the letter of the law had been put forth, for he had been a solicitor's clerk i nhis early years, and with his wonderfully strong mind and tenacious memory had learned every trick of the lawyer's trade, especially in criminal proceedings.

Bradlaugh had curious mannerisms, even affectations, which were in comic contrast with his burly figure, great, ugly face and his social outlawry. His politeness was almost an exaggeration of the French courtier at its highest. He took off his hat when speaking to any woman, even a domestic servant. He bowed as low as though he were Lord Chesterfield revived or a figure in Sheridan's "School for Scandal." Sometimes he spoke almost in mincing tones. I remember as we were leaving the Hall of Science he turned to this beautiful, striking, soft and feminine figure behind with the pouting lips and soft eyes and manner and said in that mincing tone, "Etes—vous prete?" (Are you ready?) a somewhat unnecessary interjection of the French language into English conversation.

Many times afterward I attended meetings addressed by both speakers, sometimes at great meetings for land reform or liberation of the Bulgarians or the reform of our then reactionary suffrage, but in were both great speakers, but in different ways.

Bradlaugh was and looked like a fighter and had become so accustomed to platform methods, where often he had to defend himself against the fists of pious, shocked and athletic Christians, that he seemed always to bark rather than to speak, and those defiant, dictatorial eyes added to the impression of a great revolutionary that used words when he might have preferred the guillotine as arguments against opponents.

Powerful then as were his words and sledge-hammer as were his arguments, Bradlaugh always lacked persuasiveness when afterward he became a powerful member of Parliament after five long years of a weary and wasting struggle, which ultimately sent him to an early grave. His speeches in that small hall, for the House of Commons is very small, delivered in those rasping tones of his cold voice sounded to me like a pair of crashing cymbals in a small drawing-room.

Annie Besant, on the other hand, spoke in soft and low tones with exquisite ease of delivery, few gestures and with a logic as severe as that of a professor of metaphysics, with now and then bursts of beautiful though subdued eloquence, that thrilled the audience. Then Mrs. Besant parted company with Bradlaugh, adopting socialism, then a quite new and unfashionable creed in England, while Bradlaugh remained to the days of his death a violent individualist, who fought all socialists, John Burns included, like the beasts at Ephesus.

There came, after Bradlaugh's death, another even more remarkable change in her mental outlook, for she became a disciple of Mme. Blavatsky, who founded that extraordinary new creed of theosophy, and this real materialist, Malthusian and atheist was transformed into a preacher of the new gospel of Mahatmas and appealed for not the limitation, but the infinite multiplication of new human beings as souls that passed through various and innumerable phases till their final vanishing in Nirvana.

She lived for years in a small house, rather suggesting a concentral institution, in St. John Wood, a charming leafy tranquil London suburb, where George Eliot also found a home and Alma Tadema and other great artists painted their pictures.

It was there I last spoke to her, still with traces of her youthful beauty and with a mass of hair now snowy white, and induced her to write her autobiography for my newspaper. When republished in book form this work had its fortune made by a review from the pen of the great Gladstone, critical but indulgent.

Then one fine day she disappeared from English life. Her next address was at Benares, the sacred city of India, and there this Irish woman, for she is Irish, though born in England, identified herself with the aspirations and even with the strange ceremonies of Indian life.

She is a woman always bound to be the foremost and most striking figure in any cause she adopts. Soon she became the high priestess of India's growing demands for increased self-government. The English authorities hated and dreaded her. Often she seemed in deadly peril of arrest and imprisonment, but they dared not touch her, and this year she came to London with a court of flowing-robed Hindus and turbaned Mohammedans pleading before Parliamentary committees the cause of those dusky millions whom she, with her white face and cultured European manners and mind

BOOK BY BOGARDUS.

Cleveland, O., made July 4, 1914, Americanization Day and a year later something like 150 cities similarly emphasized our great national holiday. The movement grew steadily in importance until 1918, when the government took cognizance of it by intrusting to the bureau of education of the Department of the Interior the task of outlining an effective programme to be put into operation throughout the country. But as yet the work is only in its infancy. Little progress toward a satisfactory goal has been made. Banquet halls ring with speeches from glib-tongued orators who concern themselves more or less patronizingly with what they define as our duty to the stranger within our gates, women's clubs struggle with laboriously-prepared papers on the subject, parent-teacher associations grip the problem manfully and pamphleteers flood the country with prints on the same subject, all to little purpose.

But at length comes forward Dr. Emory S. Bogardus, professor of sociology at the University of Southern California, with a genuinely helpful and analytical text dealing exclusively and seriously with the subject. Dr. Bogardus dignifies his treaties, which is but recently from the press, with the simple title, "Americanization." The text is comparatively brief, is written in a clear, simple, self-explanatory style which requires no effort at concentrated attention, is full of the very desirable element which newspaper writers call human interest, steers clear of prejudiced argument throughout, and, above all, in addition to being helpful and instructive, is so highly entertaining and interesting that it may very properly be recommended as a desirable volume for the common reading table.

Dr. Bogardus divides his book into four parts. The first of these discusses "Americanization and American Traits," the second, "The Native-born and American Traits," the third, "The Foreign-born and American Traits" and the fourth, "Methods of Americanization." These four subjects are treated under a variety of chapter headings and, for good measure, four appendixes are added. These are, in their order, "Brief Original Statements of American Ideals," beginning with the Mayflower Compact and ending with extracts from the most recent speeches of President Wilson; "Suggestions to Speakers on Americanization," "Problems in Americanization," and "Selected Readings."

Liberty and self-reliance, the first group of American traits treated of by Dr. Bogardus, bring us to an immediate consideration of the causes which impelled the first settlers to wend their way to our shores, a longing for moral and religious liberty, which was followed in turn by the demand of the colonists for political liberty in 1775 and for industrial liberty at about the time that Benjamin Franklin and "Poor Richard's Almanac" were enjoying public favor. "Poor Richard" is pronounced "the personification of thrift—a self-reliant thrift by which our forefathers laid the foundations of our material welfare, our individual success and of national prosperity." Liberty and self-reliance are regarded as practically inseparable in this instance as American traits. Our national leaders have been fearless men of the type of Lincoln, Roosevelt and Woodrow Wilson, and the inventive genius of America, leading the world, is one of the highest exemplifications of the investigating, progressive and defiant spirit of the American in the face of all obstacles. Excellent illustrations of the presence of these traits in American life round out this chapter.

The final expressions of a national demand for union and co-operation, the second group of American traits cited, are to be seen in the accomplishments of such men as Washington, Jefferson, Webster, Calhoun, Clay and Lincoln, while the co-operation of an entire people was secured with comparative ease when a national emergency made necessary food conservation and Red Cross and government loan "drives."

Democracy and the square deal which compose the third group of American traits treated of in this book are enshrined in such historic documents as the Mayflower compact, the emancipation proclamation and the Gettysburg speech as well as in the spirit of the Monroe Doctrine and in the Jeffersonian, the Rooseveltian and the Wilsonian policies. Democracy is of many types, political, religious, intellectual, personal, industrial social and spiritual and all of them are combined in the single American ideal.

Internationalism and brotherhood, the final group of American traits to be considered by Dr. Bogardus, have found their conspicuous exponents in men of the stamp of all of our Presidents who have been brought face to face with threatened international crises. Every suggestion of imperialistic ambitions has met with rebuffs.

The methods by means of which Americanization is to be accomplished Dr. Bogardus finds must begin with a renewed study of American history with a new emphasis on fundamental traits, principles and ideals, while schools, churches, press and motion-picture producers must unite to spread the gospel. And, above all, the process must begin with the native-born.

Night schools for the immigrant, where he may learn English first of all, in case he comes from a non-English-speaking country, are noted among the most important influences lending great aid to the handicapped foreigner, and lecture courses, patriotic gatherings, clubhouses, social settlements, visiting teachers and the swaying power of music, which is more necessary to the emotional life of the average European than to the usual matter-of-fact American, are all recommended as valuable aids to a highly desired end.

AN ARISTOCRAT AMONG DOGS.

The real aristocrat of dogdom lives in Charleston, S. C., where she is owned by W. K. McDowell. She justly claims the title, too, for what dog wouldn't be an aristocrat if she had been blind, traveled a thousand miles for a surgical operation and came back home again with restored eyesight?

"Queen" is an English setter, not quite two years old, and is placed in the priceless list by her owner. When Queen became totally blinded by cataracts her master sent her to Boston to an animal hospital for treatment. Little hope was held out at the time that the eyesight of the prize dog could be restored. As it was the first operation of its kind to be performed, special care was taken. Doctor Flanagan succeeded in removing the cataract and restoring the sight of the dog.

Now that Queen is back home again she can proudly step around in Charleston society. And when she meets some of the other pets in the neighborhood Queen probably quotes Irvin Cobb's book on "Operations."—[Kansas City Star.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIRS—
WARTS AND MOLES.
Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 360 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to the work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. A. satisfied customers will testify to my skill as an expert.

Suite 407 Bumiller Bldg.,
430 S. Broadway.

SUPERFLUOUS HAIR—
HUMILIATING AND UNSIGHTLY.
There is only one method known today of permanently removing superfluous hair, and that is Electrolysis (electric needle.) This process in the hands of a reliable and expert operator insures absolute satisfaction. I stand back of my work and guarantee any hair treated by me will be permanently destroyed, leaving no scars.
